FBI FOIPA Addendum

As referenced in our letter responding to your Freedom of Information/Privacy Acts (FOIPA) request, the FBI FOIPA Addendum provides information applicable to your request. Part 1 of the Addendum includes standard responses that apply to all requests. Part 2 includes standard responses that apply to requests for records about individuals to the extent your request seeks the listed information. Part 3 includes general information about FBI records, searches, and programs.

Part 1: The standard responses below apply to all requests:

- (i) 5 U.S.C. § 552(c). Congress excluded three categories of law enforcement and national security records from the requirements of the FOIPA [5 U.S.C. § 552(c)]. FBI responses are limited to those records subject to the requirements of the FOIPA. Additional information about the FBI and the FOIPA can be found on the www.fbi.gov/foia website.
- (ii) Intelligence Records. To the extent your request seeks records of intelligence sources, methods, or activities, the FBI can neither confirm nor deny the existence of records pursuant to FOIA exemptions (b)(1), (b)(3), and as applicable to requests for records about individuals, PA exemption (j)(2) [5 U.S.C. §§ 552/552a (b)(1), (b)(3), and (j)(2)]. The mere acknowledgment of the existence or nonexistence of such records is itself a classified fact protected by FOIA exemption (b)(1) and/or would reveal intelligence sources, methods, or activities protected by exemption (b)(3) [50 USC § 3024(i)(1)]. This is a standard response and should not be read to indicate that any such records do or do not exist.

Part 2: The standard responses below apply to all requests for records on individuals:

- (i) Requests for Records about any Individual—Watch Lists. The FBI can neither confirm nor deny the existence of any individual's name on a watch list pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(7)(E) and PA exemption (j)(2) [5 U.S.C. §§ 552/552a (b)(7)(E), (j)(2)]. This is a standard response and should not be read to indicate that watch list records do or do not exist.
- (ii) Requests for Records about any Individual—Witness Security Program Records. The FBI can neither confirm nor deny the existence of records which could identify any participant in the Witness Security Program pursuant to FOIA exemption (b)(3) and PA exemption (j)(2) [5 U.S.C. §§ 552/552a (b)(3), 18 U.S.C. 3521, and (j)(2)]. This is a standard response and should not be read to indicate that such records do or do not exist.
- (iii) Requests for Confidential Informant Records. The FBI can neither confirm nor deny the existence of confidential informant records pursuant to FOIA exemptions (b)(7)(D), (b)(7)(E), and (b)(7)(F) [5 U.S.C. § 552 (b)(7)(D), (b)(7)(E), and (b)(7)(F)] and Privacy Act exemption (j)(2) [5 U.S.C. § 552a (j)(2)]. The mere acknowledgment of the existence or nonexistence of such records would reveal confidential informant identities and information, expose law enforcement techniques, and endanger the life or physical safety of individuals. This is a standard response and should not be read to indicate that such records do or do not exist.

Part 3: General Information:

- (i) Record Searches and Standard Search Policy. The Record/Information Dissemination Section (RIDS) searches for reasonably described records by searching systems, such as the Central Records System (CRS), or locations where responsive records would reasonably be found. The CRS is an extensive system of records consisting of applicant, investigative, intelligence, personnel, administrative, and general files compiled by the FBI per its law enforcement, intelligence, and administrative functions. The CRS spans the entire FBI organization, comprising records of FBI Headquarters, FBI Field Offices, and FBI Legal Attaché Offices (Legats) worldwide; Electronic Surveillance (ELSUR) records are included in the CRS. The standard search policy is a search for main entity records in the CRS. Unless specifically requested, a standard search does not include a search for reference entity records, administrative records of previous FOIPA requests, or civil litigation files.
  - a. Main Entity Records – created for individuals or non-individuals who are the subjects or the focus of an investigation
  - b. Reference Entity Records- created for individuals or non-individuals who are associated with a case but are not known subjects or the focus of an investigation
- (ii) FBI Records. Founded in 1908, the FBI carries out a dual law enforcement and national security mission. As part of this dual mission, the FBI creates and maintains records on various subjects; however, the FBI does not maintain records on every person, subject, or entity.
- (iii) Foreseeable Harm Standard. As amended in 2016, the Freedom of Information Act provides that a federal agency may withhold responsive records only if: (1) the agency reasonably foresees that disclosure would harm an interest protected by one of the nine exemptions that FOIA enumerates, or (2) disclosure is prohibited by law (5 United States Code, Section 552(a)(8)(A)(i)). The FBI considers this foreseeable harm standard in the processing of its requests.
- (iv) Requests for Criminal History Records or Rap Sheets. The Criminal Justice Information Services (CJIS) Division provides Identity History Summary Checks – often referred to as a criminal history record or rap sheet. These criminal history records are not the same as material in an investigative “FBI file.” An Identity History Summary Check is a listing of information taken from fingerprint cards and documents submitted to the FBI in connection with arrests, federal employment, naturalization, or military service. For a fee, individuals can request a copy of their Identity History Summary Check. Forms and directions can be accessed at www.fbi.gov/about-us/cjis/identity-history-summary-checks. Additionally, requests can be submitted electronically at www.edo.cjis.gov. For additional information, please contact CJIS directly at (304) 625-5590.

Bureau File #100-146964;
Report of Special Agent LOUIS D. NELAN dated 12/8/47 at Denver, Colorado;
Letter from New York to the Bureau dated 11/8/48.

DETAILS:

GENERAL ACTIVITIES

On May 14, 1948, a copy of a handbill was received by this Office protesting the movie "THE IRON CURTAIN," then showing in several Denver Theaters. At the bottom of the handbill appeared the printed notation: "Distributed as a Public Service by the Denver Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Box #4174, South Denver Station, Denver 9, Colorado." The handbill in protesting the movie stated that the movie had been condemned by churchmen, civic leaders and educators from Coast to Coast as a violation of resolution against Warmongers. The handbill protested that the movie was war propaganda, implied that Russia sought war with this country, and was a story which was based on false accounts of a Russian deserter during the war and withdrawn in Canada because of libel.

Numerous mimeographed postcards received by the Denver Theaters from various individuals protesting the movie, "THE IRON CURTAIN," were also turned over to this Office by Theaters exhibiting the movie. The following appeared on each postcard:

"Dear Sir:

"We are shocked to know that your theater is to show
"THE IRON CURTAIN," a vicious war propaganda film.

"When war hysteria is already widespread, we believe it is actually dangerous to the security of our country to show this type of film. By showing it, you will help project war, and you will be blocking peace.

"I and others in my family have enjoyed many of your pictures but if you do not cancel "THE IRON CURTAIN," we pledge ourselves not to attend your theater for one year.

"Sincerely yours."

It is believed the above mimeographed postcards were sponsored by the ~~Denver~~ Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

It is also noted that the Denver Theaters furnished to this Office several copies of a mimeographed communication protesting the movie "THE IRON CURTAIN," dated June 18, 1948, and signed by following members of the Clergy in Denver:

Reverend M. ~~ALLEN~~ KEITH (Methodist);

Reverend CLARK P. ~~GARMAN~~ (Congregationalist);

Reverend F. C. ~~RUEGGEBERG~~ (Evangelical Reform);

Reverend JAMES ~~McPHERSON~~ (Baptist).

It is noted that Reverend KEITH and Reverend McPHERSON are listed on the list of sponsors of the ~~Denver~~ Council ASF as of December, 1947.

This Office received copies of the publication "FACTS ON RUSSIA AND SPECIAL NEWS," published by the ~~DCASF~~ in February, March, and May, 1948. In the February issue there appeared an article concerning examples of Anglo-American propaganda in the U.S.S.R. The article indicated by agreement with the Soviet Government both the British and the United States Governments published a magazine in the Russian language for circulation in the Soviet Union. The article indicated that the British publication, edited by the Press Attache at the British Embassy in Moscow, and the American publication, published by the United States State Department, refuted the charge that the Soviet Government forbids friendly governments from acquainting the Soviet public with official portrayals of its own countries and offered significant evidence of the kind of picture that London and Washington wish the Soviet public to receive.

Another item in the same issue dealt with membership dues. The item went on to say that "Funds are needed as never before. Every penny and every minute count in our drive to oppose a conspiracy against the Soviet Union. A conspiracy 'born in deception and nurtured in fraud.' We must stand firm in resisting an American Foreign Policy which is rapidly bringing our country to the brink of War and destruction of mankind."

At the top of the March publication there appeared the notation "If there is a mark to the right, it indicates either:

- "1. Your dues are in arrears, or
- "2. You are invited to be a member or to make a contribution. We can continue mailing the Bulletin only to those who help share expenses."

In the March issue there appeared among other things the following item entitled "J. EDGAR HOOVER'S LOYALTY INVESTIGATION FIND SMALL NUMBER OF 'SPIES'." The article stated "Those who have worried about Reds under their beds should feel relieved in knowing that Hoover's efficient G-Men have now investigated 418,104 U.S. employees. Only 399 of those had records which warranted even the remotest suspicion - and of those 399 only 8 developed with any 'dis-loyalty' data."

Another issue in the March issue entitled "FEDERAL COURTS DENIED MORFORD ADEQUATE OPPORTUNITY FOR DEFENSE," dealt with the trial of RICHARD MORFORD then taking place in Washington, D. C., and indicated that MORFORD, who had been indicted in March, 1947, for contempt of Congress, was not receiving fair treatment.

Another item entitled "WHAT ABOUT CZECHOSLOVAKIA," in general defended the present Government in Czechoslovakia and indicated that overnight a situation had developed that by a course of normal unfettered revolution might have taken a generation or more to occur. The item in defending the revolution in Czechoslovakia compared the situation there with the situation in the United States 170 years ago when the American Colonials threw off the English yoke.

The May issue of the above publication dealt mainly with a protest of the movie "THE IRON CURTAIN," then playing in Denver. An appeal for funds to maintain the Bulletin was also set out in the May issue.

Confidential Informant  advised that copies of the February and March issues of the publication "FACTS ON RUSSIA AND SPECIAL NEWS," published by the DCASF have been received by the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D. C.

An item in the DENVER POST, a Denver newspaper, under date of December 1, 1948, indicated that the Red Dean of Canterbury was scheduled to speak in the City Auditorium, Denver, on December 3, 1948, and that a reception Committee had been organized by Reverend M. ALLEN KEITH, Treasurer of the Colorado Methodist Conference; Chairman Dean PAUL ROBERTS of St. John's Cathedral; Reverend RUDOLPH W. GILBERT, Minister of the First Unitarian Church. It is again noted that Reverend KEITH's name appears on the list of sponsors of the DCASF as of December, 1947. The item indicated that members of the Committee which would receive and welcome Dean JOHNSON at Stapleton Airfield, Denver, would include the following:

Reverend ROBERT ALLINGHAM
 MAX WANNER
 ELIZABETH BLANC
 Dr. FREDERICK D. BRAMHALL
 ANTONIA BRICO
 Dr. E. J. BRUNQUIST
 Mrs. EDWARD COSTIGAN
 LEROY A. EVANS
 Mrs. VALENTINE FISCHER
 GUY FOX
 Reverend CLARK O. GARMAN
 Prof. M. E. GARNSEY
 CHARLES A. GRAHAM
 Dr. HARVEY S. HARIMAN
 Bishop FREDERICK INGLEY
 Mrs. CHARLES M. KASSLER
 Reverend CLARENCE KEMPER

 Reverend JAMES MacPHERSON
 CLIFFORD W. MILLS
 CHARLES F. MOLFORD
 Reverend KENNETH H. SAUSAMAN
 Prof. WALTER SIKES
 Dr. SOLOMON SIMONSON
 Dr. DOROTHEA SWELLMAN
 Miss ELIZABETH SPALDING
 Miss SARAH SPALDING
 ALFRED TODD
 CARLE WHITEHEAD
 Reverend HAROLD H. WRIGHT

The December 2, 1948, issue of the DENVER POST concerning the Red Dean's arrival in Denver indicated that the Red Dean had remarked that the philosophy of Russia was ethically Christian. The Red Dean reportedly intimated in a press interview that he approved of the Russian way of life inasmuch as Russia has a systematic plan to economy, no unemployment, and everybody is an owner in Russia.

On the evening of December 3, 1948, the writer attended the meeting at the Denver City Auditorium sponsored by the Denver Council of American-Soviet Friendship, at which meeting the Dean of Canterbury, Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON, was the main speaker. It was noted that an article in the December 4, 1948, issue of the DENVER POST indicated 1,400 individuals attended the meeting. Upon entering the lobby of City Auditorium, the writer was handed a program, the face of which read as follows:

"5th ANNIVERSARY
P R O G R A M
THE ROAD TO PEACE!!"

"Denver Council of American-Soviet Friendship

"FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3RD, 8:15 PM., CITY AUDITORIUM."

The Program listed the following events:

1. The singing of AMERICA by the audience.
2. INVOCATION - Rev. ALEXANDER LUKENS, Rector, St. Barnabas Episcopal Church
3. OPENING WELCOME - Reverend RUDOLPH GILBERT, Minister, First Unitarian Church
4. THE VERY REV. HEWLETT JOHNSON, Dean of Canterbury Cathedral, England.
5. AMERICA FACES A CHALLENGE - Rev. F. C. RUTGEBERG, Pastor, Pioneer Evangelical & Reformed Church
6. THE VERY REV. HEWLETT JOHNSON will answer written questions from the audience
7. BENEDICTION - Rev. EUTIMINO MURAN, Minister, El Salvador Baptist Church

In connection with the above, it is noted that Reverend GILBERT's name appears on the list of sponsors DCASF as of December, 1947.

Also on the face of the Program appeared the purpose of the DCASF set out as follows:

"Created in war emergency, December, 1943, the Denver Council of American-Soviet Friendship is a non-profit voluntary American organization embracing persons of all walks of life and all shades of religious, political and economic views. Its purpose is to strengthen friendly relations between the United States and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics by disseminating to the American people educational material regarding the Soviet Union, by developing cultural relations between the peoples of the two nations, and by combatting anti-Soviet propaganda designed to disrupt friendly relations between the peoples of these nations and to divide the United Nations. The Council is affiliated with the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship whose purpose is identical with the purpose of the Denver Council."

The following also appears on page three of the Program:

"The DEAN comes to America at the invitation of a 'NATIONAL AD HOC COMMITTEE OF WELCOME.' This Committee, composed of persons of widely divergent opinions, includes 128 of America's prominent College Presidents, Bishops, authors, scientists, church leaders and educators. They are principally concerned with preserving the American tradition of intellectual hospitality and free discussion, and believe that it is peculiarly important to preserve this tradition in the present international situation . . . This Committee was initiated by Prof. William Ernest Hocking and Prof. Ralph Barton Perry both of Harvard University and Dean Christian Gauss of Princeton University; it consented to the Denver stop over of the DEAN as the guest of the Denver Council."

It is also noted that on page three of the Program, the aims of the DCAST are set out exactly as they were set out in referenced report of Special Agent LOUIS D. NELAN in the section of his report dealing with aims of the Denver Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Prior to the lecture given by Dean JOHNSON, Reverend GILBERT, who made the Opening Welcome and introduced the Dean remarked that the Denver Council of American-Soviet Friendship had arranged and sponsored the meeting and the meeting would consist of two parts: 1. A lecture by Dean JOHNSON, and 2. The accepting by Dean JOHNSON of questions submitted by the audience.

After being introduced by Reverend GILBERT, Dean JOHNSON gave a lecture which lasted approximately an hour and ten minutes. The Dean spoke of his travels in war-torn Europe and remarked how terrible were the ravages of war in Europe. He spoke particularly of how he had learned of Nazi prisoners dying in gas chambers in numbers sometimes as high as 24,000 a day. He also spoke of the many thousands killed by bombs during the late war. He commented that Russia and all her neighboring countries such as Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria, Rumania, and Yugoslavia do not want war but are all afraid the United States does want war. The Dean stated he traveled extensively through the Soviet Union, went where he wanted to, saw whom he wanted to, and was convinced that Russia does not want war. He stated that High Russian Officials such as STALIN and MOLOTOV have indicated that they would cooperate with the Western World to promote peace and that the United States should try to understand better the Russian point of view. The Dean stated that Russia has only about 1/5 of the horsepower and wealth per capita that the United States has. He stated that atomic energy was wonderful if used for industrial means but terrible if used for military purposes. He intimated that Russia does not like for atomic energy control to be in the hands of the United Nations inasmuch as Russia is anxious to develop her below average industries and feels the United Nations would not give Russia sufficient opportunity to develop atomic energy for industrial uses for fear Russia might use it for military purposes.

He mentioned news articles criticizing President TRUMAN's Administration for expanding United States military bases throughout the world and remarked this causes apprehension in Russia. The Dean emphasized that an invasion of "Russian ideas" has taken place in Europe and intimated that he hoped those same ideas would invade the United States. He stated that the only way for Western Europe to resist such an invasion is to present better ideas to the people. He praised Russian medical services and reiterated again that he was permitted to see anyone he wanted to see and go anywhere he wanted to go in Russia.

Concerning the medical services in Russia, the Dean praised the Moscow plan whereby mothers, whose new-born babies had died, gave their mother's milk to a Central Dispensary in order that all babies in the city could have human milk.

He mentioned that even though Russian Officials showed him only the things they wanted him to see, he felt he had also seen many other things that Russian Officials were unaware he had observed. Yet, he was still favorably impressed with the Russian way of life.

The Dean remarked he had visited farmers living on collective farms in Russia and felt that the advantages of collective farming far outweighed the disadvantages.

He stated he had visited many High Church Officials in Russia and all had intimated there was complete religious liberty and equality in Russia. He spoke of the beautiful cities in Armenia with well watered lawns, healthy children, beautiful churches and civic buildings. The Dean then exhibited a large Crucifix he wears, which he stated was received as a gift from a High Official of the Russian Orthodox Church. The Dean remarked about the Russian children who had approached him and kissed the same Crucifix in deep religious fervor. The Dean then remarked that he "admitted Russia has done bad things - what country hasn't?"

He thereafter praised the Russian way of life in providing equality for all in the necessities and luxuries of life. He added that this was something akin to what CHRIST would want in that CHRIST would desire that everyone share alike in food, clothing, shelter, medical services, good health, and education. The Dean concluded that it is possible to have peace in our time provided the United States can understand the viewpoint.

In his final concluding statement, the Dean raised his voice slightly in advocating "Peace on earth as it is in heaven."

After conclusion of the Red Dean's lecture, Reverend F. C. RUEGGERBERG took the platform and requested Mrs. MARIAN ULMER, the Secretary of the Denver Council of American-Soviet Friendship, who was in the audience, to stand and praised her as the local head of the DCASF, which had sponsored Dean JOHNSON's appearance. While Reverend RUEGGEBERG spoke ushers were observed taking up voluntary contributions in cardboard cups; also, they were collecting questions to be answered by the Dean. Thereafter, the Dean answered the questions which had been submitted by the audience.

In answer to one question concerning the current war in China, the Dean emphatically stated that Russia has not given any aid to the Communists fighting in China.

The Dean answered another question concerning prison camps in Russia by stating that German prisoners held in Russian prison camps were very well treated in his opinion.

Concerning the situation in Palestine, the Dean remarked that Russia wants peace in Palestine as peace serves Russia's best interests.

Concerning efforts in England to suppress his travels, the Dean stated English authorities did not want him to go to Hungary during elections in Hungary. The Dean remarked that the English authorities had attempted to dissuade him from his travels in Hungary as they felt that he would see nothing but intimidation of voters and suppression of conservative elements. However, the Dean laughingly remarked that he resisted successfully these efforts to dissuade him, went to Hungary, and there he observed absolute freedom in the elections with no suppression nor intimidation of voters.

Prior to the beginning of the meeting, the writer was handed the following literature, copies of which are being maintained in instant file:

1. Fifth Anniversary Program (THE ROAD TO PEACE), listing speakers of meeting, purpose of Denver Council, etc.
2. Handbill concerning Red Dean's appearance, including his photograph on the handbill, and information concerning tickets and time of meeting.
3. Pamphlets distributed by the Socialist Labor Party:
  - (a) Democracy against dictatorship in industry
  - (b) Socialism against Stalinism
  - (c) The Socialist aim

4. Pamphlet - A Churchman examines American-Soviet relations, by Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH.

5. Pamphlet - American-Soviet Facts dated October 18, 1948, entitled "BRITISH SCIENTIST BACKS SOVIET STAND ON ATOMIC BOMB."

6. Pamphlet - "THE USA AND USSR CAN AND MUST GET ALONG," by IRVING H. FLAMM.

7. Handbill - Three verses of "AMERICA" (words of last two verses especially written by ROBERT WHITAKER, Beacon Press).

8. Handbill - "CHRISTIANS of DENVER AWAKE - DON'T BE DUPED BY THIS RED IN CLERICAL FROCK," by the Colorado anti-Communist League, Englewood, Colorado.

9. Handbill - "MAKE YOUR PEN MIGHTIER THAN THE SWORD," (Urging the signing of 'a Roll Call for Peace.')

It is noted that considerable publicity was given in the Denver newspapers to the appearance of the Dean of Canterbury in Denver and news clippings of all pertinent items have been retained in instant file.

An item in the January 18, 1947, issue of the Denver Post announced that the University of Denver Officials had indefinitely postponed a speech on labor conditions in Russia which M. WALTER PESMAN, Chairman of the DCASF, had been scheduled to make before a Denver University student group. University Officials were quoted as stating that after the ATTORNEY GENERAL had listed the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship as a subversive organization, it had been decided that PESMAN'S speech should be postponed. In taking such action, University Officials announced that when the members of the American-Soviet Friendship Council could prove their organization was not subversive the University would not deny their rights to be heard.

[ ] related that several talks had been given at the Church in an effort to promote peace and understanding between this country and Russia. He stated that the second meeting was addressed by WALTER PESMAN of the Denver Council of American-Soviet Friendship. [ ] related that PESMAN was quite guarded in his statements as to relations between the United States and Russia, but during the course of his talk he advocated the United States should send more food to those countries now under Russian domination. [ ] added that he had challenged PESMAN'S statement concerning further aid to those countries and finally made PESMAN admit that grain was being devoted to black market and other purposes in those countries.

COMMUNIST PARTY, USA
INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS
INTERNAL SECURITY - C

Reference is made to my memorandum of February 8, 1949, concerning the reaction of the Communist Party, USA, to the Russian "peace bid."

A reliable, confidential informant has advised that on February 2, 1949, [redacted] of the Boston Office of the Civil Rights Congress discussed suggestions for promoting a "Truman-Stalin meeting" with Walter O'Brien. O'Brien is a local Communist in Boston who was a candidate for Congress in the recent elections, running on the Progressive and the Democratic tickets. During this discussion, according to the informant, O'Brien indicated the Progressive Party is preparing a leaflet "putting Truman on the spot" by contrasting current headlines which depict Stalin asking for peace talks while our Government is announcing a "super A-Bomb." O'Brien specifically recommended to [redacted] that the Civil Rights Congress and the Massachusetts Council for American Soviet Friendship concentrate on urging trade unionists and clergy to wire President Truman a plea to meet with Stalin and also point out that domestic problems of unemployment could be eliminated if industry turned to domestic production rather than armament production. (100-3-81-55, Conf. Infmt.-Tech. Civil Rights Congress, Boston)

The Women's Committee of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship on February 5, 1949, held a "Conference for Peace" at the Hotel Commodore in New York City, which was attended by approximately 500 people. Corliss Lamont, former Director of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, was the principal speaker at this conference. According to a reliable, confidential informant, Lamont stated that Stalin's peace offering has received a bleak reception in the United States, but Lamont said the National Council of American Soviet Friendship will strive to keep the peace offer open to end the cold war, to return to Roosevelt policies and achieve peace between the United States and Russia.

immediately after his arrival. About twenty newsmen were on hand, including photographers. The balance of the group greeting the Dean consisted of Rev. STEPHEN FRICHTMAN and his wife, Justice of the Peace STANLEY MOFFITT, REVA MUCHA of ARI, and ED JOSEPH of the same organization, who handled press relations for the ARI.

Asked as to what his reactions were to his reception into the United States, the Dean replied that people here were in a state of hysteria, or a polite equivalent of that term. Asked about his friendship with Premier Stalin, the Dean said he had spent an hour with him in an interview in 1947 and that Stalin is a "religious man" and has had a "pious upbringing." With regard to religion in the U.S.S.R., the Dean said there may have been some excesses in the past, but now there is "complete religious liberty and equality in the U.S.S.R." Asked about his reason for his call, the Dean replied that it was in the interests of worldwide peace. "What would happen," he said, "if peace were to break out tomorrow?" The Dean then went on to discuss why he wears a pectoral cross, saying that he had received special permission to wear it, that it was a gift from a primate of the Russian Orthodox Church.

The Dean then briefly discussed his visit to Russia and the eastern European countries in 1946 and 1947, commenting on the destruction wrought in Russia during the war years, and concluded with the proposition that all Russia wants is peace and an opportunity to rebuild peacefully. The Dean commented that eight thousand persons listened to his talk in San Francisco, which indicated to him that some persons were still interested in listening to the truth.

Asked about his opinion of the British press, the Dean said, "It is a millionaire press with one commendable exception." Asked if the exception was the "Daily Worker," the Dean replied, "Absolutely correct," adding that the "Daily Worker" was the only British newspaper which exposed the evils of the capitalistic system.

Photographs of the Dean and the Reverend STEPHEN H. FRICHTMAN and the Dean and FRICHTMAN and STANLEY MOFFITT taken together were obtained by Photographer Theodore Harper and are being retained as exhibits in this file.

Through Source   it had been previously learned that ABBOTT SIMON of the national office of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship in New York had arrived in Los Angeles on the previous Monday to consummate arrangements for the Dean's appearance in Los Angeles. During the period December 7 to 11, 1948, SIMON spent a great deal of his time at the Los Angeles office of the American Russian Institute, which he used as a business office.

The Dean spoke before an estimated 3400 persons at the Embassy Auditorium in Los Angeles on the evening of December 9, 1949, and opened his talk by acknowledging the past great leaders of this country, Washington, Lincoln, and Roosevelt, and then added that their spirit was in this crowd this evening. The Dean spoke of the horrors of war as he had seen them in England during the recent war, speaking particularly of the effects it had on the children who were left homeless and orphans by this catastrophe. He next turned to the subject of German atrocities in the war, and in the same vein spoke of the effects of the atomic bomb. He said that the next war will be much more terrible than the last and he felt that it was his duty to speak against any such eventuality. He next turned to the forces against the war if there should be a war with Russia. In this connection, he spoke of visiting the great "democracies" in his eastern tour, stating that he visited Czechoslovakia, Poland and Yugoslavia, in which place he spent some time and spent a day with Marshal Tito. He spoke at some length about the white army which Tito had mustered since the last war and stated that he had an army of some 800,000 strong and in any war which the imperialistic nations contemplated with Russia they would have to count also on the opposition of Tito's army and the Greek guerrillas plus the two hundred million in Russia and even more in China. These statements were greeted with wide applause by the audience.

The Dean next spoke about the revivals of fascism throughout the world, stating that nineteen percent of Hitler's arsenal is working now. He then turned to a description of the devastation in Russia, stating that Russia does not want war and citing as an example the fact that if Russia expected war it would not be spending so much in reconstructing Latvia, adding that there is nothing in the Russian economy that points to war, and he stated unequivocally that Russia is not engaged in the making of armaments.

The Dean then went on to an attack on warmongers, whom he seemed to regard as resting in the person of Mr. WINSTON CHURCHILL, at the mention of whose name the audience broke into boos. The Dean credited Churchill with showing admirable courage during the past war, but he immediately turned his comments into sarcasm by questioning Churchill's sincerity in working for the best interests of his people, and wound up with the conclusion that Churchill will be a war horse to the end.

The Dean next spoke about the reason behind the Russian vetoes in the United Nations and explained them all by stating that they were simply refusals on the part of Russia to deal with Franco Spain. In speaking about the vetoes of Russia on the atomic energy program brought up by the United Nations, the Dean did not give any direct explanation but referred his audience to a book on the subject written by a British author who, he explained, was open-minded toward the Russian cause. The Dean criticized the conceit of the "imperialistic" American and British nations in their accumulation of wealth and power, saying that Russia, too, wants the benefits of atomic energy not for the making of bombs but rather for the good of the whole people. The Dean found time also to criticize the Marshall Plan by stating that the peoples abroad do not like it because they dislike borrowing; they want free trade and no restriction as to what they should produce. At this point the Dean attributed many restrictions to the Marshall Plan which it puts on the people whom it is supposed to help. He also criticized it from the standpoint that it would undoubtedly cause inflation abroad which would reduce the common people to a far lower status than they have at the present time.

The Dean belittled any talk about so-called Russian expansion by asking the question, "Where are they expanding?" He pointed out that they are reducing their army and their bases and contrasted this to the American expansion of bases since the war and their reluctance to give up these bases. In this connection, he quipped about the other satellite nations' asking, "What does this word satellite mean? I suppose we could be considered satellites to you." The Dean pointed out that Russia must protect its western borders because history has shown that any attack upon Russia has always come from that quarter. He said that any invasion on the part of Russia into other countries is simply an invasion of ideas, and he spoke of the good that is coming with such an invasion.

The Dean's speech was extremely well received by the audience and it was noted that the crowd reached its emotional peak of enthusiasm at the point where the Dean spoke of the physical prowess of the "great democracies in the East" and the dire consequences which would befall Great Britain and America should they attempt to carry a war to Russia.

Source [ ] had occasion to review ABBOTT SIMON's reactions to the meeting in Los Angeles and learned that SIMON considered the tour of the Dean to be a great success. In commenting on the results of the Dean's speeches in Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles, SIMON said that in Seattle about three thousand people heard the Dean speak, which netted the NCASF a collection of close to $3,000; that the audience in San Francisco numbered between seven and eight thousand, with a collection of $5,000; and that the Los Angeles meeting was heard by approximately 3400 people, with a collection of $2,700 without counting the advance pledges of about $700.

Source [ ] said that shortly after the completion of the Dean's speech at the Embassy Auditorium, the Dean had a long talk with ABBOTT SIMON regarding his future plans and told SIMON he would be willing to fulfill further speaking engagements once his New York speech had been completed. Informant said it appeared that SIMON was most anxious to extend the Dean's tour throughout the South, with particular emphasis on Washington, D. C., for political reasons. Informant reasoned that this extended phase of the Dean's speaking engagements in this country would undoubtedly be handled by RICHARD MORFORD, President of the NCASF in New York City. Furthermore, informant said SIMON intended to retrace the steps of the Dean's visit for the specific purpose of converting the various welcoming committees for the Dean into permanent peace organizations, which presumably would take over the functions of the ARI but which would be staffed by ARI people. Informant said it seemed quite certain that MORFORD would agree to such a plan as this, and that the ARI would become more or less of a dormant organization, coming to life only when the necessity arose. Informant could not elaborate on what would constitute such a necessity.

The Dean left Los Angeles on the morning of December 10, 1948, and SIMON left for San Francisco on December 12 after winding up the business affairs of the meeting.

According to Source  the functionaries of the ARI in Los Angeles considered the Dean's meeting a complete success and are presently undertaking to have his speech printed in pamphlet form. In his speech, which has been described above, the Dean was introduced by Dr. GEORGE ALBERT COE, with Dr. LINUS PAULING as master of ceremonies. Following the Dean's address, film director and key Communist figure in this area HERBERT BIBERMAN made an appeal for funds to carry on the Dean's work.

DR. CALEB P. GATES, Professor of History, University of Denver, and holder of the commission of Colonel, Military Intelligence, U. S. GATES, during the past three years has been very cooperative with this office in connection with official investigations. The correspondence is as follows:

"114 east 32nd street - new york 16, n.y.-murray hill 3-2080"

"February 2, 1949

"Dear Dr. Gates:

"We feel strongly that responsible American leaders should do all in their power to encourage our Government to make a positive response to the propositions put forward by Premier Stalin."

"It is difficult for us one by one to give effective voice to our convictions. For not only do we need to communicate with the President and the Department of State, we need to express our views publicly so that people throughout the country may be influenced to take action also."

"One way to accomplish this objective is for a large number of us from all walks of life to endorse a statement which can be released to the press as soon as practicable."

"The draft of statement enclosed has found acceptance with several friends to whom we submitted it. We offer it now for your endorsement."

"This communication is directed to several hundred outstanding and representative Americans. We urgently ask your agreement to join with other signers."

"Time is of the essence. We know you will give immediate consideration and make answer on the enclosed card. If you reside at any distance from New York we would appreciate your use of airmail."

"Gentlemen:

"Re your letter of 2 February, 1949 concerning the 'Statement on the Proposals of Premier Stalin,' I wish to state that I was surprised to receive it. This is because I have never been, nor ever intend to be, a member of your organization which, speaking charitably, I regard as a duped totalitarian front.

"It was only this morning that I discovered, by accident, that my name, listed as DR. CALEB F. GATES, JR., appears on your list of sponsors. It is true that my father, deceased since 1946, did join your organization shortly after the entry of Russia into the war as our ally. At that time I gave the matter careful consideration and decided it would be unwise for me to lend my name as a sponsor of your council either nationally or locally. This is a matter of record.

"I demand the immediate removal of my name, illegally placed on your list of sponsors on the back of your official stationery.

"I feel so strongly about this that I insist upon your notifying your officers, sponsors, and the persons on your regular mailing list of my steadfast determination not to be connected in any way with the activities of your organization.

"I take this opportunity of informing you that I do not endorse your 'Statement,' but that on the contrary I consider the unofficial proposals of Premier Stalin to be a smoke screen to hide his obvious and stated intent eventually to achieve world dictatorship of the proletariat."

INTERNAL SECURITY - C

During November, 1948, ABBOTT SIMON of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship contacted [redacted] who was referred to as a Detroit contact and handled the arrangements for a speaking tour of Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON, Dean of Canterbury, under the auspices of the NCASF. Prior to this time regular visits have been made to Detroit by ABBOTT SIMON and conferences were held between SIMON [redacted] and [redacted] District 7, Communist Party.

According to [redacted] all of these conferences had for their purpose the setting up of a successor organization to the Detroit Council of American Soviet Friendship, it being felt that the original organization, due to being inactive and generally being branded as a Communist front, would no longer serve the purposes of the Communist Party in this area.

The visit of Dr. JOHNSON was under the auspices of "the Detroit Committee to Welcome the Dean of Canterbury". After this meeting was held on November 29, 1948 [redacted] [redacted] HAROLD SHAPIRO, International Representative, Fur and Leather Workers Union - CIO, and who has been closely associated with Communist activity in District 7, set in motion plans for another peace rally with a meeting scheduled for February 16, 1949, at the Hotel Tuller, Detroit, Michigan.

Between the date of the "Red Dean" meeting and the latter date ABBOTT SIMON visited Detroit and conferred with [redacted] and shortly thereafter a new organization was created with literature being distributed under the title of "The Greater Detroit Peace Council".

The meeting that was held on February 16, 1949, presented Dr. HARRY WARD, who was identified as professor emeritus, Union Theological Seminary, speaking on the subject, "The Cold War". This meeting was poorly attended but to date it does not appear that this new organization will cease its activity because of the poor beginning.

Information from established sources reflects that the Greater Detroit Peace Council will continue as the Detroit chapter of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship.

The above is being furnished to the Bureau and New York at this time to reflect the activities as carried on in Detroit by the Soviet Friendship organization.

Dear Sirs:

"The Bison", Harding College weekly student newspaper, recently received a form letter from the "Student Committee of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc.", signed by Jack Winkoff, student secretary. This letter stated that "much misinformation is spread concerning life in the Soviet Union. In part, the tense international situation stems from misunderstanding based on these untruths."

The letter proposed that American college students develop "pen pals" with University students in the Soviet Union. The letter said "All such mail should be addressed to the Student Division of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 114 East 32nd Street, New York, 16, N. Y. We will forward the mail to the Soviet Union. After the initial contact has been established letters can be exchanged between the correspondents without the assistance of an intermediary."

I would like to know if the organization which sent out these form letters is a "Communist front organization", and if so, do the people who are listed on the back of the stationery as sponsors for the "NC of A-S F" know it? Or are they sympathizers with the Communist ideology?

I notice such names as Charles Chaplin, Hon. Joseph E. Davies, Hon. Hugh Dancy, Prof. Albert Einstein, Helen Keller, Rockwell Kent, Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, Thomas Mann, Eugene O'Neill, Paul Robeson, Leopold Stowski, and Raymond Swing listed as sponsors.

What would you recommend on these letters? Would it be perfectly all right for American students to correspond with Russian students to find their beliefs and outlook on life?

Any information you can give me will be greatly appreciated.

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir:

(U) Confidential Informant [ ] has furnished information during the past week indicating that ABBOT SIMON, Publicity Director of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, Inc., while working through out the midwest on behalf of NCASF, has also contacted ASP representatives regarding the ASP Conference scheduled for March 25 - 27, 1949 at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York City. (C)

(U) On March 4, 1948 an unidentified individual at ASP Headquarters conferred with SIMON'S secretary and pointed out that SIMON'S itinerary had not yet been received thus evidencing that his travel apparently included work for ASP. (C)

(U) On March 7, 1948, SIMON conferred with RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of NCASF, and advised that he was then in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and expected to be there on the following day as well. The balance of his itinerary included Madison on Wednesday, Chicago on Thursday, Milwaukee on Friday, Detroit on Saturday and Cleveland on Sunday. He noted that in Minneapolis he was staying at the Hotel Remington. (C)

(U) They thereafter discussed a conference planned by NCASF at considerable length. ABBOT then mentioned that as far as the Minneapolis people are concerned they have not received any word of anything being done by the ASP and expressed the thought that this is a great error on the part of the ASP. MORFORD then observed that ASP has always overlooked this city. ABBOT (C)

(U) countered with the suggestion that this situation should be corrected as they are very incensed to know that they've been "left out." He pointed out that Minneapolis is one place where ASP has a future. He said that it is a "tremendously musical town" and there are strong reasons for ASP to give this very serious consideration as also with Madison and Ann Arbor. He suggested that undoubtedly action in this regard would necessitate a "high policy" decision and expressed the opinion that MORFORD should contact [ ] (probably referring to [ ] of New York ASP office.) He then observed that, "I get no feeling of very many people going to the conference. I think they better sound some alarm if they intend to really get anywhere." (C)

(U) On March 7, 1949, RICHARD MORFORD conferred with [ ] and told her that he had been receiving reports from ABBOT SIMON and that SIMON had two points to make. He said that one was that SIMON had conferred with 1 person in each city and sometimes more than one who are supposed to be under the responsibility of securing a multiple number of delegates to come on for the conference, and in each instance they seem to be "resting pretty easy on their oars," on the prospect of one or 2 delegates they have. MORFORD noted that SIMON thought ASP was really after quite a sizeable crowd from every city to give the conference "its proper national impact." MORFORD noted that the second point is that SIMON is pushing pretty hard on the matter of cities peculiarly adaptable to a permanent and ongoing program for ASP such as the two university cities of Ann Arbor and Madison. He also called her attention to SIMON'S complaint that Minneapolis people were annoyed because the city was not included on "your delegation visit." He then urged her to have ASP correct this situation. (C)

(U) [ ] replied that ASP has meetings in places where we have forces enough to put on a meeting" and that such forces were not available in Ann Arbor or Madison. She questioned MORFORD as to what cities SIMON had visited where ASP representatives appeared to be resting easy and MORFORD named Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago. [ ] then attempted to excuse their inactivity by stating that the final program will not reach them until the end of the week. She then noted that 19 leaders from abroad are attending, made up of 4 from England, 3 from France, 3 from Italy, 2 from India, 1 from Norway and 5 from the Soviet Union. (C)

(U) MORFORD inquired about "the visa problem" and [ ] said that "SHAPLEY (referring to HARLOW SHAPLEY, ASP Chairman) is in contact with the State Department and that "everything is above board", and she doesn't see how they can keep the people out. (C)

(U) On March 9, 1949, [ ] who has furnished information to this office in the past on a confidential basis, furnished an invitation to the Peace Conference on a

THE CURIOUS CASE OF THE COLD WAR

THERE'S NO MYSTERY ABOUT THIS

The blood is real not fake . . . it hasn't been spilled yet, but if the cold war turns hot, it will be yours—or mine.

Our problem, like that of any prospective victim, is to keep alive. There's no mystery as to how this can be done.

Just as it takes two to fight a war, it takes two to keep the peace. The two we are talking about are the United States and the Soviet Union.

Upon the settlement of the differences between these two Nations—rests the future of the world—the peace of this and the next generation. Our country and the Soviet Union control the military, economic and political future of the globe. If they can agree, the world can rest easy.

These differences can be resolved—not by going to war—but by sitting down with the Soviet Union at a Conference Table. The Soviet Union has already expressed its willingness to do this. We think it's high time our President and our government arranged such a conference to settle all outstanding problems with the Soviet Union and thus bring peace to all of us who want to stay alive.

Never Underestimate the Power of THESE People for Peace

TO : DIRECTOR

DATE: APRIL 20, 1949

FROM : SAC, BOSTON

SUBJECT: NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP

Boston Confidential Informant [redacted] advised that MURIEL DRAPER, Vice-President of the Women's International Democratic Federation, was in Boston on a lecture tour arranged by the Massachusetts Council of American-Soviet Friendship on March 2, 3 and 4, 1949. At an interview on March 2, 1949, she discussed her recent trip to Europe and the Soviet Union. She stated that she led an American delegation to the Congress of the Women's International Democratic Federation held in Budapest in November, 1948. Following the conference, she visited the Soviet Union at the request of the women of the Soviet Union.

The Informant advised the following as a general resume of the interview:

"Her group, she said, is dedicated to work for peace and prevention of the next war for 'I don't believe killing people is going to get us anything.'

"She said on her trip to Russia she was taken anywhere and everywhere she asked to go --- to factories, homes, Stalingrad, Leningrad, Moscow, the theater, the opera, the ballet. Her visit there was only for two weeks. She had visited Russia, however, in 1946 for an executive meeting of the WIDF and said there were many notable changes then and now.

"In the first place I learn a great deal by looking into peoples' faces ... listening to the tone of their voices --- how they walk, and the Russian people are much less exhausted than they were in 1946. The shops have much more food. The people look happier, less fatigued. On New Year's Eve in Moscow the trees were lighted and people danced in the streets all night -- and this is a sign of returning to life as you can't dance if you're tired.

"The children are better dressed. I saw citrus fruits in the markets and a happier race of people."

"She said the Russian and American women were alike in the way women are alike all over the world.

" 'After five minutes of conversation you learn the Russian woman's wishes are to live with the people she loves, to bring up her family in safety, to see that her children are dressed properly and have enough to eat. The dissimilar aspect, however, is that work to the Russian woman seems as natural as breathing. What she wants to do is work for her government and feel that she is a part of it. Their capacity for work exhausts me. The threat of war is a life and death matter to them. They are building a new civilization.'

"Mrs. DRAPER said there is in America a growing interest in Russia as when she speaks there are many more young people in the audiences than even a few months ago -- some are even in their teens. She believes the anti-Soviet hysteria has reached a saturation point and people are beginning to ask what is underneath these words.

"The first question on Russian lips is 'do the American people want to go to war against the Soviet Union? What are we doing about preventing it? They want to know about the election, the trade unions, the attitude of youth in this country, what books, what music are being written.'

"Commenting on Anna Louise Strong, she said she saw her both in Budapest and Moscow and 'I'm sure the Soviet government would not have made such a charge without a basis of fact. I'm sure at the end of the trial we'll find she could have broken a military rule of some kind that seemed more dangerous from their point of view than we do.'

"She said she was not in Hungary during the trial of Cardinal HINDENBURG but that she was there when his activities were becoming more conspicuous. She claims there is complete religious freedom in Hungary. Religious teaching is required in the schools. Nationalization of education is what HINDENBURG was objecting to she said. When she was in Budapest she said there was a parade of

There is being forwarded herewith a copy of a log furnished by [redacted]
March 16, 1949.

The subject matter of the log concerns a meeting to be held in Detroit on Friday, April 8, 1949 sponsored by the Subject organization along with the Michigan Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions, with the cooperation of the Detroit World Events forum.

It appears that among the persons appearing at this meeting will be some of the 22 delegates from Russia and other Communist dominated nations who have been given considerable publicity in the press during the past year.

The content of the enclosed log, along with other information received from established sources in the Detroit office, reflects a continuing program on the part of the Greater Detroit Peace Council urging a more friendly relationship between Russia and the United States.

The persons mentioned in the log may be identified as BILLY ALLAN, Daily Worker correspondent and vice chairman of the Communist Party, District No. 7, and ESTHER SHAPIRO, organizer for the Greater Detroit Peace Council and Communist Party member assigned to the Southfield Club, District No. 7.

Most of the information given here will appear in the Worker, but PA wants publication held up pending the arrival from New York of a "guy" who will have some definite answers. But PA says the Michigan Council of Arts, Sciences, & Professors (PC never heard of it, and PA says it is a new organization) in cooperation with the Greater Detroit Peace Council and the Detroit World Events Forum is running a world peace festival at Music Hall, Friday, April 8th, 8:00pm. Tentative list of visitors as follows:

SHASTAKOVICH)phn will head the whole thing.
MARIA MICHI, starred in motion picture Pisan.
HARINDRANATH CHATTOPADHYAYA, Hindu poet and playwright.
A. I. OPARIN, Soviet biologist.
ABBE GENE BOULIER, French authority on international law.
Madame BUG NIE COTTON, French scientist.

The tour is on behalf of peace and understanding. Thus far, says PA, our only delegate to New York is Dr. GERALD FRIEDMAN; nobody else plans to go from Detroit. But there is a Friday night meeting of the peace council which may result in more delegates going. PA says our conference is March 25, 26, and 27th. She is worried about publishing SHASTAKOVICH's name; says not to play it up too much. "It" (visa) hasn't been granted yet, and it won't be until the last minute. PA adds that the visitors will be here two and one-half days; the mass meeting will be just part of it. We want a whole series of meetings between the visitors and their professional counterparts in Detroit. Purpose of this will be for an exchange of views.

MEMO FOR SAC

RE: NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP
INTERNAL SECURITY - C.

Reference is made to Inspection Report dated May 5, 1949 on the above-captioned case.

Serial 1677 - This information was not incorporated in an investigative report inasmuch as the information has not been substantiated to date and it was felt that if this merger was made the information would have been made available from other sources.

Serial 1694 - On December 11, 1946 the Bureau was advised by letter that in a telephone conversation with an unidentified woman RICHARD MORFORD stated the policies of the NCASF and these policies were set forth.
In the report of Special Agent C. Donald Stample dated 1/3/49 under the heading "Purposes and Aims of Organization" a more recent and full statement of the aims of the NCASF was set forth. This information appeared in an article in the November 1947 issue of "SOVIET RUSSIA TODAY" and was written by RICHARD MORFORD.

Serial 1712 - This information was not incorporated in an investigative report since the merger of the American Soviet Music Society with the ARI never actually took place.

Serial 1782 - Since this office had no definite information regarding whether the meeting between JACK STACHEL and ALEXANDER TRACHTENBERG did in fact concern the affairs of the NCASF it was not reported. This information was incorporated in memo form on February 5, 1947 with the thought in mind that at some future date this information might be tied in with additional information received regarding the actual purpose of the meeting. Since no additional information was received the original information was not incorporated in an investigative report.

CDS:DJG

Memo

Serial 1794 - This is a letter from New York to the Bureau dated February 10, 1947 setting out the information that Confidential Informant [ ] advised that A. A. ERMOLAEV requested certain information from the NCASF. This information was also reported to the Bureau in letter form by the Washington Field Office.

In Serials 2226, 2314 and 2359 it was noted that FREDERICK VANDERBILT FIELD at various times contributed sums of money to the NCASF. This information was always reported to the Bureau in letter form under the title of FREDERICK V. FIELD, and it was felt that this information should properly be incorporated in an investigative report on FREDERICK V. FIELD. However, this information will be set forth in the next investigative report on the NCASF under the heading of "FINANCES".

Serial 2351 - By teletype dated September 30, 1948 the Bureau was advised that $6000 was received for the defense of RICHARD MORFORD at a Testimonial Dinner. This information was not incorporated in a report on the subject organization as it was felt that the information would be more properly reported in the case file on "RICHARD MORFORD". This information is being submitted in the next investigative report on MORFORD.

Serial 2482 - In regard to this serial it is to be noted that a letter was written on May 4, 1949 to the Washington Field Office requesting them to check the records of the Clerk's Office of the District Court of Appeals to ascertain the Status of Richard Morford's Appeal from his conviction for contempt of Congress.

On May 5, 1949 a letter was written to the Washington Field Office requesting them to contact the office of Internal Revenue in order to ascertain the results of an investigation made by them on the books of the NCASF, in order to reach a conclusion as to whether or not this organization was entitled to tax exemption.

In reference to publications of the NCASF, all publications, news releases and other pertinent material published by the NCASF is sent to the Bureau under separate cover. Only those items deemed sufficiently important are incorporated in the report. With regard to the article in the NEW YORK SUN by GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY, it is to be noted that the Bureau is aware and has been advised in previous reports that the American Soviet Science Society was in reality a Committee of the NCASF which disaffiliated and became a separate organization.

PRICES OF CONSUMER GOODS IN USSR REDUCED BY TEN TO THIRTY PERCENT

On February 28, 1949, the Soviet Council of Ministers and the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the USSR issued a decree lowering state retail prices of mass consumer goods from between ten to thirty percent. The goods affected range from food to clothes, from household equipment to musical instruments, from motorcycles to television sets.

The decree pointed to the implementation of last year's currency reform and the abolition of rationing as the first stage in the lowering of prices of mass consumer goods. This first stage, it was pointed out, saved the people 86 billion rubles, brought about a considerable rise in purchasing power of the ruble, improved the value of the ruble as compared with foreign currencies, increased wages and reduced the expenditures of farmers on the purchase of manufactured goods.

The new reduction, or the second stage in reducing the prices of consumer goods, will go into effect March 1, 1949. It will result in an additional saving by the people of approximately 71 billion rubles in the course of one year, the decree said.

Following is the text of that part of the decree which details the price reductions of consumer goods:

The Council of Ministers of the USSR and the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union hereby decide;

(A) To reduce as from March 1, 1949, the state retail prices of consumer goods as follows: (1) bread and flour by 10 per cent, cereals and macaroni 10 per cent, forage grain, oil cake, bran and combined fodder 20 per cent; hay 30 per cent; biscuits, gingerbread and cakes 10 per cent; meat, sausages and tinned foods 10 per cent.

grape wines, cognacs and fruit and berry wines 15 per cent; tobacco goods 10 per cent, perfumery 20 per cent, coats, suits, dresses and other ready-made woolen clothes 12 per cent; dresses, shirts, blouses and other ready-made silk goods 15 per cent; woolen fabrics 10 per cent.

Silk fabrics 10 per cent, clothes made to order in shops and fashion houses 20 per cent, cotton thread 15 per cent, silk stockings and socks 15 per cent, footwear made of textiles and combined materials 15 per cent, head gear (hats and caps) 15 per cent, textile haberdashery 15 per cent, embroidered articles 15 per cent, furs 10 per cent, metal haberdashery and haberdashery manufactured of leather substitutes 10 per cent.

Articles from plastics and celluloid (kitchenware, household utensils, etc.) 20 per cent; cutlery (knives, forks, spoons, etc.) 10 per cent, household electrical appliances (electric kettles, electric cookers, electric irons, etc.) 10 per cent, hardware 20 per cent, saddlery 20 per cent, cement 30 per cent, motorcycles 15 per cent, bicycles 20 per cent, radio receivers 20 per cent, television sets 25 per cent, pianos, accordions and piano accordions 20 per cent, gramophones 30 per cent, gramophone records 20 per cent, timepieces 30 per cent, jewelry 20 per cent, cameras and binoculars 10 per cent and typewriters 20 per cent.

Correspondingly to reduce prices in restaurants, dining rooms, tea houses and other catering establishments.

(B) To instruct the Ministry of Trade of the USSR to fix, in accordance with the present decision, new reduced state retail prices of food, fodder and manufactured goods enumerated in paragraph "A" of the present decision.

Chairman of the Council of Ministers of the U.S.S.R. Stalin.

Secretary of the Central Committee of the Communist Party of the Soviet Union Malenkov.

"JUST WHERE IS SOVIET 'EXPANSIONISM' EXPANDING?"

This question was posed -- and answered -- by the well-known author Shaemas O'Sheel in a recent issue of the American quarterly Trends and Tides.

As "an incorrigibly old-fashioned American" Mr. O'Sheel says he feels that "if the USSR is 'aggressing' anywhere in any way that threatens the security or the just interests of the USA, or that flagitiously and intolerably outrages the liberties and rights of smaller peoples, we should NOT come to any understanding with that power; we should protest and admonish. If our own just interests are in fact infringed, we should defend them -- if necessary even by war."

BUT, says Mr. O'Sheel, before we accept Soviet "expansionism" as an issue, it is only common sense to make sure of the facts.

"For two years I've waited for some great statesman to give us the facts; but vaguely worded and hysterically voiced rhetoric serves better to befuddle the American-in-the-street."

He adds:

"Yet if the Reds are really out for Expansionism, they are not doing much of a job of it. The area of the Soviet Union today is smaller than that of Czarist Russia, to which we had no serious official objection, 31 years ago!

"Having thankfully accepted the USSR as an ally in war subsequently to its resumption of sovereignty over Lithuania, Latvia, Estonia, a portion of Finnish Karelia, Western Byelorussia, Western Ukraine, Bessarabia and Northern Bukovina, we are in no moral position to question those transactions. ...

"These areas were included in the Russian Empire, and by the October (1917) Revolution became constituents of the Soviet State, from which in each case they were torn by domestic or by intervening foreign reactionaries, against the will of their peoples.

"No informed and candid mind can cavil at the means by which, when the wheel of history turned again, they were re-incorporated in the Soviet State. No aggressive expansionism, nothing resembling imperialism, can be read into any of these transactions."

Mr. O'Sheel then examines "what the wicked Reds have actually added to their domain since V-E and V-J Days."

Here are his findings:

"The Finnish reactionaries, having escaped lightly the consequences of their provocation in 1939, eagerly allied themselves with Hitler when he attacked the USSR in '41. Accordingly, Finland shared in the general Fascist debacle. For two years Finnish forces collaborated with the Nazis to make life in Leningrad a hell on earth, and to take heavy toll of American military, naval and merchant marine personnel on the Murmansk supply route. Yet in the day of judgment, the price exacted for these crimes and follies was only the cession to the USSR of the Rybachi Peninsula, which commands the approaches to Murmansk, and -- mainly to protect the Murmansk Railroad and the White Sea Canal -- a small additional area of Karelia.

"Other than this I know of only two instances of Soviet acquisition of territory since the war, in the West; and two in the East. They have taken a part of East Prussia from the war-making Junkers, giving the land to the peasants. If this is not justified as a benefit to mankind, we and all nations which resisted German militarism ought to apologize to the ghost of Hitler, restore the Junkers to their estates, and invite them to take over Europe -- and 'tomorrow the world.'

"The other post-war Soviet acquisition in the West is the small area known as the Carpathian Ukraine, inhabited by Ukrainians who have never ceased to desire reunion with their motherland since they were incorporated in Czechoslovakia after World War I. Following the Red Army's liberation of that first of Hitler's victims, Czechoslovakia peacefully ceded this little mountain district to the USSR and the justice of this readjustment has never been questioned, not even by our most fanatic anti-Sovieteers."

Turning to the Far East, Mr. O'Sheel continues:

"In the East the Soviets have taken from Japan the Kurile Islands, an extension of the Soviet peninsula of Kamchatka; and the southern part of Sakhalin, an island of which the northern half has long been Soviet territory; both the Kuriles and Sakhalin being strategically important for Soviet defence. Does anyone weep because these outlying possessions are lost to the perpetrators of Pearl Harbor?"

He sums up this part of his case thus:

"And such is the total extent of post-war Soviet Expansionism in the literal sense, i.e., the annexation of territory."

Incidentally, both the Kuriles and Sakhalin once belonged to Russia.

Mr. O'Sheel then looks at the charges that Soviet troops are in Central and Eastern Europe:

"Of course, the Red Army lingers in Germany -- so do American, British and French armies; and on the record, the Reds seem the most anxious to withdraw. There are Red battalions in Austria -- and American battalions as well; both will stay until a treaty with Austria is written. There are Soviet troops in Poland, guarding the necessary lines of communication between the USSR and Germany; the Poles are satisfied that they will leave when the occupation ends. There are no Soviet forces in the Balkans. There are American, not Soviet, military units in Greece; American, not Soviet, generals dictate Greek strategy; an American, not a Soviet mission at once subsidizes and bosses the Greek Government. American, not Soviet money buys Italian elections; American, not Soviet warships hover minatorily off the Italian coast."

Turning from Italy to Turkey at the other end of the Mediterranean, the author continues:

"Of Armenia, the tragic land crucified by the Turks, some districts became after World War I, a Soviet Republic, and have so flourished that Armenian exiles from many parts of the world (sh-sh even from the USA) have returned there in amazing numbers. But two districts of Armenia -- Kars and Ardahan -- remain subject to Turkey.

"Like other conquest-divided peoples, the Armenians long for restoration of national unity. Accordingly, a couple of years ago the Soviet Government approached the Turkish Government with a proposal to discuss possible terms for the union of Kars and Ardahan with the Armenian Republic.

"Sympathy with the Armenians, condemnation of Turkish rule of that people, is an old American tradition; yet now, curiously enough (or is it curious?), our press and radio and our public men seeth with sympathy for the Turks in their determination to keep their grip on the Armenian throat.

"Turkey refused to discuss Kars and Ardahan; and the Soviets, with that curious way they have of observing the international proprieties, dropped the matter. Expansionism should be made of sterner stuff."

Incidentally, Kars and Ardahan were parts of Russia before World War I.

Contending that the Soviets are "just downright perverse about giving us a good solid instance of Expansionism," Mr. C'Sheel looks at Soviet behaviour in China:

"In China, Soviet conduct was even more annoying. We asked them to make war on Japan, and they did. Within a matter of weeks after the conclusion of their gigantic struggle against the Nazis, they put an immense army in the field in Manchuria and mopped up the Japanese there in incredibly short order, hastening Japan's surrender.

"Being in full possession of Manchuria and in a position to dominate North China, they flatly refused to go Expansionist. By treaty with China they received certain limited and specific rights in Port Arthur and Dairen, an arrangement mutually beneficial, and they promised to evacuate Manchuria by a fixed date.

"In a supremely cynical exhibition of contempt for their Expansionist-Imperialist role, they actually got out of Manchuria ahead of schedule -- over the protest of the Chinese government!"

But Mr. O'Sheel has not given up to "look for evidence" of Soviet "Expansionism". He turns to Korea and says:

"And with one eye closed this looks like the real thing. Three years after V-J Day the Red Army still occupies northern Korea* and certainly dominates the native government which it set up.

"But open the other eye, and southern Korea swarms with American military, and its native government is obviously our puppet. The air is full of mutual recriminations, and what to believe is anyone's choice. American occupation authorities say that thousands of northern Koreans flee from Soviet slavery to the democratic freedom of our zone. We whose only peephole into Korea is the meagre reportage of the American press and radio can know little of conditions there but these few things are known:

1. "Distribution of the land to the peasants has been accomplished in northern Korea; it is still being projected or at most timidly begun in the south.
2. "Resistance to American measures is widespread in southern Korea, there has been much violence, many deaths at the hands of American military and American-controlled police, much harassment of organized workers, very numerous arrests.
3. "Several pro-American, anti-Soviet Korean patriots from the southern zone, including Kim Koo, one of the two chief leaders, of the revolt against Japan, visited the northern area and returned vigorously pro-Soviet.
4. "It was our General Hodge who made the tactful remark, 'Japanese and Koreans are the same kind of cat'."

Mr. O'Sheel concludes:

"My point is that the clamour against Soviet Expansionism or Russian imperialism is deceitfully motivated because there just ain't no such animal; and that American foreign policy need not be concerned to compromise or 'come to an understanding' with the USSR on that issue. I repeat that as an American I would favour all measures to curb such Expansionism and Imperialism if they were shown to exist; and I say again that this has not been shown."

* Since Mr. O'Sheel's article was written Soviet troops evacuated northern Korea, but the American troops still remain in southern Korea.

PEOPLE VERSUS THE NORTH ATLANTIC PACT

WHAT SOME PEOPLE SAID AND WHAT OTHERS DID IN OPPOSITION TO THE NORTH ATLANTIC MILITARY PACT

Thomas I. Emerson, Professor of Law, Yale University. In broadcast April 3, 1949:

The Atlantic Pact is not a moral mobilization but a military mobilization. Therefore it will not prevent war. Never have military alliances prevented war. ...

The Pact is a military alliance directed against Soviet Russia. ... I do not believe in the Pact at all.... According to all indications there is no possibility of a Russian attack. Even John Foster Dulles has admitted this....

Western Europe is not wholeheartedly behind the Pact. According to an article in The Nation last week, the parliaments who have voted for the Pact do not represent the majority of the people....

I am against the North Atlantic Pact. I propose instead to first make the basic effort to reach common understanding with the Soviet Union. We may thus achieve disarmament and international control of the atomic bomb. A meeting, at the earliest possible moment, between President Truman and Prime Minister Stalin should be arranged....

The Pact practically underwrites military action; we should try negotiations with the Soviet Union first.

Soviet Russia, during the last few months, has approached us four or five times to negotiate; the last time, last February; Dean Acheson flatly turned the offer down.

(Excerpts from running summary made during broadcast).

In the name of the Chinese people, the democratic parties and groups in China issued a statement on April 3, 1949, in which they declared, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Shanghai, that:

"the North Atlantic Pact is aimed at provoking a new world war."

Demonstration in Vienna, Austria, April 3, 1949:

A demonstration of tens of thousands of Viennese against the Atlantic Pact blocked the main thoroughfares in the center of Vienna. Women formed a large percentage of the demonstrators.

British miners denounce Pact, April 3, 1949,

The Miners' Union of Norfolk (England), in a letter to Prime Minister Clement Attlee, denounced the North Atlantic Pact and declared that British miners will dig no coal for war against the Soviet Union.

- m o r e -

Senator Walter F. George (D-Ga.), April 3, 1949:

"Washington, 3/3 (UP) Sen. Walter F. George (D-Ga.) said today President Truman would be both 'wise and prudent' to postpone his plan to re-arm Western Europe lest the new Atlantic Pact become a military alliance aimed directly at Russia.

"Such a development, George told reporters, would have the... effect of 'widening the gulf' between the Soviets and the western world."

The Race Street Friends, oldest Quaker group in America, at the closing session of its 268th Annual Meeting on April 2, 1949, unanimously adopted an epistle to be sent to Quaker groups throughout the world, declaring:

"We seek to learn how international strains may be reduced.... Again we state our opposition to preparations for war; armament expansion, military pacts, forced registration and military service, regimentation and militarizations of so many aspects of life. Our yearly meeting adopted minutes this year in favor of religious liberty under the draft laws and in opposition to the Atlantic Defense Pact."

I. F. Stone, New York Post, April 1, 1949.

"Those faint hearts who give up the fight against the Atlantic Pact are giving up the fight for peace when that fight can still be waged. It is now that the issue is being decided, and it is now or never that the battle must be fought.....

"Washington has been for months the center of a vast if still covert mobilization for war. The President speaks of peace, but gives no indication of either program or will to attain it. His new Secretary of State, having been attacked in Congress as somewhat pinkish, must demonstrate that he can spit in Moscow's eye as skillfully as the best of them. Both are prisoners of a momentum to which they must themselves contribute, neither being big enough to break out of the vicious circle of the 'get tough' policy. War may be waged for unconditional surrender, but not peace.

"To go into the Pact is to give up the hard road to peace for the easy drift to war. It is to walk out of the U.N. It is to substitute a return to war-breeding military blocs for perseverance in the beginnings of a world order, when these beginnings - however fragile -- have already proved their value in a series of crises from Iran to Palestine. It is to give up the protection which the public proceedings of the U.N. affords. It is to allow a handful of military men and diplomats to decide our fate in secret discussions among themselves. ....

"Behind the Pact is some vague idea, like that given shape by Churchill at Llandudno: that we must organize 'our' part of the world for a showdown with the Soviets; that Moscow may be rade to 'liberate' Eastern Europe by threat; that if Stalin does not surrender it would be better to fight it out now 'before the Russians have the atom bomb.'

"The mentality behind this is the antithesis of all that has made America great in the past. It would rather risk war than peace, repression than freedom; it has no real faith in free society or in ordinary men; it is drawn instinctively to war as a way out; it would plow men under. The fight against this mentality is neither over nor hopeless so long as you and I and the next man are still willing to fight it. The time to fight is now, before the Senate approves the pact."

Madison (Wisconsin) Clergymen, April 1, 1949:

In a joint statement criticizing the North Atlantic Pact, eleven Madison clergymen said:

"Our people have been led to believe such a military alliance as the North Atlantic Pact would provide security. ....

"We...believe such a pact will fall far short of the ends desired and may actually retard the achievement of the kind of world a Christian America would like to see. We wish to raise the following questions:

"1 - We are concerned that signers for the pact have arrived before the Senate has had opportunity to discuss the issues involved and reach a free and independent decision. We feel the State Department, under influence of the military, has maneuvered public opinion and so manipulated the machinery of international diplomacy as to present the pact as a 'fait accompli' without desirable alternatives.

"2 - The ultimate effect of such a program upon our own internal economy is bound to be bad. We cannot hope to increase taxes and continue to pile the load of government upon our people without losing many of our own liberties and bankrupting our own economy....

"While we are certain no easy solution offers itself, we are equally sure the hope of military alliance is more than ever inadequate in our modern world. We should pursue some more Christian solution to the situation."

I. F. Stone, New York Post, March 29, 1949.

"There is only one effective deterrent to a Soviet invasion of Western Europe, if one were planned, if the Soviets did not have their hands full at home, if theirs was a warlike regime, if they wanted that mass of liabilities which is Western Europe.

"None of these 'ifs' exist, the aggressive threat is imaginary. The real problem is not Soviet aggression but the reconstruction of war-torn Europe in a way which will give satisfaction to its people and thus ensure social stability, preventing a series of revolutions which would completely upset the already precarious balance of power and plunge the world into war.

T.R.B. in the New Republic (Washington Wire), March 28, 1949.

"The Atlantic Pact promises to go through the Senate all right, probably in May or June. It looks a good deal more like an old-fashioned military alliance to us than one of those regional agreements which is authorized under the U.N. charter. The heart of it is Article 5, which discusses military force to resist an aggressor. This has been neatly devised. It is as full of loop-holes as a Senate cloture rule and Senators can point to it with perfect truthfulness and say that it has no advance legal binding effect whatsoever.

"Actually, of course, it is a moral commitment and binds us to our first European alliance in history and to go to war under certain circumstances. The danger is that Russia will now reply in kind and that the process of daring each other will lead to its inevitable dread conclusion. A military alliance never yet - by itself - succeeded in preventing war."

Antwerp Dockers Protest Pact. A P from Antwerp, Belgium, March 28, 1949:

The Port of Antwerp was virtually paralyzed today by a twenty-four hour dockers' strike against the North Atlantic Pact.

Thomas L. Stokes, New York World Telegram, March 28, 1949:

"The member of the family who indulges in occasional essays in this apace on global generalities...was discussing the Atlantic Pact not long since with the female member of the family who fortunately has a refreshing way of getting right down to essentials.

"She looked up, finally, and inquired with what appeared to be sheer innocence:

" 'What happened to the United Nations?'

"Whatever did? A Good Question. Probably millions of others in this country and the world are asking it.

"It is noted now that there is creeping into the official campaign on behalf of the Atlantic Pact the suggestion that this regional arrangement may be the beginning of another United Nations. This regional Pact, it is intimated, would be hooked up with the one we have already with Latin-American 'republics'. Then there would be a Mediterranean Pact and a Pacific Pact and so on until, presto, we'll have another United Nations including practically everybody but Russia.

"If Russia wants to come in after it gets all fixed up, then all right. But if she doesn't, and if she wants to start anything after she gets all hemmed in, then all the rest of us will be ready for her and she won't dare. At least that's the thesis. It may be sound, and again it may not, for there is a human tendency of those who get hemmed in to try desperately to break out....

"The aim of the projected alliances is to preserve peace by arming outelves all over the world. It is defensive, negative, and old as man, and has proved futile for centuries....

"The Atlantic Pact and the projected extension of such regional arrangements are but the inevitable result of a policy that started with the Truman Doctrine in Greece and Turkey, which was thought necessary to counter Russian expansion. It established a philosophy which could lead nowhere else.

"There was another direction, another choice, which was to proceed boldly to make the U.N. a real world government, a positive force, for which the world yearned. But nowhere in the world was there leadership for such a course and so we find the U.N. disintegrating in a series of secession movements. The whole world has hemmed itself in with ancient concepts and prejudices."

Charles T. Lucey, New York World Telegram, March 28, 1949:

"Prolonged and probably bitter debate is shaping up on the North Atlantic Joint Defense Pact. ...

"Some Senators, who are strongly in favor of the treaty, acknowledge that not all the opposition will come from Republicans who are outright isolationists. They say there is another group honestly and deeply concerned about the Pact's implications and who must be satisfied by thorough ventilation of every key clause. ....

"They are questioning whether the treaty assertion that an attack on one nation is tantamount to attack on all does not take the U.S. to war as quickly if Copenhagen were bombed as New York."

Henry Wallace i nation-wide broadcast, March 27, 1949;

"Now is the time for the American people to act. The United Nations was born in San Francisco in 1945. The supreme question is: 'Shall it die in Washington in 1949?'"

"Supposing the Soviets had military bases on the Mexican border? The Canadian border? Or Cuba? Could the treaty which put guns in our faces be called a pact of peace? Has it ever happened that the massing of armed men brought peace? Has it not always brought war? To call the Atlantic Pact an instrument for peace is hypocrisy and nothing less, and I raise my voice against it so that you may know it for what it is. ...

"Now the Atlantic Pact plunges us into the maelstrom of European politics, it forces us into a European alliance against a European power. And it commits us, without the right of deciding for ourselves, to another European war. No honeyed words from the State Department can cover up these facts. ...

"This war alliance moves the heart of America right up to the first gun fired in Europe. ...

"John Foster Dulles said he knew of no responsible official in any government 'who believes that the Soviet state now plans conquest by open military aggression.'"

"If Mr. Dulles is right, and I think he is, if the Soviet Union does not plan military aggression - then to surround them with military bases becomes an act of aggression on our part. ...

"...I say, this democracy takes no marching orders and writes no blank checks. No group of men has the right to lead us into war in the name of peace."

John G. Rogers, NewYork Herald Tribune, March 27, 1949 (from Lake Success) :

"United Nations officials and many diplomats assigned to the U.N. are becoming increasingly perturbed over the trend of the leading Western countries to push the U.N. further and further into the background in their planning of foreign relations.

"The Brussels pact, the North Atlantic security alliance and the proposed ten-country Council of Europe - these projects born out of the fear of Russian intentions are arranged over the head of the U.N. and are looked upon as blows at both the effectiveness and prestige of the U.N.

"All these regional arrangements are also born out of a decision by the participants that the U.N. is too weak to be relied upon as an instrument of world security - at least at this time.

"But many who are most ambitious for the UN's future point out an ironic and dangerous possibility. Granted the U.N. today is too weak to guarantee world security, yet over-emphasis on regional arrangements that ignore the U.N. completely will serve the vicious-circle result of weakening the U.N. still more.

"It is not only the act of forming regional alliances that causes concern at Lake Success. It is also the belief that those who are promoting the alliances are going quite far out of their way to deprecate the U.N. as part of their program of demonstrating the need for the alliances. ...

"The fear is a grave one among some quarters here that the United States, during its preoccupation with the North Atlantic alliance, is selling the U.N. a bit short.

United Farm Equipment Workers (CIO), March 27, 1949:

The CIO United Farm Equipment Workers convention voted unanimously a foreign policy resolution denouncing the North Atlantic Pact as a "get ready for war" program. It called upon President Truman to restore peaceful relations with the Soviet Union through direct negotiations.

A.A. Fadeyev, Secretary General of the Union of Soviet Writers, at the Plenary Session of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace in New York, March 27, 1949:

"They say that such pacts and blocs (North Atlantic Pact) are being created to suppress the aggression with which at one and the same time the peoples of Europe, Asia and America are supposedly being threatened on the part of the USSR. But it is sufficient to glance at a map of the world to understand that this talk issues from the camp of people who are not objective, in order to mislead inexperienced and plain people. As a matter of fact, is it the Soviet Union that has military bases in a gigantic ring passing through Greenland, Iceland, England, Portugal, Spain, Germany, Italy, Greece, the countries of the Near and the Middle East, through the islands of the Pacific Ocean, China and Japan? Are the Soviet armed forces in Greece, Egypt, Transjordan, Iran, Indonesia, Viet-Nam and other countries?

"All these facts indicate that the threat of a new war does not have its source in the Soviet Union."

Professor P.M.S. Blackett, British atomic physicist and 1949 Nobel Prize winner in a message to the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace in New York, March 25-27, 1949:

"The most important problem concerns the Atlantic Pact. However defensive a character this may have in the minds of some of its sponsors, there are clearly very dangerous features associated with it. In particular, the reliance of the Western World on the American stock pile of atomic bombs as a deterrent, leads to the attempt to organize atomic bomb bases as near as possible to the periphery of Russia. This inevitably takes on a threatening character in the eyes of the Russians; as would an attempt by the Russians to set up atomic bomb bases, say, in Central America. Inevitably the policy of the Atlantic Pact is already imposing great internal stress in many countries of Europe, particularly in Italy, France and Scandinavia. This is partly due to the realization that if war were to break out it would be of very long duration and Western Europe would be the main sufferer."

T.O. Thackrey, Editor, New York Post, at the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace in New York, March 26, 1949:

"A basic contribution to the road to war, rather than peace, has been the persistent drift of United States actual policy away from the United Nations in favor of unilateral, and in the most recent Atlantic Pact proposal, regional measures which pay lip service to the Charter purposes but actually are destructive of their very life. ...

"Foremost among the foreign policy measures today is the North Atlantic Pact, a military alliance engineered by the United States Department of State for the avowed purpose of rearming Western Europe, pledging all signatories to regard an attack against one as an attack against all, and also defining as an attack a revolution within any country which is inspired or directed from outside that country. ...

"This treaty seems to me the most ill-advised, and the most dangerous to the peace of the many policies embarked on outside the United Nations to date, though its proponents claim for it the security and relief from tension by armed protection against possible attack from the Soviet Union.

"Certainly one of the reactions will be to increase the economic burdens of Western Europe and the United States, already heavily burdened and committed. Certainly another is likely to be fear of an attack by the Soviet Union, and a consequent increase in military preparations, an event to be deplored since it is another action and reaction of the type which is rapidly warming up the cold war. ...

"Rather than such a dangerous and provocative move, it would seem to me to be the most sensible of alternative measures for peace to return both to the spirit and the letter of the United Nations Charter, and to provide that organization with an independent and denationalized (internationalized) force to be gradually increased in size sufficiently to allow for a reduction, rather than an increase, in national armaments. ...

"I would like to see the United States propose a conference at the highest level, with both President Truman and Premier Stalin in attendance, to determine the means for returning all outstanding disputes between the nations and their current allies to the United Nations, not for debate but for settlement."

John J. DeBoer, Professor of Education, University of Illinois at the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace in New York, March 26, 1949:

"Radio and press are daily building in the public mind the concept of the 'inevitable' Holy War with Russia. The Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan, and the North Atlantic Pact reflect our lack of faith in the United Nations and our increasing reliance upon force in the settlement of differences between nations. The resources of our nation are being diverted from the construction of houses and hospitals and schools to the manufacture of planes and bombs and tanks. Once more, less than five years after the close of the most destructive war in history, we are rapidly preparing for a new and greater conflict....

"The North Atlantic Pact, an outright military alliance, is to be sold to the American people as a peace measure, notwithstanding the fact that no similar military alliance in history has ever eventuated in anything but war. ...

"If we are to have peace, we should seek peace, not war. We should seek peace persistently, patiently, continually, with the only method that will bring peace - the method of conciliation."

Anti-Pact Demonstration in Oslo, Norway, March 26, 1949:

Oslo, March 26 (UP) - A gathering of about 4,000 women demonstrated outside the Storting (Parliament) today in a protest against Norwegian adherence to the Atlantic Pact.

United Office & Professional Workers of America (CIO), March 24, 1949:

"By unanimous vote March 24, a joint executive board meeting of all local UOPWA unions in New York City called for public discussion and open hearings on the North Atlantic Pact.

"Pointing out that in no serious a question as the signing of a military alliance, the American people should have 'an opportunity to examine its implications,' union leaders recommended the circularization of a petition to the President and the Senate urging adequate public debate of the issues."

National Farmers Union, March 22, 1949:

"Denver, 3/22 (AP) - The Atlantic Pact was denounced today as 'directly contrary to American precedent and history' by the board of directors of the National Farmers Union. Farm delegates from thirty-five states attending a semi-annual board meeting here approved a resolution calling the Pact a 'futile gesture.' "

American Labor Party, March 21, 1949:

"The American Labor Party announced yesterday that it was starting a campaign to block ratification of the North Atlantic Pact, which it declared 'divides the world for war.' "
(New York Times, 3/22/49).

Aftontidningen, Swedish Government newspaper, quoted by George Axelsson in the New York Times, March 20, 1949:

"The Government organ, Aftontidningen, calls the treaty 'the security of the volcano'."

Washington Post, March 19, 1949:

The inclusion of Portugal, Italy, Denmark and Iceland "distorts the Pact geographically, weakens it militarily, undermines its integrity and frustrates the hope of its evolution into a nuclear union of like-minded nations. ..."

Denying the State Department contention that the Pact respects Article 51 of the U.N. Charter, the Post continues:

"By what stretch of reasoning can Italy be classed as a North Atlantic power? ... Why not invite Turkey or Egypt or even Russia and Poland? ..."

"As it now stands, with the addition of countries that do not belong to it, the treaty grouping offers no rational basis for growth into a genuine partnership and a buttress of peace."

Gunnar Fagrell, New Republic, March 14, 1949:

"Swedish students of foreign affairs have reached the conclusion that the U.S. wants the decks cleared for attack on the Soviet Union. Bases in Norway prepared for American planes, ships and troops would mean a great advantage were a war of aggression contemplated. ... In general it is safe to say that nobody in Scandinavia wants to act as vanguard in a war of aggression against the Soviet Union."

James P. Warburg, in Philadelphia, March 11, 1949:

The Atlantic Security Pact "is more likely to provoke than to avoid attack."

Statement by Federal Council of the Churches of Christ meeting in Cleveland, March 10, 1949:

"Delegates were unable to act on the Atlantic Pact because they do not know its terms, but they believe 'no defensive alliance should be entered into which might validly appear as aggressive to Russia, as a Russian alliance with Latin America would undoubtedly appear to us. ..."

"Regional military alliances are, of course, no substitute for the relief of human distress and the meeting of human needs within the area. ..."

"Some members of the conference feel under obligation to record their conviction that any war or any resort to military measures would be morally evil and practically self-defeating. They hold that the attempt to maintain the huge military force adequate to balance Russian military power and to force 'moderation' on the Soviet provides only the illusion of security. It means the continuance of the cold war and the armament race, not the certain prevention of war."

Rev. E. E. Ryden, (Lutheran), Rock Island, Ill., at Federal Council of Churches meeting in Cleveland, March 9, 1949:

"The most violent objection to the Pact was voiced by the Rev. E. E. Ryden, a Lutheran from Rock Island, Ill. The Pact, he said, is a 'military scheme' destined to wreck the United Nations."

(New York Times, March 10, 1949)

John Foster Dulles at Federal Council of Churches meeting in Cleveland, Mar. 8.

"So far as it is humanly possible to judge, the Soviet government, under conditions now prevailing, does not contemplate the use of war as an instrument of its national policy. I do not know any responsible high official, military or civilian, in this government or any government, who believes that the Soviet state now plans conquest by open military aggression. ...

"It can be assumed that the Soviet state would use the Red Army if its leaders felt that their homeland was imminently and seriously menaced. That is why in our statement on Soviet-American relations made two and one-half years ago, we (the churchmen) said that the United States should not seek military bases so close to the Soviet Union as to carry an offensive threat that is disproportionate to defensive value.

"That is why our fellowship with the peoples of Western Europe and particularly of Scandinavia ought not to seem to bring United States military might directly to Russia's border.

"It would indeed involve a high tribute to Soviet leaders to assume that under those circumstances they would exercise more self-control than would our people under comparable circumstances, as for example, if the Soviet Union had military arrangements with a country at our border."

Avanti, Italian newspaper (Socialist), March 8, 1949:

The Atlantic Pact will make Italy "an American colony."

Arnaldo Cortesi from Rome (New York Times, March 5, 1949):

"The directorate of the right-wing Socialist Party, which forms part of the Government coalition, declared itself opposed to Italy's entry into the Atlantic Alliance."

Robert J. Donovan from Washington (New York Herald Tribune, March 3, 1949) :

"Sweden, traditionally neutral, has steadfastly opposed joining the North Atlantic Pact. ..."

Etienne Gilson, member of the Academie Francaise, March 1, 1949:

"In an attack on the Atlantic Pact, Etienne Gilson, member of the French Academy, disclosed that Europe will be safer if it remained neutral than if it accepted the illusory protection of the Pact.

"M. Gilson's attack on the Atlantic Pact was one of the most severe that have yet been made in this country. It appeared in a front page article in the Monde." (New York Times, 3/2/49).

Claude Bourdet, Editor of Combat, Independent French newspaper, March 1, 1949:

"In an editorial...in Combat, Claude Bourdet, its editor, argues that in moves against the Communists, it is not a question of France's national interests but of 'the clash of two conceptions of the world, of two gigantic blocs of interests.'

"The editorial says that 'France has entered the American camp,' but that a third or fourth of the French people oppose this policy, believing it will 'lead to catastrophe.'

"The importance of these comments is that they show there are now those in France who oppose the Atlantic Pact almost as vigorously as the Communists, though for different reasons."

Marcel Gimont, Foreign Editor of the independent French newspaper Combat, February 28, 1949:

"M. Gimont accused Western Europeans of counting too much on the Atlantic Pact, since the United States could not provide all the arms that would be asked.

" 'The fear of encirclement often leads to extreme, while with a minimum of mutual good will the cold war would already have been liquidated', he contended." (Harold Callender, New York Times, 3/1/49)

Dr. Juliusz Katz-Suchy, the delegate from Poland to the United Nations, on February 16, 1949:

"Dr. Katz-Suchy said that the Western powers' agreements by-passed the United Nations Economic Commission for Europe and constituted a unilateral attempt to solve international problems on Western terms."

National Committee of the Progressive Party of America, February 13, 1949:

The National Committee of the Progressive Party on February 13 called on the American people to "halt the projected North Atlantic military pact," the "real purpose" of which is to "erect a second cordon sanitaire aimed at Russia."

The projected military pact, the statement said, "is not the path of peace, but a path towards war. It would replace the United Nations as the world's best hope for peace by an open and aggressive military alliance. ...

"Rejection of the Stalin offer", the statement said, "has been followed by a new wave of whipped-up hysteria against the so-called menace of Communism, under cover of which our government is attempting to drive through the North Atlantic military pact and a huge program to arm Western Europe."

The statement pointed out that while the U.S. tried to alibi its rejection of the Stalin peace talks offer by saying such talks would by-pass the United Nations, the U.S. has "by-passed the U.N.

with the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan and is doing so again in preparing a North Atlantic military pact."

Wall Street Journal, January 13, 1949:

"It is a far from demonstrated fact that the only way to guarantee Western European security from aggression is for America to pour practically unlimited quantities of planes, tanks and guns into economically weak countries. Our Grecian adventure, while not strictly comparable, nonetheless suggests the contrary."

SOVIET PROTEST ON THE NORTH ATLANTIC PACT

Following is the text of the Soviet memorandum on the North Atlantic Pact as reported by the Tass News Agency and distributed by the Associated Press:

On March 31 the government of the Soviet Union sent through its ambassadors the following memorandum on the North Atlantic treaty to the governments of the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxemburg and Canada:

On March 18 the State Department of the United States published the text of the North Atlantic treaty which the governments of the United States of America, Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxemburg and Canada intend to sign within the next few days.

The North Atlantic treaty fully confirms what was said in the declaration of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the USSR of Jan. 29 this year which is being attached hereto both as regards the aggressive aims of this treaty and the fact that the North Atlantic treaty contradicts the principles and aims of the United Nations Organization and commitments which the governments of the United States of America, Great Britain and France have assumed under other treaties and agreements.

Statements contained in the North Atlantic treaty that it is designated for defense and that it recognizes the principles of the United Nations Organization serve aims which have nothing in common either with the tasks of self-defense of the parties to the treaty or with the real recognition of the aims and principles of the United Nations Organization. Such great powers as the United States, Great Britain and France are parties to the North Atlantic treaty.

Thus the treaty is not directed either against the United States of America, Great Britain, or France. Of the great powers, only the Soviet Union is excluded from among the parties to this treaty, which can be explained only by the fact this treaty is directed against the Soviet Union. The fact that the North Atlantic treaty is directed against the USSR as well as against the countries of the peoples' democracies was definitely pointed out also by official representatives of the United States of America, Great Britain and France.

To justify the conclusion of the North Atlantic treaty, references are being made to the fact that the Soviet Union has defensive treaties with countries of the peoples' democracies. These references, however, are utterly untenable.

All the treaties of the Soviet Union on friendship and mutual assistance with the countries of the peoples' democracies are of a bilateral nature, and they are directed solely against a possible repetition of German aggression, of which danger no single peace-loving state can forget. The possibility of interpreting them as treaties which are in any degree aimed against the allies of the USSR in the late war, against the United States or Great Britain or France, is absolutely precluded.

Moreover the USSR has similar treaties against the repetition of German aggression not only with the countries of the peoples' democracies but also with Great Britain and France.

In contradiction to this, the North Atlantic treaty is not a bilateral, but a multilateral treaty, which creates a closed grouping of states and, what is particularly important, absolutely ignores the possibility of a repetition of German aggression, not having consequently as its aim the prevention of a new German aggression.

And in as much as of the great powers which comprised the anti-Hitlerite coalition only the USSR is not a party to this treaty, the North Atlantic treaty must be regarded as a treaty directed against one of the chief Allies of the United States, Great Britain and France in the late war, against the USSR.

Participants in the North Atlantic treaty are effecting extensive military measures which can in no way be justified by the interests of self-defense of these countries.

The extensive military measures carried out by the United States in cooperation with Great Britain and France under the present peacetime conditions, including the increase in all types of armed forces, the drafting of a plan for the utilization of the atomic weapon, the stockpiling of atom bombs, which are purely an offensive weapon, the building of a network of air and naval bases, etc. - by no means bear a defensive character.

The preservation in Washington of the combined Anglo-American Staff organized during the second World War, the recent establishment of the military staff of the so-called Western Union in Fontainebleau (France), as well as the intention immediately to set up the defense committee envisaged by the North Atlantic treaty, are by no means an indication of the peace-loving or defensive aims of the participants of the treaty, but, together with other numerous military preparations, contribute to intensifying anxiety and alarm and to the whipping up of war hysteria in which all sorts of instigators of a new war are so interested.

The North Atlantic Pact is designed to daunt the states which do not agree to obey the dictate of the Anglo-American grouping of powers that lay claim to world domination, though the untenability of such claims was once again affirmed by the second World War which ended in the debacle of Fascist Germany, which also had laid claim to world domination.

Among the participants in the North Atlantic treaty are also countries whose Governments expect to benefit at the expense of the richer parties to this treaty and make various plans with regard to obtaining new credits and other material advantages.

At the same time one cannot but see the groundlessness of the anti-Soviet motives of the North Atlantic treaty, inasmuch as it is known to all that the Soviet Union does not intend to attack anyone and in no way threatens the United States of America, Great Britain or the other parties to the treaty.

The conclusion of the North Atlantic treaty and establishment of a new grouping of powers is motivated by the weakness of the United Nations Organization. It is perfectly evident, however, that the North Atlantic treaty does not serve the cause of consolidating the United Nations Organization but on the contrary leads to the undermining of the very foundation of this international organization because establishment of the above grouping of powers is far from corresponding to the aims and principles of the United Nations Organization and runs counter to the Charter of this organization.

Parties to the North Atlantic treaty maintain that this treaty allegedly represents a regional arrangement envisaged by Article 52 of the United Nations Charter. But such references are utterly groundless and untenable. There can be no question whatsoever of any regional character of this treaty inasmuch as the union provided for by this treaty embraces states located in both hemispheres of the globe and has not as its aim settlement of any regional issues.

This is also confirmed by the fact as has already been announced that states which are not members of the United Nations Organization (Italy and Portugal) are being drawn into participation in the North Atlantic treaty though Article 52 of the United Nations Charter has in view conclusion of regional arrangements only among members of the United Nations Organization.

Nor can establishment of a North Atlantic grouping of states be justified by the right of each member of the United Nations to an individual or collective self-defense in conformity with Article 51 of the Charter. Suffice it to say such a right under the Charter of the United Nations can arise only in case of an armed attack against a member of the organization; yet as is known to all neither the United States of America, Britain, France nor other parties to the Pact are threatened by any armed attack.

It is clear references to Articles 51 and 52 of the United Nations Charter are untenable and designed merely to cover up the real aggressive aims of a military grouping of states which are being set up by the conclusion of the North Atlantic treaty.

No one can deny that the North Atlantic treaty and, first and foremost, Article 5 of this treaty directly contradicts the Charter of the United Nations Organization. The text of Article 53 of the Charter which speaks of enforcement actions under regional arrangements, states directly that "no enforcement action shall be taken under regional arrangements or by regional agencies without the authorization of the Security Council," with the exception of special measures provided with regard to former enemy states. This notwithstanding Article 5 of the North Atlantic Pact envisages employment of armed force by the parties to the treaty without any authorization of the Security Council.

Thus, even if the North Atlantic treaty were to be considered a regional arrangement, Article 5 of this treaty is incompatible with the United Nations Charter. This shows once more how unfounded are all references of the North Atlantic treaty to the recognition of the principles and aims of the Charter of the United Nations Organization.

On the basis of the above-said the Soviet Government arrives at the following conclusions:

1. The North Atlantic treaty has nothing in common with the aims of self-defense of states who are parties to the treaty, who are threatened by no one, whom no one intends to attack. On the contrary this treaty has an obviously aggressive character, is aimed against the USSR, which fact is not concealed even by the official representatives of the states - parties to the treaty in their public pronouncements.
2. The North Atlantic treaty not only does not contribute to the consolidation of peace and international security which is the duty of all members of the United Nations Organization, but it directly runs counter to the principles and aims of the United Nations and leads to the undermining of the United Nations Organization,
3. The North Atlantic treaty runs counter to the treaty between Great Britain and the Soviet Union signed in 1942 under which both states assumed the obligation to cooperate in the maintenance of peace, international security and "not to conclude any alliances and not to participate in any coalitions directed against the other high contracting party."
4. The North Atlantic treaty runs counter to the treaty between France and the Soviet Union signed in 1944 under which both states assumed an obligation to cooperate in the maintenance of peace and international security and "not to conclude any alliance and not to take part in any coalition directed against one of the high contracting parties."
5. The North Atlantic treaty runs counter to agreements between the Soviet Union, the United States of America and Great Britain concluded at the Yalta and Potsdam conferences as well as at other conferences of representatives of these powers held both during and after the second World War under which the United States of America and Great Britain like the Soviet Union assumed the obligation to cooperate in consolidation of general peace and international security and to the consolidation of the United Nations Organization.

HOW TO JUGGLE PEACE PROPOSALS AND WAR PACTS

Berlin, Germany and the Pact

Clarification of Soviet Position
State Department Explains
Discussions Continue

Mr. Acheson and the Pact
The Pact and West Germany
Why Talks Were Kept Secret
On a Note of Friendship

For several weeks the American press has published rumors and conjectures concerning a possible lifting of the Berlin blockade by the Soviet occupation authorities and Soviet conditions that may be attached to the lifting of these transport and trade restrictions in and out of Berlin.

According to these rumors, conversations were taking place between high American and Soviet officials on the subject. United States officials in Washington and elsewhere denied these rumors.

Finally, on Tuesday, April 26, 1949, the Soviet newsagency Tass broke the news that discussions had taken place and that the Soviet Union was willing to lift the Berlin blockade if the four allied powers could agree on a date for a conference of the Council of Foreign Ministers to discuss the problem of Germany as a whole.

The Tass statement revealed that discussions on this point had started on the initiative of the U.S. as long ago as February 15 between Philip C. Jessup, United States representative to the United Nations, and Jacob A. Malik, Soviet representative on the UN Security Council.

CLARIFICATION OF SOVIET POSITION

As reported by the Associated Press and published in the New York Times (4/26/49), the Tass statement said in part:

- more -

"On February 15 the United States representative in the United Nations organization, Mr. Jessup, requested the USSR representative on the Security Council, Mr. J.A. Malik, inasmuch as the United States Government is interested in the Berlin problem, to explain the circumstances that in Soviet Prime Minister J.V. Stalin's reply to a correspondent, Mr. Kingsbury Smith, in the third paragraph on the Berlin problem where mention is made of the lifting of the restrictions, nothing is said with regard to a single currency for Berlin.

"J.A. Malik told Mr. Jessup in this connection that the absence in the reply to Mr. Kingsbury Smith of mention concerning the currency was not accidental and that the question of currency for Berlin can be discussed at a session of the Foreign Ministers Council during examination of the question of Germany.

"Mr. Jessup then asked J.A. Malik to explain whether existing restrictions on communications could be lifted prior to the meeting of the Foreign Ministers Council.

"On March 21 J.A. Malik said in reply to Mr. Jessup that if agreement will be reached as to date when the Council of Foreign Ministers would meet the above-mentioned reciprocal restrictions on communications and trade could be lifted before the Council of Foreign Ministers started its work.

"As far as a single currency for Berlin is concerned, this question could be discussed at the session of the Council of Foreign Ministers, together with other questions bearing on Germany.

"According to information at the disposal of Tass, J.A. Malik's last talk with Mr. Jessup on the questions touched upon took place on April 10."

STATE DEPARTMENT EXPLAINS

The veil of secrecy was finally lifted. Upon release of the Tass statement the Department of State issued a communique of its own in which it confirmed the Tass report regarding the conversations between Dr. Jessup and Mr. Malik. The communique revealed that "taking advantage of the presence of the Foreign Ministers of Great Britain and France in Washington (to sign the North Atlantic War Pact - Ed), the recent developments in regard to the Soviet attitude were discussed with them."

The State Department communique of April 26 also declared that:

"If the present position of the Soviet Government is as stated in the Tass Agency release as published in the American press this morning, the way appears clear for a lifting of the blockade and a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers. No final conclusion upon this can be reached until further exchanges of view with Mr. Malik." (NY Times, 4/27/49)

DISCUSSIONS CONTINUE

On April 27, Dr. Jessup visited Mr. Malik for such "further exchanges of view." According to David Perlman in the New York Herald Tribune of April 28, Dr. Jessup received "official assurance" from Mr. Malik that the Soviet Union would lift its blockade of Berlin "provided the Western Allies lift their own counter-blockade and agree to a Council of Foreign Ministers meeting to discuss four-power settlement of the entire German problem." These are the same conditions announced on April 26 by Tass,

"Mr. Malik not only assured Dr. Jessup that the Russians meant what they said, but specified that the Soviet government did not intend to ask the Western allies to slow up their timetable for establishment of a Western German state," Mr. Perlman reported.

Thomas J. Hamilton said in the New York Times (4/28/49) that the "more important" part of the lengthy statement Dr. Jessup read to Mr. Malik "concerned the agenda of the proposed Council of Foreign Ministers."

Quoting "reliable sources," Mr. Hamilton reported that Dr. Jessup was in a "highly optimistic mood after his hour and a half conference with Mr. Malik."

In any case, the State Department has indicated that the simultaneous lifting of the Berlin blockade and the convening of a Council of Foreign Ministers meeting may be desirable.

MR. ACHESON AND THE PACT

However, at the very same time when Dr. Jessup and Mr. Malik conferred in an admittedly friendly atmosphere, Secretary of State Dean Acheson told members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in Washington that the North Atlantic War Pact was necessary because of the aggressive conduct of the Soviet Union. Urging the Committee's approval of the war pact, Mr. Acheson said:

"If I may use an understatement, the sense of insecurity prevalent in Western Europe is not a figment of the imagination. It has come about through the conduct of the Soviet Union. Western European countries have seen the basic purposes and principles of the Charter cynically violated by the conduct of the Soviet Union with the countries of Eastern Europe.

"Their right to self-determination has been extinguished by force or threats of force. The human freedoms as the rest of the world understands them have been extinguished throughout that whole area. Economic problems have not been solved by international cooperation but dealt with by dictation. These same methods have been attempted in other areas -- penetration by propaganda and the Communist Party, attempts to block cooperative international efforts in the economic field, wars of nerves, and in some cases thinly veiled use of force itself."

Admitting that the Pact would "obligate" the United States to the use of armed force if any one of the signatories were attacked, as well as to furnish the signatories with American armaments, Mr. Acheson stated:

"They (the signatories to the war pact) must be encouraged and assisted to build up their defense forces ... to a point where aggression cannot take place through internal disorders growing from the seeds sown by a potential aggressor, or under the guise of border incidents."

According to the New York Times (4/28/49), Senators Tom Connally (D-Tex) and Arthur H. Vandenberg (R-Mich) "recoiled somewhat from Mr. Acheson's strong suggestion that those (Senators) supporting the treaty would be morally under heavy burden of proof to justify rejecting military assistance now to its members."

In answer to questions by Senators, Mr. Acheson declared that the lifting of the Berlin blockade and a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers would make the war pact "no less indispensable."

His entire argument for the war pact -- his prepared statement as well as his answers to Senators' questions -- was a masterpiece of legalistic and diplomatic double-talk. On the one hand he repeated again and again that the Pact was by no means aimed at the Soviet Union, while on the other hand he continuously branded the Soviet Union the aggressor against whom Western Europe must be armed to the teeth and against whom American boys will eventually have to be sent to Europe to fight a war.

Was Mr. Acheson's verbal attack on the Soviet Union intentionally made to coincide with the negotiations in New York between a representative of the United States and representatives of the country he assailed? He knew what he was going to tell the Senate Committee when he sent Dr. Jessup off to meet the Soviet delegates in New York. Was he trying to provoke the Soviet Union into withdrawing its offer for a peaceful settlement?

In any case, Mr. Acheson's attitude as reflected in his statements to the Senate Committee, highlights the underlying reasons why our government has consistently turned down any offer for settlement made by the Soviet Union for more than a year.

THE PACT AND WEST GERMANY

Before sitting down at any conference table with the Soviet Union, the U.S. Government wanted to be in a position to confront the USSR with the fait accompli of the North Atlantic war alliance and with a separate West German rump-state. This explains the sudden haste with which the formalization of the division of Germany was pushed during the last three weeks. It also explains the pressure exerted during that same period by the State Department on Britain, France and our political puppets in Western Germany to reach immediate agreement on the American plan for the monstrosity that is to be the "German Federal Republic." Furthermore, it explains the pressure bordering on blackmail used by our State Department on the Scandinavian nations, on a not too enthusiastic France, on Italy, to make them sign on the dotted line of the North Atlantic War Pact.

Why was Robert D. Murphy, the State Department's German expert, rushed to Frankfurt on April 22nd after rumors of the Soviet offer had spread throughout Germany and the West German political puppets were showing an ever increased reluctance to finalize the partition of their country? Why did General Clay (according to the NY Times, 4/26/49) after six hours debate with the German puppets in Frankfurt on April 25 come out of the meeting "hollow-eyed and weary" before announcing "triumphantly" that agreement had finally been reached between the Germans themselves, and the Germans and the Western occupation powers and that that by May 15 the "constitution" was expected to be approved and/by July 15 the German "Federal Republic" would be set up? The fact is that March 25 was the deadline set by General Clay and the State Department for pushing the American plans down the throat of the Germans, lest they falter in view of the rumored Soviet offers. (General Clay may well be proud of his timing: a few hours after his own "triumphant" announcement, Tass released the statement containing the Soviet offer to lift the Berlin transport and trade restrictions and to meet with the Western powers at a Foreign Minister's Conference.)

Said I.F. Stone in the New York Post of April 27:

"All through this period of behind the scenes negotiations (the Jessup-Malik discussions), the Clay-Murphy combination did its best to spread the impression that there was no alternative to a West German State. Pressure was put on the German parties to speed the establishment of the State, as if in fear that last minute peace offers might interfere."

Up to now the establishment of this German "Federal Republic" has been presented to the American people as the only recourse the Western powers had in face of Soviet "obstructionism" if they wanted to bring some semblance of normal life to Germany, or, at least, to the part of Germany they occupy. However, General Clay, on April 25, let the cat out of the bag. In a message to the annual membership luncheon of The Associated Press here in New York he advocated the inclusion of West Germany in an association of the "free nations of Western Europe," in other words, in the North Atlantic War Pact. This, he said, would "not only end the threat of Communist (meaning Soviet) expansion, but will make it difficult for the Communist front to keep intact."

In this same message General Clay declared that the North Atlantic War Pact "produced an atmosphere conducive to settlement of the German problem among the three Western occupying powers." Thus finally a responsible American official has come out openly with the fact that the West German rump-state is to be an integral part of the disastrous war alliance. Obviously, the United States is more anxious to convert a former enemy into an ally against the Soviet Union than to settle its differences with the USSR, America's war-time ally.

WHY TALKS WERE KEPT SECRET

The official secrecy surrounding the Jessup-Malik discussions during the last and two and one half months, /the official American denials of their existence, were also a part of the State Department plan to prevent the resurgence of any hopes for an end to the cold war that this news might cause in America and abroad. If the Soviets were ready to lift the Berlin blockade, if they were willing to sit down at the Council table of the Foreign Ministers to discuss the German problem, how then could our Administration justify the costly propaganda hoax of the airlift?

How could they have motivated the North Atlantic Pact by alleged Soviet aggression? If the true facts of the situation had become known on March 21, when Mr. Malik first transmitted the Soviet offer to Dr. Jessup, is it not possible that France, Norway, Denmark and Iceland would have refused to join the North Atlantic War Pact? Would American public opinion not have been aroused to the fact that here we are ready to enter a war alliance in peacetime -- unprecedented in American history -- against a nation that has again offered to discuss and settle the most burning of all unresolved issues: Germany? And would that not have forced the Administration to backtrack from its war pact plans?

According to reports from Washington, observers there regard the Soviet offer with weariness and, as the New York Post's "Washington Memo" (4/27/49) put it, they are searching "for the inevitable gimmick" behind the Soviet proposal. A gimmick for peace? The men in Washington have become deadly afraid of the word peace and, possibly, of peace itself. "Washington Memo" reported that officials in the Capital felt the USSR could use a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers "as still another sounding board for the Soviet peace-offensive propaganda line." Any move to ease the tension and to smooth the road to world peace is today branded by our policy-makers as a "peace-offensive".

ON A NOTE OF FRIENDSHIP

But while Washington was looking for "gimmicks" in the Soviet offer, the Central Committee of the Communist Party in Moscow issued the customary slogans for this year's May Day parade, one of which proclaimed the friendship of the peoples of Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union as "the best guarantee of a stable peace."

According to the New York Times and the Herald Tribune, the slogan was assigned fourth position among the fifty-one issued by the Central Committee, "immediately after another slogan that characterized 'the defense of peace' as a joint cause of peoples throughout the world."

The text of the fourth slogan, calling for British-American-Soviet friendship was as follows:

"Friendship of the peoples of the Soviet Union, the United States and Britain is the best guarantee of a stable peace. Hail the brotherly union of the Peoples of Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union in their struggle for peace!"

In America today a similar slogan would no doubt be termed "subversive" by the governmental agencies and in the press! This, however, does not mean that the fight for peace in America is lost.

Mr. Acheson testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on the very first day of hearings on the North Atlantic War Pact. After the proponents have been heard, there will be numerous witnesses against the Pact representing millions of Americans. We believe that if enough public pressure is brought to bear on the Senate, where the ultimate fate of the Pact is to be decided, the peace forces in this country may yet persuade that body to vote against the disastrous military alliance.

A CALENDAR OF NORTH ATLANTIC PACT DEVELOPMENTS

April 4 through April 14, 1949

April 4:

Twelve nations considered to be members of the so-called North Atlantic community (the United States, Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Luxembourg, Denmark, Iceland, Norway, Italy and Portugal) sign the North Atlantic military pact in Washington, D.C. (while the United States Marine Band plays "It Ain't Necessarily So" and "I Got Plenty of Nothin'.")

April 5:

* * * * *
Eight Atlantic Pact nations make urgent and formal appeal to * the United States for military and financial assistance. US *
Secretary of State Dean Acheson replies that the "Executive * Branch of the US Government is prepared to recommend to the * US Congress that the US provide military assistance..."
* * * * *

General Omar N. Bradley, Chief of Staff of the US Army, says in a major address made on the invitation by the State Department that: "Militarily, the North Atlantic Pact may become just as important... as possession of the atomic bomb." He adds that the Pact will make it possible to "funnel the great strength of our New World to the ramparts of the Old." In other words he asks that American military power be shifted from the United States to the heart of Europe.

Administration experts, representing the Army and State Departments and the Economic Cooperation Administration (Marshall Plan) put in long sessions to shape up the military assistance program to back the North Atlantic Pact. According to the New York Herald Tribune, the program is expected to "provide military supplies up to two billion dollars."

The United Nations General Assembly opens its spring session at Flushing Meadow under the shadow of the North Atlantic Pact. Dr. Herbert Evatt, Assembly President, warns that "this (the UN) Charter and its organization are the primary instruments of international peace. The Charter provides... that all other obligations which individual nations or groups of nations may accept must be subordinated to and must be in accordance with those set forth in the Charter of the United Nations. Every representative here, therefore, is pledged to the view that the United Nations is the supreme international body. It alone can give a common impetus and purpose to the efforts for peace made throughout the whole world." Dr. Evatt did not mention the North Atlantic Pact by name but, according to reports in all New York dailies, the delegates understood that his warning was directed against the Pact.

Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, Chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, declares that the costs of the program for re-arming Western Europe under the North Atlantic Pact should be paid out of the regular national military budget. "Any addition to the budget would contribute to the need for additional taxes or to the making of a budget deficit."

The American Labor Party starts its six-week peace campaign throughout New York State. Thousands of canvassers will ring doorbells in every city, town and village of the State, explaining to the people the issues involved in the North Atlantic military pact and urging them to register their opposition to the Pact with their Senators and Congressmen in Washington.

April 6:

* * * * *
* President Truman declares at a Washington supper party for *
* new House and Senate members that he "would not hesitate" to * * use the atom bomb again if it were necessary for the welfare * * of the U.S. and the "democracies of the world." *

The State Department announces that the US Government will officially ignore the Soviet Union's formal protest against the North Atlantic Pact.

Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg (R.-Mich) and Kenneth S. Wherry (R-Neb) express concern that arms shipments to Europe under the Pact might be regarded by the Soviet Union as provocation for war. They want complete disclosure by the Administration of the planned arms program before Senate ratification of the Pact.

U.S. Army Day celebration in Germany is highlighted by General Lucius D. Clay's speech to American occupation troops. According to Jack Raymond's dispatch in the New York Times General Clay states that "the North Atlantic Pact meant a commitment to fight against an aggressor."

Paul Reynaud, leader of the Independent Deputies in the French National Assembly states: "Even after General Bradley's statement the French are most concerned to know whether effective foreign (i.e. American) aid will be proffered before or after an invasion."

The New York Times prints a full page political advertisement by the Progressive Party of America carrying an urgent message to the American people by Henry A. Wallace against the North Atlantic military pact. The ad reprints the abridged text of Mr. Wallace's broadcast made over the CBS network Sunday, March 27 (see Report-on-the News, April 5, 1949, pp 5). The American people are asked to take action for peace by writing or wiring Senator Tom Connally and their US Senators demanding full and extended hearings on the North Atlantic Pact by the Foreign Relations Committee; by writing or wiring their US Senators asking them to vote against the Pact; and by protesting to President Truman against the violation of the spirit and intent of the UN by the North Atlantic military pact. The American people are asked to urge the President to "enter negotiations with the Soviet Union for settlement of outstanding differences."

April 7:

President Truman contradicts Chairman Nourse of the Council of Economic Advisors when he makes it clear that the cost of arming the North Atlantic Pact nations should not be paid out of the proposed 42 billion dollar national budget.

April 8:

Secretary of State Acheson, releasing the "requests" for arms by eight Atlantic Pact nations (made on April 5) says in a lengthy statement that they are not the only ones to get military assistance from the U.S., but that other areas, such as Greece and Turkey will receive more military assistance according to previous commitments. He also stresses the importance of the North Atlantic Pact nations' "building up at this time a modest program of arms production over and above what has been contemplated in their budgets."

After a heated thirteen-day debate, the Senate, by a vote of 70-to-7, passes and sends to the House the bill authorizing $5,580,000,000 for fullscale extension of the European Recovery Program (Marshall Plan) for the next fifteen months.

The United States, Great Britain and France formalize their splitting of Germany with a joint communique on the agreement reached on administration of the Western German rump state. French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman, being more candid than his American or British colleagues, tells New York press conference that "it is also to a large degree in relation to Germany that the Atlantic Pact, which we signed this week, will find its application." Acheson, at a Washington press conference, declares (according to the Times) that the Marshall Plan, the North Atlantic Pact and this three-power accord on Germany "changed the international atmosphere by having put strength into what previously had been a vacuum of weakness in Western Europe." The three-power agreement on Western Germany provides for the setting up of a so-called German federal republic with limited powers. Occupation troops will stay on. Military Government is to be replaced by high commissioners. An occupation statute defines the duties and limitations of the so-called central government of the "German Federal Republic." The "Federal Republic" is to "negotiate a separate bilateral ECA (Marshall Plan) agreement with the United States ... thus becoming a responsible partner in the European Recovery Program."

The communique formalizes the Western Allies' repudiation of the Potsdam Agreement.

April 9:

German "Parliamentary Council" at Bonn (the body that has been trying to promulgate a "constitution" for Western Germany) receives the Occupation Statute. At the same time another three-power agreement is revealed in Berlin, providing for the establishment of an Allied High Commission. The New York Times reports that the U.S., in addition to retaining its predominant voice in the Joint Export-Import Agency and the joint foreign exchange agency in West Germany, the U.S. will also have the predominant voice in the Allied High Commission where voting strength is proportionate to funds poured into Germany by the three Western powers. German heavy industry is being rebuilt mainly with American dollars.

Combined with the terms of the Occupation Statute, this agreement transforms Western Germany into an American colony to be used as a springboard for attack against the USSR.

Senator Herbert R. O'Connor (D-Md) proposes the inclusion of * * Franco Spain in the North Atlantic military pact and the * * Marshall Plan, since "Spain under Franco has been one of the *
* most consistent of all opponents of Communism."
* * * * *

The preamble of the Pact says the signatories are determined to safeguard their common heritage "founded on the principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law." Not even Senator O'Connor can claim that Franco Spain is "founded on the principles of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law"!

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) suggests India be included in the North Atlantic military pact because in India "the real struggle for men's minds is taking place."

Yet, we were told that the Atlantic Pact is a regional arrangement!

The House Appropriations Committee recommends $15,905,416,800 for the combined Army, Navy and Air Force budget, adding $631,252,100 to what President Truman originally asked for. Addition is to go to Air Force.

Still celebrating Army Day, Lt. Gen. W. Bedell Smith says that "by the North Atlantic Pact we are welding into one coordinated body the fighting strength of many nations." He states that we must now build up "a peacetime military establishment unprecedented in size and cost."

April 10:

* * * * *
Kenneth C. Royall, Secretary of the Army, reveals that * several Western European nations have made "an insistent * request for additional (American) troops" on the European * continent. Secretary Royall discloses that he had reported * this request to an executive session of the House Appropri- * * ations Committee as early as March 7, nearly one month be- * fore the signing of the North Atlantic military pact. Sup- * * porting the demand for more American troops in Europe, *
Secretary Royall told the Committee that no one would want * to "risk our destiny in war on the ability of the nations of * Europe or Africa, or any point in Asia."
* * * * *

[Thus the Secretary of the Army adds Africa and Asia to the far-flung places where he wants to send American boys in preparation for World War III.]

In an open letter to the President and the Congress of the United States 300 outstanding Americans from 33 states and the District of Columbia declare that the North Atlantic military pact could lead only to a "war of extinction" which neither the United States nor the Soviet Union could win and "in which mankind may be destroyed." The letter was sponsored by James C. Baker, Bishop of Los Angeles and President of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church; Clarence E. Pickett, secretary of the Friends Service Committee (Quakers); and T.O. Thackrey, former editor and publisher of the New York Post Home News. Urging the Senators to reject the Pact the signers state that there is "a constructive and honorable alternative."

"We are deeply convinced that capitalism and communism not only can but must live together in the same peaceful world. No dispute between the United States and Russia need be resolved by force."

Declaring that all possibilities for negotiations "have never been fully explored," they urge President Truman, "through a special emissary to the Soviet Union," to "prepare the way for a meeting between the highest ranking authorities of the two governments" to "settle outstanding differences."

April 11:

The Social Democratic Party in Western Germany proposes to substitute an "administration statute" for the drafted constitution. They state that the provisions of the Western Allies' Occupation Statute indicate that a genuine constitution would be unworkable under continued virtually complete occupation.

The three Western powers agree on the form and scope of police and law enforcement agencies to be allowed the German "federal republic".

April 12:

* * * * *
President Truman chooses the fourth anniversary of the death * of Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the man who did more than any * other statesman to create the United Nations for a One-World- * * peace, to send to the Senate for approval the North Atlantic * military pact which divides the world in two.

In his accompanying message to the Senate the President says the signatory nations "share a common heritage of democracy, individual liberty and the rule of law."

[Does this apply to Portugal under Salazar's dictatorship or to the Algerian departments of France?]

The President also says in this message that the Pact "is an expression of the desire of the people of the United States for peace and security." The people of America have as yet not been asked whether they approve of the Pact. There have as yet been no open hearings on the Pact that would have given the people a chance to express their "desire" for "peace and security."

State Secretary Acheson, in a lengthy report to the President on the Pact repeats his earlier propaganda arguments in favor of the war pact. He reiterates the disproven claim that the Pact is in accordance with the Charter of the United Nations. (See Report on the News January 26, 1949 and February 28, 1949)

The House of Representatives passes, by a vote of 354-to-48, the $5,380,000,000 authorization bill to continue the European Recovery Program (Marshall Plan) for fifteen months.

April 13:

The New York Times publishes a political advertisement by 267 New York labor leaders stating that "Labor wants peace talks, not a pact for war." The labor leaders declare that "it makes no sense to say, as the Secretary of State has said, that the North Atlantic Pact is in the spirit of the United Nations Charter and conforms to its provisions. The North Atlantic Pact is the opposite of the United Nations. ... It is clearly a pact for war based on the assumption that peace is either impossible or undesirable. ... We are convinced that the controversy between the U.S. and the USSR can be resolved in negotiations for a peaceful settlement. The Pact closes the door on negotiations."

The labor leaders urge "all Americans, regardless of their political differences, to call upon the President, the Secretary of State, and the Congress to arrange for free and unrestricted public hearings before, as a nation, we are committed to a course which many of us feel is fraught with peril to America and the world."

Sixteen prominent midwestern trade union leaders, headed by the president of the AFL International Sterotypers Union, Local 22, Cleveland, Ohio, launch a nationwide labor campaign against the North Atlantic military pact. The sixteen ask trade unionists throughout the country to join them in a letter they had sent to President Truman on the anniversary of President Roosevelt's death, opposing the Pact and urging negotiations for an "American-Soviet Pact of Peace and Friendship."

Two locals of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers (AFL) in Snohomish County (Wash.) send messages to their Senators and Congressmen branding the Pact a war measure and urging non-ratification by the Senate.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister and Delegate to the United Nations General Assembly charges that the North Atlantic military pact is directed against the Soviet Union.

Speaking before the United Nations General Assembly, Mr. Gromyko declares:

"The circumstances accompanying the preparation of the North Atlantic treaty as well as its composition bear witness to the fact that this new military and political bloc of states lying on both sides of the Atlantic is directed against the USSR. This is obvious from the simple fact that the North Atlantic treaty as well as the Western Union signify the formation of a closed group of states from which only one great power is excluded - the Soviet Union.

"As distinct from the treaties concluded between the Soviet Union and the countries of the People's Democracy and from the treaties concluded by the Soviet Union with Great Britain and France, which are bilateral treaties not directed against any great power and designed to prevent a renewal of German aggression, the North Atlantic Pact is a multi-lateral agreement which, far from being aimed at the prevention of new German aggression, is directed against the power which had borne the main brunt of the war against Hitlerite Germany. ...

"The USA and Great Britain are building up a widespread network of military bases, especially on territories located near the Soviet Union. In Washington there still exists the Anglo-American Combined Chiefs of Staff that had been set up for the planning of military operations during the second World War. ...

"The Soviet delegation deems it necessary to draw the attention of the General Assembly to the aggressiveness of the policy of the ruling circles of the USA and Great Britain, the policy which finds its expression in the building up of military and political blocs directed against the Soviet Union and the countries of People's Democracy because objectively this policy is directed against the peoples of all countries. ...

"The conclusion of the North Atlantic treaty signifies that the ruling circles of the United States and Great Britain have reverted to the old anti-Soviet course in foreign policy aimed at isolating the USSR. It is known that this policy contributed to the strengthening of Hitlerite Germany, encouraged her to prepare for an aggressive war which caused innumerable losses to the Soviet Union and many other countries and which brought profits only to American industrialists and financiers. ...

"The Soviet Union will continue to uphold consistently the basic principles of the United Nations, being convinced that this corresponds to the interests of the peoples of all countries. It will continue to expose the aggressive plans of warmongers."

The House of Representatives authorizes and sends to the Senate the largest single peacetime military appropriation bill in American history totaling 16 billion dollars. The only vote against the bill is cast by Vito Marcantonio (ALP-NY).

The money for this bill, however, must still be appropriated by Congress.

During the debate on the bill, Rep. Clarence Cannon (D-Mo), Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee declares (in support for larger air-force funds):

* "In order to win the war in which we might be involved, the atom bomb must be delivered at the right time and right point. In the first three weeks of the war we must make the atomic bomb pulverize every military center in Russia. *

* "Moscow and every other center in Russia, we must hit within one week after the war starts, and it can be done only by land-based planes. ... *

* "With the signing of the Atlantic treaty we have the bases, all we need now are the planes to deliver the bombs. ... *

* "We will not necessarily have to send a land army over there. In the next war, as in the last war, let us equip soldiers from other nations and let them send their boys into the holocausts instead of our own boys. That is what long-range planes mean. *

(NY Times & Herald Tribune)

Senator Ralph E. Flanders (Rep-Vt) threatens he might oppose ratification of the Pact unless the U.S. undertakes a propaganda offensive directed to the Russian people

In the words of Bert Andrews (NY Herald Tribune), "he proposed that propaganda leaflets be rained on Soviet Russia -- 'that wild beast that is loose on the world' -- by means of guided missiles and captive balloons and planes piloted by a foreign legion of aviators willing to risk their lives. ...

"One thing which I think would be tremendously heartening to the enemies the Kremlin has within its area would be to go ahead with Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr.'s idea for creating a foreign legion," Senator Flanders said. "Here is an immense reservoir of men sitting on their fannies (DP's in Europe) with their hands tied while they are being spoon fed," he said. "There is nothing they would like better than to be organized as a force which could ultimately be used either psychologically or actively against the Kremlin."

The State Department announces agreement has been reached between the U.S., Great Britain and France on the retention in Western Germany of 159 industrial plants previously earmarked for dismantlement and removal as reparations payments. The three Western powers also agree to permit restricted production in ten industries hitherto prohibited under the Potsdam Agreement because these industries have substantial war potential. These include: aluminum, ball-bearings, shipbuilding, light machine tools and some heavy machine tools, synthetic ammonia (nitrogen), commercial radio transmission equipment, heavy tractors, and vanadium. The Western powers also agree to change the level-of-industry-plan concluded in 1946 between the U.S., the USSR, Great Britain and France.

[These agreements were negotiated and arrived at without consultation with the Soviet Union which, as a signatory to the Potsdam Agreement, is also a signatory of the original agreements on German reparations, level-of-industry-plan and list of prohibited industries. Twice in one week the Western powers have completely abrogated the Potsdam Agreement. First with the agreement on the unification of Western Germany and now with the agreements on German industry and reparations.]

April 14:

Turkish Foreign Minister Necmeddin Sadak visits Secretary of State Acheson to acquaint the Secretary of his views in favor of a Mediterranean Pact. He tells a press conference that "Turkey considers the Atlantic Pact insufficient in some aspects for the maintenance of peace on the Continent of Europe. She believes and wishes that Turkish security should also be guaranteed by another regional pact which would be linked to the Atlantic Pact."

According to Homer Bigart in the New York Herald Tribune, "Turkish public opinion is alarmed over the omission of Turkey from the North Atlantic Pact. ... The Turkish Parliament and press have raised the question that, since Italy is in the North Atlantic alliance, why leave Turkey out?"

* * * * *

OPPOSITION TO THE PACT

Karl von Wiegand, April 3, 1949:

"The North Atlantic Pact supposedly is designed to avert war. In reality it is planned to make preparations for the war that is feared. ...

"Any large armament of Western Europe by America undoubtedly would be construed by Moscow as provocative and as an open threat, and would almost certainly speed up the coming of war. ...

"Let us assume that Russia were arming Mexico. Would America quietly look on?"

(NY Journal American, 4/3/49)

Abd El-Krim, April 4, 1949:

(Abd El-Krim)

"The old warrior has sent note to British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, Secretary of State Dean Acheson, United Nations Secretary General Trygve Lie protesting 'on behalf of the North African peoples' against participation by Algiers in the Atlantic alliance."

(NY Herald Tribune, 4/5/49)

Henry A. Wallace, April 4, 1949:

"And now the lessons we have learned through another bloody war are being turned against the forces of democracy -- the symbols of 'collective security' are being used to build collective aggression, the unity of the great nations against fascism is becoming a unity of the nations against communism, and ideals of the defeated have been taken over by the victors. ...

"Today is a great day for France. It was France who suggested the North Atlantic unity against Russia ... in a letter to Winston Churchill in the fall of 1944."

Anne O'Hare McCormick, April 5, 1949:

"... nowhere is it clearer than at Flushing Meadows that a regional defense pact, whatever it is not, is a poor alternative to a universal peace system. This was brought out in the address of President Herbert V. Evatt of Australia. The implication was plain in the emphasis he placed on the Charter as the 'primary instrument of international peace.'"

Eleven New York Clergymen, April 5, 1949:

(the North Atlantic Pact)

"This proposal is, in our view, a big step in the direction of dependence upon military power and the domination of national policy by the military. ...

"The masses of Europe cannot feed or clothe themselves with atom bombs or guns. The increased military budgets will threaten bankruptcy. Even the United States is not rich enough to arm itself and half the world for total war and at the same time maintain a stable internal economy. The impulse of military and political leaders to resort to war in the attempt to ward off economic collapse and social revolt will therefore soon become overwhelming.

"For the American people to adopt the North Atlantic military alliance is, therefore, folly. War and war preparations do not provide defense. What, then, is the alternative? How is security to be achieved in this time of trouble and fear? ...

"A way to end war must be found. To declare war by its own unfettered choice is held to be the attribute of a sovereign nation. To declare that it is through with war by its own unfettered choice is also the prerogative of a sovereign nation. Let the United States begin to exercise its sovereignty to that end.

"Instead of staying in the armaments race and dragging one nation after another, like Norway into it by the lure of its dollars and munitions, let the United States start a disarmament race and challenge all other nations to outdo it. The choice before the American people, as each succeeding crisis shows more clearly, is a hard one. The cost of continued and intensified war preparation ending as it must in war, is fixed inexorably. It is prohibitive. ...."

(Letter in NY Herald Tribune, 4/10/49)

Avanti, Italian (Socialist) newspaper, April 5, 1949:

"Italy is in the war pact." It added an editorial comment to the effect that the treaty had not been freely negotiated but was a 'diktat'."

(NY Times, 4/6/49)

Wall Street Journal, April 5, 1949:

The North Atlantic Pact is "the triumph of jungle law over international cooperation..."

The "jungle principle of the Atlantic Pact fits the facts better than the ideally-human principle of the UN does. ...

"For propaganda notwithstanding, the Atlantic Pact does nullify the principles of the UN. It is all very well to talk of the one being in conformity with the Charter of the other. But the article of the UN Charter to which the Atlantic Pact conforms is the escape clause, giving nations an over-riding right to take measures of individual or collective security. It was put in as a sop to national sovereignty; without it the Charter would never have been approved.

"Well, you do not take advantage of an escape clause unless it is your intention to escape from something -- in this case from the realization of the UN principle of international cooperation on a world scale.

"Proponents of the Atlantic Pact might object to designating it jungle law. But the most cursory analysis reveals the thinness of the veneer of civilization covering it. It makes military might the determining factor in international relations. The fact that the West believes right underlies its might does not make the Atlantic Pact any less a substitution of brute force for human quality of reason."

George E. Sokolsky, April 7, 1949:

"This would seem to be a time when weasel words serve no purpose, when it is even diplomatic to tell the whole truth. The North Atlantic Pact is an offensive-defensive military alliance aimed at Soviet Russia. That is, for better or for worse, the fact. The Russians recognize it for what it is. Every signatory to it recognizes it for what it is. Yet President Truman and Dean Acheson, in their statements, attempted to paint it in pastel shades as though we were still living in the roseate atmosphere of Roosevelt and Churchill at Yalta. ...

"Many object to this treaty on two grounds: one, that it amends the Constitution by a treaty, the right of Congress to declare war being shifted to the Department of State; two, that war becomes automatic, that is, that it occurs without due consideration whenever in the judgement of military strategists national interests would be imperiled by delay. Both objections are valid. ...

"The Russians charge that the North Atlantic Pact is a violation of the United Nations Charter. They are probably correct about that from a legalistic standpoint. ..."

Prof. Leland M. Goodrich, April 7, 1949:

"Prof. Leland M. Goodrich of Brown University believed the Atlantic Pact would NOT strengthen the United Nations."

(NY Times, 4/8/49, reporting on dinner of the Academy of Political Science in NY)

Freda Kirchwey, April 9, 1949:

"When Russia charges that the North Atlantic Pact is directed against the Soviet Union it is telling the plain truth, and no State Department denials will persuade a sensible observer otherwise. Every official argument in support of the Pact has pointed straight at Moscow, explicitly if not by name, and the text of the Pact itself does the same thing. The position of the Western powers was clearly stated by Mr. Churchill in his Boston speech when he described the Russian government as tyranny 'holding down hundreds of millions of people and aiming at the rule of the world.' How, then, can Mr. Acheson and his European associates expect to be believed when they insist that the Pact is directed merely against aggression in general? The answer is so technical as to be meaningless, and is consequently deceptive.

"Russia is also correct in charging that the Pact conflicts with the provisions of the United Nations Charter covering regional agreements. This point will certainly be argued in detail during the sessions of the General Assembly just starting at Lake Success, but one need not wait for the formal debate to find out what delegates and UN officials think. Even among those who accept the Pact as necessary, many regard it as an infringement of the Charter and a threat to the influence and integrity of the international organization."

Dr. Walter W. Van Kirk, April 9, 1949:

"A noted Protestant churchman asserted today that religion and the United Nations were better instruments for peace than the North Atlantic Pact. ...

"Dr. Van Kirk, secretary of the Department of International Justice and Goodwill of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, described the Pact as a spectacular extension of defensive strategy, a diplomatic tactic comparable to 'holding the line' in football.

"A United Nations which 'takes the offensive in quest of a global peace,' he said, 'is much more likely to receive the sanction of religion than is a pact which is not universal in character and which seeks to establish a balance of power as between two or more groups of states'."

Henry A. Wallace, April 11, 1949:

"Henry Wallace, leader of the Progressive Party, charged last night that the Atlantic Pact is 'a pact of war' from which may come the 'trigger-happy shots' to put this country at war with half the world..."

"Mr. Wallace said that the Pact 'attempts to chain half the peoples of the world to an alliance against Russia, while the world drifts to war.'"

"He said also: 'Using anti-communism as a mask, powerful forces in America are seeking to take us down the path followed by Nazi Germany. I do not condone the actions of the Communists, but I do say there is far more peril from the right than the left!'"

Walter Lippmann, April 11, 1949

"The weakness of the department's argument (for the Pact) is that it attempts to treat the Pact as something which the authors of the Charter foresaw and authorized when the United Nations was organized. That is just not so, and the attempt to demonstrate it by a strained construction of articles 51 and 52 will not carry conviction. The formation of this bloc ... is an event which the founders of the organization did not authorize. Indeed, they rejected the idea on principle when it was proposed that they should recognize these developments as inevitable."

"The true ground on which to argue the case is not, therefore, that the Pact is derived from the Charter, but that the formation of these blocs is an historic development, unforeseen and undesired in 1945, to which the United Nations is now compelled to adjust itself."

Twenty-Two Religious Leaders, April 14, 1949:

"The adoption of the Atlantic Pact means continued stockpiling of atomic and biological weapons, continuance of peacetime conscription, increase in the already colossal arms budget, building a world-wide spy network, maintenance of military bases around the world, no relaxation of military influence of education, science, industry and commerce, to say nothing of the periodic waves of national hysteria without which none of these measures could be maintained."

We believe you are a person who is not easily intimidated - either by inscriptions on envelopes or by those in newspapers. We believe you will not surrender your right to speak up for peace. Now is the time to speak.

We are not easily intimidated either. We continue to speak up for peace daily and we are doing it more forcefully, more widely and more frequently than ever before.

The enclosed reprint of our recent full-page advertisement in the NEW YORK POST is evidence of this. But this advertisement, as you may know, is only one small part of our nationwide peace effort.

In forty cities a key leadership is geared to action under the continuous direction of our National Field Service. We put the educational "ammunition" in their hands and outline the required action. We get out leaflets for mass distribution. Six thousand influential people and organizations throughout the country receive our Report-on-the-News, a weekly analysis of the current issues of American-Soviet relations.

During the past two months our speakers visited Los Angeles, Denver, Chicago, Milwaukee, Salt Lake City, St. Louis, Detroit, Louisville, Boston, Springfield and Philadelphia - to name just a few of the places - where, in addition to public addresses, they mobilized local leadership for peace action.

Our Committee of Women is at work in 27 states monitoring radio programs in order to commend or criticize the handling of American-Soviet relations. Our exhibits and pamphlets and other educational services designed to increase understanding of Soviet life and activities are in wider demand than ever before. And all this - plus our campaign in opposition to the North Atlantic Pact - is still only part of our total activity.

We appeal for funds by mail but once a year. This is that time. If you feel our work is vital to you, believe us, you and your support are indispensable to us. What happens to our work in the future depends on what you do at this moment.

I suggest that you do not give merely what you can afford. Rather I suggest that you give as you value peace, for none of us can afford war either. Your check or money order may be made payable to me or the Council. You may find it convenient to use the coupon in the advertisement. Thank you!

Sincerely yours,

Richard Morford

THE NORTH ATLANTIC PACT- A DANGER TO WORLD PEACE

An Open Letter To The American People

The North Atlantic Pact is before you. You must now judge for yourself whether this Pact will "contribute toward the further development of peaceful and friendly relations," as Article 2 says, or whether it is a dangerous adventure on the road to war.

THE NORTH ATLANTIC PACT UNDERMINES THE UN

~~Read it carefully! For your life and your family's are at stake. You will find that the Pact not only violates the principles of the United Nations, the one organization that~~

~~today offers peace, instead of war, as a way of world relations, but also violates our own Constitution.~~

THE NORTH ATLANTIC PACT VIOLATES OUR CONSTITUTION

Article 9 of the Pact sets up, outside the United Nations and outside our Constitution, a special military council with full power to involve us in war, irrespective of the wishes of the American people or Congress, in whose hands alone the Constitution places that grave power. By the terms of Article 5, any attack (provoked or not) on one or more of the signatory nations shall be deemed an attack on all and shall be met with such action, including the use of armed forces, as the special military body may decide. NOT, mind you, as the American people or their Congress might decide. Article 5 states further that the Security Council of the UN will be informed of such use of armed force only AFTER it has been used.

These two articles, clearly, provide an invitation to military adventurers to provoke an attack and then call upon American men and arms to back them up. Of what use is it to inform the United Nations, once atom bombs are being dropped?

Is our security so threatened that the war-making power must be taken from Congress, representing the American people, and delegated to a council of foreign military functionaries? The State Department, last January 14, said that the North Atlantic Pact was aimed against the Soviet Union. Yet the Soviet Union, far from threatening us (with bases, say, in Mexico), has repeatedly asked for conferences with us to reach a peaceful and amicable understanding.

PEOPLE OPPOSE THE PACT

You are being told that the peoples of the nations signing the North Atlantic Pact support it. This is not so. Demonstrations against the Pact, and even strikes, are taking place in Norway, Denmark, France, Italy, Great Britain, Belgium, Holland and even in Canada. The people everywhere realize the danger of war inherent in the Pact.

THE NORTH ATLANTIC PACT THREATENS OUR WAY OF LIFE

What will be the direct effect of the Pact on YOU, on your daily life? The State Department tells us that under the Pact we are to re-arm half of Europe. This means you will have to produce armaments instead of the things you and your family need. It means you won't get decent housing; the money that was to go into the housing program will be spent on bigger and better atom bombs, which you will pay for in taxes. It also means the drafting for military service abroad of your sons, husbands, fathers, and brothers. They will be the ones to man American military bases throughout the "North Atlantic area," from Portugal to Norway at the very doorstep of the Soviet Union. The Atlantic Pact means a drastic change in the American way of life—from the civilian direction of our society to the militarization of every aspect of our lives.

YOU WILL LIVE IN THE SHADOW OF WAR EVERY DAY, EVERY HOUR

There is no security for any of us in a world transformed into an armed camp. This, and not the attitude of any one nation, may make war inevitable.

There is no need for the North Atlantic Pact. The road to a real peace, without military alliances, without preparations for war, is still open.

THE WAY TO PEACE

The United States, in cooperation with the Soviet Union and within the framework of the United Nations, can establish the basis for universal peace and gradual disarmament. The resources of the world need not be squandered in useless armaments, but can be used for a better living for all. Thus American interests and the interests of all nations will be adequately secured.

WE CALL ON YOU TO ACT!

1. Write the President that you oppose the North Atlantic Pact. Ask the President to re-establish conferences with the Soviet Union to settle our differences.
2. Write your two United States Senators. Demand that they stop this disastrous military alliance, and oppose our re-armament of Europe.
3. Ask your organizations to request time to testify at public hearings to be conducted by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.
4. Organize protest meetings against the North Atlantic Pact.

It is not known what final payment was agreed upon.

b7D

Despite effort to create a separate entity in the Ad Hoc Committee, that organization could hardly be considered independent of the ARI. This is demonstrated by information from [ ] advising that a telephone listing had been secured for the Ad Hoc Committee and that this telephone would be in the ARI offices.

SOL SILVERMAN advised [ ] that ROSE ISAK, the ARI secretary, was to answer this telephone with the words, "The secretary for the Welcoming Committee for the Dean." This is listed in San Francisco telephone directory as the "Committee to Welcome the Dean of Canterbury, 101 Post Street."

SA EDWIN O. RAUDSEP who checked the building directory at 101 Post Street, found that the Ad Hoc Committee was listed to room 310, which is also the room occupied by the ARI.

[ ] advised that the money collected at the dinner at the Fairmont Hotel as well as the collection taken at the auditorium is to go to the local branch of the ARI after expenses are paid. Expenses are to be pro-rated by the National Committee to Welcome the Dean of Canterbury.

d. Lecture at Civic Auditorium December 8, 1948

Dean JOHNSON's lecture was attended by the writer and notes were made.

In the foyer of the auditorium several tables were set up and stacked with a variety of Communist and Communist front literature. Two of the tables were being managed by LEON ~~ALEXANDER~~ (Communist ☐ and ELLIS COLTON (Communist ☐ the latter being San Francisco County Communist Party literature director. Other previously identified Communist Party members seen at this affair by the writer were FELICE CLARKE STRATTON (Communist ☐ California Communist Party membership director, WILLIAM KERNER, executive director ARI, HARRY F. J. ~~WILLIAMS~~ (Communist ☐ organizer Fillmore Section, San Francisco County Communist Party, and GEORGIA KIDWELL.

The meeting was opened with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and a song believed to be the United Nations Song.

LEO C. CHRISTIANSEN (Communist [redacted] at the organ, and SAM VALDEZ (Communist [redacted] as vocalist, led the singing.

Right Reverend EDWARD L. PARSONS, Bishop Emeritus of the Protestant Episcopal Church in introducing the speaker emphasized the fact that most of the work for the meeting had been done by the ARI. PARSONS said that he did not share Dean JOHNSON's economic and social views, but admired him as a Christian gentleman and exponent of peace with Russia.

Dean JOHNSON in his speech opened with a discussion of his travels through Eastern Europe and Russia and pointed out graphically the extreme horrors of war, emphasizing in particular that the Soviet Union did not want war. Following this, he briefly defended the actions of ANDREI VISHINSKI and his record of vetoes in the UN. All of these were phrased in such a way as to defend and uphold Russian politics and viewpoints, while ridiculing or otherwise opposing international politics of the United States. In this respect he touched on the Berlin issue, the Atomic Bomb, and pursuit of nuclear research, Russian territorial expansion, and Religious freedom. He stated that regarding the Berlin controversy the United States was not de-Nazifying and democratizing the Germans with sufficient speed and that the Russians would not accept any part of a Nazified or undemocratic Germany.

Regarding the Atomic Bomb, Dean JOHNSON alleged that Russia's prime interest was to develop atomic research for the sake of industrial power, whereas the United States appeared to be developing such research solely as a source of military power.

The Dean ridiculed any thought that Russia has expanded territorially, by stating that this was an untruth and that quite to the contrary, Russia has forgotten her arms, and geographically actually covered less territory than did Czarist Russia in 1914.

Dean JOHNSON ended his speech with a plea for people of the United States whom he described as the wealthiest and most powerful on earth to remember how they cooperated with Russia during World War II and armed with this thought to go forth and "shout loud throughout the world for peace."

The Dean's speech was followed by an appeal for funds made by Mr. FORREST BARNES, former national president, Radio Writers Guild. He stated that these contributions would be for the ARI which would further the press movement and cause the Dean's speech to be widely circulated throughout this area. Some of these contributions were noted and set forth below. It should be noted that all names were obtained phonetically.

III STATED AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

The program for the Dean's Lecture on page three which contains a space for signatures for a peace petition stated as follows:

"SPEAK UP AMERICA FOR PEACE

We do not want to go to war over differences between our country and the Soviet Union. We call upon our President and our Government to make every effort to settle all outstanding problems, thus bring peace to ourselves and the world."

Referring to the synopsis of the Dean's speech set forth above, it may be seen that pro-Soviet attitudes were presented in every reference to matters wherein the United States and the USSR have differed. The Dean expresses the idea that the concept of an Imperialistic America is now growing in Europe, emphasizing that this is the result of the Marshall Plan. He pictures Eastern Europe and the Soviet Union as a region of good cheer and happiness, beclouded mainly by the prospect of an invasion of the United States. The Soviet Union, Dean JOHNSON said, has forgotten her arms and is a nation so peaceful in aims that it actually has given up territory and now is smaller geographically than Czarist Russia was in 1914.

In the field of nuclear research the Soviet Union, Dean JOHNSON says, is chiefly interested in developing a source of industrial power, and, therefore, its policies in this field can never be reconciled with those of the United States, which considers atomic energy solely as a source of military might.

In his travels through Eastern Europe, and Soviet Russia, the Dean has claimed to have observed everywhere the exercise of complete religious freedom. Similarly, throughout these regions political minorities, he claims, were allowed to address great crowds in public squares with the aid of public address systems furnished by the sympathetic governments, and all persons were able to vote freely with no fear of discrimination.

Dean JOHNSON closed his address with a plea for the people of the United States to cooperate with Russia as they have during World War II and armed with such a spirit to build up a spirit of peace between the Soviet Union and the United States.

IV SUBVERSIVE RAMIFICATIONS

Reference to the section above on the organization and activities of the Ad Hoc Committee demonstrates the extent to which the Communist Party members were involved in the promotion of the San Francisco leg of the Dean's tour. Several members of the committee, including its president, HOLLAND DE WITTE ROBERTS, have been identified as Communist Party members.

[ ] while at Communist Party Headquarters, 942 Market Street, San Francisco, California, on 12/12/48, observed a mimeographed stencil, which had been used there to run off a handbill issued by the "Maritime Committee to Welcome the Dean." This handbill states that all Maritime workers will be admitted free on display of their union book.

[ ] on 9/22/48 was informed by GEORGE LOHR, (Communist [ ] Foreign Editor, Daily People's World, that he was very much interested in the Dean's activities, and that he intended to cooperate with HOLLAND DE WITTE ROBERTS president of the Ad Hoc Committee, and Educational Director of the California Labor School, in spearheading the Dean's arrival with a peace drive. That was nearly three months prior to the Dean's scheduled arrival, and further demonstrate the early attention afforded the Dean's lecture by the California Labor School.

[ ] attended a meeting of the New Era Branch, San Francisco County Communist Party, held on 11/11/48 at the home of [ ] San Francisco, California. At this meeting WILLIAM KERNER, Organizing Director of the Ad Hoc Committee, stated that he had spoken to county Communist Party officials and all agreed that the Communist Party could probably base their international campaign on the Dean's talk. They also agreed that his prestige would greatly help their cause.

In a conversation with [ ] ABBOTT SIMON, International Director of the Committee to Welcome the Dean of Canterbury, stated that the ARI in San Francisco would have to become a political group. One of the ways they will attempt to institute political action is by the circulation of the "Roll Call For Peace." This is a petition stating that the signers do not want to go to war over differences between the United States and the Soviet Union, and calls on the President and the Government to settle all outstanding problems, thus bringing peace to the world. Further implementing this same line of political action is a circular furnished by [ ] on 12/17/48. This circular, published by the National Committee of American Soviet Friendship, 1142 East 32nd Street, New York 16, New York, contains two pages of blanks for names, one for petitioners and the other for contributors. The former appears under the following caption:

"Rollcall For Peace

We do not want to go to war over differences between our country and the Soviet Union. Since the Soviet Union has already expressed willingness to settle down with us to straighten out these differences, we call upon our President and our Government to arrange conferences with the Soviet Union to settle all outstanding problems and thus bring peace to ourselves and the world."

It is noted that the phraseology of this statement, except for being slightly longer, is almost identical with that incorporated in the page for petitions on the program for the Dean's lecture, 12/8/48, which was printed by the San Francisco Ad Hoc Committee To Welcome the Dean of Canterbury.

When asked by [ ] how he accounted for the State Department's reversal of its refusal to issue the Dean a visa, ABBOTT SIMON's only reply was to shrug his shoulders and voice the word, "pressure."

[ ] advised that several persons including RAY THOMPSON (Communist [ ] of the Oakland, California Civil Rights Congress, and JOAQUIN J. ESPINOSA were going to make wire recordings of the Dean's speech. It was also learned from the same source that Mr. SHERWOOD H. PATTERSON, general manager of the radio station KSAN, San Francisco, California, donated one hours time on Christmas afternoon for the rebroadcasting of the Dean's speech.

Reliable Confidential Informant [redacted] has advised the New York Office of activity on the part of the Mobile Council of American-Soviet Friendship, First National Bank Building, Mobile, Alabama, Doctor HERBERT P. MC DONALD, Chairman, over the period from December, 1942 through June, 1945. This informant advised that during this period a small chapter was formed in Mobile but no information was furnished as to the size and actual membership in this chapter. This informant advised of the following activities of this chapter in Mobile during the above period:

1) December, 1942, Dr. HERBERT P. MC DONALD personally conducted a meeting in Mobile at which one ~~KUORNAKOFF~~ from the National Council spoke.

2) February 3, 1944, Dr. HERBERT MC DONALD spoke at a meeting of the Forum Club (A women's civic club) in Mobile on the topic, "A Brief Survey of Soviet Russia Today".

3) Two meetings of the Mobile Chapter of American-Soviet Friendship were held in Mobile during the month of February, 1944. The first was held on February 3rd, which meeting was given newspaper publicity, and the second was held on February 17, 1944.

4) On April 18, 1944, the film, "One Day in Soviet Russia" was exhibited at the Mobile Public Library under the auspices of the local chapter.

5) On April 11, 1944 Dr. MC DONALD spoke on Russia before the Rotary Club at Anniston, Alabama.

6) In April, 1944 arrangements were made with Mobile Public Library for the display of an exhibit on Russia.

[ ] advised that during all of this period Dr. MC DONALD was the Chairman of the Mobile Chapter.

The Mobile Press Register, a daily newspaper of Mobile, Alabama, issue of 7/1/45, carried an article datelined Washington, which advised that "H. P. MC DONALD, Mobile Council of American-Soviet Friendship" was one of 464 Alabamans signing a petition submitted to Congressional Majority leader, ALBEN BARKLEY by the Southern Conference for Human Welfare requesting the preparation of an F.E.P. C. bill.

Reliable and Confidential Informant [ ] has advised that to his personal knowledge the following correspondence has been carried on between the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship and the office of the Mobile Council of American-Soviet Friendship:

1) In May, 1945, Dr. MC DONALD advised the National Council that he was just recovering from a long period of illness and was still not feeling well enough to resume his activities in this organization. At this same time Dr. MC DONALD advised that some of the Mobile Council's best committee members had moved from Mobile and that this, together with his illness, had slowed down the organization work in Mobile on behalf of the council. At this same time Dr. MC DONALD indicated that he had collected a package of about twenty pounds of literature which he believed to be of interest to "our Soviet friends" and which he was planning to ship to VOKS, Moscow.

2) In June, 1945 [ ] of the Mobile Council, advised [ ] in the National Council in New York that the Mobile Council had just about disintegrated since the members had been too busy to be active and since Dr. MC DONALD had been too ill to give much attention to the council.

At the same time [ ] asked that the National Council discontinue sending her literature. She gave as her reason for this that she had illness in her home and was devoting all her time to nursing; however, she went on to explain to [ ] that she had been criticized rather severely by her acquaintances for her role in the Mobile Council since her acquaintances considered it to be a Communistic organization.

3) In June, 1945 Dr. MC DONALD advised the National Council that opposition had arisen to extending the activities of the Council of American-Soviet Friendship in Mobile. He did not explain the nature of this opposition but he did say that it had been sufficient to cause the resignation of Miss TULLY, the Secretary of the Mobile Council, and to estrange other members of the council. Dr. MC DONALD made the statement at this time that he had begun an attempt to cultivate a friendly understanding of Russia more than twenty years earlier and that although this attempt had resulted in mild detriment to his social and economic standing he had never slackened in his resolve. He further indicated that during the past year or so his health had been such as to force complete suspension of activity, professional and otherwise, at times but that he was observing a gradual improvement and was studying the Russian language despite the fact that there was no instructor available and no person available who spoke the tongue.

This office has in its possession a 1946 letterhead of the Committee for Alabama of the Southern Conference for Human Welfare which reflects the name of Dr. HERBERT P. MC DONALD as one of the members of the Advisory Council of this organization. Also in the possession of this office is a copy of the minutes of a meeting of the SCHW held in Mobile in June, 1946. These minutes reflect that Dr. H. B. MC DONALD was unanimously elected to the position of temporary chairman of this meeting.

An article in the Mobile Press, issue of 5/5/47 reports that Dr. MC DONALD gave an address at the meeting of the United World Federalists at Mobile on 5/4/47 on the subject, "Education in Russia". This article states that Dr. MC DONALD claimed broad advances in education in the Soviet Union since the present regime took over in the 1920's. It quotes him as saying, "The standards of literacy in Russia are higher than those in almost any other country today". It further quotes him as saying that the Russian people have been the most cruelly suppressed people in the world and that only a better understanding of all peoples could eventually bring about a permanent peace.

On 6/18/48 Superintendent of Mails, WESLEY W. MC GUIRE, JR.

advised that the Mobile Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 66 North Monterey Street, Mobile, receives a copy of the Russian newspaper, Pravda, daily Air Mail Registered from Russia. 66 North Monterey Street is the address of Dr. MC DONALD's residence.

Reliable and Confidential Informant [ ] has advised the Atlanta office that in April, 1949 two registered parcels were sent to "Dr. HERBERT P. MC DONALD, Chairman of the Mobile Council, American-Soviet Friendship, 166 N. Monterey Street, Mobile, Alabama." Informant advised that these contained the following:

1) Book written in English entitled "Industry in the U.S.S.R", Published by the Foreign Language Publishing House, Moscow, in 1948.

2) A pamphlet captioned "Constitution (Fundamental Law) of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics". This pamphlet was published by the Foreign Language Publishing House, Moscow, 1947.

3) A book written in Russian entitled "Dealing with the Map of Russia," published by the Ministry of War, USSR, printed in 1948. This book contains articles showing the growth of industry, agriculture and the opening of various territories in the Arctic by the USSR.

4) Sixteen different copies of music in Russian pertaining principally to popular songs, songs for voice and piano, as well as camping songs and typical Soviet pep songs.

In November, 1947 Reliable and Confidential Informant [ ] advised that Dr. H. P. MC DONALD had contributed $5.00 and JOHN M. COE, 220 Bell Building, Pensacola, Florida, had contributed $20.00 to the Defense Fund of RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., who had been indicted by a Grand Jury in the District of Columbia for failure to produce books and records of this organization when requested to do so by the House Committee on Un-American activities.

JOHN M. COE is an attorney in Pensacola, Florida. The files of this office contain documentary proof that COE has associated closely with Florida officers of the Communist Party, USA, and that he had made two donations, amounting to a total of $100.00 to the Workers' Fund of the Daily Worker, an East Coast Communist newspaper. COE is Florida State Chairman of the Progressive Party. No information is available in the files of this office reflecting Communist Party membership on the part of COE.

Reliable and Confidential Informant [ ] has made available the following letter dated November 21, 1947 and addressed to the Embassy of the Federal Peoples, Republic of Yugoslavia, Washington, D. C. by Dr. MC DONALD on the stationery of the Mobile Council of American-Soviet Friendship:

"Gentlemen:

Please accept my thanks, again, for your kindness in furnishing literature pertinent to the time.

The TITO speech is an excellent document. It explains the position, heart, calibre and objectives of your great leader better than reams of reports about him could do.

The booklets, 'Greece; a Vicious Circle', and 'The Greek Question' cover very important subjects in a way that will be very difficult to refute. These and all matter from your office go into a permanent file for constant reference. You may bill me for any expenses in connection with printing, mailing etc.

Sincerely yours,

H. P. MC DONALD "

This letterhead reflects Dr. MC DONALD to be Chairman of this council and also ~~MARY LOUISE WEAR~~, 113 South Georgia Avenue, Mobile as Secretary. However, Miss WEAR's name has been scratched out in pencil, indicating that she no longer held that position. The Mobile City Directory for 1947 reflects that Miss WEAR was office secretary for Dr. MC DONALD in the office where he practices optometry.

In May, 1948 [ ] furnished copies of two letters sent by Dr. MC DONALD to the Embassy of the U.S.S.R., Washington, D. C. in February, 1948 expressing thanks for literature received from that embassy. In one of these letters MC DONALD states, "I have exchanged considerable literature with V.O.K.S., Moscow. Though I read Russian very imperfectly, Pravda, Trud and Literaturnaya Gazeta have been of inestimable help to me in correcting misconceptions, especially among the more intellectual people of our community".

During the political campaign of 1948 Dr. MC DONALD was active in the Progressive Party. An article in the Mobile Press of 10/7/48 includes an interview with Dr. PALMER WEBER, Co-Director of the Progressive Party of America in the Southern States, in which Dr. WEBER said that he intended to confer with Dr. HERBERT P. MC DONALD, "Progressive National Committee man for Alabama".

On 7/20/48 Dr. MC DONALD announced to the Press that he was leaving Mobile for Philadelphia to attend the HENRY WALLACE convention as a delegate from Alabama.

In April, 1948 Dr. MC DONALD made arrangements for Vice Presidential candidate, Senator GLENN TAYLOR, to speak in Mobile. This speech was subsequently cancelled after Dr. MC DONALD received an anonymous telephone call implying that bloodshed would result if TAYLOR came to Mobile to speak. On this occasion Dr. MC DONALD at his own request, was interviewed by a reporter from the Mobile Press Register, at which time Dr. MC DONALD expressed his alleged political theories. This interview was never published but GEORGE COX, Executive Editor of this newspaper, furnished this office with a copy of the interview as written up by reporter TED PEARSON. In this interview MC DONALD stated that he did not believe that HENRY WALLACE was a Communist. MC DONALD said he was against some of the things favored by WALLACE but that he believed that WALLACE's side of the issue should be presented to the American people. He stated that he believed that WALLACE was sincerely working for peace.

The following is quoted from the interview as written up by PEARSON:

"Dr. MC DONALD described himself as a 100 per cent American citizen working entirely for peace, and claimed if the Communists attempted to set up their form of government in the United States, he would fight it vehemently. He said he didn't believe the type of government is Russia is right, but that 'if they want that kind of government, let them have it.'

"Dr. MC DONALD said that if anybody is inciting war, it is the American nation and not the Russians. He said he receives a daily Russian newspaper, keeps them filed, and charged anyone with finding any 'sniping at America' articles in them such as 'sniping at Russia' articles are found in the United States press.

"He also pointed to speeches made by prominent Americans--he referred to Former Ambassador WILLIAM C. BULLITT by name--in which they urged the U. S. to drop atomic bombs all over Russia now. This is an example of the war attitude of the nation now, Dr. MC DONALD said, and contended if such things were advocated in Russia, 'we would be ready to fight right away'.

[redacted] Mobile Chapter of the American Red Cross, 250 St. Francis Street, Mobile, advised on 12/27/48 that Dr. MC DONALD was a member of the Mobile Inter-Racial Committee, the purposes of which organization are, according to [redacted] [redacted] "to better the understanding between the races and to eliminate some of the ill effects of discrimination against the colored race."

b7c

On 5/3/49 Mr. R. H. CHRISTIAN, Standard Equipment Company, 201 North Commerce Street, Mobile, Alabama, who is believed to be highly reliable, advised that he has known Dr. MC DONALD for about twenty-five years and that he considered Dr. MC DONALD to be a loyal American citizen. He stated that Dr. MC DONALD enjoys talking about Russia and appears to study Russian subjects as a hobby but is not rabid, nor does he show any rancor when persons dispute his views. CHRISTIAN said that Dr. MC DONALD does not like to be called a Communist and that although he has heard Dr. MC DONALD speak about Russia many times he has never heard MC DONALD say that the Russian form of government is better than the American form, although MC DONALD does say that we should cooperate with Russia. CHRISTIAN said that during all the years he has known him he has never heard Dr. MC DONALD refer to the Mobile Council of American-Soviet Friendship. According to CHRISTIAN Dr. MC DONALD is sort of a "crank" inasmuch as from time to time he gets some wild idea in mind and seems to be obsessed with it. As an example CHRISTIAN mentioned that a few years back Dr. MC DONALD was interested in a gold mine out West and was thoroughly consumed with the subject and it is CHRISTIAN's understanding that the doctor lost considerable money in this venture. At another time Dr. MC DONALD took up the fad of technocracy and could speak of nothing but that subject. In resume Mr. CHRISTIAN advised that he has much respect for Dr. MC DONALD as a gentleman of integrity and he said that he believes there is no harm in the man and that he would do nothing to hurt the United States Government.

On 5/5/49 Reliable and Confidential Informant [ ] [ ] advised that there is no indication that captioned organization is active in Mobile at the present time.

On this same date Confidential Informant [ ] advised that three or four years ago he had received an invitation by mail to attend meetings of the Mobile Council of American-Soviet Friendship but that he did not attend and has heard nothing further from or about this organization since that time. This informant on 5/11/49 advised that he had just been talking to CLYDE FRANCIS GANAWAY, who, according to Confidential Informant [ ] is a self-confessed Communist, that during the course of the conversation he had asked GANAWAY whether the Mobile Council was still active. [ ] stated that GANAWAY indicated that he had been familiar with the organization but that he had heard nothing of it for some time and did not believe that it was still active.

(U) [Confidential Informant Boston   made available] a flyer advertising the Boston appearance of MURIEL DRAPER, who was listed as the Chairman of the American delegation to the Women's World Congress at Budapest, recently returned from the Soviet Union. MURIEL DRAPER's topic was indicated as, "Can we Have Peace with the Soviet Union?" In addition, Professor F. O. MATTHIESSEN, author of "From the Heart of Europe", was to speak on the topic, "The American People in the Fight for Peace." This meeting, conducted under the auspices of the MCASF, Inc., according to the flyer, was to take place on Friday, March 4, 1949, at 8 p.m. at the Community Church Center, 565 Boylston Street, Boston, Massachusetts. The Informant attended this meeting. In addition to MATTHIESSEN and DRAPER, MANNY MARGOLIS appeared and made the collection speech, which resulted in contributions amounting to around $100.

F. O. MATTHIESSEN stated he was an objective scholar and that Americans must fight for peace. He stated he had been behind the so-called Iron Curtain and found the people there still free and they wanted to know about America.

MATTHIESSEN stated that the USSR falls short of true Socialism. He claimed he opposed the Communists in the United States but that the Communists can be a good teacher.

MURIEL DRAPER spoke and, according to Informant, claimed that there were some people in America who would destroy the efforts to build for peace. She criticized the North Atlantic Pact and the Marshall Plan. She claimed she was in Russia December 25, 1948 and noticed there was lack of tension there and that the Russians were building for peace but that America was building a machine which would soon get out of control.

DRAPER advised that the American people are not strong enough when they failed to back those who would stop the North Atlantic Pact and the Marshall Plan and that they needed to fight for civil rights. She claimed that the USSR has no labor camps but America is guilty of operating slave camps in Africa and the British for making slaves out of their colonies. She claimed that the Russian people were not working towards another war because there is no profit in war for Russia, as there is in a capitalist country.

She claimed she talked to workers in Russia and, when they were asked if they had the right to strike, they laughed and asked, "Whom will we strike against--ourselves?" DRAPER stated that the church is free but that the government does not allow the church any money or property.

DRAPER claimed that the Americans should not worry about an attempt to Communize the United States but that America should follow the Progressive Party and WALLACE for true peace with Russia and that peace can come, that the A-bomb must be outlawed and the information on it should be shared with all nations.

(U) [Confidential Informant Boston ] stated that DIRK STRUIK advised [ ] on March 7, 1949 that it was necessary that he "quit for the time being." He said he would keep in touch with [ ]

In connection with the MURIEL DRAPER meeting, [ ] indicated to Informant that the meeting at the Community Church drew an audience of 106 paid admissions and that the tea which was held that afternoon was attended by only 15. [ ] said that not much was realized financially as a result of the tour but the Council was "still in the black."

The following article appeared in the Smith College "Scan" on March 4, 1949:

~~"M. DRAPER ASSERTS US, USSR UNITY~~

~~"Main Differences Apparent in Application Of Beliefs~~

"There is a fundamental unity underlying Soviet and American democracy," stated Mrs. MURIEL DRAPER in her discussion 'What Is Soviet Democracy?' Tuesday March 1 in Graham Hall. 'The differences lie in the application of these principles.' Mrs. DRAPER explained that the Russians believe that economic equality must come first, and, without it, political equality is merely a strategy.

"Mrs. DRAPER, who has recently returned from the Soviet Union, described her meeting with a group of Russian textile workers. 'They were not afraid to speak and complain,' she said. They accept the authority of the government because they feel that they have created it. Each citizen has a sense of identification with the government; it is not something imposed upon him but something of which he is an integral part.

"Mrs. DRAPER asked the group if they had the right to strike. The eldest, a little white-haired woman, exclaimed, 'Strike! Strike against whom? Ourselves? Should I strike because my government has given me a room to myself with electric lights and a shower? We have no grievances.' A younger man quickly interposed the comment 'But of course we could strike if we wished to.' The spirit of the Soviet workers was exhilarating, Mrs. DRAPER said. Work is part of a creative life to them, not just a job. They understand why they are working--they are building up a collection civilization out of which they expect to reap great rewards.

"In discussing the political aspects of democracy in the Soviet Union, Mrs. DRAPER said that the role of the Communist party is commonly misunderstood. It is not so much a political party, she explained, as it is an organization to train capable leaders. Membership is a privilege granted because of merit. Mrs. DRAPER also said that the idea that elections cannot be contested is false. 'It happens frequently in local elections,' she declared. However, the Russian people are proud of unity. 'They stress agreement where we stress differences.' They try to agree on who will be best for the job. Russian citizens also have the right of recall, and upon the vote of one-third of the district, any delegate can be removed.

"Mrs. DRAPER discounted the idea that the Russian people do not know what is going on in the world. 'I found their knowledge of the world situation very good,' she said. The Russians she spoke to expressed a great interest in America, and asked numerous questions about the political situation here and about the trade unions. 'They love the American people, but not the policies of our government', Mrs. DRAPER added. She also stressed the great concern of the people for peace. Peace is paramount in their minds."

"Dear Friend:

"The visit of the Dean of Canterbury to Boston has shown that there is a large and enthusiastic support of his position which is that peace can only be built on an understanding between the United States and the Soviet Union. He expressed the opinion of thousands in our community and country when he said, 'We feel convinced that the mass of the people of the United States of America have at heart a desire for peace. And that they are just as strong in their desire for peace as are the peoples of the world whether they be people in Russia or in Eastern Europe or in China or in my own country where a vast peoples' movement for peace is developing'.

"Since its inception the Council has stood for the principles which the Dean has presented so convincingly. We believe that his appearance in Boston has shown that the Massachusetts Council of American-Soviet Friendship has an important role to play in the coming months.

"We are, therefore, pleased to announce that we have appointed [redacted] She will endeavor to bring the message of the Council to as large an audience as possible.

Section 7

ASAC A. H. BELMONT
Supervisor W. T. MARCHESSAULT

DELINQUENCY:

Although this office is origin in this case, it is noted that no report appeared in this matter, despite considerable activity, from November 7, 1947 until January 3, 1949. It appears that at least one more report should have been written between the dates of the two above referred to reports.

The report of C. DONALD STAMPLE, dated at New York, January 3, 1949 covers the investigative period of October 1, 1947 to November 10, 1948. There has been no report written since that date. It appears that by now a report should have been written reflecting the activity of this organization since November 10, 1948.

The report of C. DONALD STAMPLE, dated at New York, January 3, 1949, discloses several instances of failure to identify individuals mentioned in the report, and to describe their Communist affiliations and connections. Those instances are as follows:

Page 11 reflects that Confidential Informant [ ] advised that RICHARD MORFORD, while speaking to SAM LEAVIN on November 10, 1947, told LEAVIN that $3,500 had been collected at the rally held the day before . . . . No information is given which would identify LEAVIN, nor is there any information supplied indicating the extent of his Communist affiliations, if any.

Page 16, the last paragraph, stated that on February 4, 1948 Confidential Informant [ ] stated that BERT JAHR of the NCASF contacted MURRAY IMMERMAN and requested IMMERMAN to have the Waterfront People attend the ANNA LOUISE STRONG meeting at City Center Casino on February 9, 1948, and requested that this meeting also be announced at the Claudia Jones Club meeting. No information is given to identify IMMERMAN, to show why he would have any influence on the Waterfront People, or the extent of his Communist affiliations. Moreover, no information is supplied as to his connections with the Claudia Jones Club, nor is any information supplied which would identify the Claudia Jones Club as a Communist organization.

Page 22, the first paragraph, states in effect that [redacted] stated she had received a letter from LESTER ROBERTS in which the latter stated he was going to Ottawa, Canada, to see people connected with External Affairs, in an endeavor to obtain official denunciation of the film "The Iron Curtain". LESTER ROBERTS is not identified in any way, nor is any information supplied as to why this individual would have any influence at the Office of External Affairs at Ottawa, nor is the extent of his Communist affiliations, if any, set out.

Page 25, the first paragraph, states that Confidential Informant [redacted] advised that on March 29, 1948 ABBOTT SIMON requested [redacted] to arrange a delegation to protest to the local Twentieth Century Fox Exchanges against the presentation of the film "The Iron Curtain". [redacted] is not identified, nor is there any information set out indicating the extent of her Communist affiliations.

RE: NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN
SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC.,
INTERNAL SECURITY - C.

In regard to the fact that no report was submitted from November 7, 1947 until January 3, 1949 it is to be noted that this case was assigned to the writer on October 15, 1948 and that after a review of all the sections of this file a report was dictated in December of 1948.

The last report in this case is dated January 3, 1948 and a report is being prepared for dictation at the present time.

The fact that in several instances individuals were failed to be identified was due to inadvertence and these names will be identified should they arise in the future.

RECOMMENDATION:

The captioned organization has been designated by the Attorney General as within the purview of Executive Order 9835. SAC letter #28 dated February 18, 1948 and the newly revised Manual of Instructions request the field offices to obtain membership lists, mailing lists and other records showing affiliations with all organizations within purview of EO9835. A contribution by an individual to the captioned organization would reflect to some degree affiliations with the organization which might corroborate additional derogatory information concerning the individual. While it is recognized the captioned organization which generally advocates better relations with Russia received numerous contributions during 1943 - 46 from individuals of unquestionable loyalty who were unaware of the true character of the organization; nevertheless, it is felt the list of contributors which is readily available should be obtained.

II. ACTIVITIES OF NCASF

A. DEAN OF CANTERBURY'S VISIT TO THE UNITED STATES

1. Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON'S Arrival at LaGuardia Airport

In an article in the November 13, 1948, issue of the "Herald Tribune" it was stated that the Very Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON, Dean of England's Canterbury Cathedral, arrived at LaGuardia Airport on November 12, 1948. On his arrival he was mobbed by newspapermen. The unusual publicity resulted from the fact that the so-called "Red Dean's" first application for a visa this year was turned down due to the fact that he was sponsored by the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, an organization designated as subversive by the Attorney General. American clergymen and educators then formed an Ad Hoc Committee to issue a new invitation for the Dean. Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, Chairman of the NCASF, was present as a member of the welcoming committee, but the Council itself was kept out of the airport welcome. Dr. JOHNSON, at the airport, according to the article, managed to convey the impression that, in spite of his ecclesiastical appearance, he did not think it mattered whether the Russians believed in God but he did think it important to understand the Russian point of view.

[On December 23, 1948, Confidential Informant   of known reliability, advised that the following individuals were members of the Ad Hoc Committee to Welcome Dean JOHNSON to the United States: ] (X) u [S]

2. Reverend <sup>Hewlett</sup> JOHNSON'S Appearance at Holy Trinity Church, November 14, 1948

On November 10, 1948, the "Brooklyn Eagle" newspaper carried an article which stated that Dr. JOHNSON, Red Dean of Canterbury, would conduct the 11:00 o'clock services, Sunday, in the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church in Brooklyn, New York. The Rector of this church is JOHN HOWARD MELISH and the Assistant Rector is WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, Chairman of the NCASF.

According to the November 15, 1948, issue of the "Brooklyn Eagle", Reverend JOHNSON did conduct the services at the Holy Trinity Church in Brooklyn, and he stated that some governments and some leaders of the Western world are doing harm to the cause of peace, while Soviet Russia sits in the middle of a circle of 434 American air bases. He stated that there is no period of history more hopeful than today despite the pessimism which dominates world thought.

3. Dinner to Honor Reverend JOHNSON, Hotel Pierre, New York City, November 14, 1948

On November 4, 1948, on page five, column one, the "Daily Worker" made the announcement that the Reverend Dr. HEWLETT JOHNSON would be welcomed to New York at a dinner given in his honor, Sunday, November 14th, at the Hotel Pierre. The article stated that OLIN DOWNES, author and music critic, was the Chairman of the New York Committee to Welcome the Dean. According to the article, the Dean would be officially welcomed by Professor WILLIAM ERNEST HOCKING, of Harvard University, on behalf of the National Committee, of which he was one of the initiators, together with Professor RALPH BARTON PERRY, of Harvard University, and Dr. CHRISTIAN GAUSS, of Princeton University.

On November 28, 1948, Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that he had attended the dinner given for the Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON at the Hotel Pierre. The informant stated that this dinner was sponsored by a committee of 128 persons, mostly scientists, professors, and clergymen, and the dinner was chaired by OLIN DOWNES, music critic of the "New York Times", who delivered the main welcoming speech to Dr. JOHNSON. DOWNES stated that "in a country where only one and a fraction per cent of the population are Communists out of a total of 130,000,000 people we should not fear the open opinions of this minority group but should behave as a true democracy and allow free speech for all." The other speakers who welcomed the Dean were Professor WILLIAM ERNEST HOCKING, of Harvard University, the Very Reverend DONALD J. CAMPBELL, of Massachusetts, and Rabbi LOUIS I. MOONIN, of New York and California. These speakers all welcomed the Dean of Canterbury, and the tenor of each speech was that, "in a country which has less than ten per cent of Communist Party members and supposedly was a true democracy, it seemed deplorable to restrict the visit of such an outstanding man as the Dean in his visit to the major cities of the United States." OLIN DOWNES made a collection speech, stating that the funds collected at this dinner would be used to defray the expense of Reverend JOHNSON'S tour. The informant stated that approximately $3,000.00 was collected at this dinner.

Reverend JOHNSON then spoke and thanked the committee for bringing him to America, and he stated that he hoped that nothing he said in the United States would bring annoyance or discredit to the committee that sponsored his visit. He stated the main purpose of his visit was to create peace and understanding in the world, which was split into two camps -- the Soviet Union and her countries in one, and the United States and her friends in the other. He related that these forces had worked together during the war and no reason existed why they could not work together for peace, and he believed that peace could be achieved between Russia and the Western powers despite economic forces in the United States and Britain that led to production for warlike purposes. He related that an atomic war would be the end of all as two countries that are invulnerable to the atomic bomb are China and the Soviet Union, and it would take all the manpower of the United States and England to equal the manpower of the USSR alone. JOHNSON related that WINSTON CHURCHILL was a good war leader but as a peace leader he was a menace. Reverend JOHNSON in his speech said that the United States spends two-thirds of its income on war equipment and has given no outward sign that it desires peace. JOHNSON advised that Russia would not accept the BARUCH plan for atomic control because it would remove from her control the development of atomic energy in her land, which atomic energy Russia desired to develop for peaceful and industrial purposes rather than for war. Reverend JOHNSON stated that Europe looks to America in hope and also in fear that she, in her efforts to win national security, might become a new threat to all the other peoples of the world.

5. Madison Square Garden Rally, December 13, 1948

(U) On November 17, 1948, Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, Chairman of the NCASF, made the announcement that Soviet Ambassador ALEXANDER S. PANYUSHKIN, HENRY WALLACE, and Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON, Dean of Canterbury, would be the principal speakers at a rally to be held at Madison Square Garden December 13, 1948. This rally would be in the name of world peace and would feature a pageant demonstrating the people's desire for a lasting world peace. (S) (u) (b2)

On November 18, 1948, the "Brooklyn Eagle" carried the announcement that HENRY A. WALLACE would speak at the Madison Square Garden rally to be held by the NCASF on December 13th, and that it would be WALLACE'S first public appearance since his defeat as Progressive Party candidate for the Presidency.

(U) On December 8, 1948, on page seven, column four, the "Daily Worker" carried an announcement of the rally for peace, stating that among the noted individuals to appear would be the people's artist, PAUL ROBESON. (S) (u) (b2) (b7D)

(U) Confidential Informant [ ] stated that he attended the rally at Madison Square Garden on December 13, 1948, which rally was sponsored by the NCASF. The informant stated that the general tenor of the meeting was the role of the United States in turning the world against Russia and justification of the Soviet Union's vetoes of all United Nations questions. The policies of Great Britain and the United States were attacked at this meeting, along with the Wall Street imperialists. The informant stated that approximately $25,000.00 was collected in contributions and, all told, including pledges, $75,000.00 was raised.

According to the informant, approximately 20,000 people attended this meeting, which was presided over by Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH.

Chairman of the NCASF. The informant stated that the American and Soviet flags were displayed prominently, and that the theme of the meeting was displayed by signs calling for the end of the cold war and requesting that the United States and the USSR get together for peace. The informant stated that the meeting opened with a number of songs by the CIO Glee Club, followed by PAUL ROBESON, who sang a number of Russian and English songs. Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, as Chairman, made a few introductory remarks and introduced WILLIAM S. GAILMORE, radio commentator. GAILMORE made a collection speech, in which he ridiculed the House Un-American Activities Committee and the administration and made puns about the "pumpkin papers". During this speech by GAILMORE, a collection was taken up and approximately $25,000.00 was raised in cash and another $50,000.00 was turned in in additional pledges.

CORLISS LAMONT, a member of the Board of Directors of the NCASF, spoke of the work of the National Council, its wide educational program, and his pleasure in being associated with the organization. He then read a telegram from ALEXANDER PATYUSHKIN, Soviet Ambassador, who was unable to attend because of illness. The message stated that understanding of the Soviet people had become so widespread among Americans that the peace forces were in the majority in the United States and other countries, and that the Soviet people are striving for a friendly relationship with other nations for world peace.

LAMONT then introduced HENRY WALLACE, who appealed to the United States to appropriate ten million dollars for a world construction fund without any political strings and demanded that a meeting be held between Premier STALIN and President TRUMAN for peace and that all churches back such a proposal. He accused Great Britain and the United States of galloping down the path of war and exploitation at an alarming speed, and he denounced the Wall Street imperialists and war-mongers, stating that the American people in the last election had voted for a program of domestic security and an anti-war policy which the Government has failed to carry out.

Reverend JOHNSON then spoke to the audience. He stated that the people of Russia desire peace above everything else, and he analyzed the main points of international differences with the USSR and justified her stand on the United Nations vetoes, atomic energy control, and the Berlin controversy. He stated that the Soviet Union and the small democracies were following the teachings of Christ in bringing better relations among men, and that it was possible for different political, religious, and social systems to live together in peace. He related that any effort to force the USSR to change its system would fail, and that, if the Soviet Union does not insist on other countries adhering to its way of life, why should the United States want other countries to insist that Russia follow their way. He stated that the United States is trying to compel the USSR and other countries to change their form of government, and is attempting to organize the world against the USSR and attempting by force to have other countries oppose the Soviet Union. He suggested that these energies and moneys used in exploiting war be used for constructive purposes in providing better housing, food and clothing.

6. Departure of Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON for London

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON, Dean of Canterbury, left New York City December 19, 1948, by train for Baltimore, Maryland, where he would board a transatlantic plane for London. This informant stated that the Dean of Canterbury was unable to leave Newark Airport because of the inclement weather. (X) u [ ]

B. CONFERENCE FOR PEACE, HOTEL COMMODORE, NEW YORK CITY, FEBRUARY 5, 1949, UNDER AUSPICES OF WOMEN'S COMMITTEE, NCASF

Confidential Informant [ ] on December 18, 1948, advised that the Women's Committee of the NCASF was planning to hold its annual conference and luncheon Saturday, February 5, 1949, at the Hotel Commodore in New York City. The topic of the conference would be "A Conference for Peace". The informant stated that the Women's Committee of the NCASF had planned to have some outstanding men and women as lecturers and to have an open forum period after the lectures. This informant, on January 26, 1949, advised that at this conference Dr. CORLISS LAMONT, writer and lecturer; HENRY PRATT FAIRCHILD, Professor of Sociology, New York University; VLADIMIR D. KAZAKEVICH, economist and lecturer; BERNICE NOAR, writer on American-Soviet relations; JESSICA SMITH, Editor of "Soviet Russia Today"; and ALBERT KAHN, a writer, would be among the speakers at the forum of the conference. Mrs. LIDIA BAZYKIN, MURIEL DRAPER, head of the Women's International Congress, PEARL LAWS, International Fur and Leather Workers Union, and Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, would be the speakers. Confidential Informant [ ] advised that he attended the Conference for Peace at the Hotel Commodore, February 5, 1949, which conference was held under the sponsorship of the Women's Committee of the NCASF. He stated that those present were urged to back the committee's resolution for world peace and the plan to stop the cold war. The informant stated that the conference was attended by approximately 500 people, and that CORLISS LAMONT, a former director of the NCASF, was the principal speaker. He related that, due to the cold war, the United States had maintained a persistent unfriendly policy toward the Soviet Union; that the threat of another war was hanging over our heads; and that all in our power must be done to avert such a catastrophe. He referred to the recent USSR peace offer made to the United States and of our State Department's unfriendly response to it. He predicted a bleak and strained period facing the United States but hoped that the NCASF and its friends could keep the relationship of America and the Soviet Union from breaking. He stated that it was necessary for the NCASF and its friends to fight the cold war, push the peace drive, and return to the ROOSEVELT policy of friendship between the United States and the USSR. A panel of experts was present to answer and lead a discussion of questions from the floor. According to the informant, ADA E. JACKSON, of the American Labor Party, replaced ALBERT E. KAHN as moderator of the panel forum. The panel of experts consisted of Dr. HENRY PRATT FAIRCHILD, Dr. VLADIMIR D. KAZAKEVICH, Miss BERNICE NOAR, and Miss JESSICA SLITH.

According to the informant, MURIEL DRAPER, National Chairman of the Women's Committee of the NCASF, urged the conference to make the press aware that America wants peace and intends to wage a militant struggle for it. She stated that the people in attendance should read the "New York Post", "New York Times", "Herald Tribune", "National Guardian", and the "Daily Worker", and keep sending them letters favoring a peace drive on the part of the United States. A resolution was adopted calling for a conference to be held as soon as possible between the USSR and the United States and one to be held between the four great powers in the near future. It urged the clearing up of the Berlin situation and the ending of the cold war.

After the conference, a luncheon was served at the Hotel Commodore. Mrs. LIDIA BAZYKIN, wife of the Counselor of the USSR Embassy, greeted the luncheon guests in the name of the Soviet women and stated that they thought of the United States highly and with friendship. Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH said a prayer for peace and thanked his supporters in his current fight against the church trustees who seek to remove him as Assistant Rector. PEARL LAWS, a delegate from the International Fur and Leather Workers Union to the Second Women's International Congress, related incidents of her visit in Budapest, Hungary, and advised that she was particularly struck by the absence of racial discrimination. MURIEL DRAPER also related her experiences as a delegate to the above-mentioned Congress. ELEANOR GIBEL and FREDA DIAMOND acted as Co-Chairmen of the luncheon, and approximately $5,000.00 was raised in a collection held by Mrs. GIBEL.

C. ~~WASHINGTON CONFERENCE ON FOREIGN POLICY, MARCH 9, 1949~~ ~~(S)~~

Confidential Informant   on February 17, 1949, related that RICHARD MORFORD was attempting to rent hotel space in Washington, D. C., in order to hold a Washington Conference on Foreign Policy, which the informant believed would be held on March 9, 1949. The informant stated, ~~(S)~~ ~~4~~ ~~18~~

(U) however, that RICHARD MORFORD wanted to run this conference independently of the NCASF and, therefore, was making his plans so that the conference would be run by the NCASF but for all intents and purposes it would be an individually-sponsored conference. The informant stated that RICHARD MORFORD was even having special letterheads made up which would read: "HENRY PRATT FAIRCHILD CONFERENCE ON FOREIGN POLICY, March 9, 1949, Washington, D.C." This informant related on February 21, 1949, that MORFORD had told him that the conference was ready and would start at 10:30 A.M. on March 9th, would run until noon, at which time a luncheon would be held, and then the conference would convene again until 6:00 P.M. (S) KCS

(U) [On March 7, 1949, Confidential Informant [ ] stated that MORFORD had changed the plans for the HENRY PRATT FAIRCHILD Conference because it conflicted with some meetings being held by members of "the church crowd" and they would be unable to attend the meeting. MORFORD related that the meeting would then be held on March 15, 1949. (S) KCS

On March 11, 1949, according to the above informant, MORFORD stated that he was in need of a moderator for the Washington Conference but that he wanted to get a moderator who would not arouse any suspicion of being chosen by a Left-wing organization or arouse any suspicion of the whole affair being handled by any Left-wing arrangement.

On March 16, 1949, the informant stated that MORFORD related that he was satisfied with the way things went at the conference in Washington.

(U) Confidential Informant [ ] stated that FREDERICK L. SCHUMAN, Professor of Political Economy and Government at Williams College, Williamstown, Massachusetts, would make a personal appearance Sunday, March 20, 1949, at the City Center Casino. At this meeting Professor SCHUMAN would analyze the North Atlantic Pact. The meeting, according to the informant, was being held under the auspices of the NCASF, and MARY VAN KLEECK, an industrial sociologist, would preside at the meeting. (S) KCS

On March 15, 1949, an article appeared in the "Daily Worker" announcing that Dr. FREDERICK L. SCHUMAN would speak on March 20, 1949, at 2:30 P.M. at the City Center Casino. The admission to this lecture would be $1.00, and all questions from the floor would be answered by Dr. SCHUMAN. The article stated that MARY VAN KLEECK would preside at this meeting.

On March 21, 1949, on page five, column five, of the "Daily Worker", an article appeared which stated that FREDERICK L. SCHUMAN, political analyst and author, in his lecture at the City Center Casino, which lecture was sponsored by the NCASF, called upon the United States Government to agree to STALIN'S proposal for a declaration against war. Dr. SCHUMAN'S proposal was made while he discussed the North Atlantic Pact to an audience of over 500 at the City Center Casino in New York City. Dr. SCHUMAN stated that, while he did not think that the pact will inevitably lead to war, he did think that, as presently constituted, it would lead to a super-colossal arms race which would impoverish the world. Dr. SCHUMAN stated that the North Atlantic Pact is the first military alliance ever made by the United States and he traced its inception from WINSTON CHURCHILL'S Fulton, Missouri, speech. Dr. SCHUMAN related that, according to the United States Government, it is in the national interest to halt what the Government calls the expansion of the Soviet Union and world Communism. He stated that the pact takes from Congress the power to declare war and, instead of promoting national security, would tend to suppress American civil liberties.

E. VIEWS OF THE NCASF ON THE NORTH ATLANTIC PACT

On March 23, 1949, an article appeared in the "New York Journal-American" which stated that WINSTON CHURCHILL, on his arrival in the United States on March 23, 1949, was greeted by a demonstration which Police said was Communist inspired. About 175 persons, most of them women, carried placards reading: "Go Home Mr. Churchill, We Want Peace", "No North Atlantic Pact, We Want Peace". The signs indicated that among the demonstrators were members of the Women's Division of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

(U) On April 18, 1949, RICHARD MORFORD advised Confidential Informant   that he was spending a great deal of his time in getting some initiators to start a conference in Washington, D. C., in opposition to the North Atlantic Pact. ~~(S)~~ ~~(X)~~ ~~(C)~~

In the April 25, 1949, issue of the "New York Post" and "Home News", there appeared a full-page ad, paid for by the NCASF. This ad related that the North Atlantic Pact was a danger to world peace, and it set forth an open letter to the American people. This letter stated that the North Atlantic Pact is before the public and the public must judge for themselves whether this pact will contribute towards the further development of peaceful and friendly relations. The letter warned the American public to read the pact carefully and they will find that it not only violates the principles of the United Nations, but also violates the Constitution. The letter stated that the pact violates the Constitution inasmuch as it sets up a special military council with full power to involve us in war, and any attack, provoked or not, on any one or more of the signing nations would mean an attack on all and would meet with action, including the use of armed force; thus it violates also the terms of the United Nations. The article stated that the peoples of the nations signing the North Atlantic Pact do not support it and strikes against the pact were taking place in Norway, Denmark, France, Italy, Great Britain, Belgium, Holland, and even Canada. The North Atlantic Pact, according to this article, means that the individual would have to produce arms instead of things his family needed; housing would be placed by the wayside while atom bombs were being made. It would mean, according to the article, the drafting for military service of American men. In short, said the article, the North Atlantic Pact means a drastic change in the American way of life from the civilian direction of society to the militarization of every aspect of our lives. This article stated that there is no need for the North Atlantic Pact; the road to a real peace, without military alliances or preparation for war, is still open. The ad stated that the American people should first write to the President, stating their opposition to the North Atlantic Pact and asking for the establishment of conferences with the Soviet Union; second, write their United States Senators, demanding that they stop this disastrous military alliance and oppose rearmament of Europe; third, ask their organizations to request time to testify before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; and fourth, organize protest meetings against the North Atlantic Pact.

(U)

[On May 2, 1949, Confidential Informant [ ] stated that RICHARD MORFORD related that the NCASF was getting deeper into debt because of the combined plans of the Progressive Party and the NCASF to organize a Washington conference in opposition to the North Atlantic Pact. MORFORD stated that the NCASF would have to share some of the expenses of this meeting.]

Confidential Informant [ ] on June 13, 1949, advised that RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of the NCASF, stated the view of the Council on the North Atlantic Pact on Wednesday, May 11, 1949, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. At this time MORFORD stated that they had come to the turning point in American foreign policy in the consideration of the North Atlantic Pact and that the United States Senate is required to make a decision determining the destiny of the American people for years to come. MORFORD stated that it is the conviction of the NCASF that ratification of the North Atlantic Pact would be a step in the direction of total and disastrous war. He stated that the pact is a war pact directed against the Soviet Union as an aggressor nation. He stated that to create such an alliance is to sacrifice the United Nations by undermining it at this time. MORFORD related that it was the conviction of the NCASF that to undertake to fulfill the obligations of this pact is to initiate a worldwide armament race. According to MORFORD, we would have to invest from twenty to thirty billions of dollars in arming Europe and supporting that army with as many as a hundred divisions of men, and he believed that the overwhelming bulk of the armament for Western Europe would be paid for by America and at least one-quarter of the manpower would be supplied by America. With all that, according to MORFORD, the defense of Western Europe would not be impregnable. He stated that he was at this hearing on May 11, 1949, to show opposition to the pact because, first, it would ruin the economy of the United States in the process of arming Europe; second, the rearmament and preparation for war required by the pact would take us on a military adventure which is a form of aggression and which invites and justifies equal rearmament on the other side; and third, the original objective of our foreign policy would be superseded by the objective of massing superior military strength. He stated that the United States should undertake a treaty of friendship with the Soviet Union and solve its problems upon friendly relations, and that these problems would be able to be settled by compromise on both sides but the price of settlement need not be the sacrifice of principles or of legitimate interests on either side. He stated that for the sake of our own country and its people "we ought to withhold approval of the North Atlantic Pact at this time. For the sake of mankind, let us consider this matter further. We do not want history to convict America of the crime of being ringleader among the nations which brought disaster and ruin to civilization. No amount of negotiation, however difficult and prolonged, can be as bad as one day of atomic war. Let us stick by the ways of peace." (S) K 123

F. DISMISSAL OF REVEREND WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH FROM CHURCH OF THE HOLY TRINITY, BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

Confidential Informant [ ] on January 18, 1949, advised that the Vestrymen of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, New York, had held a meeting on January 17, 1949, and passed a resolution asking for the resignation of Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH. The informant stated that the Vestrymen had related that they intended to force the issue if MELISH would not resign voluntarily. (S) K 123

(U)

On January 25, 1949, an article appeared in the "Brooklyn Eagle" which stated that the Vestry of the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, New York, had asked Reverend Dr. JOHN HOWARD MELISH to retire and effect the removal of his son, Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, as Assistant Rector. This article stated that Dr. MELISH'S retirement was requested at a meeting of the Vestry on January 17, 1949.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

On January 27, 1949, on page five, column four, of the "Daily Worker", an article appeared which stated that the Vestrymen of the Holy Trinity Protestant Episcopal Church, by a vote of nine to one, had asked Bishop DeWOLFE to remove the 74-year-old father because of his refusal to censor his son's outside activities as Chairman of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of the NCASF, stated that the church and the community, as well as people throughout the nation, will rise to vindicate the honorable acts of the ministers. MORFORD also made a statement on behalf of the NCASF in this case. He stated:

"We are honored to have the Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH as our National Chairman. We respect and we admire his devotion to international peace and his willingness to work for understanding and rapprochement between this country and the Soviet Union in the conviction that American-Soviet friendship is necessary to enduring peace. Our organization has taken no part in the continuing controversy in the parish of the Holy Trinity Church. Yet we cannot conceal our amazement and shock, and we certainly do regret that the activities on behalf of peace on the part of the MELISHES should invoke the displeasure of the Vestry to the point of demanding their separation from the parish."

In the January 28, 1949, issue of the "Daily Worker" it was stated that an overwhelming majority of the congregation of JOHN HOWARD MELISH'S church denounced the nine Vestrymen for seeking the Pastor's ouster. Two-thirds of the congregation, according to the article, signed the statement, which was still being circulated on January 27, 1949, by eighty members of a "Committee to Retain Our Rector". This committee, in the statement, stated that, although all the members of the committee do not agree with the political views expressed by the ministers, they did agree that the ministers had a right to their personal political beliefs and the right to engage in such activities as citizens or ministers as their conscience demanded.

On February 16, 1949, an article in the "New York Times" stated that the Standing Committee of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Long Island rejected at a hearing the request of JOHN HOWARD MELISH that hearing on the controversy be postponed until April 18, 1949.

An article in the "New York Times" on April 18, 1949, stated that a hearing on an injunction petition to remove JOHN HOWARD MELISH from his rectorship of Holy Trinity Church was to be held this date at the Supreme Court in Brooklyn before Justice MEIER STEINBRICK. At this hearing Justice STEINBRICK upheld the order of the Vestry removing Dr. MELISH from his position.

However, Justice STEINBRICK extended the deadline to give the MELISHES a chance to consider the conditions on which the court offered a ten-day stay of the ouster order.

In an article in the "New York Times" of April 24, 1949, it was stated that Reverend MELISH would appeal a Supreme Court order issued upholding an Episcopal mandate removing him from his pulpit.

In an article in the "World Telegram" of April 25, 1949, it stated that Justice MEIER STEINBRICK, in the Brooklyn Supreme Court, on April 25th, affirmed his decision of last week ousting the Reverend JOHN HOWARD MELISH as Rector of the Episcopal Holy Trinity Church. Reverend MELISH, through his attorney, said he would seek a stay from the Appellate Division as well as reversal of Justice STEINBRICK'S decision.

On April 26, 1949, according to the "Brooklyn Eagle", the MELISHES filed a petition appealing the Supreme Court decision upholding the ouster of Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH.

On April 29, 1949, an article appeared in the "Brooklyn Eagle" which stated that the Appellate Division on April 29, 1949, denied a motion for a thirty-day stay of Supreme Court Justice MEIER STEINBRICK'S decision sustaining the ouster of Reverend JOHN HOWARD MELISH. MELISH stated that, if it were necessary, he would take his case to the highest court.

G. TESTIMONIAL DINNER FOR WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, CITY CENTER CASINO, NEW YORK CITY, MAY 25, 1949

On May 22, 1949, on page thirteen, column one, of the "Brooklyn Eagle", there appeared an announcement that a testimonial dinner for Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH would be held May 25, 1949, at the City Center Casino Ballroom, 135 West 55th Street, New York City. This testimonial dinner was to be held under the auspices of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, and the speakers would be ARTHUR MILLER, OLIN DOWNES, J. F. STONE, ELEANOR GIBEL, and Professor HENRY PRATT FAIRCHILD, who would be Chairman of the dinner.

(U)

[Confidential Informant   stated] that approximately 500 persons were present at the MELISH testimonial dinner at City Center Casino on May 25, 1949. Professor HENRY PRATT FAIRCHILD, of New York University, acted as Chairman of this dinner, according to the informant, and Mrs. PAUL ROBESON, Councilman EUGENE P. CONNALLY, playwright ARTHUR MILLER, music critic OLIN DOWNES, American Labor Party leader LEO FLINDER, ELEANOR GIBEL, and J. F. STONE, were present at this dinner.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

In the May 26, 1949, issue of the "Daily Worker" it was stated that the majority of the parishioners of the Holy Trinity Church in Brooklyn understand that their church is a victim of the cold war. MELISH at this dinner related that the recent struggle against him and his father by a handful of Vestrymen is a menacing symptom of the shift in the United States from a fluid liberal democratic society in the direction of a regulated business state protecting its economic structure by uneconomic military expenditure and compensatory expansion abroad. MELISH stated that his parish and its ministers have long been marked for the "kill" by friends of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Grateful for the loyalty of the majority of his congregation, he stated that the trouble is not a parish squabble but a symptom of a new state of affairs and a new state of mind developing throughout the entire nation.

H. TRIAL OF RICHARD MORFORD

In an article in the "Daily Worker" of December 2, 1948, it was stated that an appeal was filed on December 1, 1948, in the United States Court of Appeals in Washington, D. C., in the case of RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of the NCASF. MORFORD was sentenced last April 30, 1948, by a Federal Court to three months in prison and a $250.00 fine for contempt of Congress. In the appeal MORFORD'S lawyers contended that, should the contempt verdict be upheld by the Court of Appeals, this would establish the precedent for the legal denial of the Constitutional rights of all American citizens and organizations, not only to freely express their views on Government policies, but also to form their own opinions and decide for themselves the course of action they want their Government to follow.

In the "Daily Worker" of June 15, 1949, it stated that RICHARD MORFORD announced, through his attorneys, that he would ask for a rehearing before the United States Court of Appeals which had, on June 13, 1949, upheld his conviction for contempt of Congress. MORFORD, in a statement, related that "if this court will no longer listen to reason, our attorneys, ABRAHAM FISSEMAN of New York and DAVID WEIN of Washington, will appeal to the United States Supreme Court."

(U) [Confidential Informant   of known reliability, advised] that a testimonial dinner was given for RICHARD MORFORD by the NCASF at the Iceland Restaurant, 1680 Broadway, New York City, on September 29, 1948. This dinner, according to the informant, was given in honor of RICHARD MORFORD, who is testing the legality of the organization against Attorney General TOM CLARK'S subversive listing. The informant stated that approximately 500 persons were present at this dinner and that approximately $6,000.00 was received at the dinner for MORFORD'S defense. The Chairman of this dinner for MORFORD was Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH. The speakers at this dinner were GEORGE MARSHALL, Chairman of the Civil Rights Congress, ABRAHAM ISSERMAN, MORFORD'S lawyer, CORLISS LAMONT, and MURIEL DRAPER. MORFORD stated in his speech at the dinner that "about ten years ago the DIES Committee began to operate on American democracy. Then RANKIN came into Congress and the Un-American Activities Committee became a permanent committee. It is engaged in reckless business and nothing more Fascist exists in the United States than this committee. Basically, free speech is at stake and to work for peace is not subversive. This is one fight," MORFORD stated, "in which we must recognize a unity between the Joint Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, DENNIS, and all civil liberties, and must work together. The cold war has proceeded so far that it might become a hot war." MORFORD stated that a court battle must be fought, and it will be fought, but more important was the fact that the people must be behind the fight. He said they must arise against the Attorney General and change a defensive fight into an offensive fight. He stated that the American people want peace and his organization would continue to fight for peace.

III. SUBVERSIVE RAMIFICATIONS

On December 14, 1948, an article appeared in the "Daily Worker" which stated that the Dean of Canterbury, HEWLETT JOHNSON, had visited the offices of the "Daily Worker" and compared the problems of the "Daily Worker" in the United States with the one in London.

(U) (Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that BERT JAHN, Director of the New York City Division of the NCASF, asked JACK RINSLER of the Communist Party in Queens County, Long Island City, to cooperate with the NCASF in distributing a bundle of leaflets entitled "The Curious Case of the Cold War". The informant stated that JAHN related that a great number of organizational leaflets should be distributed and undoubtedly the NCASF could prepare special leaflets for areas inhabited mainly by Negro and Jewish populations, trade unions, etc. According to the informant, JAHN related to RINSLER that he would appreciate it if RINSLER would see that the leaflets were distributed throughout the community.

An article in the "New York Daily News" dated May 12, 1949, stated that the American Communist Party and the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP that day told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that the ratification of the North Atlantic Pact would inevitably mean a disastrous third world war. Author of the Communist Party statement was EUGENE DENNIS, Party Secretary. HOWARD JOHNSON, Educational Director of the New York State Communist Party, explained to Chairman TOM CONNELLY that DENNIS was involved in some litigation and had been refused permission by the Judge to testify at the pact hearing. DENNIS, in his statement, said that the North Atlantic Pact was undermining the United Nations and commits the United States to a policy of hostility toward the Soviet Union and the Eastern European democracies' progressive war preparation which can only lead to World War III. DENNIS added that, while the pact proponents have been unable to point to a single act of aggression or threatened aggression, it is no secret that powerful forces in the United States do contemplate a shooting war against the Soviet Union. The statement by RICHARD MORFORD of the NCASF paralleled the statement of DENNIS in every way.

This informant advised that FREDERICK VANDERBILT FIELD contributed, at various times, comparatively large sums of money to this organization. This informant advised that FREDERICK VANDERBILT FIELD on June 4, 1948, contributed $27.60 to the organization, and again on September 3 and 22, 1948, contributed $100.00 and $400.00 respectively to the NCASF. On October 8 and 20, 1948, this informant advised FIELD also contributed $4.00 and $2,000.00 to the cause of the NCASF. According to this same informant, FIELD on May 5, 1949, again contributed $1,000.00 to the NCASF.

(U) Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that CORLISS LAMONT had contributed $1,315.00 to RICHARD MORFORD'S defense fund in January of 1949. This informant stated that again in February of 1949 CORLISS LAMONT gave RICHARD MORFORD another $2,000.00, of which $1,000.00 was for general operating expenses and another $1,000.00 was for the defense committee. The informant stated that CORLISS LAMONT on July 26, 1949, gave $250.00 to THEODORE BAYER, who is in charge of publicity and fund-raising for the NCASF.

On March 18, 1949, on page six, column four, of the "Daily Worker", an article appeared stating that the NCASF announced on March 17, 1949, the election of a new Board of Directors and the expiration of the term of Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH as Chairman. According to the article, Reverend MELISH requested that he not be considered for re-election due to the increased responsibility of his parish. MELISH is the Assistant Rector of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity. He stated that, in view of the constantly expanding scope of the activities of the NCASF, more is required of a Chairman than is now possible for him to give. Re-elected to the Board of Directors, MELISH stated he will contribute faithfully all that he can to the work of the Council. The article listed seven new members elected to the Board of Directors. They are as follows:

Rt. Reverend ARTHUR W. MOULTON, Retired Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Utah

MAX WEBER, artist

Dr. HENRY H. NOYES, former member of the faculty at Northwestern University

CURTISS RITTER of the United Office and Professional Workers of America

Dr. HARRY GRUNDFEST

(X) YES Confidential Informant ☐ on March 22, 1949, advised that the NCASF on March 16, 1949, issued its Annual Report by the Director to the Members of the Council. According to the informant, this report was as follows:

b2

"ANNUAL REPORT BY THE DIRECTOR TO THE MEMBERS OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP
MARCH 16, 1949

"In the year 1948 the National Council moved into the national field effectively and this is the most noteworthy feature of the year's activities.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ ~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

NY 100-7518

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

"For a period of three years previous to January 1948 the Council lacked a full-time Director for the national field with the exception of a few months in the summer and fall of 1946. Promotion of activities in the field, guidance and assistance to the Local groups rested largely upon mail communications from the national office as a part time duty of one or another staff member. During 1947 the Executive Director did what he could on marginal time. The Chairman of the Council and the Director made trips to a few cities for speaking engagements - one night in town. But no one could go to the various cities and stay long enough to do any good.

"In January 1948 Mr. Abbott~~Simon~~ undertook the overwhelming task of directing the national field service with the aid of one secretary. Since then things have been happening in a number of cities across the country. The Field Director has stimulated and organized; he has made certain that the local workers were provided with tools for the job; some tools he created, others were produced by the various departments in the national office; he has helped local groups to distribute literature, to plan meetings and peace-action campaigns.

"During 1948 the National Field Director has done on-the-spot work in 22 cities. Four cities have had ten visits each; four have had from five to ten; fourteen from one to four. Visits have been from one to four days in duration, often worked on the basis of setting activities in motion and organizing workmen on the trip out from national headquarters then stopping again in the city on the return journey to check on progress.

"In addition to work in these 22 cities effective activities on behalf of American-Soviet friendship have been carried forward with some regularity in another 10 cities in direct response to the appeal of and following out the specific suggestions of our Field Division by mail and telephone. Occasional work has been done in still another 20 cities.

"The Division's program suggestions and action recommendations are being sent regularly to about 750 organizational leaders and key individuals in approximately 75 cities. Over and above these figures can be recorded the occasional contacts with hundreds of interested persons in other towns who write in expressing willingness to act on some part of the Council's program or suggestions.

"Our procedure in the national field in this period bears examination. The Local Councils established several years back have found the going hard. During much of 1948 there were not more than four which could employ workers on a full-time basis, but more than half a dozen which could keep the local organization functioning regularly as an organization. However, everyone of

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

NY 100-7518

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

"these groups was able to organize and carry through successfully the mass meetings and other functions for the Dean of Canterbury. We are doing all possible to maintain existing Local Councils. But for the present it is not realistic to think of reviving the fallen or of organizing new Local Councils. What we want is to get the job done in the best way not dependent upon formal organization.

"From an organizing standpoint our best hope in several cities following the Dean's meeting was to encourage the formation of a city-wide Peace Council or Peace Committee appealing to all sections of the population to join in its work. These committees would not devote themselves exclusively to American-Soviet friendship matters and would recognize no affiliation with the National Council. Yet they would cooperate with us and use our materials, speakers, and carry out some of our action recommendations. Such an arrangement has been shaped up in six cities. In other places our program is worked out in part through cooperation with existing organizations, the Progressive Party, et al.

"The inadequacies and uncertainties of this way of work are clear. There is no substantial extension of our own organization. Our prestige is not enhanced publicly but those with whom we work in the several cities appreciate our service to the cause of peace. We have earned considerable recognition in the past months for our leadership in arousing and beginning the organization of the peace forces on a broad front in many cities, a kind of pioneer effort as it were.

"The emphasis upon developments in the national field during 1948 must not obscure the significant efforts in other areas of our work, without which we would not be able to put forward a complete program in the field.

"We have a strong home front in New York City. Under the chairmanship of Mr. R. A. Resika and the direction of Mr. Bert Jahr, our Neighborhood Committees are active. Meetings of these Committees and public forums and lectures on American-Soviet relations set up by them totalled close to 200 in the past year. Their own fund-raising events, their merchandising operations, their sale of tickets and promotion of city-wide affairs to make money are the major factor in bringing in probably as much as one third of the Council's income although no accurate reckoning is possible.

"Since mid-year 1948 special attention has been given to the cultivation of our program among the trade unions and fraternal organizations in New York City as well as nationally. Both these groups have battles of their own but they have given our program, speakers and activities an increasing place. The New York City Division has been able to help the American Labor Party through "its local clubs to gear into peace action. A start has been made among students and other youth; we are building up the participation of the Negro people in the New York City work.

"The Committee of Women has increased its work on a national scale while maintaining the strong center for its program among New York women. Through the efficient contribution of volunteers, Mrs. Ruth Russ, Director of the Committee conducts two wide-scale projects, one the radio monitoring and the other correspondence between American and Soviet women. The latter project recently blossomed in a booklet containing a number of the letter exchanges. The booklet has received an enthusiastic reception and will help the cause of understanding considerably.

"For part of 1948 we were so loaded with work we gave minimum attention to the specialized educational services although the Exhibit Department was active. In the fall of 1948 we opened up a limited promotion of educational services. Now we are hardly equal to the demand. Letters from students, teachers, colleges and libraries from every section of the country are asking for factual material, study outlines, exhibits. Mrs. Margaret Lamont and Miss May Marcus who were handling the Exhibit Department only, now direct the wider operation called 'Exhibits and Educational Services.'

"Our two periodic publications ~~REPORT-on-the-NEWS~~ and ~~FACTS~~ were issued with increasing frequency as the year 1948 progressed and in increasing quantity. We can only afford to send these publications, which up to now have not been on a subscription basis, to selected organizational leaders and to those who mould public opinion. We have tried to get local groups to reproduce the material under their own imprint and to relay to local people. Even so, we now get off about five thousand copies of each issue.

"It is a most difficult and dangerous undertaking these days to marshal the facts, sift out the truth, and present a constructive opinion on the news of American-Soviet relations. Yet the educational ammunition in the battle for peace must be placed in the hands of leaders and we have a peculiar contribution to make at this point. Miss Alix Reuther and Mr. Theodore Bayer grapple with this difficult task and sweat it out successfully. This is bound to be a major enterprise of the Council in combination with the publication of pamphlets and leaflets for mass distribution. We ought to be doing much more in this line but financial resources have limited us.

"This report cannot detail all the activities of the Council in 1948. A few highlights will token the persistence of our efforts to enlist public support in opposition to the cold war, for the adoption by our government of a positive peace policy and the re-establishment of American-Soviet cooperation.

"We waged a three-months nation-wide campaign against the movie, 'The Iron Curtain.' Three hundred prominent Americans signed a protest and in a dozen cities in addition to New York the people made public protest in newspaper advertisement, in delegations and communications to theatre managements, in leaflet distribution and finally by picketing.

"A statement in June 1948, initiated by the Council, and endorsed by 112 prominent Americans, called upon the Government to arrest the cold war and to take immediate steps that might lead to a peaceful settlement of differences with the U.S.S.R. The Council appealed to the U. S. Congress at the end of July to adopt a resolution calling for the initiation of a U.S.-U.S.S.R. conference to settle outstanding problems.

"In September the Council went directly to the people with the same appeal, launching the Roll Call for Peace in order to mobilize sentiment for a conference between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. to settle differences. In October we appealed to the Government to re-open the Berlin negotiations and to support a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers to seek an over-all German peace settlement.

Hewlett Johnson
"In November the Dean of Canterbury came to the U. S. through the assistance of an ~~Ad Hoc~~ National Committee of Welcome to fulfill a schedule of mass meetings across the country. Arrangements for his appearance in 17 American cities were set in motion originally by the Council. The Council followed through with promotion and other assistance to Local Welcome Committees. The management of the tour itself was placed in our hands. The Dean delivered some thirty major peace addresses in the seventeen cities speaking before tens of thousands of people and over the radio to millions more. This tour stirred up more concern among the people for peace than had been demonstrated up to that time and has provided the basis for the organizing of Peace Committees in a number of cities as cited in the earlier reporting of the work of the National Field Division.

"The Council did its best recently to prompt the people across the nation to call upon the President and the State Department to deal positively with the Stalin offers for negotiations to settle differences between our two countries and to complete a German peace settlement through a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers.

"We have made a start on an action program on the North Atlantic Pact which is the last word in a cold war policy. From the time of this Annual Meeting forward, opposition to the ratification of this proposed Pact by our Government will become a major Council campaign.

"The financial condition of the Council can be determined by the reports submitted to this meeting. The accountant's figures show a financial deficit

"As of December 31, 1948 of $7,604.84. The deficit of December 31, 1947, therefore, has been cut nearly in half. We operated soundly in 1948 under a budget approved by the Board of Directors of $69,000. We spent approximately $70,800. for current operations. Inasmuch as our net income was approximately $77,300. we had an operating surplus of $6,500 which enabled us to cut the indebtedness of the previous year nearly in half as noted above. A statement of financial condition as of February 8, 1949 showed a financial deficit of approximately $7,250. As of that date it can be seen we were continuing to hold our own.

"We have learned by experience in the first two months of 1949 that our income is going to come hard during the next months. To maintain the present level of operations (and clearly it is imperative in these times when, if ever, the people must be stirred up to fight for peace) we must set up the events which promise to earn money and we must press our friends for maximum contributions. There is not a bazaar in prospect with an earning of ten thousand dollars as in the spring of 1948. Members of the National Council and its Board of Directors will have to do their part in helping the officers and the staff to raise funds so the Council's work can go on.

"Words of appreciation should not be reserved for annual presentation and the Director hopes he has expressed some thanks along the way. He wishes to enter a record here in appreciation of the faithful members of the national staff not before mentioned. Our three newest members of the staff have been with the Council well over a year, all others have been with the Council at least three years. Some longer, and one since the Council was organized six years ago: Belle Checkanover, Bertha Korenman, Helen Newberg, Rose Schwartzstein, Mary Stein, Hilda Zacharia and Herbert Weiss.

"We laughingly refer to our offices as the 'factory' and talk about 'the production line' since such quantities of letters and mimeographed material must be produced, collated, distributed and mailed from this place every week. It is these people just named who do the heavy end of the work although department heads share in the routine production also.

"Finally I speak in appreciation of Mr. Bayer upon whom all of us depend in great measure for counsel and help. And of Mr. Melish, our Chairman, who is waging an heroic battle for the right to speak and work for peace based on American-Soviet cooperation."

DETAILS:

GENERAL ACTIVITIES

Mr. CHARLES GRAHAM, Attorney-at-Law, Symes Building, Denver, Colorado, advised he has been a member of the Executive Board of the DENVER COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP since it was started in 1943. Mr. GRAHAM advised that the activities of the DENVER COUNCIL have been quite limited during the year 1949, and most of the activities center around the holding of Vecherinks which are Russian dinners. He stated that the money obtained from these affairs is used for the defense of RICHARD MORFORD of the NATIONAL COUNCIL.

Mr. GRAHAM further advised that one of the main functions performed by the DENVER COUNCIL which links it to the NATIONAL COUNCIL is the arrangement for speakers which are sent throughout the country by the NATIONAL COUNCIL. Mr. GRAHAM stated the DENVER COUNCIL is the local branch of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF THE AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

Mr. TILIMANERB, 1464 South Humboldt Street, Denver, Colorado, who is a vice-chairman of the DENVER COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP advised that VICTOR SIVERTS had been employed by the DENVER COUNCIL as their first full-time paid executive secretary but that SIVERTS was only employed as such for two or three months starting the latter part of March, 1947. The reason that SIVERTS' services were not retained is the fact that the DENVER COUNCIL's finances were low and SIVERTS was not a very good promotional man. He stated SIVERTS' main function in the DENVER COUNCIL was to represent the COUNCIL in the Adult Education Council at the University of Denver. He stated SIVERTS personality and temperament were such that they caused him to make many enemies in the Adult Education Council and the DENVER COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP is no longer a member of the Adult Education Council at the University of Denver.

SUBVERSIVE RAMIFICATIONS

[redacted] Denver, Colorado, advised she was a sponsor of the AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP [redacted] stated the reason she resigned was that she came to realize to be a member of the DENVER COUNCIL one would have to be a Communist or a fellow traveler because of the policies laid down by the DENVER COUNCIL which were those advocated by the Communist Party. [redacted] stated it took her a long time to realize there was considerable Communist influence in this organization and that she regards [redacted] as a Communist and one who is a very vicious and outspoken person for the Communist cause. [redacted]

[redacted] She also advised that M. WALTER PESSMAN is either a Communist or a fool and Mr. PESSMAN is presently the chairman of the DENVER COUNCIL. [redacted] advised the only other person she could remember as having been labelled a definite Communist is [redacted]

[redacted] advised it is her opinion that anyone who remained in the DENVER COUNCIL of AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP at the present time should definitely be classified as a person who is either a Communist or a very sympathetic fellow traveller.

On March 23, 1949, Confidential Informant Denver [redacted] of known reliability, received a telephone call from an individual who stated he was calling for a Mr. KNOX and invited the informant to attend a luncheon to be held at the Navarre Cafe on Saturday, March 26, 1949. The person telephoning explained the purpose of the luncheon by stating it was being held to bring noted foreign Communist dignitaries to this country from Europe.

Denver [ ] arrived at the Navarre Cafe on March 26, 1949, and inquired as to the scheduled luncheon by Mr. KNOX, but was told by the restaurant authorities that this was probably the luncheon scheduled by CRAIG VINCENT. Denver [ ] then introduced himself to CRAIG VINCENT and it became apparent to [ ] that it was VINCENT who telephonically invited him to attend this luncheon. Denver [ ] advised that besides CRAIG VINCENT and [ ] those he recalled attending were M. WALTER PESSMAN, TILLMAN ERB, [ ] and SAM MENIN.

Confidential Informants Denver [ ] and [ ] of known reliability, advised that CRAIG VINCENT is a known Communist as well as being a member of the NATIONAL COUNCIL of the subject organization and that [ ] and [ ] are also known Communists and that MATA JAMES is the leader of the Civil Rights Congress at Denver, Colorado, at the present time. These same informants advised SAM MENIN is an attorney who, during 1948, defended seven Communists in U. S. Federal Court who were charged with Contempt of Court.

During the luncheon Confidential Informant Denver [ ] heard the names of WAYNE KNOX, who has been identified by Confidential Informant Denver [ ] as Chairman of the Young Progressive Association at Denver University; [ ] who [ ] advised is a member of the Communist Party; and a person known as STANLEY BERKOWITZ. Denver [ ] also overheard CRAIG VINCENT advise TILLMAN ERB that "they" were going ahead with plans anyway for April 15, 1949, at which time they expected SHOSTAKOVICH to make an appearance in Denver.

Denver [ ] further advised there was limited discussion of initial plans for the Denver appearance of foreign dignitaries on May 14, 1949, which would include MIMI of Italy; PIERRE of France; and a [ ] CRAIG VINCENT then introduced Mr. JAECKEL of California, who did not announce his exact business connection but Confidential Informant Denver [ ] believes he was in Denver to confer with VINCENT in connection with SHOSTAKOVICH's proposed tour. During the meeting Denver [ ] observed [ ] was taking notes concerning discussions and acting as unofficial secretary of the luncheon. Prior to the conclusion of the luncheon, [ ] personally solicited those in attendance for funds.

On April 6, 1949, Confidential Informant Denver [ ] of known reliability, provided SA G. E. SMART with a letter received by LARRY SMALL who formerly resided at 1029 East 22d Avenue, Denver, Colorado. This letter to SMALL was from the Student Committee of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC., New York City, and stated that the Student Division of the COUNCIL announced a correspondents project for American students who wished to exchange letters with students studying in universities in the Soviet Union.

Denver [ ] also provided SA SMART with a copy of the NATIONAL COUNCIL's "Report on the News" dated February 28, 1949, which was received from the NATIONAL COUNCIL by LARRY SMALL. Confidential Informants Denver [ ] and [ ] advised LARRY SMALL is a member of the Communist Party of Denver, Colorado, and is active in the Youth Branch of the Communist Party at Denver, Colorado.

Confidential Informant Denver [ ] of known reliability advised he attended a dinner meeting sponsored by the Denver Council of American Soviet Friendship featuring MURIAL DRAPER who spoke on Moscow at Midnight, 1949. Denver [ ] obtained a reservation from [ ] of the DENVER COUNCIL explaining to her he had received an invitation at the Executive Meeting of the Young Progressives of America at Boulder, Colo. Denver [ ] stated that this dinner meeting was held at the Denver YWCA, 1545 Tremont Street.

b7D

Denver [ ] stated in his conversations with MURIAL DRAPER she made the following statements "The Youth need never fight Russia," "this Fascist government will soon find that the peoples' will is not that of the capitalists and they are keeping the people in such a low state of economics, almost serfdom." Denver [ ] advised DRAPER gave a talk on Russia and answered questions. DRAPER attempted to paint a beautiful Russia and her fight for freedom. She stated RUSSIA is the only true democracy and that we must fight now and work hard to prevent fascists from gaining complete control of our government. DRAPER also stated that the Satellite countries are and friendly and there are no Russian troops present; that BENES did not die as the paper stated but is honored in Czechoslovakia, but he was a little "outdated for the progressive movement."

[ ] also advised DRAPER made the following statements during her talk: "That there are no radical prejudices in Russia like we have in America against the Jews and negroes; that the decision of the people in Russia is final and that Stalin does not run the government but that the people do; and that sooner or later the people in this country will rise and seek the same progressive movement and kick out the fascists and capitalists who are dominating the poor labor classes. Marshal Tito is not a true Communist as he never put the full Marxist theory to practice."

b2
b7C
b7D

Denver [ ] advised that the following people were at the DRAPER dinner who are members of the Communist Party [ ] and RUDY COOK.

Confidential Informant Denver [ ] of known reliability advised that DRAPER gave a talk at the University of Colorado, under the sponsorship of the Young Progressives of America on April 14, 1949. Her talk was very similar to the one given at the YWCA at Denver, Colorado.

On February 18, 1949, CALEB GATES former Chancellor at the University of Denver, wrote a letter to the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC., advising that he noted that his name was listed as a sponsor of the NATIONAL COUNCIL and that he demanded that his name be removed immediately claiming it was illegally placed on their list. A copy of his letter to the NATIONAL COUNCIL is maintained in the Denver file.

However, the DENVER COUNCIL published in its "News Letter" dated April 19, 1949, GATES protest to the NATIONAL COUNCIL and also published RICHARD MORFORD's reply: "Before me is the original letter on your stationery headed 'Office of the Chancellor, University of Denver' and bearing your personal signature dated March 3, 1943. Your letter follows: 'Replying to your letter of February 18, I should be glad to serve as council of National Council of ASF.'"

The following information was obtained from a confidential reliable source and is being submitted for your information.

The above-captioned group held an annual dinner October 6, 1949, at the Manhattan Towers Hotel, New York, New York. There were approximately 250 people present at which time approximately $8,000 was collected. Acting Chairman of the Council, Mr. John Kingsbury, spoke of the importance of the Council in the present setup of confused America, adding that the Council is working for peace between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Mr. Jennings Perry, columnist for the "New York Compass" newspaper, stated that the Mexican Peace Conference is a sign that American people are working for peace and that the atomic bomb development in the Soviet Union is making a psychological change for the betterment of feeling toward the Soviet Union in the United States.

Dr. W. E. DuBois, in addressing the Council, stated that the United States press lies about the Soviet Union and that these lies do not help the desire of the American people to establish a peaceful world. He stated that the Soviet Union erased religious superstition, abolished land monopolies and established educational democracy.

Mr. Corliss Lamont stated that everyone is talking about the Soviet atomic bomb development but the Soviet Union developed the atomic bomb three years prior to its development by the United States and that the Soviet Union has been utilizing atomic energy in industry for some time. Mr. Lamont called upon the people in the United States to work for friendship between the United States and the Soviet Union and to end the cold war in Europe.

Mr. John Darr made a collection speech and called for an organized peace movement sponsored by the Council. He added that the Council was making plans for peace propaganda work which will become the main issue of friendship with the Soviet Union. Further, that plans are being made for a peace mobilization meeting December 5, 1949, at Madison Square Garden, New York City.

Professor Morrison of Cornell University related that the atomic bomb is no longer one hundred per cent American and further that the United States Government could now come to an agreement with Russia for the building of a lasting peace.

Office Memorandum • UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

TO : Director, FBI

DATE: 10/26/49

FROM : SAC, Baltimore

SUBJECT: NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP
INTERNAL SECURITY - C
(Bufile 100-146964)ALL INFORMATION CONTAINED
HEREIN IS UNCLASSIFIED
DATE 03-28-2007 BY 60324/AUC/BAW/CPB/blsRe report of SA C. DONALD STAMPLE, at New York, dated 9/12/49, and Baltimore letter to Director, dated 4/22/47.

Referenced Baltimore letter set out the lack of any indication of activity or the existence of the organization in the Baltimore Division during the years 1945, 1946 and 1947. A further review of the Baltimore files at the present time fails to reflect any evidence whatsoever of the existence of any group of the American-Soviet Friendship organization within the Baltimore Division.

The file does reflect that on February 26, 1948, while being interviewed concerning another matter [redacted]

[redacted] volunteered certain information concerning the nature and status of the organization in Baltimore.

[redacted] advised Special Agent DANIEL F. X. CALLAHAN that as he recalled the organizational set-up of the captioned group in Baltimore, there were no members of the organization as such and consequently, there never was maintained a membership list. The individuals affiliated therewith were described as "sponsors" rather than members and included many citizens of local prominence as well as trade union leaders and clergymen. According to [redacted] the purpose of the Baltimore Council of this organization was to promote during the war, an attitude of friendliness between the people of the United States and Russia and further, to combat vicious anti-Soviet propaganda which frequently appeared in the United States.

[redacted] stated that he never knew any individual connected with the Baltimore Council of American-Soviet Friendship who was a Communist and therefore, did not think that the organization on a local basis was Communist-controlled. He stated that locally, the organization was merely a part of the national group and as such, policy was made by the national group and merely followed by the local group. He added that he never considered the group to be particularly successful since it was hard to maintain interest in the organization and very little activity transpired other than that there were two rallies held during the war.

[ ] stated that the only thing he had heard concerning activity of the American-Soviet Friendship since the war was that approximately two years previously, an individual named MOFFITT, first name unknown, from Philadelphia, had written to several of the people formerly associated with the local Chapter, in an effort to re-activate the Chapter. [ ] stated, however, that to the best of his knowledge, this re-activation movement was unsuccessful, and as far as he knows, the organization was at that time non-existent.

It should be noted that during the existence of the Baltimore Council of the American-Soviet Friendship [ ] was considered a regular confidential informant of the Baltimore Division.

[ ] International YWCA, 26 South Broadway, Baltimore, who was secured as a sponsor by the Baltimore Council at its inception several years ago, advised on October 19, 1949, that although she had requested her name be removed from the list of sponsors and from all mailing lists of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship as soon as she found out that there was any possible Communist connection with the organization, she continues to receive mail from the National Council. She stated that she has written to the Council several times in recent years, requesting that her name be withdrawn but without success. She feels therefore, that she would be informed of any local activity which may be contemplated by the American-Soviet Friendship organization. She has received no indication since 1944 of any such local activity or the existence of any local branch of the organization.

Dr. GEORGE C. GRANT, Dean, Morgan State College, Baltimore, Maryland, advised on October 20, 1949, that he was one of the educational and civic leaders in Baltimore who were "taken in" by the Baltimore Council of American-Soviet Friendship several years ago, as a sponsor when it began its operation. He stated that he has received no information since 1944 or 1945 which would indicate any local activity on the part of this organization since that time. Both Dr. GRANT and [ ] stated that they would advise the Baltimore Office immediately if any information comes to their attention concerning local activity of subject organization.

Reliable Baltimore Confidential Informants [ ] and [ ] who are familiar with Communist matters in the Baltimore area, recently advised that they had received no information concerning activity on the part of subject organization or its existence in the Baltimore area since 1945.

Baltimore Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that on December 6, 1948, PHILIP FRANKFELD, Chairman of the Maryland-D.C. District Communist Party, USA, had inquired of [ ] GEORGE MEYERS and DOROTHY ROSE SLUMBERG, District officers, as to their interest in reading a publication from the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship. None of these officers were interested in the publication, so it was destroyed.

A review of the file of the Baltimore Office reflects that numerous publications of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship which have been received by the CP, USA, Maryland-D.C. District at Baltimore, have been secured by the Baltimore Office and furnished to New York, the office of origin. Baltimore will continue to keep the New York Office advised of all pertinent material received from the National organization, but until a local unit becomes active in Baltimore, this case will be maintained in an RUC status in the Baltimore Office. It is suggested that the New York Office furnish only one copy of future reports to the Baltimore Office for its information. RUC.

FROM : SAC, Detroit
SUBJECT: ① NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INCORPORATED
INTERNAL SECURITY - C

DATE: November 2, 1949

fe-1

On October 25, 1949 [ ] reported that TOM DENNIS, Organizational Secretary, District 7, Communist Party, conferred with [ ] of NCASF, and ABBOTT SIMON, who may be identified as field director of the NCASF operating out of New York City. The results of this conference indicated that SIMON, while in Chicago, Illinois, on October 1 and 2, 1949, where he had attended the National Labor Conference for Peace, had tentatively formulated plans for a conference to be held in mid January, 1950, on either the weekends of the 14th and 15th or the 21st and 22nd. SIMON reported that it had not yet been resolved whether this would be a national conference or a regional conference which the various CP districts would support as they had supported the labor peace conference. SIMON stated that persons who are designated or requested to attend this conference are expected to be of a type who will return to Detroit to form a local Soviet American Friendship Council. In an aside SIMON was quoted as saying "or it doesn't matter what you call it".

b2
b7D

[ ] further reported that the general theme of this conference will be as follows, "The major obstacle to Soviet American relations is the hysteria and lack of factual knowledge concerning the Soviet Union. We are, therefore, calling this conference in order to acquaint people with the true conditions in the hope that it will lead to better understanding between the two peoples."

b2

G. I. R. -7

According to the Informant, a preliminary meeting for the Detroit area was suggested by SIMON to be held on December 9, 10 or 11, with emphasis on the Chicago meeting being set forth at the Detroit meeting and an attempt made to secure sponsors and delegates who will follow up the Detroit meeting by attendance at the affair in Chicago during January. A special emphasis, according to SIMON, will be placed on the securing of leaders from Protestant Jewish, Negro, right wing and middle trade unionist groups.

The program of the Chicago conference will be set up as follows. The first day will be devoted to national, educational, trade union, and religious questions. The second day will be broken down to problems existing between the United States and the Soviet Union such as Germany, Western Europe, Far East and so forth. Above all, according to SIMON, an attempt should be made

Re New York teletypes November 4, 1949 and November 10, 1949 captioned
"National Council of American Soviet Friendship - Internal Security, C".

On November 13, 1949 ALEXANDER S. PANYUSHKIN, Soviet Ambassador to the United States, spoke at a dinner sponsored by the Chicago Council of American Soviet Friendship at the Bismarck Hotel, Chicago, Illinois, to commemorate the Thirty-Second Anniversary of the Russian Revolution. PANYUSHKIN was accompanied by HORACE K. SOKOLOV, First Secretary of the Soviet Embassy. Over three hundred persons paid $10 a plate to hear PANYUSHKIN deliver what was characterized by the "Chicago Tribune" as a "scathing denunciation of the United States".

In his speech PANYUSHKIN lauded his country as a true seeker after peace and assailed the "aggressive grasping aspirations of the monopolistic powers", which powers he said were "organically alien" to Russia.

In his speech PANYUSHKIN reviewed in detail the history of what he called the Soviet Union's "policy of peace and friendship among all the nations of the world". In addition, he said:

"As is known, the ruling circles of the countries which are planning a new war did not dare to reject offhand the humanitarian and peaceful proposals (for controlling atomic energy) of the Soviet Union. These circles, resorting to all kinds of tricks, introduced a plan of their own -- the so-called Baruch Plan.

"But it is no longer a secret that the Baruch Plan is aimed at creating an American atomic super trust which would insure the retention in the hands of its authors of complete control of atomic energy.

"This plan is aimed at subordinating to the monopolistic control of the United States not only the world production of atomic energy but also the economy of any country. It is natural that no self-respecting nation can accept such a plan."

In addition, PANYUSHKIN charged that "a number of countries" are preparing for a new war.

HENRY H. NOYES, Executive Director, Chicago Council of American Soviet Friendship, presided at the aforementioned dinner. Other speakers were HERMET EBY, Social Science Department, University of Chicago, Rabbi JACOB OTT, of Anshe Emet Temple, and Miss JANICE KINGSLOW, actress. Also at the speakers' table were the Reverend WILLIAM T. BAIRD, Essex Community Church, 7400 South Blackstone Avenue, and Mrs. BAIRD; LILLIAN OTT, poet and mother of the Rabbi; [redacted] two Soviet officials (whose identity has not been established); ROBERT J. MAVIGHURST, Professor of Education, University of Chicago; [redacted] and [redacted]

The "Chicago Tribune" in its issue of November 16, 1949 contained in Part I, Page 2, Columns 5 and 7, an article captioned "Gag U. S. Speaker, Let Red Envoy Blast America". The article pointed out that Rabbi OTT, a speaker at the aforementioned dinner, had stated on November 15, 1949 that he had been "pledged in advance not to violate the rules of international courtesy by embarrassing the Ambassador or speaking in a derogatory manner of Russia".

In addition, Rabbi OTT was quoted as describing the envoy's speech as a "breach of hospitality" but added that on the basis of PANYUSHKIN's Chicago appearance he was convinced that the Russians are "poor tacticians". In addition, Rabbi OTT stated that "Apparently the ambassador could not understand English any better than he spoke it. Every speaker who preceded him spoke sincerely about the search for peace. His address was entirely out of tune with what had gone before, particularly his close, where he threatened blow for blow."

In addition, Rabbi OTT was quoted in the article as having said that when he received an invitation to address the banquet he asked NOYES if his organization was on the subversive list. OTT said that he was told that a "national organization with a similar name" was listed as subversive but that the Chicago Council was not. (It will be noted that the National Council of American Soviet Friendship has been cited by the Attorney General as a Communist organization.) OTT stated that NOYES pointed out that the Chicago Council had been incorporated in Illinois in 1942 and was independent of the National Council, and that NOYES qualified this statement by saying "although we have similar objectives and exchange views".

Letter to Director

OTT is further quoted in the article as saying that NOYES had declined to reveal the names of the three hundred persons who paid $10 a plate for the Sunday night banquet. He insisted that there was no list, although a card index file was made of every person entering the banquet hall. NOYES was quoted by OTT as saying that CHARLES H. COYLE of Berwyn, Illinois was acting chairman of the Chicago Council of American Soviet Friendship. (It will be noted that COYLE formerly served the CCASF as treasurer and that he previously was a Director of the Abraham Lincoln School, now defunct, which school has been cited by the Attorney General as a Communist organization.)

With the exception of information quoted from the "Chicago Tribune" of November 16, 1949, the material herein reported was received from [redacted] [redacted] a source of information of known reliability.

The foregoing is furnished for your information.

The captioned organization sponsored a dinner at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel in New York City, November 10, 1949, in celebration of the establishment of the Soviet Union and the recognition of the Soviet Union by the United States. Andrei Vishinsky was the guest of honor.

According to a reliable confidential informant in attendance at the dinner, Dr. John A. Kingsbury, Treasurer of the captioned organization, opened the meeting. He explained that when the National Council of American Soviet Friendship was organized, among those who greeted the formation of the organization were President Roosevelt, General Eisenhower, Henry Wallace, Herbert Lehman and Fiorello La Guardia but "Tom Clark does not like us and declared us subversive."

Corliss Lamont, a member of the board of directors of the organization, served as toastmaster. He stated that the American people are ignorant about Soviet Russia and it is the duty of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship to explain to the people the truth about Russia. He said "the USSR has many shortcomings, one of which is the lack of political democracy, but the Soviet Union has made great advances in this field." He called for atomic competition between the Soviet Union and the United States "for life, not death."

Paul Robeson spoke at the dinner and greeted Vishinsky in both Russian and English. He claimed that if there were no Soviet Union the pressure of the "reactionary forces" would be greater. With the victory of the Chinese people, Robeson declared the world balance of power has shifted to the forces of peace. The very existence of the Soviet Union is the symbol of struggle for unity and peace. Robeson declared that here in the United States is the core of "world fascism" today and that the Soviet Union gives us courage to stand up and fight.

Andrei Vishinsky, when introduced, was given a long standing ovation. He said "the word subversive to the National Council, as used by the Attorney General, is a song word. There is no subversive activity here. We the Soviet people welcome such subversive activities." Vishinsky maintained that the work of the National Council is of historical service, as the thirty-second anniversary of the Soviet Union and the sixteen years of friendship between the Soviet Union and the United States is of great importance. He said "it means peace for the whole world. Let the American nation work for this cause and we will help the American people in this work. In the United Nations we are trying to prove that mankind needs peace, not war. We must put to shame those who want war." Vishinsky explained that in the United Nations "we are only five against fifty-four, and they imagine they are the majority, because fifty-four is more than five, but it is illusionary. Just as the possession of the atomic secret and the fight for peace which we are starting in the General Assembly tomorrow will not be decided there. It is the people who will decide the question of peace. I say that we, the five, are the majority, because with us are the millions of people all over the world. In connection with the current activities of the captioned organization the following information has been received from reliable, confidential informants: The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship is planning a "Peace Congress" to be held in New York City, December 3-5, 1949. The theme of this congress will be "Peace with the Soviet Union" and will be in the form of panel discussions consisting of the following panels:

- (1) Reorientation to the American-Soviet Cooperation.
- (2) Political structure and development in the Soviet Union.
- (3) Social system of the Soviet Union.
- (4) American-Soviet relations and the peace settlements in Europe.
- (5) American-Soviet relations and development in the far east.
- (6) The United States and the Soviet Union in the United Nations.

The congress will terminate with a "Peace Rally" to be held in Madison Square Garden during the evening of December 5, 1949. Richard Morford, Executive Director of the captioned organization, attempted to get the Reverend Hewlitt Johnson to serve as guest of honor for the rally but Reverend Johnson, due to illness, was unable to accept the invitation. After failing to secure Reverend Johnson as guest of honor, Morford indicated to Abbott Simon, Publicity Director of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, that attempts would be made to get some Hollywood celebrities and some prominent Soviet figure to attend the rally.

As of November 17, 1949 the following individuals reportedly have consented to be speakers at the rally: O. John Rogge, Howard Fast, William Howard Melish, Bishop Arthur Moulton, and Corliss Lamont.

 enable him to secure membership in the Massachusetts Council of American-Soviet Friendship. This is deemed desirable inasmuch as that organization has curtailed its public activities to a considerable considerable value.

It is also felt that attendance of the informant will

Original Copy of American-Soviet Friendship Society

Mr. Donald L. Nicholson called Mr. Roach on November 14, 1949, and advised that information had just been received from the U. S. Embassy in Moscow that the Russian newspaper PRAVDA had carried a front page story declaring that the CONGRESS FOR DEFENSE OF PEACE was scheduled to convene in New York City on December 3, 1949, and adjourn on the 4th, under the sponsorship of the Society for Soviet American Friendship. Mr. Nicholson stated that this is the first information that they had received that such a "Peace" Conference is being held and he was desirous of knowing what information the Bureau had concerning the Congress or what information we could get from our various sources in New York City. He stated that if the PRAVDA announcement is true then it would appear that the State Department will be called upon sooner or later to issue visas to various undesirable persons who will want to come to the conference.

The State Department request was telephonically given to Mr. Baumgardner in the Internal Security Section at the time it was received.

RECOMMENDATION:

It is recommended that this memorandum be referred to the Internal Security Section and that as such time as the information is forthcoming from New York regarding the Conference, that it be supplied to the Liaison Section for personal delivery to the State Department.

WARD ALSO SAID THAT WESTERN POWERS HAD FAILED TOTALLY TO FIX DEMOCRACY IN THE MINDS OF THE GERMANS IN THEIR ZONES. <sup>7</sup> ~~IN~~ IN HIS SPEECH WARD CRITICIZED PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S STATEMENT THAT THE COLD WAR MUST GO ON UNTIL RUSSIA SURRENDERS. SINCE WE LEARNED THAT RUSSIA HAS THE A-BOMB WE ARE ALMOST BEGGING THE SOVIET RUSSIA TO COME TO AN AGREEMENT. WARD SAID THAT A CONVENTION SHOULD BE CALLED TO OUTLAW USE OF THE A-BOMB AND TO REMEMBER THAT SOVIET RUSSIA HAD PROPOSED FROM THE VERY BEGINNING TO OUTLAW THE BOMB. IT WAS HENDERSONS PERSONAL CONCLUSION THAT THE MARSHALL PLAN HAD LOWERED THE STANDARD OF LIVING IN MARSHALL COUNTRIES, HE EMPH<sup>S</sup>IALIZED THAT OUR GOVERNMENT MAKES A BIG MISTAKE IN ASSUMING THAT EUROPEANS WILL ALLOW EUROPE TO BECOME A SPRING BOARD AGAINST SOVIET RUSSIA IN CASE OF WAR, AND SAID THAT IF THERE WAS ANY WAR IN EUROPE IT WOULD BE A CIVIL WAR. [REDACTED] AMERICAN POST WAR POLITICAL AND ECONOMICAL POLICY WHICH WAS CHAIRED BY HARRY GRUNDFEST WHO SAID THAT THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN A COLD AND HOT WAR WAS A MATTER OF DEGREE. INFORMANT SAID J.J. JOSEPH SAID THAT OUR FARM POLICY AND THE MARSHALL PLAN WERE DEVISED FOR PURPOSE OF PROMOTING INDUSTRIAL POLICY FOR WESTERN EUROPE BUT THAT IT WAS A FAILURE AS THE ONLY COUNTRY BENEFITED WAS WEST GERMANY. HE SAID THAT THIS WAS AN ATTEMPT TO MAKE WESTERN GERMANY A WAR BASE AGAINST THE SOVIET UNION. JOHNSON SAID OUR FARM POLICY COINCIDES WITH OUR ECONOMIC POLICY AND FOR THAT REASON WE WENT TO THE AID OF GREECE AGAINST GREEK PEOPLE AND TO AID OF CHINA AGAINST CHINESE PEOPLE. HE SAID THAT THE CONGRESS SHOULD DEMAND THE GOVERNMENT RESUME ECONOMIC AND CULTURAL RELATIONS WITH SOVIET UNION AND EASTERN COUNTRIES. [REDACTED] SPOKE ON SAME PANEL AND DENOUNCED

ENCLOSURE

Donald Henderson, labor leader, addressed this session and pointed out that the recent campaign of Paul Robeson had a tremendous effect on people all over the world in the campaign for peace as they now know that people other than President Truman want peace. Henderson claimed that the people of the United States want trade between the east and the west, but that to do so we must change our foreign policies. It was Henderson's personal conclusion that the Marshall Plan had lowered the standard of living in those countries receiving aid under the Plan. He emphasized that our Government makes a big mistake in assuming that Europeans will allow Europe to become a springboard against the Soviet Union in case of a war and stated that if there was any war in Europe it would be a civil war.

Panel - "American Postwar Political and Economical Policy"

This panel was chaired by Harry Grundfest who contended that the difference between a cold and hot war was a matter of degree.

Jessica Smith, Editor of "Soviet Russia Today," spoke on this panel and denounced the placing of the NCASF on the subversive list just because it was for peace. She also proposed outlawing of the atomic bomb in the United States.

Panel - "Political Structure and Development in the Soviet Union"

This panel was chaired by Berniece Noar.

Theodore Bayer was the first speaker and spoke on the Soviet Constitution. According to Bayer, the rights of Soviet citizens are protected providing complete equality for all regardless of sex or race.

Corliss Lamont, as the next speaker, called for an unprejudiced analysis of the problems of the United States and the Soviet Union. Lamont contended that neither country was a perfect democracy. He said that Czarist Russia was anti-Semitic but the revolution changed that. He also contended that anti-Semitism was taken into the Ukraine by the Nazis, but had been eliminated by the Soviets.

Harry F. Ward said the Soviets have the highest form of democracy and contended that those that criticize the Soviet Union have never been to Russia. Ward felt that the discontinuance of the United States war plans would help the Soviets to develop.

(NY TT 12-4-49)

Panel - "American - Soviet Relations and Peace Settlement in Europe"

This panel session held on December 4, 1949, was chaired by Theodore Bayer who merely introduced the various speakers.

Dr. Gregory Meiksins spoke on the possibility of complete world peace and contended that such was possible if Roosevelt's Foreign Policy would be followed, as Roosevelt's Policy was an attempt by Capitalism to take a progressive stand. He emphasized the importance and necessity of restoring trade with the Eastern Democracies and cooperating with the Soviet Union.

Dr. Otto Nathan commented on the foolishness of the United States spreading propaganda that the Soviet Union is dominating Poland and Czechoslovakia as both of these countries look to the Soviet Union for protection and common faith holds them together. He indicated that Russia would go all-out to protect Poland and that the United States with its usual war policy was preventing faster development of industry in Poland and Czechoslovakia. He contended that it was wishful thinking on the part of the United States to believe that Yugoslavia would serve the purpose of splitting the Eastern Democracies from the Soviet Union.

Victor Perle contended that if the Roosevelt - Stalin policies were followed, Fascism, a world-dominating evil force, would be wiped out and no remnants of Fascism would remain in the world.

Panel - "Nationality and Fraternity"

Speakers on this panel emphasized the necessity of refuting the slanders of Soviet anti-Semitism by all methods, and urged all progressive people to join non-progressive organizations to become leaders in these organizations and to stress to the members the importance of world peace through progressive means.

The following resolutions were passed at this panel session:

- (1) Publish wherever possible denials of anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union.
- (2) Inform the public on the question of "Titoism" and its attempt to split-up the United Nations.
- (3) All progressives must expose war mongers and join known progressive organizations to bring the peace issue to the people.

Closing Plenary Session
December 4, 1949

Jessica Smith at this closing plenary session read the over-all resolutions adopted by the Congress which were as follows:

- (1) Stop the cold war.
- (2) Work for cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

(3) Outlaw the North Atlantic Pact as a violation of the United Nations Charter.

(4) Stress the fact that the Soviet Union asked for peace while the United States closed the door on all peace negotiations.

(5) Lift any trade embargo between the United States and the Soviet Union and Far Eastern Democracies.

(6) Reduce arms program in the United States.

(7) Recognize the New China Government.

(8) Strengthen the United Nations.

(9) Destroy all atomic bombs.

(10) Appeal to all community leaders not to be influenced by the propaganda of the Pope and the Catholic Church against the Soviet Union.

(NY TT 12-3-49)

This Congress was concluded with a rally at Madison Square Garden on December 5, 1949.

Madison Square Garden Rally

This rally was opened by Dr. Kingsbury who served as Chairman. He stated that at a NCASF rally held seven years ago the organization was hailed as a leader by top Government officials but today the same organization was called subversive because political leaders in Washington, D. C. were more interested in selfish aims received through stimulation of the cold war with the Soviet Union.

John Howard Lawson, screen writer, in addressing the rally pointed out that the rally was held for friendship but that America was put to shame and degraded by its Washington leaders who are puppets of Wall Street and conform to their dictates. He stated that the United States talks of peace but through the Marshall Plan, the Truman Doctrine and the Arms Program displays a warlike action. Lawson called for the outlawing of the atomic bomb as the first step to peaceful negotiations with the Soviet Union. Lawson contended that Washington and its leaders were conspiring to destroy the Bill of Rights and spread malicious propaganda and lies about the Soviet Union.

Reverend Charles Hill, church leader from Detroit, Michigan, called for cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union, the outlawing of the atomic bomb, and faith in each other as aims of a lasting peace. He contended that the Truman Doctrine, the Marshall Plan and the atomic bomb are no guarantee of peace but rather would lead to war.

Howard Fast, writer, said Russia would use atomic energy for the spreading of peace and the development of industry and contended that the Soviet Union was the hope of mankind today. Fast explained that he was ashamed to appear as a speaker in the Soviet Union because of the display of bad taste and lack of common courtesies shown by Americans to Russia.

Donald Henderson, labor leader, called on the American people to discount the claim that the cold war would lead to peace. He attacked William Green and Philip Murray for attempting to split the trade union movement the world over, stating that American workers and all American people need world trade. He called on the American workers to fight not only against the cold war but also for the outlawing of the atomic bomb.

William Howard Melish, former Chairman of the NCASF, acted as narrator for a skit acted out on the speakers platform. The idea of the skit was that millions of people the world-over are united in a movement against war and the outlawing of the atomic bomb. In the skit it was emphasized that peace and friendship between the United States and the Soviet Union is possible.

Reverend Richard Morford in making the collection speech stated that the NCASF was working for peace against the heaviest odds of ridicule, suppression, fear and subversive listings but was forging ahead in its fight for peace and outlawing of the atomic bomb.

Maribel Draper, President of the Congress of American Women, who just returned from Moscow where she had attended a conference held by the Women's International Democratic Federation, stated that she brought greetings from the women of the Soviet Union to the women of America. She stressed the fact that the women of the Soviet Union are interested in building world peace as they hate war and desire peace and friendship with the United States.

Elmer Benson, Chairman of the Progressive Party, called for the unity of the American people to fight against double policy and double talk. He contended that the North Atlantic Pact is lowering the standard of living of the European people, and that European people are against the North Atlantic Pact. He called for the immediate recognition of the People's Government of China. Benson related that in his travels throughout Europe he saw no fear except from the career diplomats who had enshrouded themselves behind an iron curtain. He called for the outlawing of the atomic bomb as an aid to peace.

Dr. Julius Katz-Suchy, Polish delegate to the United Nations, stated that in the present situation there is not one issue bigger than the issue of peace and war. He stressed the fact that Socialism and Capitalism can live side by side and criticized the attitude of the United States toward Vishinsky's proposal in the United Nations to conclude a Five Power Non-Aggression Pact. He stated that if no pact was necessary, why was the North Atlantic Pact passed. He contended that the atomic bomb must be outlawed and atomic energy must be used for the benefit of mankind.

O. John Rogge, National Committeeman of the Progressive Party, stated that the Progressive Party would not become "A tail to a foreign kite," and that the Party should make it clear to all people that it is a reform party and not a radical party. Rogge admitted that though not a radical party, the Progressive Party was supported by Communists. He contended, however, that if the Progressive Party did not approve of the Cominform stand on various issues, the Progressive Party would not hesitate to express its dislike.

Congratulatory telegrams received from Reverend Hewlett Johnson, Pierre Cot of France, Madam Curie, and Madam Sun Yat Sen were read at the rally.

This notice calls for "End the Cold War - Get Together for Peace" and contains a roll call for people listing places for six signatures after the names of the following individuals: HENRY A. WALLACE, PAUL ROBESON, JO DAVIDSON and MARY VAN KLEECK.

This leaflet at the bottom calls for its return to the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Room 3, 2828 Euclid Avenue.

Confidential informant [ ] of known reliability advised on February 3, 1949 that HARRY BECKER (reported CP member) who has shared office space with the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship, told ELMER FEHLHABER (Ohio correspondent of the "Daily Worker") about renting South Hall C of the Public Auditorium on February 26, 1949 under the name of the Council of American-Soviet Friendship. BECKER also advised that tickets could be obtained at the Council office on Euclid Avenue.

Confidential informant [ ] of known reliability, on February 10, 1949, advised that MARTIN CHANCEY (Secretary CP of Ohio) told [ ] (CP sympathizer and active in work sponsored by the CP) that he had a project for her. He stated that the Council of Soviet-American Relations was trying to call a number of people and ask them for a statement on what they thought of the idea of Stalin and Truman getting together to establish peace. He further advised [ ] according to informant, that there was one girl in town who was overwhelmed and that it was thought that some of the girls at the UE-735 office might be able to give this girl a hand in calling people. [ ] stated that [ ] agreed to help and that MARTIN CHANCEY told her that he would have the girl working on this matter drop into MAMIE's office.

Informant [ ] further advised that on February 10, 1949 MARTIN CHANCEY told [ ] Office of American-Soviet Friendship who was reported by [ ] as having recently returned to [ ] that the girls at UE-735 would give her a hand and told her to contact [ ] Confidential informant [ ] of known reliability, on February 18, 1949, made available a leaflet announcing a "peace rally" with Dr. HARRY R. WARD as the speaker on "How to End the Cold War". This leaflet stated that the rally would be held on February 26, 1949 at 8:00 PM at the Public Auditorium South Hall C. Confidential informant [ ] of known reliability, advised, on February 24, 1949, that MARTIN CHANCEY contacted [ ] at the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship, telling her that he had a young fellow who was unemployed who needed a few dollars and that he was going to come to see [ ]. Informant advised that [ ] was in accord with this and told MARTIN she would pay him out of the treasury and get reimbursed from the "Angel". (Believed to be JOSEPH MORGENSTERN, whom confidential informant [ ] of unknown reliability, has believed to be a heavy contributor either directly or indirectly to the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship).

[ ] further advised that [ ] also stated she had received a letter from one ABBOTT (phonetic) setting forth a strong injunction on the peace rally. Informant stated according to [ ] ABBOTT said that the Ohio group doesn't realize that peace is the important thing.

Confidential informant [ ] advised on March 1, 1949 that a meeting sponsored by the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship, was held February 26, 1949 in the Public Auditorium, Cleveland, with approximately 200 people in attendance. Informant stated that [ ] was present at the meeting and said that RODIN had recently returned from a year's stay in California. [ ] advised that RUSSELL NICHOLS CHASE (identified by [ ] as having been a leader in the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship in the past) chaired the instant meeting.

Informant stated [ ] (reported CP member) was the first speaker and that she gave an account of her recent European trip to Budapest as a delegate to a World-Wide Conference held there. Informant reported that the general theme of [ ] speech was that all the delegates and peoples of Europe are firm in their determination to have peace and to prevent a third World war. Informant further stated that [ ] said that the American delegates are equally firm in their determination to do everything possible to help those abroad get what they want and to bring the truth to the American people so that they will understand the facts.

[ ] advised Dr. HARRY C. WARD was the main speaker and advised the assemblage substantially as follows. WARD stated that the headquarters of the National Council had asked him to make the instant tour inasmuch as someone was needed to follow up the Dean of CANTERBURY throughout the middlewest. WARD commented on the present situation between the United States and Russia laying full blame at the door of the United States. He stated the United States, despite the Monroe Doctrine, is mixing in affairs across the Atlantic, not to develop peace but to fatten the pockets of American industrialists.

He charged that additional airports have been built in Greece which are more than adequate to accommodate the planes of Greece and have been built to accommodate the large American bombers. He said this is because America is preparing for war and wants landing fields in case war develops with Russia. He charged that the Atlantic Pact is nothing but interference in Europe of a kind that is incendiary, not for the purpose of establishing peace but for setting up a coalition against Russia.

Dr. WARD also mentioned "leaks" in various secret meetings. He spoke about "Operation X" of which he had learned from a leak. He said Operation X is to be handled so clandestinely that reports will go only to the President. He said an appropriation is to be requested for this new operation which he claimed is to be an infiltration of the Communist Party in Europe for the purpose of espionage and sabotage. He said that the agents will be outer-fringe Communists.

WARD likened Russia to the State of Texas whose symbol is a rattlesnake with the caption "Don't Tread on Me". He said don't push Russia too far; they have accomplished too much. He said the river rolls on and on and cannot be stopped and will eventually overcome those that try to stop it. WARD said the only overall American plan is for world armament and it is to set up one faction against the other. He said America is again preparing for war and war with Russia.

[ ] also made available literature distributed at the Ward meeting put out by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 114 East 32nd Street, New York 16, New York. The first piece of literature dated February 4, 1949 was entitled "America Explains the Door to Peace - Dean ATCHINSON's Statements Refuted". This piece of literature is devoted to attempting to refute statements by Secretary of State DEAN ATCHINSON at the peace conference of February 2 (1949). The second piece of literature dated January 26, 1949 carried the heading "American-Soviet Friendship, Report on the News". This piece of literature is devoted to an attack on the North Atlantic Defense Pact.

Confidential informant [ ] of known reliability, on November 28, 1949 advised concerning the celebration of the 32nd Anniversary of the Soviet Union held November 20, 1949 at Cleveland. [ ] stated that the featured speaker, Rev. WILLIAM H. MELISH spoke mostly about conditions in Russia at the present time. Informant stated MELISH said he had been in Russia for a period of time and talked about the wonderful progress made in Russia in the past few years. He stated that because of war for years, the country had a long struggle to overcome the devastation to the land. He said that at last the Soviet Union found a way of progress; that their valleys, mountains and many rivers had been moved by the discovery of the atomic bomb. According to informant, MELISH said this atomic energy has moved many mountains where they now are raising food products enabling the creation of vast fertile areas for cultivation. Informant said Rev. MELISH stated it is possible for America to have peace with the Soviet Union if they will get together for conferences and overcome the hysteria of war prevailing in all countries. Informant stated there were approximately 200 people present to hear Rev. MELISH.

DISCONTINUANCE OF HEADQUARTERS, CLEVELAND COUNCIL AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP

Confidential informant [ ] on March 17, 1949, advised that HARRY BECKER, who had been sharing space with the Cleveland Council American-Soviet Friendship at 2828 Euclid Avenue was moving his office the following day.

A check of the directory at 2828 Euclid Avenue, reflects that neither HARRY BECKER nor Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship any longer occupy space in that building.

The information service of the Ohio Bell Telephone Company advised that there no longer is a listing for a telephone in the name of the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship although this organization previously had a telephone while they occupied space at 2828 Euclid Avenue.

Confidential informant [ ] on October 11, 1949, advised that HARRY BECKER was now engaged in business as an insurance salesman.

[ ] on December 14, 1949, advised that in recent months there has been no activity on the part of the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship under that name. [ ] stated that in his opinion committees under special names were being used by the Communist Party and by Communist Party front groups for specific meetings and that Communist Party leaders in Cleveland have commented that it was their intention to operate in this manner. [ ] stated he therefore felt that the name Ohio Committee on American-Soviet Relations was chosen specifically by Communist Party leaders or by leaders of the American-Soviet Friendship Council for the purpose of that one meeting.

[ ] pointed out that [ ] had returned once again to California and inasmuch as she had been doing most of the work for the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship, [ ] felt that no organizational work by that organization was being done in this area.

Confidential informant [ ] advised on December 14, 1949 that he has not heard of any activities on the part of the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship under that name in recent months. He stated that in his opinion the Cleveland Council American-Soviet Friendship as an organization was probably not functioning as they had in the past but would call people together only for special meetings.

ARMS AND THE WAR PACT

Upon his return to Washington from the Paris Conference of the Council of Foreign Ministers, Secretary of State Dean Acheson told both the Senate and House Foreign Relations Committees that it was of "utmost importance" that Congress, at this session, ratify the North Atlantic War Pact and authorize the arms-aid to Western Europe. This, the Secretary said, "is necessary in order that we may continue our firm policy in Europe and maintain the momentum which has been stimulated by this policy."

On July 5, the Senate started debate on the Atlantic War Pact. Senator Tom Connally (D-Tex), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, appealed for speedy ratification of this first peace-time military alliance in the history of the United States. Despite the length of his speech -- 8,500 words -- the Senator was unable to put forward any new argument in favor of the Pact. He rehashed the same arguments put forward by Pact proponents during the last months. As I.F. Stone put it in the New York Daily Compass on July 6:

"His statement was as banal as it was long, and seemed as labored as a schoolboy chore. It was more than unconvincing. It sounded unconvincing. Its feeblest passage was the attempt to reconcile this new global commitment with the warnings against entangling alliances by which both Washington and Jefferson ... set the traditional pattern of American foreign policy. Connally said 'the kind of alliances' they 'had in mind were vastly different from the Atlantic Pact.' Where these vast differences lay was not explained."

Senator Connally stressed the importance of Article Four of the Pact which provides for consultations among the signatory powers in case any one of them feels its territorial integrity or independence threatened. This article, the Senator pointed out, "rightly faces up to the brutal fact that peaceful peoples have become more and more conscious of a sinister kind of danger -- indirect aggression. ... Let us not forget that no bombs were dropped on Bulgaria, Hungary or Czechoslovakia." Thus Senator Connally implied that the action of the peoples in those nations -- the creation of a new form of democracy based on socialist principles and friendship with the USSR -- constituted "indirect aggression" by the Soviet Union. And, while asserting that the Pact was "not directed against the Soviet Union nor its satellites," he blamed the USSR for having made "peace still more remote" by its "long catalogue of thirty vetoes" in the United Nations. He suggested the Soviet Union "demonstrate her peaceful intentions and embrace a policy of full co-operation with the North Atlantic countries within the framework of the United Nations." What Senator Connally did not say was that the North Atlantic War Pact itself violates the principle and Charter of the United Nations, that the United States acted and still acts outside the United Nations through the Truman Doctrine and the Marshall Plan and that the "thirty vetoes" cast by the USSR in the UN Security Council were cast on only eight issues; several of these were issues brought up again and again by the U.S. in the full realization of the fact that they were unacceptable to the USSR.

ARMS-TO-EUROPE PROGRAM

Senator Connally also put forward an urgent appeal for Congressional approval, at this session, of the $1,130,000,000 arms-to-Europe program with which the Administration plans to begin implementation of the War Pact. This program has not yet been submitted to Congress by President Truman. While the Pact's ratification is up to the Senate alone, the arms-to-Europe program must pass both Houses. According to the New York Times (7/6/49) Senator Connally explained "off the floor" that the arms program "will come up to us from the Administration as soon as we have finished with the treaty." He added that he now 'definitely' understood that action was to be put on this session's calendar."

Thus, despite increased pressure by the State Department and the Pentagon, the Administration prefers to hold off the European re-armament program until after Senate ratification of the Pact. Administration leadership has expressed some fear that undue rush about the arms program may cause Senators who are not too enthusiastic about the Pact to use this program as an argument against the Pact's ratification. This has put the Administration as well as the proponents of the arms-to-Europe program in quite a dilemma. Congress wants to adjourn before the end of the summer. The President insists that some of the more pressing "fair deal" measures be acted upon by Congress before adjournment. The arms-to-Europe program will certainly be debated at length in both Houses. Many of the law-makers who support the War Pact have signaled their opposition to the re-arming of Western Europe. (Sen. Taft, generally opposed to the arms program, told newsmen on July 5 that any such military aid should be restricted to France.) There might not be time to act on the arms program before Congress meets again next January unless the domestic issues be dropped and the debate on the program be sharply curtailed.

The White House, as well as the State Department and the Pentagon will do everything in their power to prevent Congress from putting off the arms program until next January. The underlying reason for this also explains the official effort to minimize, to the American public, the concrete accomplishments of the Paris Conference of the Council of Foreign Ministers. Official Washington is concerned that too much accent on success at Paris could result in the disintegration of the cold war into a "cold peace." Congress must act NOW on the arms-to-Europe program, or it may never act, it is felt. This fall the United Nations General Assembly is to meet again in New York. During that session, the Big Four Foreign Ministers may attempt to agree on a workable plan for a German peace treaty. At the same time the foreign ministers will have before them the draft for the Austrian peace treaty and it is expected that this treaty will be signed sometime in October. In other words, by the time Congress returns to Washington in January, much will have been accomplished in the direction of peace in Europe. Under such circumstances no economy-minded Congress will be inclined to appropriate a billion or more dollars for the re-armament of a Western Europe where tensions have vanished and where the main effort is being put into real economic recovery and to further peace instead of a cold war. Should this happen, the entire present foreign policy of the Truman Administration would collapse, its props would have been pulled out from under it.

This is what Mr. Acheson must have had in mind when he said that, in order to continue our cold-war-policy -- he called it our "firm policy" -- we must "maintain the momentum" -- the momentum of that which is, cold war, war hysteria, and no compromise with the Soviet Union.

WALL STREET JOURNAL REJECTS U.S. BELLIGERENCE

Taking issue with this attitude of Mr. Acheson's, the Wall Street Journal said editorially on June 24:

"Having begun the rearmament of western Europe this year, more rearmament next year would clearly be necessary to maintain the momentum achieved this year -- and so on and on. Significantly, the Administration has never pretended that there would be only one year of military aid.

"Before long it would appear that mere rearmament was not providing sufficient momentum. Why? Because the turning of western Europe into an armed camp would drive the Soviets farther than ever away from the basis of a possible settlement. Something new would be required to supply the momentum. With conditions as they would be, it could hardly fail to occur to the policy-makers that the only new thing -- the only thing that could force a settlement -- would be war.

"The fallacies in American policy would thus produce the exact opposite of the result intended by that policy.

"We do not know that a peaceful settlement with the Soviet Union ever will be possible. But if it is to be, it must be approached by peaceful means. We therefore reject Secretary Acheson's momentum theory. We hold it not appeasement not to rearm western Europe -- especially now, at a time when qualified observers are reporting from Europe that it is fear of an American depression, not fear of Soviet aggression, which is worrying western Europeans. It needs to be pointed out that billions for rearmament will not help avert the threat of depression.

"A stage has been reached where it is not only possible but desirable to level the cold war off at its present point. This is so because the Soviets are contained by their own pressing problems; they have no taste for insane military adventures in western Europe. What is needed from us is a program for coming to terms with the Soviet Union on Germany and Europe. We do not now have such a policy.

"The way to get it is not by building a new Festung Europa. Firmness, yes; belligerence, no."

PROMINENT AMERICANS SOUND ALARM

On July 7, 216 outstanding American clergymen, educators, labor leaders, writers and artists urged non-ratification of the Pact in a letter to every member of the U.S. Senate. Warning that the fulfillment of the Pact's mutual defense obligations would result in "a vast armament race," and that "great armaments have always led to war," the signers proposed "constructive and honorable alternatives to this perilous military alliance." They recommended full support of the United Nations "whose primary business it is to settle differences among all nations and to maintain peace." They further recommended that "peaceful negotiations should continue among the Big Four powers. Particularly, there should be a conference between the United States and the Soviet Union at the highest level to seek an honest settlement of our differences."

Prominent among the signers were: The Right Rev. W. Appleton Lawrence, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Western Massachusetts; Prof. P.A. Sorokin, Chairman of Division of Sociology, Harvard University; Dean Walter G. Muelder, Boston University School of Theology; Mildred Scott Olmstead, General Administrative Secretary, Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; Errol T. Elliott, Executive Secretary of the Five Years Meeting of Friends; Prof. Abraham J. Cronbach, Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati; Justice James H. Wolfe, Supreme Court of Utah; Rev. Donald B. Cloward, Council on Christian Social Progress of Northern Baptist Convention; Prof. Colston Warner, ~~Harvard~~ College; Rev. R. Farley Fisher, General Secretary, African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church; Rabbi David Granbart, Chicago; Prof. Oswald Veblen, Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton; Rev. Prof. Halford E. Luccock, Yale Divinity School; and Prof. Robert J. Havighurst, University of Chicago.

HENRY WALLACE WARNS

On July 4, the day before the debate in the Senate started on the North Atlantic War Pact, Henry A. Wallace sent an open letter to the U.S. Senate with the warning that if the government persists in pursuing the foreign policies embodied in the Pact, there will be one million fewer jobs in America. Urging the Senators to reject the Pact, Wallace declared that "the reality of a world economic crisis demands that we stop and completely reconsider the foreign policy which the Pact expresses."

Pointing to the growing economic crisis and unemployment in every country of Western Europe, Wallace stated that "no candid appraisal of the Pact and our foreign policy could now honestly assert that they contribute to maintain prosperity."

"It is now proposed," he added, "to divert the energies and the capital and the resources of these nations to further military preparedness when all resources are needed to prevent economic disaster."

Wallace warned that the Pact added further to world crisis and ~~unemployment~~ by maintaining economic barriers between East and West. "In every single state of the Union there is now unemployment that results from the simple fact that our own trade with Eastern Europe has dwindled to a mere trickle." He added that if our trade with Eastern Europe "were permitted to reach the same per capita level as our trade with Western Europe, and our trade with China to reach the same level as our trade with the rest of Asia, there would be a million more jobs in America within six months."

Wallace then pointed out that although only a "limited" accord was reached at the Paris Foreign Ministers' Conference, "some accord was reached."

"It means that both Russia and the Western Powers can agree," he declared. "It seems clear that the path to further agreement lies in the opening up of trade between East and West. That path must not be road-blocked by ratification of the Pact."

USSR WOULD WELCOME U.S. TRADE PROPOSALS

Echoing similar views, Soviet President Nikolai ~~Shvernik~~, on July 5, told the new U.S. Ambassador Admiral Alan G. Kirk when the latter presented his credentials, ~~that~~ the Soviet Union was prepared to receive with attention and interest ~~any U.S. proposals~~ designed to broaden Russian-American trade and looking toward general relaxation of economic barriers. (NYTimes, 7/6/49)

President Shvernik, according to the Times, "made it plain that on the Soviet side there was no barrier toward receiving and considering economic questions that the United States might desire to discuss."

But Secretary of State Acheson, asked at his press conference on July 6 to comment on the Soviet President's remarks, immediately poured cold water on any hopes of improved trade relations. According to press reports he stated that it was up to the Soviet Union to approach the U.S. on increased trade. Has Mr. Acheson forgotten that it is part and parcel of U.S. foreign policy to insist on the embargo against East-West trade, that the Soviet Union has repeatedly stressed the importance of East-West trade resumption for the benefit of world peace and of the American as well as the Soviet people?

Also advocating the dropping of the Marshall Plan barriers to East-West trade, the National Guardian said on July 4: "Normal trade relations would keep U.S. workers in heavy industry employed. Eastern Europe, the USSR and China provide a vast market. Western Europe could get the modern machinery it needs and raise its living standards. Better living standards mean increased consumption and bigger markets for all kinds of goods."

THE COMPASS COMMENTS

The New York Daily Compass said editorially on July 6 that the debate on the North Atlantic War Pact in the Senate was not, "of course, a debate at all." But, it said, Henry Wallace's "call for One World in economics ... will not be forgotten by those who are certain to be among the at least one million additional unemployed in the next six months if his suggestions go unheeded." But, the Compass contended, the "so-called hearings are a farce."

"There is genuine chance, however, that the appropriations sought by the Administration to pay for rearming Western Europe can be subjected to real debate when the matter originates, as it must under our Constitution, in the House of Representatives.

"A public aroused by genuine attention to Mr. Wallace's open letter could -- and should -- cause such a discussion of this fundamental policy as to impress upon the Administration that the people who must pay for war, both with their property and their lives, simply will not stand for a repetition of the Government-made depression, as a forerunner to providing us with another war as the 'answer' to our home-made economic ills.

"Mr. Wallace points out that if our trade with Eastern Europe were permitted to reach the same per capita level as our trade with Western Europe, and our trade with China to reach the same level as our trade with the rest of Asia, at least a million more jobs would be created at once.

"With unemployment already at the five million mark, the time to ~~lead these words of wisdom~~ is now ... not after the pattern of militarization has been fastened upon us permanently.

"Every Congressman should be written, telegraphed, telephoned by individual citizens and groups of citizens, to demand a change in our policy of Administration-made crisis, answered with more of the same policies which have been responsible for the crisis.

"The West, including the United States, is needlessly facing bankruptcy. The resources and the power to create usefully, instead of creating eternally for destruction, are in our possession.

"If we permit these resources to be converted into a mere war-machine, we will not only produce a crisis, we will have lent ourselves to war in which democracy will be the first casualty ... and a self-imposed casualty."

In the same issue of the Compass Jennings ~~Ferry~~ commented that "in full public discussion the Pact would not wash" and "that it would be impossible to show the American people how we, with our national debt and our operating deficit, can afford to give Europe billions for arms, which Europe, teetering on the verge of bankruptcy every day, cannot possibly support."

THE PEOPLE MUST ACT

While it is expected that the Senate will ratify the Pact within a week, this does not mean that the Pact will be as effective as our policy-makers hoped it would be. The ratification of the Pact, bad as that may be in itself, is one thing. But the arms-to-Europe program is another. And there is sufficient opposition in both Houses of Congress against this latter program. And, the Administration tells us, without the arms program the Pact is just a scrap of paper. Therefore, the admonition given in the Compass editorial quoted above should be taken to heart by every peace-loving American. If our representatives on Capitol Hill are made to realize that the American people mean it when they say they want houses, not atom bombs; butter, not guns; social security and not layoffs due to war production, they might vote down the arms program and the Pact will remain an atrocious piece of paper that never came to life because the American people refused to implement it and to transform it into a one-way street to war.

Roll Call for Peace

The "Illinois Standard" in its issue of January 8, 1949, contained on page two, column one, an article captioned "Tombstone Float Shows up to Spur Peace Roll Call". This article points out that a tombstone and figure of death had appeared in various neighborhood shopping centers throughout Chicago during the past two weeks to dramatize the fight for peace. The float displayed slogans such as "Prevent Atomic War" and "Sign up for Peace" as part of a petition drive sponsored by the CCASF. The article continues that "thousands of downtown shoppers and office workers saw it this week when it appeared briefly at the corner of State and Madison Streets. There, a group of ministers and rabbis signed the seven foot Roll Call for Peace featured on the float in the name of thousands of Chicago churchgoers."

Dr. CORLISS LAMONT spoke.

(U) [Confidential informant ] stated LAMONT in his speech pointed out five points which must be clarified for better understanding of the Soviet Union. These points were -

1. Our false concept that everything Russian is bad and everything American is good
2. That there is an iron curtain around Russia - LAMONT claimed this was false and that in fact the iron curtain has been drawn around the United States.
3. That the Soviet Union is an aggressor - actually the United States is an aggressor with the North Atlantic Pact aimed at the USSR
4. That Soviet Russia is the same as Fascist Italy, and Nazi Germany, actually Soviet Russia is peace loving, fighting for freedom of all races and not a superior race.
5. Soviet Russia has no civil or political freedom. True but Soviet Russia is working toward this end.

The article continued that in his speech PANUYSHKIN reviewed in detail the history of what he called "the Soviet Union's policy of peace and friendship among all the nations of the world". In this regard he stated "as is known, the ruling circles of the countries which are planning a new war did not dare to reject offhand the humanitarian and peaceful proposals for controlling the atomic energy of the Soviet Union. "By contrast the Soviets have undertaken to discuss the liquidation of the lend-lease balances. The ratification of the Pact, bad as that may be in itself is one thing, but the Arms to Europe program is another, and there is sufficient opposition in both Houses of Congress against the latter program, and the administration tells us without the Arms program the Pact is just a scrap of paper.....If our representatives on capitol hill are made to realize that the American people mean it when they say they want houses, not atom bombs, butter, not guns, Social Security and not lay-offs due to war production, they might vote down the Arms program and the Pact will remain an atrocious piece of paper that never came to life because the American people refused to implement it and to transform it into a one way street to war."

"....Although the danger is great, we say these bills can be stopped. But it will take even greater action and protest from the people.

".... Act immediately. Let your State Representative know you want the Broyles Bills defeated in the House. Demand that Govonor Stevenson speak out against them, before the House vote. The zero hour is near, the people must act and they can win."

"I want you to know that I support such a program as the Fair Employment Practices Commission, improved with unemployment compensation, constitutional change and other progressive measures which are being smothered by a drive to pass the Broyles Bills. I urge you to publicly oppose and call for the defeat of the Broyles Bill in the House of Representatives.

[REDACTED] ON FEB. TWENTYFOUR, FIFTY, ADVISED THAT RICHARD MORFORD, EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR OF NCAAF, CONTACTED REV. HENRY JOHNSON, DEAN OF CANTERBURY, TO INQUIRE CONCERNING THE PEACE DELEGATION TO THE US. JOHNSON ADVISED THAT HE AND MONTAGUE NORMAN /PH./ HAD APPLIED FOR PASSPORTS BUT HAD HEARD NOTHING AS YET ABOUT THE PASSPORTS. JOHNSON STATED THAT THEY WOULD BE IN THE US ON THE PEACE DELEGATION FOR ONLY TWO DAYS BUT IF HIS PERMIT WAS GRANTED THIS VISIT WOULD NOT INTERFERE WITH HIS PLANE TO COME TO THE US ON BEHALF OF THE NCAAF. JOHNSON STATED HE COULD COME TO THE US FOR THE NCAAF BETWEEN EASTER AND WHITSUNDAY. MORFORD SUGGESTED THE BEST TIME WOULD BE THE END OF APRIL AND THE DEAN SHOULD PLAN ON VISITING CANADA FIRST AS HE DID ON HIS LAST TRIP AS IT WOULD BE A GREAT HELP TO THEIR MOVEMENT WHICH IS GROWING VERY SPLENDIDLY. The NCASF has been declared by the Attorney General to come within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

On September 8, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that RICHARD MORFORD told him that he and Dr. JOHN KINGSBURY, Treasurer of the NCASF, had agreed that October 6, 1949 would be the date that the annual dinner of the NCASF would be held.

Confidential Informant [ ] related on September 19, 1949 that MARY VAN KLEEK, JENNINGS PERRY, W.E.B. DUBOIS, and CORLISS LAMONT would be the main speakers at the annual NCASF dinner being held at the Manhattan Towers Hotel on October 6, 1949. The informant stated that Dr. KINGSBURY would open the discussion period by introducing CORLISS LAMONT. LAMONT would then carry on as chairman of the dinner, introducing the other speakers who would give short speeches.

MARY VAN KLEEK

In the 1949 report of the California Committee on Un-American Activities, on page 498, it was stated that MARY VAN KLEEK was one of the sponsors of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace and has been affiliated with from 51 to 60 Communist front organizations, and has given open support to Communist candidates in election campaigns.

JENNINGS PERRY

According to the official program of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, obtained through the cooperation of Confidential Informant [ ] in March 1949, JENNINGS PERRY was listed as a sponsor for this conference. The Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace was sponsored by the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions which, according to the California Committee on Un-American Activities on March 23, 1949, page 698, was cited as one of the most important Communist front organizations in the country.

b2

W.E.B. DU BOIS

According to Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, DU BOIS is Vice Chairman of the Council on African Affairs, which organization has been declared by the Attorney General to come within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

CORLISS LAMONT

According to the Fifth Report of the California Committee on Un-American Activities, of 1949, it was stated that CORLISS LAMONT was a sponsor for the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace which, according to the report, is an international Communist front group growing out of a Communist-sponsored Congress of Intellectuals held in Poland in August 1948. The report further indicates that LAMONT has been affiliated with from 41 to 50 Communist front organizations.

On September 28, 1949 an article appeared in the New York "Times" which stated that Dr. PHILIP D. MORRISON, a scientist, who helped assemble the atomic bombs for Hiroshima and Nagasaki, would appear as a guest speaker at the annual autumn dinner of the NCASF on October 6, 1949.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that Dr. PHILIP D. MORRISON was a member at large of the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions, and according to the official program of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, Dr. PHILIP D. MORRISON was a main speaker at this conference.

Confidential Informant [ ] on September 28, 1949, indicated that the annual dinner would be held October 6, 1949 and that all arrangements had been completed, and that DU BOIS, PERRY, MORRISON, VAN KLEEK and LAMONT had been definitely arranged as the speakers at this dinner.

On October 13, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that he had attended the annual dinner of the NCASF at the Manhattan Towers Hotel, New York City, on October 6, 1949. He stated that the theme of the speeches was the importance of friendship between the United States and the USSR in attaining world peace. He stated that approximately 250 people attended the dinner and that the chairman was Dr. JOHN KINGSBURY. According to the informant, RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of the Council, opened the meeting with a statement that the NCASF, "in spite of the Tom Clarks, is firmly entrenched in the hearts of thousands of peace-loving Americans in New York and all over the country. The reactionaries declared us subversive but the American people know better. They know that the aim of the organization is to work for friendship between our country and the Soviet Union. Our aim is peace, peace for the whole world."

JOHN KINGSBURY stressed the importance of the NCASF in the present set-up of a confused America. He stated in effect that "some people in the United States are confused and disappointed. It seems that the Soviets got their atomic bomb much earlier than the Pentagon crowd anticipated. The American people want peace and friendship between two great countries and that is the reason for the existence of the National Council."

JENNINGS PERRY, a columnist for the New York "Daily Compass", spoke on the Mexican Peace Conference. He stated that peace was human courage and that when he spoke of peace he spoke of friendship between the people of the United States and the USSR. He related that in Mexico he saw the courageous fight of the people of many American countries. "The war cries of the reactionaries are vicious and stupid and despite the official attitude of our government, American people want peace and cooperation with the Soviet Union."

He stated that since the explosion of the Soviet atomic bomb there is a psychological change for the better and that now was the time to make a loud call for peace in the world and the American people must outshout the stupidity of those who call for war.

Professor W.E.B. DU BOIS declared, according to the informant, that the Soviet Union is "the light tower for the enslaved people of the world". He related that the Soviet Union accomplished in a few dozen years what western European countries took centuries to acquire; that the Soviet Union is rolling uphill at a tremendous speed while Anglo Saxon countries are speeding downhill. He related that he had just returned from the Soviet Union and he did not see any secret police; that it was the imagination of the press in the United States who lie about the Soviet Union, and that these lies do not help the American people to establish a peaceful world.

DU BOIS related further that the Soviet Union is making terrific strides and their accomplishments are miraculous. He stated they have liquidated racial hate and discrimination and have brought culture and knowledge to millions of people of different nationalities, and have established a system where all live a happy life.

CORLISS LAMONT in his speech related, according to the informant, that "I believe that I am one of the few that has the distinction of belonging to three or four subversive organizations. I noticed an interesting fact that when TOM CLARK calls someone subversive this person turns out to be a true American". He stated that the American government should stop the cold war as it does more harm to the United States than it does to the Soviet Union. He stressed the necessity of the business people of America working for friendship with the Soviet Union because we are losing prosperity and trade. He stated that everyone is talking about the Soviet atomic bomb but no one is stressing the fact that Russia is using the atomic bomb for life, not death; that they are using it for industry but the capitalist countries are not ready for this step. He stated the United States is basing its foreign policy on the idea that Russia wants war but that this is not true and now is the time to reverse our "crazy foreign policy".

Professor PHILIP MORRISON of Cornell University, stated that the fact that the Soviet Union succeeded in producing the atomic bomb will help strengthen the peace in the world. The club of the atomic bomb and the Soviet Union at the same time exploded the legend that the atomic science is enveloped in secrets known only to the American scientists. MORRISON stated there is no such thing as an atomic secret. He said the A-bomb is no longer 100% American.

MORRISON concluded his speech, according to the informant, by stating that "the blast of the atomic bomb in the Soviet Union makes war unthinkable. The United States government has now the opportunity to reverse its cold war policy and come to an agreement with Russia to give mutual assurance of good faith and together build a long, lasting peace."

The informant stated that a collection speech was made and the total amount received at this dinner was approximately $8,000.

B. Dinner in Honor of ANDREI Y. VISHINSKY,
November 10, 1949, Waldorf Astoria
Hotel, New York City

Confidential Informant [ ] on October 27, 1949, advised that he had learned from Dr. JOHN KINGSBURY that the NCASF was planning a dinner for November 10, 1949, which dinner would be held in honor of ANDREI Y. VISHINSKY. According to the informant, Professor COLSTON E. WARNE of Amherst College, Dr. HARRY F. WARD, and PAUL ROBESON would be the main speakers.

Professor COLSTON E. WARNE

According to the official program of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, obtained through the cooperation of Confidential Informant [ ] in March 1949, Professor COLSTON E. WARNE was a speaker on the topic of "Economic Consequences of the Cold War in the United States" at the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace.

Dr. HARRY F. WARD

According to the Fifth Report of the California Committee on Un-American Activities, 1949, Dr. HARRY F. WARD was one of the original sponsors of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, which was sponsored by the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions.

PAUL ROBESON

Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that PAUL ROBESON was Chairman of the Council on African Affairs, which has been declared by the Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

In April 1944 Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that PAUL ROBESON was a member of the Communist Party.

The "Daily Worker", an East Coast Communist daily newspaper, of November 4, 1949, page 6, column 5, carried an article stating that the Soviet Foreign Minister ANDREI Y. VISHINSKY would be the guest of honor at a dinner observing the 32nd anniversary of the founding of the Soviet state and the 16th anniversary of American-Soviet diplomatic relations. This dinner would be held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel on November 10, 1949.

On November 10, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that the following Russian officials would attend the NCASF dinner and reception at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York City: ANDREI Y. VISHINSKY, Y. A. MALIK, A. S. PANYUSHKIN, A. A. ARUTUNIAN, S. K. TZAROPKIN, D. Z. MANUILSKY, and V. G. MAKAROV.

On November 13, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] stated that he attended the dinner of the NCASF at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel on November 10th. He stated the dinner was held in honor of the establishment of the Soviet state 32 years ago and the 16 years of Soviet recognition by the United States. He related that the guest of honor was Soviet Foreign Minister ANDREI VISHINSKY, and that the dinner was attended by approximately 600 persons, and that about $8,000 was collected in the fund appeal.

He stated that Dr. JOHN KINGSBURY, Chairman of the NCASF, opened the speaking part of the dinner with greetings to the Soviet Union on their 32nd anniversary. KINGSBURY stated that the National Council was promoting peace and friendly relations between two great countries, and that, therefore, the NCASF was performing a great patriotic service. He stated that when the NCASF was organized they received greetings from great men like President ROOSEVELT, General EISENHOWER, HERBERT LEHMAN, and FIORELLO LA GUARDIA, but that times have changed and now TOM CLARK has declared the NCASF subversive.

KINGSBURY stated that he wanted the Soviet Foreign Minister to know that there are millions of people in the United States who have faith in the Soviet Union and that the NCASF greets the Soviet Foreign Minister in their name. He stated that in the United States there are summer soldiers and sunshine patriots but that the majority want peace offensive and the NCASF was getting ready for such an offensive. He then introduced CORLISS LAMONT,

LAMONT stated that at the dinner there were many of the guard of American-Soviet friendship, and "whether subversive or not subversive, the lovers of peace would continue to work for a peaceful relation between the Soviet Union and the United States." He stated that the American people are ignorant about Soviet Russia and that it was the duty of the NCASF to explain to the American people the truth about Russia and its working for peace and international friendship. LAMONT, according to the informant, related that Russia has many shortcomings, one of which is the lack of political democracy, but that they are making great advances even in this field.

LAMONT stressed the fact that the United States press is distorting facts about Russia by picking one subject and keep blasting on it for the purpose of confusing the American people. He related that the United States is spending billions of dollars for atomic energy for war while the Soviet Union is using atomic energy for peace and industry. He ended his speech by stating, "I would like to see an atomic competition between the United States and the Soviet Union for life, not death. Let's have an atomic economic race instead of an atomic armament race."

According to the informant, Professor COLSTON E. WARNE of Amherst College, stated that the struggle for peace and civil liberties must come from "United States non-Communists". He stated he believed in freedom of expression and hated to see people pushed around by an un-American committee and by an Attorney General. He stated "If this is subversiveness, I like to be counted among the subversives".

WARNE related that the United States, instead of creating a national hysteria, would do better if they had an official representative joining VISHINSKY at his table at this meeting. "Two social systems could co-exist in this world". He stated that Stalin expressed the same opinion but this does not make him (WARNE) a Marxist. He said the trial against the Communist leaders and world Communists is to scare the American people. It seems, he stated, that the American people forgot that the Communist Party is a legal party in almost every country of the world. "Why are we afraid of Communism?" he asked. "There is no need for our government to carry on a foreign policy which might lead to war. Millions of people all over the world turn to Socialism. Other millions turn to another system. What we need is international peace."

PAUL ROBESON, according to the informant, greeted VISHINSKY in Russian and in English by stating, "I greet the Soviet nation. The Soviet people are warm friends of my people, the negro people, and of the workers and progressive people of the whole world." ROBESON stated that if it were not for the existence of the Soviet Union, the pressure of reactionary forces would be greater and that "half of humanity is celebrating the 32nd anniversary of the Soviet Union and that 700 million people are the direct beneficiaries

"of their liberties because of the Soviet Union."

He spoke about the lynching of negroes in the United States, the trial of the eleven Communists, and the Peekskill affair, and stated the answer to these questions is clear -- "TOM CLARK." He related that the eleven Communist leaders will be free; that there is a rising militancy of the negro people. He said they were determined to fight for a decent life and the Peekskill affair showed that when the negro and white fought side by side they were fighting against real Fascists.

ROBESON stated "I love the Soviet Union because I am a negro and an American..... There is no democracy for my people in this country. Millions of negroes are denied the right to vote. They are the last to be hired and the first to be fired." According to the informant, ROBESON stated that the real patriots in the United States are those who work for friendship with the Soviet Union and the eastern European democracies. "The Soviet Union is giving us courage to stand up and fight for our rights." He concluded his speech by stating "I was and always will be a friend of the Soviet people. I was and always will be an anti-Fascist, a fighter for the freedom for all men."

Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, former Chairman of the NCASF, presented VISHINSKY with two photographs, one of TOLSTOY and the other of WHITMAN. He then stated that from a tour he had just completed, he found a tremendous concern of the American people on the world situation, and that it was necessary to make a supreme effort to acquaint the American people with the truth about the Soviet Union. He stated the time has come to mobilize the people for peace, to demand a re-examination of our foreign policy, and that the NCASF would start the mobilization for peace by a peace rally on December 5, 1949 in New York City. MELISH then made an appeal for funds for the continuation of the work of the NCASF.

C. Eastern Seaboard Congress of NCASF,
December 3 and 4, 1949, Manhattan
Center, New York City

On November 8, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that he had learned from RICHARD MORFORD that the NCASF was planning to hold an Eastern Seaboard Congress on American-Soviet relations on December 3 and 4, 1949.

Confidential Informant [ ] on November 9, 1949, advised that the NCASF was sponsoring a Congress on American-Soviet Relations for the Eastern States, which was to be known as the Eastern Seaboard Congress on American-Soviet Relations. The informant advised that this Congress was to promote effective cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union for a peaceful world. The informant advised that the Eastern Seaboard Congress would be broken up into panel sessions, panel 1 being the American post-war political and economic policy, a re-orientation toward American-Soviet cooperation, which would consist of the examination of the cold war policy, Truman doctrine, Marshall Plan, North Atlantic Pact, military aid, and peaceful alternatives.

b7D

Panel 2 would be the political structure and development in the Soviet Union.

Panel 3 would be the social system of the Soviet Union.

Panel 4 will be American-Soviet relations and the peace settlements in Europe.

Panel 5 will be American-Soviet relations and developments in the Far East, and Panel 6 will be the United States and the Soviet Union in the United Nations.

The informant stated that in a call to this Congress it was stated "It is of prime importance that our nation shall seek at once an honorable and just peace with the Soviet Union. Agreement is possible. Our nation has applied the cold war policy so long in its dealings with the Soviet Union that no assessment has been made of the constructive possibility in the peaceful negotiations of our differences. Now is the time to make that assessment. The Soviet Union may be expected to meet us half way.....The future of the United Nations organization and the entire family of nations depends on the cooperative relationship of the two countries."

On November 28, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that RICHARD MORFORD told him that at the panel sessions opening the Congress at Manhattan Center in New York City, that Panel 1 would be held twice so that all groups would be able to attend this session. The informant advised that MURIEL DRAPER would return from Moscow to attend a panel session, or at least to attend the NCASF rally at Madison Square Garden on December 5, 1949.

Confidential Informant [ ] in March 1950, advised that MURIEL DRAPER was the President of the Congress of American Women, which organization has been declared by the Attorney General to come within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

On December 7, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that he attended the Eastern Seaboard Congress held December 3 and 4, 1949 at Manhattan Center, New York City, and at the offices of the NCASF at 114 East 32nd Street, New York City. The informant advised that the theme of all the speeches at this Eastern Seaboard Congress on American-Soviet relations consisted of attacks against the Truman administration for the cold war, attacks against the Marshall Plan, and the North Atlantic Pact. It belittled the administration for its political, economic and foreign policies. Resolutions were adopted at the meeting for the establishment of a national educational campaign to enlighten the people as to the United States "propaganda program", the Soviet Union's peace aims, and the failure of the United States to participate in peace negotiations.

The informant advised that on December 3, 1949 the keynote session of the Eastern Seaboard Congress of the NCASF opened at Manhattan Center. RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of the NCASF, introduced the chairman of the keynote session by stating that the purpose of the Congress was to work out a program of action against the cold war and for the establishment of political and economic cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union. Approximately 200 people attended the keynote session.

Dr. JOHN KINGSBURY, Chairman of the Council, made a short speech stating that the delegates to this Congress represent different opinions on political, economic and religious questions but that all were interested in world peace, and that the Congress would conduct its business in the spirit of promoting world peace, and that "we must spearhead this movement for peace."

The informant advised that the following individuals were speakers at the Congress and gave a brief statement as to the tenor of their speeches:

Dr. HARRY F. WARD, professor of Union Theological Seminary, according to the informant, stated that the cold war policy was facing failure in Europe and the cold war policy of Washington is breaking up, facing failure, and there was a turning of the tide in the United States. He called for a reopening of cultural and economic relations between the United States, the Soviet Union, and the countries of eastern Europe. He stated that the rumor that Communism in Europe is on the decline is false. "The Communist Party in France is stronger today; so is the Communist Party in Italy". He related that the fact that the Pope was compelled to intervene in the Italian elections and to take up the fight of Communism on a world scale, proved that Communism was stronger in Europe and getting stronger all over the world.

WARD criticized President Truman for saying that the cold war must go on until Russia surrenders. WARD claimed that the United States was beginning to dictate instead of negotiate, but since the Soviet Union has the atomic bomb the situation has changed. There is now an approach to equality and "we are almost begging the Soviet Union to be good". He stated that in the cry for peace the voice of the NCASF must concentrate on the middle West, the purpose being to explain to those people and tell them the truth of the situation. According to WARD, a convention should be called to outlaw the use of the atomic bomb, and that from the very beginning the Soviet Union proposed this.

WARD stated that the administration had been crying that the Soviet Union wants to dominate the world. He explained that this might be correct ideologically, but compared it to Christianity who also wants to dominate the world, and stated that Communism has the same right as Christianity to agitate their ideas.

WARD stated that the following should be done to enlighten the masses: The distribution and printing of pamphlets and leaflets; preparing small editorials for the town newspapers; make recordings for the country people; buy time on small radio stations; talk to neighbors and have the subject of outlawing the atomic bomb discussed in the churches. He stated "We must devise an improved mass propaganda. Let's get the case to the people."

~~DONALD~~ HENDERSON, National Administrative Director of the Food, Tobacco, Agricultural and Allied Workers of America, also spoke at this panel, stating that "We speak to and also for the American people on peace." He claimed that the people of Europe want peace and that PAUL ROBESON's fight for peace and for a free world is great. "The negro people of the world are unconscious to the danger of war. They know now that we are fighting together for peace and that the Trumans and Marshalls are not the only voices of America. The real voice from America is the voice of the people and this is the voice of peace. The American workers want peace and better living conditions. They want peace because they realize it will be the workers who will have to pay the price of war."

HENDERSON claimed, according to the informant, that he spoke to hundreds of people in different countries of Europe on the subject of war with the Soviet Union, but that the people of Europe will not go to war against the Soviet Union as they are convinced the Soviet Union is their only friend. He claimed that if a war should break out, the people of Europe will turn the war into a civil war in every country of Europe, and "the underground who fought so bravely against Fascism is still alive and active in Europe".

HENDERSON attacked the CIO and AFL leadership for building a new international working class organization. He related that the national CIO was against cold war Fascism and the draft law, but within the last two years some other CIO leaders were "trying to sell a bill of goods to the workers -- no more opposition to the cold war, Fascism and draft. They expel anyone who disagrees with them." He related that the standard of living of American workers dropped as "you cannot spend money for war and keep social security." He demanded that the people cry out for an end to the cold war and spending money on war materials, and as an alternate demand an increase in world trade between the West and the East, development of backward areas, and trading with new China. He stated that the people must demand a change in our foreign policy.

On August 14, 1949 the "Brooklyn Eagle" newspaper carried a dispatch from Washington, D. C. dated August 13, 1949, which stated that DONALD HENDERSON, former President of the Food, Tobacco and Agricultural Workers, stated that he used to be a member of the Communist Party but resigned his Party membership in order to qualify his union for bargaining privileges held by the National Labor Relations Board.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that in the afternoon session of Panel 1, J. J. JOSEPH, former Director of Organization for Europe under the UNNRA, spoke on the cold war, stating that a cold war or hot war is only a difference in degree and that a cold war could easily become a hot war as it is a preparation for the hot war. He stated that the foreign policy of the United States, that is, the Truman doctrine, the Marshall Plan, and the North Atlantic Pact, is to promote an industrial policy for the United States domination of the world. He claimed that the eastern European countries are better off without the Marshall Plan than those under the Marshall Plan. He said eastern European countries in the Soviet Union increase their industrial output and reduced unemployment while the Marshall Plan countries' output dropped off and unemployment increased.

He concluded his speech by stating that the United States must recognize the failure of economic and military policy and remember that the high military budgets come out of the pockets of the people. He said the only remedy is a resumption of political and economic relations with all countries and thus bring peace and prosperity to the world.

Miss JESSICA SMITH, Editor of "Soviet Russia Today", related that American-Soviet cooperation is most important today as it was most important for the interest of our own country. She stated that this cooperation is as important today as lend lease was in 1941. She declared that the cold war policies have failed. "The Truman doctrine and the Marshall Plan have not worked nor could they be made to work. The cold war against the Soviet Union which began with the atomic bomb has failed since the Soviet Union also has the atomic bomb." Miss SMITH related that the United States is suffering from the cold war policy more than any other country, and that this country could suffer most "from the type of war that would be the only outcome of our present policy if not checked".

SMITH stated "The growing Socialist sector of the world is here to stay and the capitalist world needs to recognize this fact quickly in its own self-interest". She warned that the desperate drive of our country into evermore "war-like and disastrous policies" must be checked and it could be accomplished by following "a people's program for peace", namely, (1) the scrapping of aggressive blocs and pacts; (2) renewed effort for agreement through direct American-Soviet negotiations; (3) resume economic and trade relations with the Soviet Union, Eastern democracies and new China; (4) reduction of armaments and an end to war preparations and propaganda; (5) outlawing of the atomic bomb and bacteriological warfare.

She concluded by stating the Soviet Union always opens the door for peace and negotiation but this door is slammed shut by the United States. She stated "We must mobilize our people for peace. Our efforts are still weak but there is evidence of awakening. Our people want peace. The people of the Soviet Union want peace. Let's work for peace."

JESSICA SMITH, according to Confidential Informant [ ] is editor of the magazine "Soviet Russia Today", which publication has been cited as a Communist front by a Special Committee on Un-American Activities report of March 29, 1944, page 167.

Confidential Informant [ ] stated that THEODORE BAYER spoke at Panel 2 and that approximately 150 people were present to listen to the discussion of the political structure and development in the Soviet Union. According to the informant, BAYER's speech was based on figures as he spoke on the formation of the Soviet State, how the Soviet councils were formed during the Revolution of 1905, and how Lenin and Stalin again formed the Soviet State after the Bolshevik revolution of 1917. He related how the Soviets began in 1917 the foundation of the new state. His speech continued along the lines of the above, and he concluded by stating that the Soviet Union is presently a Socialist state and soon on its way to become a Communist state, and that the constitution will be changed again.

THEODORE BAYER

According to information received from Confidential Informant [ ] THEODORE BAYER is the Administrative Secretary of the NCASF.

CORLISS LAMONT spoke at this panel session and, according to the informant, stated that the most important thing is the use of "human reason" on American-Soviet relations. He stated angry men and screaming headlines will not solve the problem. The informant advised that LAMONT stated that there are shortcomings in both countries, but that the great achievement of the Soviet Union is the way the Soviet Union is solving its shortcomings, among which was the question of the 170 national minorities. He stated that these minorities were oppressed under the Czar but under the new regime the Soviet councils have established a regime of justice to national minorities.

LAMONT then spoke on the national minorities which make up the Soviet Union. He related that there was no anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union. He stated the Soviet Union was always opposed to Zionism as a world bourgeois movement but it is not anti-Semitic. "Anti-Semitism as we have in the United States has been eliminated in the Soviet Union". He stated that in the United States "a grave situation exists as we have a dangerous anti-negro and anti-Semitic movement and that is one reason the colonial people do not like the United States. They know that the Soviet Union is fighting for national minorities everywhere and the United States would do well to follow the example of the Soviet Union."

Professor HARRY F. WARD at this panel session related that democracy is a dynamic force in history and that "Socialist Democracy as evidenced in the Soviet Union is higher than our American capitalist democracy, and if our democracy is to continue to live it must develop economic democracy into Socialism." He stated that Communist democracy is still higher because it is based on "to each one according to the need". He related that no capitalist state could have produced the economic miracle that was performed under the Soviet system, and that all the five year plans in the Soviet Union were fulfilled on time and that they had achieved their tasks. He concluded by stating that the United States "could talk about Red Fascism dictatorship and other scary things but the Soviet Union has made remarkable progress which was more than the Americans could say about their country."

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that on December 4, 1949 approximately 150 people attended panel session #4 on American-Soviet relations and peace settlements in Europe. At this conference Dr. GREGORY MEIKSIONS stated that the Roosevelt policies seemed to the Soviet Union an attempt by American capitalism to take a progressive view, and that many problems would be resolved in Russian favor. He stated that Soviet diplomacy was prepared to meet American policy half way. "However, when ROOSEVELT died the situation took a sharp turn and the reactionary crowd in Washington started the cold war". He stated that the people of the whole world are suffering because of the cold war and that the American people must demand that the administration stop the cold war by restoring trade and political cooperation between the East and the West.

Dr. OTTO NATHAN spoke at this session and, according to informant, he related that when he visited Poland and Czechoslovakia he spoke to government officials, workers and peasants and not once did he hear about Soviet domination of the country. He stated he felt that these countries were held together with the Soviet Union because they were natural allies and these governments and peoples came to the conclusion that they needed the protection of the Soviet Union. He stressed the fact that the appointment of a Russian general to head the defense of Poland means to the Polish people that the Soviet Union stands ready to protect this country.

Dr. OTTO NATHAN

According to the official program of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, Dr. OTTO NATHAN was listed as a sponsor for this conference, held under the auspices of the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions on March 25 and 27, 1949 in New York City.

VICTOR PERLO spoke at this panel session on World War II and related that the Soviet Union came into the war on the side of the western democracies to fight Fascism and the result of World War II was to reduce the area of Fascism. He stated that if the STALIN-ROOSEVELT agreements had been continued there would no longer be any elements of Fascism in existence. He stressed the fact that the formation of new German armies means a new third world war. He said the aim may be to keep these armies in Germany and use them later on against the Soviet Union or to send these armies directly to the Soviet frontiers. Because of this, he related, it was necessary that the facts be brought to the American people and the American people must act to force the United States government to change the "stupid, cold war policy against our great war-time ally".

The informant advised that this panel adopted a recommendation to the Resolutions Committee "to deny that the Soviet Union is dominating the Eastern European countries and that the Soviet government has no imperialistic aims."

VICTOR PERLO

According to a signed statement of WHITTAKER CHAMBERS, a self-confessed former espionage agent, obtained as a result of interviews extending from January to April 1949, VICTOR PERLO was a member of an underground espionage group operating in Washington, D. C. during the middle 1930's.

Confidential Informant [ ] related that at the December 4, 1949 group session there were about 75 people present. The topic at this session was nationality and fraternal matters.

JOHN MARSALKA, leader of the American Slav Congress, opened this panel session with a few remarks about the lies that there is anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union. Informant advised that this individual stated that the lies about anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union are part of the same pattern of the cold war program. He stated they are directed to discredit the Soviet Union in the eyes of the people. He expressed the opinion that the United States and the other western powers have hopes that Yugoslavia will bring to a split the countries of eastern Europe and the Soviet Union. He claimed this could not happen as there is a great common bond between the eastern people's democracies and the Soviet Union. He also stated he regretted the fact that the American Slav Congress was too slow to expose the TITO affair and to bring to the people the lies about anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union. He stated that the American Slav Congress decided to start an educational campaign on the two above mentioned subjects.

JOHN MARSALKA

According to Confidential Informant [ ] JOHN MARSALKA is National Vice President of the American Slav Congress, which has been cited by the Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

The next speaker at this panel session was ALEX NEEDLEMAN of Branch 116 of the Jewish Peoples Fraternal Order. He stated, according to the informant, that the question of anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union is a big problem. He related that before this question came up, even the reactionary Jews favored the Soviet Union and now "many members of my organization are confused on this issue". He proposed that every branch of the JPFO and every aggressive mass organization, especially such organizations as the American Slav Congress, should organize discussions and educational campaigns on this subject in the neighborhood and among members in national groups.

On January 14, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that ALEX NEEDLEMAN was a member of Branch 116 of the Jewish Peoples Fraternal Order of the IWO. The IWO has been declared by the Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

CLARA RUBIN spoke, according to Informant [ ] at this panel session and stated that in spite of the slander and lies about the Soviet Union, the Soviet Union was moving ahead. She said the people of the world have confidence in the Soviet Union and know that there is not any anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union so that there is nothing to deny. She stated the enemy wants to confuse Americans that there is anti-Semitism but they will not succeed.

CLARA RUBIN

According to Confidential Informant [ ] CLARA RUBIN is a member of the National Board of the Women's Division of the NCASF, which has been declared by the Attorney General to come within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

This panel, according to [ ] adopted the following recommendations:

1. Progressive organizations should organize political schools for education of their members and the people in general.
2. All progressive publications should publish the facts about the Soviet Union and circulate these issues among the population.
3. Each progressive person should act as a committee of one and, wherever possible, expose the war-mongers and the slanderers of the Soviet Union.
4. To join all kinds of non-progressive organizations and to speak there on the issues of peace and friendship with the Soviet Union.

On December 4, 1949 RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director, acted as chairman of the closing session. He thanked the delegates for their work on behalf of peace and stated they were the actual leaders for peace. He asked the delegates to work for friendly relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, stating "Don't be afraid if you are called subversive. If working for peace is subversive, you and I are proud of this title."

JESSICA SMITH at this session read the overall resolutions adopted by the Congress.

Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH, former Chairman of the NCASF, made a short closing speech in which he stated that the Truman administration revived the old and deadly policy of containment. He stated the Soviet people did not want war but there has been no serious attempt on the part of the United States to negotiate with the Soviet Union, and as a result of the cold war, the civil liberties of the American people were being abolished. He stated that the Americans are engaged in a vicious witch hunt and Red-baiting campaign; that government and civilian workers are being eliminated from their jobs because they think differently. He stated "We must ask our leaders to change our foreign policy and we must work for a broad movement for a program of a people's peace."

The informant stated that approximately 400 people attended the closing plenary session.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that on December 5, 1949 a community leaders session was held at the office of the NCASF. At this meeting there were approximately ten people present. The chairman of this meeting was ABBOTT SIMON who, according to Confidential Informant [ ] was National Field Director of the NCASF. SIMON stated that community leaders had a terrific job and responsibility to explain and teach the people in their communities, and in talking to the people of their communities they should stress two facts. First, the cold war expense goes directly from the pay checks of the workers, and second, that trade with the Soviet Union will mean more jobs.

The meeting of the community leaders adopted the following recommendations:

1. The NCASF should publish a monthly outline of important events and send this outline to all organizations of the National Council, to progressive trade unions and national groups.
2. Ask the organizations to publish a leaflet based on the above mentioned outline.
3. To use recordings of speeches to be used in homes and small meetings.
4. To concentrate on educational work in the communities.

5. To concentrate on work among the farmers.
6. To organize councils among the students.
7. To bring the issues on the struggle for peace into the neighborhoods.

On January 9, 1950 Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that the following resolutions were adopted by the Eastern Seaboard Congress on American-Soviet Relations:

b2
b7D

"THE GENERAL RESOLUTION

"The Eastern Seaboard Congress on American-Soviet Relations has reflected the profound anxiety of wide groups of the American people over the danger to the security of the United States and the peace of the world represented by our present foreign policy.

"Our deliberations have shown that the cold war policies directed against the Soviet Union and the Eastern European Democracies adversely affect every area of our relations with other countries, with detrimental effects to our own economy and our international prestige. They have shown that re-orientation toward effective cooperation between the United States and the USSR would serve the highest interests of our country and promote the recovery, stability and well-being of the post-war world.

"American-Soviet differences growing out of the cold war have produced stalemates instead of agreed upon and workable solutions within the United Nations. American-Soviet cooperation would restore the United Nations to its function as a harmonizing center for the interests of all its member nations and would strengthen all its efforts for international cooperation and the maintenance of peace.

"The world organization has been weakened and conflicts within it accentuated by American policies by-passing the United Nations and violating its charter by the formation of aggressive blocs and pacts. The Truman Doctrine, an acknowledged failure in China, serves elsewhere only to keep reactionary governments in power. The North Atlantic Alliance, with its corollary Foreign Military Aid Program, stands fully exposed as a war alliance against the Soviet Union, as plans go forward to bring into its operations a renazified Western Germany, armed with the revived war trusts of the Ruhr and manned with German troops.

"We need no pacts of war. The world cries out for peace.

"Since American-Soviet relations are universally recognized as the key to peace it is essential that the leaders of these two countries meet together to resolve their differences. Our examination of the outstanding issues between them convinces us that that settlement is possible without any sacrifices of the national interests of either country. Last year the Soviet Union repeatedly made offer of such negotiations. Initiative in this direction on the part of our government would now undoubtedly achieve results.

"The most constructive field for such discussions is that of trade. Diminution of trade, resulting from the virtual embargo on exports to the USSR and Eastern Europe, is already producing disastrous results to our economy. The Marshall Plan, with its restrictions on East-West trade has failed, as indicated by the UN World Economic Report for 1948, in its avowed purpose of promoting industrial and agricultural development and independent, healthy economies in Western Europe, and has impaired the economic stability of the United States. Its replacement by a non-discriminatory, inclusive trade policy would stimulate world wide recovery, would be beneficial to American business, would mean jobs for millions of American workers now unemployed by the cutting off of the Soviet market. The USSR represents an ever-expanding market for American goods, a non-competitive supplier of many items important to our economy.

"Business and labor would gain immeasurably from the opening up of trade with the new People's Republic of China just on the threshold of industrialization and modern agricultural development. Normal relations with the new China would also have an important effect on our relations with the Soviet Union.

"The huge arms program which accompanies the cold war places staggering burdens on our own people and compels the countries of Western Europe to divert large sums from their budgets for additional armaments as well as diverting their manpower from constructive tasks. Arms reduction would release large sums from our budget for building of homes and schools and hospitals and public works, relieve our people of the burden of militarization and the accompanying restrictions of civil liberties, lift the ever-present threat of war which an arms race always means. It is high time that the arms reduction proposal passed unanimously by the United Nations in 1946 be implemented.

"Finally and most important is the question of atomic energy. Our whole cold war policy has been based on our supposed monopoly of the atom bomb, "and our whole military strategy has been based on the concept of an atomic blitz war which would mean the mass annihilation of cities and civilian populations, and could only merit the moral condemnation of the American people and the world.

"The disclosure that the Soviet Union also possesses the bomb has challenged the whole basis of our foreign policy. We can no longer brandish the bomb as a means of getting the Soviet Union to surrender to our wishes. The myth of the absolute weapon has been blasted by the scientists and military experts. The United States with its highly concentrated cities would suffer far more than the Soviet Union in an atomic blitz war. The people of Europe will not long submit to a policy which threatens them with extinction.

"While our administration acts as though nothing had changed, an increasing number of voices here and abroad call for a reevaluation of the Baruch Plan, now recognized as obsolete. The Soviet Union has made important concessions to facilitate agreement, which now appears possible, and has made clear that it is already using atomic energy for peaceful, constructive purposes. The banning of the atom bomb would not only end the most fearful threat that hangs over the world, but release for peaceful uses a new source of power which if applied without restriction to industrial development can become the means of abundance for all the peoples of the earth.

"Since our government, so far offers only an intensification of cold war policies and the stockpiling of bigger bombs, it is time for the American people to step in and offer constructive alternative proposals for peace. We endorse the statement of the American Quakers that 'there is the possibility of sufficient accommodation between the two systems, as evidenced by changes that have occurred in both, to permit them to co-exist and compete peacefully in the same world'.

"We believe that war is not inevitable, that the United States is not threatened with aggression from any quarter, that the Soviet Union will meet us half way in any proposals to negotiate on terms of equality, that possibility of agreement exists on the main outstanding issues which can only advance our national well-being and serve world peace. We therefore offer as a minimum program, on which we believe all people of good-will can agree:

"Strengthening of the United Nations through the scrapping of aggressive blocs and pacts, patient and endless search for agreed-upon solutions, serving the interests of all member nations and the maintenance of peace.

"Renewed effort for agreement through direct American-Soviet negotiations on all issues that divide us.

"Constructive economic and trade relations with the Soviet Union, the Eastern European democracies and China, with early recognition of the new Chinese People's Republic.

"General reduction of armaments and an end to war preparations and propaganda and all policies heightening the danger of war.

"An international convention for destruction of all atom bombs, the outlawing of atomic warfare, and the beginning of peaceful atomic competition.

"(This resolution comprehends the statements presented, discussed and approved in Panel 1 under the title: American Post-War Political and Economic Policy; A Reorientation Toward American-Soviet Cooperation).

"FACTS ABOUT THE SOVIET UNION

"In view of the fact that anti-Soviet propaganda is now rampant in the United States and is presenting daily through the press to millions of readers and by radio voice to millions of listeners a distorted picture of the Soviet State, its institutions and social organizations, and as well is misrepresenting the fundamentally peaceful intentions of the people and government of the Soviet Union; and in view of the fact that the misinformation in our country concerning the Soviet Union is being utilized to conjure up non-existent threats of aggression by the Soviet Union:

"We urge that the National Council meet this anti-Soviet propaganda with the widest possible dissemination in every form of the facts concerning the Soviet Union.

"(This resolution stems from the facts presented and the deliberations of Panel 2 - Political Structure and Developments in the Soviet Union and Panel 3 - The Social System of the Soviet Union).

"AMERICAN-SOVIET RELATIONS IN EUROPE

"Resolved that the American Government be urged to enter into immediate negotiations with the Soviet Union for a settlement concerning Germany to be based upon the essence of the Potsdam Agreement.

"Resolved that increased efforts be made to demonstrate to the American people the absurdity of the often-heard charges concerning 'Soviet imperialism', such objectives being incompatible both with the philosophy of socialism and the techniques of its expansion.

"(This resolution was recommended by the delegates of Panel 4 - American-Soviet Relations and Peace Settlements in Europe).

"THE FAR EAST

"ON CHINA

"Resolved that the United States immediately recognize the People's Republic of China as the actual government of the Chinese people and restore friendly relations to this end:

"That the policy of aiding reactionary forces in China be abandoned and all acts inconsistent with friendship, including support of those opposing the Chinese Peoples Government and of those endeavoring to alienate Formosa from China.

"That all restrictions preventing purchase of industrial supplies be removed and trade with new China be expanded in the interest of both our countries.

"That recognition be given the right of the representatives of the People's Republic to take China's seat in the United Nations.

"Recognition of China's rights in the making of the Japanese Peace Treaty.

"Since the cold war policy directed against the Soviet Union also is endangering our relations with the four hundred seventy five million people of China, we urge the immediate ending of that policy.

"ON JAPAN

"Resolved that the unilateral American occupation of Japan which has encouraged its remilitarization and the revival of fascism be reversed and that the occupation be made subject to direction and control by the Allied Council for Japan as originally agreed.

"That the United States shall honor its obligations under the Potsdam Agreement to effect a peace treaty with Japan at once.

"That this treaty shall be based on the decartelization, demilitarization, defascization of Japan and shall be made in agreement with the Soviet Union, Great Britain and new China.

"ON PHILLIPINES

"Resolved that the Bell Trade Treaty, embodying provisions of economic inequality between the United States and the Phillipines and providing for opening of the natural resources ~~of~~ the Phillipines to United States exploitation, be scrapped.

"It is further resolved that the bill introduced by Senator Glen Taylor and Congressman Vito Marcantonio providing for a new treaty of equality be supported,

"Resolved that any form of regional arrangement, such as the East Asian Conference having for its purpose the accentuating of the cold war, be opposed.

"(This resolution was recommended by the delegates of Panel 5 - American-Soviet Relations and Developments in the Far East).

" AMERICAN-SOVIET RELATIONS AND THE NEGRO

"We place ourselves on record:

"One, that treatment of the Negro and other minorities registers the degree of a nation's civilization. Economic, social, and political discrimination practiced against the Negro here in the United States makes havoc of American prestige among peoples like those of the Soviet Union who have excelled in the maintenance of racial equality.

"Two, that efforts to assure proportional representation of Negroes in our U. S. Congress and in other political offices is part of the world-wide struggle to check exploitation of colonial peoples, to establish freedom and justice for all and so maintain the peace.

"(This resolution relates to the discussions in Panel 2 on the Soviet Union and Panel 6 on the United Nations with its special treatment of the subject of Colonialism.)

"FRANCO SPAIN

"This Congress deplores the growing collaboration between our government and the Franco dictatorship in Spain.

"Under U. S. supervision, more than 140 naval and sea bases have been built or enlarged in Spain; through control of former Nazi cartels, the U. S. is building Spain's war potential; via Portugal, Franco has been brought into the framework of Atlantic Pact.

"These steps toward an open alliance with fascism can only widen the breach between the United States and the Soviet Union, and at the same time pose an additional threat to the peace of the world. The peace-loving peoples of the world have learned through bitter experience that 'deals' with fascism lead to war and the enslavement of nations.

"This meeting calls upon the President of the United States to direct the State Department to bring about the immediate and complete withdrawal of all military, economic and diplomatic aid to the fascist regime of Franco, and that we continue our policy of non-recognition.

"VOICE OF AMERICA

"Because the Voice of America has departed from its original praiseworthy intent as an instrument of international friendship and has become increasingly a weapon of invasion and subversion it is resolved that the United Nations be asked to establish a code of behavior for international broadcasting to safeguard the national sovereignty of the people to whom the VOICE is beamed by eliminating subversive propaganda.

"THE TRADE UNIONS

"Resolved that a Trade Union Division be formed within the framework of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship to serve as a medium of education, through distribution of leaflets, recordings, radio time, etc. on such subjects as the concrete effect of the Marshall Plan on the economy of our country, employment, and the present and increasingly adverse effects of our cold war policy on American workers. Further, to work out a program of action; such as delegations to Washington, petition campaign.

"Resolved, that the proposed Trade Union Division of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship be asked to extend full cooperation to the plans and program initiated by the National Labor Conference for Peace held "in Chicago on October 1 and 2. And further, that the Trade Union Division of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship support all efforts of trade unionists to obtain the cooperation of farmers, business and professional groups, and others, for the cause of peace, through ending of the cold war and the strengthening of American-Soviet understanding.

"(These resolutions adopted by the group session for trade unionists and approved by the Congress).

" STUDENTS AND YOUNG PEOPLE

"The cold war is an education for death. The young people of the U. S. want an education for life. Resolved, therefore, that the peace-loving people of the country must help to provide for the millions of young Americans an education for peace not war; that the truth about the peoples of the USSR and their work for peace must be given to youth so that the war propaganda directed against the Soviet Union, now reaching even the younger children, may be combated.

"The cold war has disastrous effects upon the youth of our nation. One half of the unemployed are young people; our youth are to be drafted into a Jim-Crow army. The campuses are being prepared for war by eliminating all discussions or consideration on the part of both teachers or students of peaceful relations between our country and the USSR. Resolved, therefore, that trade relations be opened between East and West to reduce unemployment; the draft be repealed; expenditures for military research on the campuses be converted to use in research directed to peaceful objectives; that the academic freedom of teachers and students be protected.

"(These resolutions were adopted by the group session for the students and youth and approved by the Congress).

" THE ONE WORLD MURAL

"The attack on the One-World Mural at the School of Education, New York University, is a flagrant violation of students' rights and academic freedom. This attack is part and parcel of the cold war policy.

"We approve the action taken by the Student Council, School of Education, N.Y.U., in supporting the artist, in his endeavors to bring to the student body the idea that World Peace is possible through American-Soviet friendship in the United Nations.

"THE SOVIET UNION AND ANTI-SEMITISM

"Resolved, that the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship and other organizations expose more completely through their media the unjustified charges that anti-Semitism has emerged in the Soviet Union today.

" YUGOSLAVIA

"Resolved, that the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship and other organizations inform the public more completely on the facts of the present controversy between the Soviet Union and Yugoslavia and the unfortunate splitting it causes in the United Nations.

" ACTION RECOMMENDATIONS

"To provide an effective implementation of all resolutions of this Congress, we urge:

"1) That all participants in the Congress, delegates, observers and guests bring to the attention of their trade union organizations, church organizations, women's organizations, cooperatives, schools, fraternal orders and lodges the content of these resolutions and to seek the adoption of the sense expressed in them by their respective organizations.

"2) That individuals and groups participating in this Congress bring these resolutions to the attention of their respective Congressmen and Senators with a view to obtaining their support of its objectives.

"3) That meetings be held where the proceedings of the Congress will be reported and its resolutions discussed in order that the community may take appropriate actions to further the aims of peace.

"4) That delegates and observers and friends report this Congress in their local press and on the radio.

"5) That petitions to Congress, the State Department, the White House, indicating disapproval of our present foreign policy and urging that it be abandoned in favor of a positive policy of peace be circulated.

"Addressing ourselves directly to the organization under whose auspices we have met, we urge:

"6) That the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship cooperate with other national organizations to devise further plans for launching a more aggressive campaign for peace on a national scale, and in so far as practicable coordinating all activities.

D. Madison Square Garden Rally,
December 5, 1949, Under Auspices of NCASF

On August 11, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that he had learned from RICHARD MORFORD that the Madison Square Garden had been decided upon for a rally being held by the NCASF on December 5, 1949, and that the lease had been negotiated for and would be in his possession on August 12, 1949.

On September 1, 1949 this informant advised that MORFORD told him that he needed money in order to keep the date at Madison Square Garden. MORFORD stated that he had been stalling the Garden for a few days but he was unable to hold them off much longer and unless he could pay them some money they would lose the Garden for the rally.

On October 13, 1949 MORFORD told Confidential Informant [ ] that he had attempted to have Reverend HEWLETT JOHNSON, the Dean of Canterbury, as the main guest speaker for the Garden rally but the Dean had just let him know that because of severe illness he would be unable to attend the Madison Square Garden rally. b2

The "Daily Worker" of November 3, 1949, page 5, column 4, announced that the NCASF would sponsor a rally at Madison Square Garden on December 5, 1949 for the purpose of getting the people of New York to rally for peace and security and to fight for the outlawing of the atomic bomb and the ending of the cold war.

On November 17, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that he had learned from RICHARD MORFORD that he, MORFORD, was having a very difficult time in arranging a program for the Madison Square Garden rally as he could not secure any speakers for the rally, nor was he having any success in obtaining Soviet leaders to appear at the affair.

On November 30, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that the NCASF was successful in obtaining JULIUS KATZ-SUCHY, permanent Polish delegate to the United Nations, as a guest speaker for the December 5th Madison Square Garden rally.

This informant, on November 29, 1949, advised that MURIEL DRAPER, President of the Congress of American Women, intended to return to the United States from a meeting in Moscow to appear at the Madison Square Garden rally.

On December 2, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that the plans for the Madison Square Garden rally were progressing very slowly as tickets were not being sold and, in fact, a great many of them were being returned. The informant stated that the general feeling at the NCASF office was that the rally was doomed to be a failure.

The "Daily Worker" of December 5, 1949, page 3, column 1, stated that Reverend CHARLES P. HILL, outstanding Detroit fighter for negro rights and civil liberties, would address the peace rally at Madison Square Garden under the auspices of the NCASF. The article stated further that Dr. JULIUS KATZ-SUCHY, MURIEL DRAPER, HOWARD FAST, JOHN HOWARD LAWSON, and Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH would be among the speakers at the rally.

On December 5, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that the NCASF was distributing tickets to anyone who desired them merely for the tax rate, inasmuch as the ticket sales were so poor and they wanted to build up a representative audience at the Garden rally.

Confidential Informant [ ] on December 7, 1949, advised that he had attended the Madison Square Garden rally on December 5, 1949, under the auspices of the NCASF. The informant stated that approximately 10,000 people attended this meeting. He stated that the meeting was opened by the chairman of the NCASF, Dr. JOHN KINGSBURY, who in a short speech stated that at the first Garden meeting of the NCASF the NCASF was praised by prominent leaders and received greetings from President ROOSEVELT, THOMAS LAMONT, HERBERT LEHMAN, and other important leaders. He stated this was before TOM CLARK was around and they were declared subversive. He said everyone was in agreement that the war could not be won without the Soviet Union. He went on to say that at this rally no greetings were received from government leaders because they were too busy to bother with peace and too interested in aiding the cold war.

JOHN HOWARD LAWSON spoke at this rally and stated, "We are gathered here for friendship but friendship became a subversive word.....The American spirit is being violated. American tradition is put to shame by the Washington cold war gang.....Washington men talk peace but mean war.....There is a conspiracy in our country to destroy the Bill of Rights." LAWSON spoke against the loyalty action, saying the government discharges people from work on the say-so of the "American Gestapo spies". He related that the men in Washington, the press and the radio are spreading lies about the Soviet Union and the countries of the people's democracy, all of which has one purpose -- "war". LAWSON called for peace and called upon the American people to work for a world peace. He stated, "Let us speak out for peace. The people of the United States want peace and we shall have peace."

JOHN HOWARD LAWSON

According to the California Committee on Un-American Activities report of 1949, on page 483, JOHN HOWARD LAWSON was listed as a panel speaker at the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, which was sponsored by the National Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions.

According to Informant [ ] Reverend CHARLES P. HILL of Detroit, spoke at the Garden rally and stated that there is one road to peace and that was understanding. He stated the Truman doctrine, the Marshall Plan, and atomic bombs are not peace guarantees because they are leading to war by creating fear among the people. He stated that today to fight for peace means that one has become subversive. He related that the "Kingdom of God could become a reality if we will respect the way of life of other people". He called upon all members present to fight and work for peace.

According to the official program of the Cultural and Scientific Conference for World Peace, held in New York City in March 1949, under the auspices of the National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions, HILL was a sponsor for this meeting.

HOWARD FAST also spoke at the Madison Square Garden rally and, according to the informant, he declared that the Russians have faith in mankind and in the future, and he spoke against those who were spreading lies about Russia. He spoke against the spending of millions on A-bombs while millions of people go without food. He stated that there was no money for cancer research but billions for war, and stated "I would like to say to you, if we have the A-bomb, thank God the Russians have it too...." He related that Russia is the hope of mankind today and of humanity tomorrow. "The truth about the Soviet Union must be made clear to the American people and they must unite in the struggle for peace."

HOWARD FAST

On February 21, 1947 Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, advised that HOWARD FAST was a member of the National Cultural Committee of the Communist Party, USA.

DONALD HENDERSON advised the people in the audience at Madison Square Garden not to believe that a cold war would lead to peace. He called for the renewing of the war-time friendship of the United States and the Soviet Union. He attacked WILLIAM GREEN and PHILIP MURRAY for trying to split the world labor movement, and stated "Mr. TRUMAN, if you want to save capitalism, and I don't care if you do or if you don't, engage in world trade. The workers want jobs, peace and increased trade, not guns." He called upon the workers and the American people to fight against the cold war and outlaw of the atomic bomb.

According to the informant, Reverend WILLIAM HOWARD MELISH acted as narrator for a sketch, the idea of the sketch being that millions of people all over the world are united in the movement against war and the outlawing of the atomic bomb. The sketch was climaxed with an American worker shaking the hand of a Russian worker as a symbol that friendship between the people of the United States and the Soviet Union was possible.

MURIEL DRAPER spoke very briefly and, according to the informant, merely stated that she had just returned from the Soviet Union and brought greetings from the Russian women to the American women, and stated that the women of Russia are interested in the building of peace; that they hate war and wanted the women of the United States to work with them for peace.

ELMER DEENSON spoke at the rally as chairman of the Progressive Party. He called for unity of the American people in the fighting of a double policy and double talk. He claimed, according to the informant, that the North Atlantic Pact is lowering the standard of living of the people of Europe. He said that the United States must recognize immediately the People's Republic of China and that the United States should trade with every country of the world.

JULIUS KATZ-SUCHY, Poland's permanent delegate to the United Nations, spoke and stated that in the present situation there is no issue bigger than the issue of peace or war. He related that in the past when people fought for peace they were respected, but today "if you talk for peace you are accused of subversive activities." He criticized the United States for its attitude toward VISHINSKY's proposal to a non-aggression pact. He claimed that the atomic bomb must be outlawed as a method of war and used for the benefit of mankind. He stated, "War cannot stop the march towards Socialism", and he underlined the fact that Socialism and capitalism could exist side by side and work for the friendly development of humanity.

Confidential Informant   stated that RICHARD MORFORD made the fund collection appeal and that approximately $8,000 was collected.

On December 6, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that the NCASF estimated they had made approximately $10,000 to $12,000 from the Madison Square Garden rally held on December 5, 1949.

III SUBVERSIVE RAMIFICATIONS

A. Connection with the Communist Party

On November 10, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that ~~ARNOLD JOHNSON~~, National Legislative Director, Communist Party, USA, made arrangements with ~~THEODORE BAYER~~ of the NCASF, to meet November 11, 1949 at Communist Party headquarters for a meeting.

On August 6, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that RICHARD MORFORD had congratulated ARNOLD JOHNSON on the work JOHNSON was doing on the arms appropriation bill. Informant also advised that MORFORD was going to Washington, D. C. with JOHNSON to testify against the arms appropriation bill.

On December 16, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] related that FRED FINE, Director of Public Affairs, Communist Party, USA, called off the meeting with ABBOTT SIMON of NCASF, inasmuch as he had another meeting to attend at that time.

B. Implementation of Communist Party Line

GENERAL STATEMENT.

End the cold war.

Restore American-Soviet friendship.

The key to world peace and the fulfillment of the people's hope in the United Nations.

Conclude a peace settlement for a united democratic Germany and Japan based on the Yalta and Potsdam agreements.

On February 6, 1950 Confidential Informant [ ] made available a resolution adopted by the Congress on American-Soviet Relations, under the sponsorship of the NCASF. These resolutions in part read:

"Strengthening of the United Nations through the scrapping of aggressive blocs and pacts.

"Patient and endless search for agreed upon solutions serving the interests of all member nations and the maintenance of peace.

NY 100-7518

Guarantee the complete democratization and demilitarization of these countries.

Stop military aid and intervention in China, Korea and Greece.

Break diplomatic and economic ties with Franco Spain.

Scrap the Marshall Plan and the Truman doctrine.

Defeat the Truman arms standardization plan.

Abandon economic, political and military pressures on the countries of Latin America.

1948 election platform of the Communist Party

NORTH ATLANTIC PACT

"Despite all threats and persecutions we will continue resolutely to work for peace. Instead of an aggressive North Atlantic Pact..... a resurrected anti-Communist Axis.....we shall continue in company with millions of other Americans to urge that our nation shall sign a pact of friendship and peace with our great war-time ally, the Soviet Union."

"Political Affairs", April 1949, page 4.

(The article is "Is the Advocacy of Peace Treason?" by WILLIAM Z. FOSTER and EUGENE DENNIS)

"Renewed effort for agreement through American-Soviet negotiations on all issues that divide us.

"Constructive economic and trade relations with the Soviet Union.

"Recognition of China's rights in the making of the Japanese peace treaty.

"That the United States shall honor its obligations under the Potsdam agreement to effect a peace treaty with Japan at once.

"That the United States stop the growing collaboration between the United States government and the Franco dictatorship in Spain.

Confidential Informant [ ] on May 17, 1949, made available a letter published by the NCASF dated May 14, 1949 on the subject "The North Atlantic Pact". This statement declared that "the North Atlantic Pact is not in the interests of the majority of American people. Its intention is war. All of us have a heavy responsibility to act now. Stop this war pact". This letter stated that all people should wire Senators IVES and WAGNER opposing the pact. "Wire the President of the United States stating you oppose the North Atlantic Pact and ask him to initiate conferences with the Soviet "Union to settle our differences. Sign a statement calling for a community peace conference. Distribute leaflets explaining that the North Atlantic Pact means war. Organize protest meetings, indoors and out, against this war pact. Stress the fact that the Soviet Union wants peace, not war."

PEACE DRIVE

In the New York "Times" of November 30, 1949, excerpts from the Communiqué adopted by the Communist Information Bureau after a meeting in Hungary, included the following:

"It is essential to develop and consolidate to the utmost cooperation and unity of action among the rank and file organizations and the rank and file members of the socialist parties. The Communist and Workers Parties should make wise use of the new and effective forms of mass struggle for peace which fully justified themselves, such as:

"Committees in defense of peace in towns and villages.

"The drawing up of petitions and protests.

"The ballots among the population which have been widely practiced in France and Italy.

"Publication and distribution of literature exposing the war preparation.

On February 6, 1950 Confidential Informant [ ] made available the resolutions adopted by the Eastern Seaboard Congress on American-Soviet Relations, held December 3, 4 and 5, 1949 at New York City under the auspices of the NCASF. The theme of this Eastern Seaboard Congress was the fight for peace between the United States and the Soviet Union. Under the title "Recommendations", the following were listed:

"To provide an effective implementation of all resolutions of this Congress, we urge:

"1) That all participants in the Congress, delegates, observers and guests bring to the attention of their trade union organizations, church organizations, women's organizations, cooperatives, schools, fraternal orders and lodges the content of these resolutions and to seek the adoption of the sense expressed in them by their respective organizations.

"The collection of funds for the struggle of peace.

"The organization of boycotts of films, newspapers, books, periodicals, radio campaigns, and of the institutions and leaders propagating the idea of a new war.

"The forces of democracy, the forces of the supporters of peace considerably exceed the forces of reaction."

"2) That individuals and groups participating in this Congress bring these resolutions to the attention of their respective Congressman and Senators with a view to obtaining their support of its objectives.

"3) That meetings be held where the proceedings of the Congress will be reported and its resolutions discussed in order that the community may take appropriate actions to further the aims of peace.

"4) That delegates and observers and friends report this Congress in their local press and on the radio.

"5) That petitions to Congress, the State Department, the White House, indicating disapproval of our present foreign policy and urging that it be abandoned in favor of a positive policy of peace be circulated.

"Addressing ourselves directly to the organization under whose auspices we have met, we urge:

"6) That the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship cooperate with other national organizations to devise further plans for launching a more aggressive campaign for peace on a national scale, and insofar as practicable coordinating all activities.

"7) That the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship in cooperation with other groups organize conferences for peace in other regions of our country and explore the possibility "of holding a national Mid-Century Congress for Peace between April and June of 1950.

"8) That the National Council publish the addresses and proceedings of this Congress and give them the widest possible distribution.

"9) That the National Council devise new methods for reaching large masses of people - workers, farmers, youth, Negro people, artists, scientists, religious and professional people with inexpensive publications appealing for their support of the peace program in terms of their own interests.

"10) We urge the National Council to employ to the maximum the following media of communication to all the American people:

"(a) A news service for small town newspapers and religious press on a national scale to tell the whole truth about the Soviet Union and American-Soviet relations.

"(b) Fortnightly brochures on specific topics sent out in bulk lots to all the principal cities.

"(c) The use of 16 mm. photographic film shorts.

"(d) The use of wire recordings,

"(e) The use of posters and exhibits for interior display.

"(f) Small mass leaflets suitable for distribution at factory gates, on street corners and in large meetings.

"11) Recognizing that none of these measures can be carried out without funds, it is the sense of this Congress that every effort must be made to assist the organizers of this Congress in securing the necessary financial support. "

IV FINANCES

On September 1, 1949 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that he had learned from RICHARD MORFORD that the NCASF was in a bad financial condition and unless he (MORFORD) received some money soon he would be unable to hold Madison Square Garden for the rally as the Garden officials were "dunning" him for money.

Confidential Informant [ ] on October 28, 1949, advised that he had learned from RICHARD MORFORD that MORFORD had told CORLISS LAMONT that the NCASF was in real financial distress; that they were short $2,000 on salaries; that the phone bill had not been paid, and that he needed $500 for emergencies. MORFORD told the informant that LAMONT was going to lend him $500.

On October 31, 1949 this informant stated that he had learned from RICHARD MORFORD that CORLISS LAMONT had pledged $1,950 to the NCASF for the year 1949, and that he had already contributed $1500 of that amount to the organization.

On January 3, 1950 Informant [ ] stated that the NCASF was in the process of retrenching and would be cutting down on the number of employees.

On January 16, 1950 the informant related that the NCASF was in such financial straits that in addition to releasing some employees they were cutting down on salaries, curtailing their activities to some extent, and cutting down on the publications in order to keep the organization alive.

On January 31, 1950 Confidential Informant [ ] related that RICHARD MORFORD and ~~TED~~ BAYER had been endeavoring to raise funds to cover payroll checks in the amount of $1500 that BAYER had already signed and distributed to the employees.

On February 6, 1950 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that at the Board of Directors meeting of the NCASF held October 20, 1949, the financial reports were submitted by the Director. He stated that the following information was contained in the financial report distributed at this meeting:

"The net indebtedness as of October 20 of $10,321 indicates a reduction in the period since September 15 of approximately $2,600. This has been made possible by the profit from the Dinner of October 6 ($5,300). A large advance deposit has been placed on Madison Square Garden in the amount of $1,250 and other cash outlay has been made on behalf of this Garden meeting and also of the Congress so that the improvement in our position falls short of the net earning of the Autumn dinner.

"While materials and services owing as of October 20 are only $7,600, total unpaid loans to date amount to $8,840. We shall be compelled to retire some portion of these loans as well as to make payment on regular accounts payable prior to the next large income which will not be in hand until the collection at the Garden meeting. That is, we shall not have the operating funds that are necessary to carry us to December 5.

"The Director called attention to the fact that in the one month period ending October 19 we had been able to secure $4,200 in individual contributions, exclusive of those made at the October 6 Dinner. This he considered noteworthy but pointed out that individual contributors had been pressed so far that nothing of like amount could be counted upon in the next few months whether by individual solicitation or in large-sized gifts at the Madison Square Garden Rally. "

V PERSONNEL AND ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS

On January 9, 1950 Confidential Informant [ ] advised that the following individuals who were general office workers at the NCASF, were terminated due to the retrenchment program of the organization:

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ANNUAL MEETING OF M.C.A.S.F.

(U) [ ] made available an invitation received from the M.C.A.S.F. Inc., which invitation invited the recipient to attend its annual meeting on Friday, January 27, 1950 at 8P.M., at the Community Church, 565 Boylston Street, Boston, Massachusetts. This invitation reflected that RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, would speak on the subject "The Soviet Union and the Peace," and further indicated that the film "The Rebuilding of Stalingrad," would be shown. (C)

(U) [ ] who attended the annual meeting advised that about 50 people were in attendance. Informant advised that Professor STRUIK opened the meeting by giving a very brief history of the American-Soviet Friendship group. STRUIK told how very important it is to have an understanding with RUSSIA and what the group is doing to promote their objectives. (C)

(U) RICHARD MORFORD, Executive Director of the NCASF. The title of his speech at this meeting was "The Soviet Union and The Peace," and he said that he was going over the entire Russian situation so that his audience would be able to answer any and all questions which be asked them by other poeple. MORFORD gave a resume of Russia and her strivings for peace from the very beginning of her existence, with appropriate dates. When someone inquired of him as to just when "The Cold War" began he answered that "it began from the minute Russia was born." At that time Great Britian would have gladly throttled the infant to death had she only had the power to wage war at the time. From the first Russia wanted only "peace, bread and land." Russian delegates made this known way back at an assembly in Geneva. Russia has consistently asked for peace at all gatherings since. MORFORD stated that at the beginning of World War 2, Russia had signed with Germany to give Russia time to figure out how the West was going to act. During the war Russia and America seemed to get along well - Roosevelt at Yalta and Potsdam seemed to realize Russia needed to surround herself with friendly nations, and gave Russia the go-ahead sign to do so - later at Teheran the situation seemed to change - others exerted their influence against Russia. Russia asked for atomic control but the United States was very cold to her about the whole thing. Someone in the audience asked Mr. MORFORD about people being liquidated in Russia. He said the word puzzled him a little, people were shifted around in their positions in Russia but he thought that being liquidated was rather exaggerated, indeed he had seen no actual proof of this. He had furnished a list of names to a certain Russian official and the latter had (C)

Following MORFORD's talk, the picture "Rebuilding of Stalingrad" was shown, according to Informant, which is an ARTKINO Picture. The Annual Meeting came next, at which time the Executive Board was elected. (C) X

(U) [ ] who also attended the Annual Meeting, identified Professor HENRY W. L. DANA, MARGE GAMMONS, an individual who was formerly identified as Executive Secretary of the NCASF, Mrs. DIRK JAN STRUIK and HENRY W. NUNN, Treasurer of the organization. With reference to the election of the Executive Board, this Informant advised that when the Annual Meeting commenced following the showing of the film "Rebuilding of Stalingrad," the youth group left almost in its entirety, and when the ballots were actually passed out there were but 17 people present. DIRK STRUIK read a report of the Nominating Committee and Informant noted that no members of this committee were identified. Twenty-two persons were nominated for membership on the Board of Directors of the organization. STRUIK noted that the Constitution and Bylaws allowed for 25 but only 22 had been found who were willing to serve. STRUIK further advised the audience that the elected would within itself choose a chairman, executive secretary, treasurer, etc. (C) X

(U) The seventeen ballots were duly collected and H.W.L. DANA motioned that the organization meet once a month. His motion was passed with the amendment that it be referred to the Executive Committee for discussion, and such action as was deemed advisable. (C) X

(U) The Informant advised that the literature table was operated under the announced sponsorship of the Progressive Book Shop, known outlet for CP literature in the Boston area. (C) X

DETAILS:

AT KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI

Confidential Informant [ ] believed reliable, furnished a mimeographed sheet extending an invitation for the recipient to hear ABBOTT SIMON, Field Representative of the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship, who would be at the Wise Buyers' Mart Hall, 2603½ Prospect, Friday April 21, 1950. At the bottom of the sheet were printed these words, "The Progressive Party of Jackson County." The body of the sheet had in capital letters underlined, "CAN WE HAVE PEACE WITH THE SOVIET UNION?" After that in small letters, "Can the U. S. and the USSR Live Together?" "We think you will be interested in knowing what Mr. SIMON has to say. Don't miss this opportunity to hear him." Informant advised that this invitation was received in an envelope bearing no return address and there was nothing on the sheet which was enclosed to otherwise identify the Progressive Party of Jackson County, or to enable a person receiving it to contact any of the persons in charge of the meeting.

Confidential Informant [ ] believed reliable, has advised that ABBOTT SIMON gave the principal talk at a meeting held at the Wise Buyers' Mart Hall on the evening of 4-21-50. Informant reported there were 22 persons in attendance at this meeting, but that several left at various early stages of the meeting. He advised that the speaker was introduced by HARRY SHAPIRO as a representative of the NCASF and also as a person who had acted as a campaign manager for VITO MARCANTONIO, Congressman from New York City. In his talk, according to this informant, SIMON stated in substance as follows:

"Everything depends on peace or war with Soviet Russia".
"The impression that we can't settle differences with Russia is an illusion. -Co-existence with Russia is not only possible, but necessary. -Lenin, Stalin, Molotov and Vishinsky have all said that Capitalism and Communism can live together."

SIMON ridiculed Winchell, Pearson and Time and Fortune Magazines for their utterances and articles which build up disillusion that Russia and the United States cannot settle their differences. He referred to President Truman, "as the Savior of independence." and quoted the President as saying, "The trouble with Stalin is that he is not a real Communist." Simon assailed the tremendous war budget of this country. He said that Truman couldn't find money for housing and Civil Rights, but that he could find enough for War and the manufacture of the atom and hydrogen bombs. He urged his listeners to work in behalf of voiding the Atlantic Pact, which was re-arming the world - to stop forcing Chiang on the Chinese people. He remarked that the capitalistic system can only exist on an armament program and could not exist on free trade. He stated that our money was going to the support of Fascism and feudalism. He pointed out that this country has foreign military bases all over the world and he mentioned Greece, Spain and Afghanistan; also has bases in Cuba and Mexico. He stated these bases should be withdrawn. He pointed out that Soviet Russia has no such foreign bases. He stated that Soviet Russia desires peace and has pioneered the use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes. RUSSIA has decreased its military budget from "7,000,000 to 3,000,000" (apparently dollars). He urged against the making of anti-Soviet speeches in the United States and stated that no representative of the Soviet makes speeches against the United States like persons in this country do against Soviet Russia. He criticized the Government for getting "too thick" with Franco Spain. He mentioned that ~~OPEN~~ ~~LATTIMORE~~ recently went to Afghanistan to tie that country into the cold war. Speaking of conditions in Russia, he stated that the Soviet worker spends only  $\frac{1}{12}$  of his salary for housing; that although the need for strikes in Soviet Russia were far less than in the United States, labor unions in Russia was potent, and that they can strike for better conditions if necessary. He mentioned that the Soviet government had recently raised the value of the ruble and cut the cost of goods to the Russian buyer; he attacked the ~~Mundt-Ferguson-Nixon~~ bill and urged his listeners to write their representatives in Congress. He mentioned that WALTER REUTHER and other prominent labor leaders had expressed themselves against the passage of this bill. He spoke to his listeners concerning the preparation of a "Peace Statement", the exact nature of which was unknown to this Informant. However, SIMON suggested that the first signatures on this Peace statement should be those of some prominent clergymen in Kansas City. He called attention to a Mid-Century Conference for Peace to be held in Chicago the latter part of May, and he suggested that someone from Kansas City should be sent as a delegate. He indicated that after the names of prominent clergymen were obtained on this "Peace Statement" that it would be well to secure prominent educators and thereafter labor leaders to sign this statement.

Confidential Informant  further advised that after the meeting broke up, SIMON and a number of others in attendance, but not all, met for an informal discussion. This gathering appeared to be merely to give the persons in attendance an opportunity to talk informally with SIMON. At this time, the matter of signing of the "Peace Statement" was mentioned again and from persons in attendance the names of ~~RABBI~~ ~~MAYERBURG~~, ~~BISHOP~~ ~~REED~~ (Negro) and the Rev. LAWRENCE SCOTT of the American Friends Service were quoted as being mentioned as persons whom it would be well to contact first with reference to this "Peace Statement." Informant also said that in this connection the name of HODDIS, apparently a minister in Kansas City, was mentioned and also a minister, whose name he did not get, but who has a church at 54th and Brookside, was mentioned. Of particular significance was informant's statement that at this time, SIMON cautioned all of those listening that they should not tell those ministers that any organization was in back of the "Peace Statement."

b7D

Confidential Informant [ ] furnished information that persons also in attendance at this meeting to his knowledge were HARRY SHAPIRO, who chaired the meeting, and LEWIS EDWARD GREENE.

Confidential Informant [ ] of known reliability, has advised that HARRY SHAPIRO, ~~GORDON~~ ~~MONROE~~, ~~ANNA~~ ~~JENNY~~ ~~PENNEY~~ and ~~SYLVIA~~ ~~COHEN~~ were persons observed in attendance at the meeting, held at the Wise Buyers' Mart Hall. SHAPIRO, GREENE, MONROE, PENNEY and ~~SYLVIA~~ ~~COHEN~~ are persons all known in the past to have been members of the Communist Party in Kansas City.

b2

Confidential Informant [ ] also advised that at the rear of the meeting held in the hall there was made available literature and from information furnished by this informant some of this literature included the following:

b2

- A six-page printed sheet entitled: "The USSR - Basic Facts, prepared by ~~BERNARD~~ ~~KOTEN~~, American-Russian Institute, Inc., 58 Park Avenue, NY, NY. It bore the date January 1950 and at the bottom of one page was printed "The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship."
- A pamphlet entitled ~~Soviet~~-Democracy by HARRY ~~EDWARD~~, published by Soviet Russia Today.
- A pamphlet entitled The Truth About Anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union, by ~~TO~~ ~~O'~~CONNOR, published by the American Commission of Jewish Writers, Artists and Scientists.

A pamphlet entitled: ~~Organized Labor in the Soviet Union~~, by EDWIN S. ~~SMITH~~ and published by the NCASF

A pamphlet entitled: ~~Learning about the Soviet Union~~ - published by the NCASF, in which pamphlet is set out a bibliography for children, teachers and students. Published by the NCASF.

A mimeographed bulletin written on the letter head of the NCASF dated April 18, 1950, and entitled: "The ~~HELL-BOMB~~ in Washington." This bulletin after setting out governmental activity dealing with atomic and hydrogen bombs, sets out action recommended. In particular it is recommended that Senator Brien Mc Mahon, Chairman of the joint-committee, on atomic energy, have letters or wires directed to him urging open committee hearings and direct negotiations with the Soviet Union.

A pamphlet entitled: "The ~~Curious Case of the Cold War~~" published by the NCASF.

A pamphlet entitled: "The ~~Hell Bomb~~ and YOU." with the publisher not mentioned thereon.

The New York Office by teletype dated 4-20-50 in this case advised that ABBOTT SIMON was National Field Director of the American-Soviet Friendship and he was presently on a speaking tour of the Mid-West for the NCASF. The purpose of his trip had been reported to be stimulation of interest in out-lawing of atomic and hydrogen bombs and defeat of the Mundt-Nixon Bill. SIMON was in frequent contact with CP headquarters and officials in New York City and contacts known party members while on field trips. He also was a former official in the Young Communist League.

The publications which are listed in the details of this report were obtained by the informant who attended the meeting and will be maintained in the file in this case. Inasmuch as it is not known whether or not they are commonly known publications which have already been obtained by the office of origin or the Bureau. ✓

Confidential Informant [ ] who attended this meeting, stated that he obtained the opinion that SIMON was acquainted with the names of some of the persons in attendance and apparently has a list of these names with him. In particular he asked about the presence of HORACE BANCROFT DAVIS AND HIS WIFE MARIAN RUBINS DAVIS, who were not present at the meeting. It was explained that they were out of town, by someone in attendance. SIMON was quite critical, according to this informant, because of the small attendance and asked what was the matter with Mrs. DAVIS, apparently implying he was blaming her for the poor showing. Several women in attendance explained to him that Mrs. DAVIS had been head over heels in work having to do with recent school elections. Both Mr. and Mrs. DAVIS are persons known in the past to have been Communist Party members. DAVIS is an Economic Professor at the Kansas City University and a key figure in this office. Informant advised that Mrs. RUBINS, the mother-in-law of Dr. DAVIS was present at this meeting. She is a woman said to be about 80 years of age and her complete name as known by this office is FLORENCE RUBINS. Information is in the Kansas City files to indicate that Mrs. RUBINS is at the very least an ardent Communist Sympathizer and probably a Party member.

BILL OF RIGHTS CONFERENCE
July 16 and 17, 1949 - New York City
INFORMATION CONCERNING

Confidential Informant [ ] on May 28, 1949, advised of a conference between ABBOT SIMON, National Field Director of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, and MAXINE WOOD, Assistant Director of the New York State Council of the Arts, Sciences and Professions. SIMON told WOOD that a number of individuals had already indicated willingness to participate in a "Bill of Rights Conference to be held in New York City, July 16 and 17, 1949. He named THOMAS I. LAMSON, PHILIP MORRISON, LINUS PAULING, ROBERT KENNY and COLSTON WARNE as among those who would participate and said that a half dozen additional telegrams had been sent to "build up the number of church people and educators" to participate. He requested MAXINE WOOD to telephonically contact Rev. ARTHUR MORTON of Utah to insure his cooperation which had already been requested by telegram. He quoted the text of the telegram as follows:

"Several of us concerned at using attacks on Civil Liberties have reached point that feel time right for national gathering to protest infringement on Bill of Rights and reaffirm our traditional liberties of speech, press, pulpit and political advocacy. We do join with Professor LINUS PAULING of the California Institute of Technology and President of the American Chemical Society; Hon. ROBERT KENNY, former Attorney General of California; ARTHUR MILLER, recently awarded Pulitzer Prize for his play 'Death of a Salesman' and several others in initiating such a conference to be held here in New York July 16, and 17. The conference will be independent and will have no organizational connections. Please wire me your reply collect if possible.

It is noted that PAUL KERN is a former President of the New York City Civil Service Commission whose name was linked with numerous Communist Party front organizations by the Ellis Committee which investigated the Commission when KERN was its President.

Confidential Informant [ ] further advised that MAXINE WOOD later in the same day told SIMON that she had telephonically contacted BISHOP MOULTON and he had agreed to be an "initiator" of the conference.

Apparently, SIMON and WOOD have had previous discussions concerning this conference and, because of their connections with NCASF and ASF and the identity of those who have agreed to participate and "initiate", it appears that the conference is being really initiated by NCASF or ASF (most likely ASF) or jointly by both organizations.

On May 5, 1950 [ ] of known reliability, advised SE V. L. KIPPING that at 8:30 p.m. on the same date, a meeting was held at the offices of the American Russian Institute for Cultural Relations with the Soviet Union, San Francisco, California. Hereafter this latter organization will be designated as the ARI. This informant reported as follows concerning this meeting:

Dr. WILLIAM BERKE made the opening remarks and introduced ABBOTT SIMON as the principal speaker at the meeting. He stated that SIMON had been making a tour getting in touch with various groups of people and, therefore, is in a position to evaluate and give a good report on peace.

SIMON declared that it was up to the people now to take stock of what is happening. He stated that the large audiences drawn by the Dean of Canterbury during 1948 indicated that there were large sections of the American people who were for peace. He declared that the feeling prior to that time was that war was inevitable. He said that the feeling now is that war is not inevitable. He stated that at the time of the Dean's speeches, only the progressive forces were of the opinion that war was not inevitable. Generally the people felt the same as Air Force Generals felt at the time that they said they wanted to know when was the time that we should fly over the Soviet Union and drop A Bombs. SIMON declared that at that time the feeling of the general public in despairing of the peace movement was unwarranted. He also declared that the work of groups such as the ARI, the Council of American Soviet Friendship and the Progressive Party was work that kept the idea of peace alive. He declared that it was persons like HENRY WALLACE, the Dean of Canterbury, JEROME DAVIS, and the Rev. MELISH, who are not afraid to speak, who also kept the idea of peace alive. He added that although such persons as WALTER WINCHELL and DREW PEARSON do not agree, there is actually a feeling of peace throughout the United States. He stated that his conclusion is based on factual, down to earth information. As illustrations of the type of information he spoke of, he mentioned the large church meeting in Denver and the Methodist Peace Conference in the San Francisco area. He declared that these meetings show that we have sold our program to other groups.

SIMON declared that in Denver, Colorado the "Denver Post" spread vicious anti-Soviet propaganda throughout a large area of Colorado but that at the same time there were large groups of persons who were circulating petitions asking for the outlawing of the A Bomb. SIMON stated that this group of people did not work or demonstrate in the same manner as the Progressive Party or the ARI but nevertheless they can be effective. He said that this group is represented in fifteen or sixteen churches in Denver, as well as in universities and colleges. SIMON stated that he wondered who was behind this group and decided to find out. He stated that he did, and that he talked to the person, a Mrs. ~~CORBETT~~ (ph) who headed a group called Women's Church and Services of the Methodist Church. SIMON declared that Mrs. CORBETT was fearful of the war feeling then prevailing so she decided to do something about it. She went to the Farmers Union, the Progressive Party, Methodist Churches, Quakers, and so forth, and soon had one large organized group working for peace. He added that in one week's time she had collected over 2,000 signatures. He stated that this might not seem important but it is when considered that this large number of people signed a petition in one week. He added that one person was a Methodist Minister who in 1948 refused to participate in a meeting held for the Dean of Canterbury. He added that the movement in Denver was important with respect to the coming elections and by the time the elections are held, the peace movement will have gained greater momentum and will influence the candidates elected to Congress.

SIMON declared that "we" had all the Negro groups, Quakers, etc., holding a peace conference in March which was working to outlaw the idea of the A Bomb, to end the Cold War, and to negotiate with Russia. He stated that two of the men were a Mr. ~~CADEBURY~~ (ph), a Quaker who is head of the American Friends Committee, and a Mr. ~~McELROY~~ (ph), of the _____ Electrical Union. SIMON declared that the National Farmers Union completely reversed themselves on the issue of the Cold War. He declared that Rev. ~~LOGAN~~ in Salt Lake City is doing what he can to foster and promote the peace movement and that he is holding a meeting in the near future to promote peace.

SIMON went on to say that these movements refute the idea that annihilation of Russia and war is the answer.

He stated that we say that negotiation with the Soviet Union is possible; that outlawing the A Bomb is the first move toward disarmament; that the United States should take the lead in the United Nations, and the United Nations should stand ready to negotiate the end of the Cold War with the Soviet Union.

SIMON then declared that FRANK ~~ROSENBLUM~~ (ph), of the CIO Amalgamated _____, is starting a peace movement in the CIO.

SIMON declared that Dr. ~~WILCOX~~, a Protestant Minister, had ordered over 10,000 free books mailed out to Methodist Ministers and that this book represented his views on the peace movement. He declared that the peace movement was beginning to represent all shades of people, all shades of thought and all shades of politics. He added that this did not just happen overnight. He advised that there were certain things which had happened during the past eighteen months which cannot be hidden. First, he stated, the announcement made by President TRUMAN that the Soviet Union had the A Bomb, and secondly, the order to go ahead on the H Bomb had been given. He stated the H Bomb idea has shaken many people. He stated that the idea which was placed on the Chicago Round Table of the Air on February 21, 1950 that the H Bomb could wipe out a large area of civilization had a frightful meaning to many people. He declared that another thing which has had an effect on our foreign affairs is the fact that European nations no longer want to be a battleground for a war between the United States and the USSR. He stated another item to be considered was headlines in such publications as the "U.S. News and World Report" reading, "Billions Buy Few Friends in Europe", and, "U.S. Allies Find Few Friends as Cold War Gets Hotter."

Director, FBI

He declared that even CHURCHILL spoke out asking for an end to the Cold War and that even the Administration feels compelled to speak out on the issue. He declared that the McCARTHY affair is a side issue to take the spotlight off the idea of finding new ways to end the Cold War with Russia. Many Senators and Congressmen who are up for election, he stated, must try to justify the idea of the Cold War to the people.

SIMON then asked what all this meant. He asked if it meant that our job was over. He answered his own questions by saying it does not. He declared that we must counter the constant wave of propaganda against the USSR that the Russians have slave labor; that they are anti-Semitic; that they have no trade unions; and that, therefore, we cannot deal with them. He added that we must supply ammunition to fight back; to point out the way the Jews are treated in the USSR; the condition of the trade unions; and the policy of the USSR on the A Bomb.

SIMON declared that the people who six months ago were all for a Hot War, are now looking toward peace negotiations since the Russians now have smashed the American monopoly of the A Bomb and now are working on the H Bomb. SIMON declared that all these things have created a large demand for our speakers. He declared that in Denver, during the last seven months, we have supplied four speakers. He stated that a large group of Ministers and others have organized a group and have requested our speakers. He stated that during the past seven months our mailing list has been increased by over 50%. He stated that in San Francisco he saw that Bishop EDWARD PARSONS is organizing a peace meeting along with Dr. LYMAN FORD (ph) to be held on May 21, 1950. He declared that there were many groups, Ministers and Chambers of Commerce in such places as Arkansas, for example, who write to the National Council asking that speakers be made available. He stated that the kind of information we can give about the Soviet Union, such as the democracy of the people; how they live and the lack of discrimination, are the weapons which we should use against the war mongers.

He closed by saying that they should look forward to May, 1951 and see if we cannot change the situation in the future as much as we have in the past.

Director, FBI

In January, 1950 [ ] of known reliability, advised that ~~ABBOTT~~ ~~SIMON~~ was the National Field Director of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship. At the same time the same informant stated that Dr. ~~WILLIAM KERKE~~ was Chairman of the Committee for Peace of the ARI.

On December 8, 1948 SA ROGER S. C. WOLCOTT attended a public meeting held at the San Francisco Civic Auditorium. At the meeting he received a program which reflected that the meeting was sponsored by the Committee to Welcome the Dean of Canterbury and was held so that the audience could hear an address by the Rev. ~~HEWLETT JOHNSON~~, Dean of Canterbury. The program passed out at this meeting reflected that the Rt. Rev. ~~EDWARD L. PARSONS~~ was Chairman of the committee. SA WOLCOTT advised that PARSONS was identified at this meeting as Bishop Emeritus of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

In July, 1949 [ ] advised that the 1948 annual report of the ARI reflected that the financial responsibility, promotion and all other arrangements for this meeting on December 8, 1948 were handled by the ARI.

It will be noted that both the National Council of American Soviet Friendship and the ARI have been declared by the Attorney General as coming within the purview of Executive Order 9835.

[ ] advised that the mass meeting was closed with a speech by JOHN HOWARD LAWSON, screen writer and one of the "Hollywood 10" who were cited for contempt of congress. [ ] advised that the following comments were made by LAWSON: u

"We are witnessing a corruption of our conscience. We have gone through many other dark times but never have we been treated to one this long. The deep freeze in Washington where the brazen lie is enthroned and worshiped". ] u

[ ] advised that LAWSON further commented that the forces of evil around J. EDGAR HOOVER brought forth the Palmer raids and terror reigned across the land. He said that the die which was cast then has not changed very much as there are still two men reigning terror across the land and both names are HOOVER -- HERBERT HOOVER and J. EDGAR HOOVER doing hatchet jobs on people's rights. LAWSON stated that J. EDGAR HOOVER was an apprentice in 1919 but now he is a full seasoned hatchet man. u

On February 11, 1950, reporting agent telephonically interviewed REVA MUCHA under suitable pretext at Granite 4179, the phone number of the American Russian Institute of Southern California. MUCHA referred to the newly formed organization as the Southern California Council of American Soviet Friendship and disclaimed any connection between it and the American Russian Institute of Southern California. According to MUCHA, the former would be a branch of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship. She further stated that the American Russian Institute would not be replaced by the new organization but would continue to function as a research center and library. She further stated that the American Russian Institute of Southern California had recently moved to more spacious quarters at 1024 1/2 North Western Avenue; and in view of their having extra space, the Council might see fit to utilize it as an office.

WELANKO stated that he had prepared one additional by-law providing that any member would have the right to prefer charges against any other member assumed to be opposed to the aims and purposes of the organization. This by-law was presented and accepted and WELANKO stated it would insure the new organization against infiltration and penetration by the FBI and other disrupters who would be sent into the organization for espionage purposes. u

[ ] advised that following debate on the subject, it was decided that the Board of Directors should be limited to twenty members and that meetings of the organization would be held once a month. u

III. STATED AIMS AND OBJECTIVES

[ ] advised that a summary of the Organizational Conference prepared by ABE MELANKO contained the following resolutions adopted at the Organizational Conference which reflects the aims and objectives of the group. u

A. AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY

- " 1. To urge the President of the United States to accept the offer of the Soviet Union for bilateral meetings to negotiate existing difficulties;
- " 2. Trade restrictions on the Soviet Union shall be ended and the exchange of raw materials and finished products be resumed, since normal trade relations will benefit the economies of both countries;
- " 3. To conclude peace treaties in relation to Germany and Japan through the United Nations in order to remove the main points of friction. "

With regard to the American Foreign Policy in relation to China, the following resolutions were adopted:

"Since the cold war policy of the United States in relation to the Soviet Union as reflected in our dealings with the Eastern European democracies and with China has resulted in loss of prestige by the United States, and has curtailed our own economy --

"We urge the early recognition of the Chinese Peoples Republic, and that it be extended normal trade relations and friendship; and further, that constructive economic trade relations with the Eastern European democracies be resumed."

B. RELATION TO THE SOVIET ARTS:

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The summary made available by ☐ reflects that a resolution was drawn up stating that for the purpose of better relations between the Los Angeles artist and his counterpart in the Soviet Union, stenographic reports of the discussion should be sent to the Soviet Union as a first step in the regular exchange of information and ideas in the arts; and that the new organization formed because of the conference, make a place among its activities for concerts, exhibitions, film showings and further open discussions. u

b2

C. ATOMIC ENERGY:

The following position was taken by the Conference on the subject of Atomic Energy:

- "1. Prohibit the use of atomic energy for military purposes by joint declaration of the Big Five;
- "2. Encourage the fullest use of atomic energy for peaceful purposes only;
- "3. Guarantee against military use of peacetime atomic installations by international inspection through a United Nations commission."

The summary stated that in view of the foregoing,

"We petition our Government to renew negotiations with the Soviet Union to ban "A" and "H" bombs, as well as other weapons of mass destruction, and to limit the use of atomic energy to peaceful purposes."

In addition to the foregoing, additional suggestions were made to improve American Soviet relations by the panel on American Foreign Policy as follows:

- "1. A conference between THUMAN and STALIN.
- "2. Agreement by United States and Soviet Union to stop further production of A bombs and H bombs and to put existing stockpiles under United Nations control.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

- "3. Reconsider our proposals for international atomic control based on our assumption of an exclusive monopoly of the A bomb.
- "4. Drop our objections to Russian proposals for general disarmament including atomic weapons.
- "5. Drop trade restrictions affecting Soviet Union and Eastern European countries.
- "6. Extend a loan to the Soviet Union commensurate with her sacrifices in the last war and her needs for reconstruction. She is considered an excellent banker's risk, hence we need not fear such a loan would be another "Operation Ratholo".
- "7. Support, in deeds, the United Nations, using its good offices when and where conciliation of international difficulties is needed. We should abandon the North Atlantic Pact and the re-armament of Europe because they by-pass and supersede the United Nations.
- "8. An early peace treaty with Germany based on the Potsdam agreement, and a Peace treaty with Japan.
- "9. Recognize at once the new regime in China, a regime supported by the overwhelming majority of the Chinese people.
- "10. Refuse further aid to France and Holland if that aid is used to suppress the independence movement in Indo-China and Indonesia. "

IV. SUBVERSIVE RAMIFICATIONS

A. IMPLEMENTATION OF COMMUNIST PARTY LINE

The following are quotations from the May, 1950 issue of the magazine "Political Affairs", which was devoted to reports given by National Communist Party officers to the Plenary Meeting of the National Committee of the Communist Party, USA in March, 1950, and are set out for purposes of comparison with the aims and purposes of the Southern California Council of American Soviet Friendship as noted heretofore.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The following is a quotation from an editorial appearing on page 3 of "Political Affairs" for May, 1950:

"It is impossible for the American working class to wage an effective struggle on the pending economical, social, and political issues of the day without simultaneously waging a powerful struggle for peace, for the out-lawing of the A and H bombs; for United States - Soviet negotiations to achieve a pact of peace, for recognition of, and trade with, the new Peoples Republic of China."

The following quotation is from the keynote speech of WILLIAM Z. FOSTER as it appears on Page 12 of "Political Affairs" for May, 1950:

"A major point, it seems to me, in developing our fight for peace is to focus our major peace fight around the most immediate aspects of the question; such as the holding of a meeting between TRUMAN and STALIN, the fight against the H bomb, the reduction of Marshall Plan 'aid', the cutting of the arms budget in the country, etc. etc. These are the best issues that the masses can be rallied around."

The following is a quotation from the report of GUS HALL, National Communist Party committeeman, appearing on page 26 of "Political Affairs".

"Let me go into a little more detail on this question of the present level of the peace movement. Are the broad masses that are moving into the peace camp ready for an all inclusive peace movement of the type of the American League Against War and Fascism during the 30's? Clearly at this stage they are not. The mass peace sentiment will be expressed in the most diversified movements and campaigns around public issues. For example, are the broad masses ready for a movement or campaign for outlawing the H bomb? Or for trade with China? Or for cutting taxes? Or for direct negotiations with the USSR? The answer to this is also clear; they are. We must drive home in our own thinking and to our Party the fact that we have now the greatest possibilities, the greatest openings, on all levels of American life in all sections of the American people for the Attorney General,

Department of Justice,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir:

Sometime ago my roommate and I, while strolling on the campus of the University of Wisconsin, found the enclosed letter. As I am unable to determine if the committee mentioned in the enclosed letter is connected with the Council of American Soviet Friendship which is listed as subversive, I do not know if letter is significant.

Believing it to be my duty as a citizen, I am sending it to you for what it may be worth.

Sincerely yours.

SUBJECT: CHICAGO COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP
INTERNAL SECURITY - C

There is transmitted herewith to the Bureau a copy of a communication dated August 4, 1950, from the Post Office Inspector in Charge at Chicago to this office concerning three magazines mailed anonymously at Wheeling, Illinois, bearing the return address of 68 West Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois, which were forwarded to the Postmaster at Chicago by the District Post Office Inspector at Ottawa, Canada.

There is also transmitted herewith a copy of the communication from the Post Office Inspector at Chicago to the District Post Office Inspector at Ottawa and a copy of the communication received by the Postmaster at Chicago from the District Post Office Inspector at Ottawa, all of which are self-explanatory.

The 3 magazines referred to in these communications are Issue No. 21, 1950, of "New Times;" April 28, 1950, issue of "USSR Information Bulletin;" and pamphlet entitled "Stalin and the Russians" by JEROME DAVIS. These are being enclosed herewith, together with the two wrappers used in transmitting this material.

letter has been acknowledged.

For the Bureau's information, the address of 68 West Washington Street, Chicago, is an office building in the Loop section of the city, wherein among other tenants is located the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship, which is very probably the source of this material.

No information is available in this office concerning the means by which the addressee's name and address were obtained, and this material is being forwarded to the Bureau for appropriate return to the District Post Office Inspector at Ottawa through liaison channels.

There is transmitted to the Bureau and to New York City with their copy of this letter one copy of "Voks Bulletin 1949" dated Moscow, USSR, No. 60, published by the USSR Society for Cultural Relations with Foreign Countries.

Please be advised that a package was received by regular U. S. mail by SA CASPER H. KAST, Resident Agent in Michigan, at his home address, 719 West Jefferson Street. This package bore a white tape type gum label addressed as follows: "Ann Arbor Council of American-Soviet Friendship, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan, USA." The package bore a Moscow, USSR, postmark cancellation stamp dated 15 6.50. Underneath the typewritten label mentioned above is written in pencil "International Center." This is crossed off in ink and the address 719 West Jefferson Street, Ann Arbor, written in along with three question marks beside the white typewritten label mentioned above.

It appears that this package was actually mailed in Moscow and addressed to the Ann Arbor council. It further appears that the Post Office Department at Ann Arbor, not having any better address, forwarded the package to the International Center of the University of Michigan. It appears that someone there crossed off in pen the pencil address of International Center and wrote in SA KAST's home address without his name and placed the question marks beside the white label.

The package contained five copies of "Voks Bulletin 1949", No. 60. One copy is forwarded to the Bureau with this letter and one copy to New York City with their copy of this letter. The remaining three copies, along with the wrapping, is being retained in the Detroit file.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN
SOVIET FRIENDSHIP
INTERNAL SECURITY - C
Your file 56218/225 Inv.

Reference is made to the memorandum of August 2, 1950, from Mr. A. R. Mackey, Acting Commissioner, Immigration and Naturalization Service, concerning the captioned organization.

The National Council of American Soviet Friendship is the subject of a pending investigation by this Bureau. For your assistance in determining whether the organization is subversive within the meaning of the immigration laws there is attached a photostatic copy of a summary memorandum which was furnished to the Attorney General on June 26, 1947, in connection with the President's Loyalty Order. This memorandum summarized the pertinent information available to this Bureau concerning the origin, background, stated aims and objectives, officers, implementation of the Communist Party program and general activities of the organization.

Also attached is one copy each of the following reports containing additional pertinent information concerning the organization:

Report of Special Agent C. Donald Stample dated April 4, 1950, at New York.

Report of Special Agent C. Donald Stample dated September 12, 1949, at New York.

Report of Special Agent C. Donald Stample dated January 3, 1949, at New York.

Report of Special Agent John M. Collins dated November 7, 1947, at New York.

As the National Council of American Soviet Friendship is currently under investigation, a copy of all pertinent reports received in the future will be furnished to you promptly.

If after reviewing the above reports and the summary memorandum it is felt that additional specific data is necessary or the identity of a certain confidential informant is required to permit your Service to make a determination as to whether the organization is subversive within the meaning of the immigration laws, it is suggested that you further advise this Bureau of your requirements.

OFFICE MEMORANDUM

UNITED STATES GOVERNMENT

BY MESSENGER SERVICE

56218/225 Inv.

TO: J. Edgar Hoover, Director
Federal Bureau of Investigation
FROM: A. R. Mackey, Acting Commissioner,
Immigration and Naturalization Service
SUBJECT: Organization "NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC." 100-145250

Date: August 2, 1950.

Reference is had to memorandum dated May 16, 1950, from Peyton Ford, The Assistant to the Attorney General, to the Commissioner, copy of which has been furnished to the Bureau. That memorandum directed that the Bureau will continue to investigate questionable organizations with the view to establishing them as subversive within the meaning of the laws administered by this Service, and that this Service should procure from the Bureau the reports necessary for immigration and naturalization proceedings.

With respect to the subject organization, this Service requires evidence upon which it may make a determination:

- (1) Whether the organization is within the proscription of the Act approved October 16, 1918, as amended (8 U.S.C. 137) and of Section 305 of the Nationality Act of 1940 (8 U.S.C. 705); RECORDED-RECORDING
- (2) Whether the organization is such that an alien's membership therein is ground for deeming his entry to this country to be prejudicial to the interests of the United States, within the meaning of 8 CFR 175.53;
- (3) Whether the organization is such that an alien's membership therein is ground for concluding that he is not attached to the principles of the Constitution of the United States and is not well disposed to the good order and happiness of the same, or is inconsistent with his taking in good faith an unqualified oath to support, defend and bear true allegiance to the Constitution and laws of the United States; and
- (4) Whether the organization is such that an alien's membership therein is a factor which should warrant the denial of discretionary relief to which he might otherwise be eligible.

In naturalization cases, the evidence must be presented to the court in a public hearing and must be in the form required by the rules of judicial proof. In exclusion and deportation cases, the strict rules of judicial proof are not binding but the evidence must be established at an open hearing. It would be highly desirable, therefore, if your investigation were directed, so far as possible, to the production of evidence which can meet the foregoing standards. Where evidence stems from confidential informants whose identity may not be disclosed, it would be helpful if some basis were furnished to evaluate the information, for use in cases involving discretionary action.

You previously furnished this office a report on this organization on February 27, 1948 and a report was received from Peyton Ford, The Assistant to the Attorney General, dated March 29, 1948, containing a synopsis of the investigation conducted by your Bureau. It would be appreciated if your investigation were conducted and your report submitted as soon as possible.

The address of 68 West Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois, is an office building in the Loop section of Chicago. The Bureau, of course, has no way of determining how the sender of the publications obtained [redacted] name and address. For your information, however, the Chicago Chapter of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, an organization declared by the Attorney General to be a Communist organization within the purview of Executive Order 9835, is one of the tenants at the 68 West Washington Street address.

As the District Post Office Inspector at Ottawa initially requested the return of the enclosures to his letter of July 28, 1950, attached are such enclosures which should be turned over to him.

✓ Mrs. Diamond in the office of Senator Clinton Anderson called me on September 14. She stated the Senator was very anxious to obtain information as to the names of persons appearing on the letterhead of the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship; that he was then attending a committee meeting and wanted the information as possible for that meeting.

I suggested to Mrs. Diamond that she could probably obtain this information much more quickly from the HCUA inasmuch as they would have this material already indexed and that the material in the Bureau's files would not be readily available.

Re New York tels. 10-5-50 and 10-9-50.

A review of the files of the Richmond Field Division in captioned matter discloses that this organization has not been active in the territory covered by the Richmond Field Division. There is no indication that there has been a local chapter of this organization, or any activity of any of its members in connection with the organization. The only possible exception of this occurred on June 26 and 27, 1946 when WILLIAM H. MELISH gave a talk at the State Teachers' College, Farmville, Virginia under the sponsorship of the Institute on Education For International Understanding at the above named college. MELISH lectured on the history of Russian churches and the freedom of religion in Russia and how the truth about Russia would bring about world friendship. He was not known to make contact with any of the local members of the Communist Party at the time of his visit to Virginia and he was introduced as Dr. WILLIAM H. MELISH, Pastor of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, New York.

For the benefit of the New York Office in the preparation of its summary report there are enclosed herewith thirteen exhibits which were obtained through the services of Confidential Informant [redacted] whose identity is known to the Bureau, and was a trash coverage on the apartment formerly occupied by ALICE BURKE, Chairman of the Communist Party, USA, District #26, 11 North Linden Street, Apt. #2, Richmond, Virginia. Undoubtedly the New York Office is already in the possession of some, if not all, of these exhibits, which are as follows:

(1) An open letter dated 9-16-49 on the stationery of the NCASF, relating to President TRUMAN'S arms' program. This letter advocated voting against the Bill pertaining to this program. It was signed by ABBOTT SIMON, National Field Director.

Reference is made to New York teletype dated August 5, 1950, requesting this office among others to review the file on the above captioned organization for the purpose of setting forth admissible legal evidence to be presented under the Internal Security Act of 1950, should the officers of the above captioned organization fail to register in accordance with this act.

A review of the file has been made in this office, which review reflects that the National Council of American Soviet Friendship has not been active in this area. However, the file does reflect that CORLISS LAMONT, a functionary of the above captioned organization, appeared before the House Committee on Un-American Activities on February 6, 1946 and was questioned about the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, Inc. The testimony was taken in Executive Session.

Mr. LOUIS RUSSELL, Chief Investigator for the HCUA, advised that should this evidence be deemed pertinent and necessary that a subpoena should be directed to the Clerk of the House Committee on Un-American Activities setting forth the desired information. If the information was taken in Executive Session, Mr. RUSSELL advised the chairman of the HCUA had the power to release the testimony.

Reference is made to New York teletypes of October 5 and October 9, 1950, requesting evidence available concerning the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP in connection with the Internal Security Act of 1950.

For the information of the Bureau, the only exposed informant of the Boston Office is ~~HELBERT~~ PHILBRICK of Melrose, Massachusetts, who has been contacted. Mr. PHILBRICK is unable to provide any legally admissible evidence with reference to the points set out in referenced teletypes. In like manner, no information has been received through voluntary admissible sources and, accordingly, the information set out herein has been established through confidential informants and the investigative efforts of Agents.

I. ORIGIN

Special Agent CHARLES E. PELLETIER of the Boston Office on January 4, 1945, obtained certain literature from the office of the MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, which was then located at 20 Newbury Street, Boston, Massachusetts. Included with this literature was a First Annual Report of the MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC., dated September, 1944. This FIRST ANNUAL REPORT is being forwarded to the New York Office as Exhibit A with a copy of instant letter.

Exhibit A reflects that in December, 1942, a NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP was organized in New York with ~~CORLIS~~ LAMONT as Chairman. A Boston meeting took place in Symphony Hall on November 8th under the auspices of a number of representative Boston citizens headed by Governor ~~SALTONSTALL~~ and Mayor ~~TOBIN~~.

The MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, according to Boston Exhibit A, was formed in April, 1943. Its original Executive Board included Professor DIRK J. ~~STRAIK~~. In September, the MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP set up an office at 20 Newbury Street, Boston.

Exhibit A further reflects that the MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP was formally affiliated to the NATIONAL COUNCIL in October, 1943, and was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts in the Spring of 1944.

Special Agent CHARLES E. PELLETIER of the Boston Office examined the application for a charter of the MCASF which was filed at the Office of the Secretary of State, Room 333, State House, Boston, Massachusetts. This charter was dated May 25, 1944. The records of the Secretary of State, State House, Boston, Massachusetts, further indicated that the corporation was organized under Chapter 7 of the General Laws and the name of the corporation is the MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC., with principal office at 20 Newbury Street, Boston, Massachusetts. It is believed that the proper person to subpoena for the production of records relating to the incorporation of the MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP would be the Secretary of State of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts at Boston, Massachusetts.

II. AFFILIATION OF MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP WITH THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP

It is noted that the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP has been listed under Executive Order 9635. No such citation has appeared with reference to the MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

Exhibit A, as set forth above, which was obtained by Special Agent CHARLES E. PELLETIER of the Boston Office on January 4, 1945, from the Office of the MCASF at 20 Newbury Street, Boston, Massachusetts, indicates that the MCASF was formally affiliated to the NATIONAL COUNCIL in October, 1943.

Special Agent CHARLES E. PELLETIER on the same date obtained a folder entitled "FACTS You Will Want to Know About the Massachusetts Council of AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP." This folder is being forwarded as an enclosure to the New York Office as Exhibit B to instant letter.

Exhibit B states that "The MASSACHUSETTS COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP is one of many such councils throughout the United States affiliated with the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP. Similar councils are set up in Canada and in England".

III. EXISTENCE OF THE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP
AFTER SEPTEMBER 23, 1950

No information has been received through any Boston source indicating continued existence of the MCASF. However, [ ] and

V. EXTENT TO WHICH PERSONS ACTIVE IN NCASF ARE ALSO ACTIVE IN DIRECTION OF COMMUNIST PARTY

No information is available to Boston concerning control of the NCASF by the Communist Party.

With reference to the NCASF, it is noted that BERN JAN STAIK, the present chairman, has been active in the NCASF since its inception. HERBERT PHILLBROCK, a Government witness in the trial of the eleven Communist leaders, has identified STAIK as having been in attendance at a meeting of the Professional Branch of the Communist Party at Cambridge, Massachusetts, in 1946.

VI. EXTENT TO WHICH NCASF SUPPORT, FINANCIAL AND OTHERWISE, IS DERIVED FROM COMMUNIST PARTY

A review of Boston files fails to indicate any legally admissible evidence indicating that either the NCASF or the NCASF has received financial or other support from the Communist Party.

VII. EXTENT TO WHICH NCASF FUNDS, RESOURCES, AND PERSONNEL HAVE BEEN UTILIZED TO PROMOTE THE OBJECTIVES OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY

Boston files do not indicate any legally admissible evidence showing the NCASF has used its funds, resources or personnel to promote the objectives of the Communist Party.

VIII. EVIDENCE WHICH SHOWS THE NCASF IS DOMINATED BY COMMUNIST PARTY

Boston files do not indicate any evidence which shows that the NCASF is dominated by the Communist Party.

In connection with Boston Exhibits A and B to instant letter, the New York Office is advised that these exhibits are the originals as obtained by Special Agent CHARLES E. FELLESTER of the Boston Office on January 4, 1945. These exhibits are being forwarded to New York by registered mail, appropriately marked as evidence, and should be treated as such. New York, in the event it desires to retain instant exhibits, is requested to immediately prepare suitable copies for the Boston Office and the Bureau.

ADMINISTRATIVE

- I. Available evidence showing that the National Council of American Soviet Friendship is substantially dominated by the Communist Party, USA.

CORWIN W. JOHNSON, ROBERT E. BEEBE, HAROLD J. BEUTER, Special Agents, FBI, formerly assigned to San Francisco office, can testify that the following information was received from Confidential Informant  cannot use b2

On January 15, 1945, a meeting was held in Room 706 at Communist Party Headquarters, 942 Market Street, San Francisco, California, at which time there were present the following individuals:

LOUISE BRANSTEN
WILLIAM SCHNEIDERMAN
OLETA YATES
HOLLAND ROBERTS
HERBERT RESNER

The following discussion took place at this meeting, to the best of the witness' knowledge:

WILLIAM SCHNEIDERMAN: I practically got out of a sick bed to get here. I have been speaking too much lately. I have a bad cold and can't get rid of it.

HERBERT RESNER: Where is DAVE HEDLEY? He 'phoned me this morning about something else. I supposed he would be here. RESNER called EXbrook 2571, DAVID HEDLEY, but learned from his office that he had gone to the dentist. HOLLAND ROBERTS suggested that they meet without HEDLEY. SCHNEIDERMAN agreed. He suggested that OLETA YATES tell the people the reason for meeting. OLETA YATES said that she supposed everyone knew why the meeting was called. It was for the purpose of coming to some agreement about the future work of the Council and the Institute. The feeling seems to be that the most desirable thing is for the Council and the Institute to merge, taking into the Institute many of those people in the Council, and greatly broaden the work of the Institute. Secondly, to extend the activities of the Institute to take in many of those things that the Council would ordinarily do, with the understanding that there are stipulated limitations on the political activities but at the same time some political activity can be done without calling it that. Now, I think that is about the gist of the discussions so far. The question seems to be whether there is a possibility of effecting such a merger or whether it is impossible to do anything at this time, and whether we may have to consider the thing all over again. This is about the way it sums up.

HERBERT RESNER: I tell you LOUISE, when we talked it over last week, Bill, Oleta and I, there was some doubt, at least on my part, whether the merger would be a merger in fact, because of ROSE, and because one time you stated that you thought it would be unfair to ask those people at the Institute, who have been there for a number of years and who have little community standing, to retire, and bring into it people with a broad, public community spirit. Then there is the question as to whether the Institute will really do the difficult political jobs, if the occasion arose for it to do them. Quite frankly my observations here over the past year is that the work which is being done in other cities by the Council is being done here by the Institute. The only reason for keeping it alive would be to do certain political jobs that the Institute can't do. Personally I don't think it wise from an organizational standpoint to keep it alive to do work that the Institute can do. Those are the questions that we have to resolve.

LOUISE BRANSTEN: Personally I don't think....

HOLLAND ROBERTS: In the main I wonder if it is a problem that can be handled, HERB, by the expansion of activities. The personal problems that you speak of are there with the expanded work of the Institute. With larger quarters ROSE can do the work that she has done for a long time, without supervision of the people. She can do the work with the schools that she has done for many years, without coming into contact with the people in a larger program. I look forward with some anticipation... The New York Council has its own building, medical expenditures through its gifts. The Institute doesn't have and is doing a very basic job. Fact that it has dissemination for the whole nation. I was hoping we might sponsor a larger plan -- if we can get the strength without the Council.

SCHNEIDERMAN: Do you know what the relationship in New York is between the Institute and the Council?

ROBERTS: Yes, the Council depends on the Institute for research work, primarily, and advice on publications.

RESNER: There's no formal connection, however.

LOUISE BRANSTEN: It gets paid by the Council, like it gets paid in Los Angeles. --- Organizationally, I don't see why it wouldn't be a real merger. In our preliminary discussion, we said that any decisions of the Board should be made available. We'd be glad to have a Board of 25 people or something of that sort and pro-rate them. Improve the standing of the Council - going out to different sections of the communities in order to get contact with some of the intelligentsia of the community but gradually the facilities can be utilized.

ADMINISTRATIVE

RESNER: Without speaking to the group about it; it seems to me that ROSE ISAAC ought to be put into the sort of thing she's doing where she won't have anything to do with the policies of the organization.

HOLLAND ROBERTS: I think ROSE recognizes in the Institute, even as it is, I've had a number of talks with her and she has recognized very definitely that she couldn't do even the things she wanted to do. She just can't grow with the Institution, she sees that. Only if we were able to get larger quarters where she could have charge of a certain section then she would know what to do.

RESNER: What do you think from the standpoint of practical matters as to those people on the Institute board who might be members of the new Board.---And those people in the Council.---

LOUISE BRANSTEN: I don't necessarily see why we should speak of people of our Board to matter in the discussion. Such people like HARRY XASH (phonetic). I don't think it matters any.

RESNER: We want people on it who are representative of the public.

LOUISE BRANSTEN: Why sure, you can get people like CARTER, CRUM, the Trade Union people, DENNIS, and what people did you have?

RESNER: I had people in mind who you should ask as member of the Board who had the interest of the community. They would be CARTER, CRUM, X BERNSTEIN, X GAINOR (phonetic) and HEDLEY - those are five - all very active and very good and maybe one or two others.

SCHNEIDERMAN: This merger as it has been described to me is not actually a merger between two organizations but the Institute simply adding to its own number of people that had been in the Council without broadening its interests or taking on any additional responsibilities. And still not solving the problem of doing the kind of things which up to now had refused to do. At least, ROSE's attitude has been they are a combination -- political activities, controversial questions and so on. What is the point of adding these people, liquidating the Council and still having our hands tied, and not being able to do the kind of a job that has to be done and just restricting it to the type of work that the Institute is doing which is valuable enough as it is, but that isn't all that has to be done.

LOUISE BRANSTEN: That's quite logical said about that guy that said he wanted something to do may be wrong -- but the gathering of these people in without any extension of activities, that's not true. We want to work, we want to have the same opportunity to get out all types of material, and be able to get all types of information. Broaden the base, the support and the interest and friendly relations. As far as the purely political aspect goes, when you come to really controversial questions, it's true the Institute does act on controversial questions. Well, for example, the Institute didn't do anything about the William L. White article in the "Reader's Digest". Whether ROSE didn't feel that it could, but I'm not sure but what it couldn't have. But the border dispute - that might be clarified to the public - a few things like giving factual information, but I doubt very much -- it would mean political support in direct principal necessary to holding mass meetings to making political issues of people that can't vote, then what are you going to do?

RESNER: That's the whole point, that's the big stumbling block, as I see it, to just bringing the Council people into the Institute, because they have a specific purpose even if they haven't been able to carry it out as on the same scale as the New York Council and the National Council. It has to be done.

LOUISE BRANSTEN: It is MARCUS' idea -- in an emergency of that kind then do something.

SCHNEIDERMAN: Will these people be willing to give their names to a paper organization knowing that they will be called on just very ticklish and controversial questions - that isn't their attitude. The whole character is American-Soviet relations - that's why they came into the organization. And if the controversy arises they might take a stand on it as part of their work. They're not Communists.

RESNER: The only way is to say that the work of the Council is for more professional things. I don't think you'll have any trouble explaining it to CRUM and GAINOR, but you might have some trouble in explaining it to ~~HARBAUGH~~ (phonetic) but I doubt it very much. But if we try to bring in new people to the organization - I had in mind ADRIAN ~~FALK~~ and GENE ~~BRADY~~ - uncertain relationship to the Institution-- Here's a hot subject right now, I mean the question of the Soviet recognition of the Lublin government, and the apparently our recognition and British recognition of the exile government. I can see that GARRY ~~DAVIS~~ becoming a more intense question - and I sooner or later will have to do something about it around here by having public meetings and literature and so forth. Can the Institute take action in that situation, could they for example get Professor HINES out here and some of the Poles to act in that situation.

HOLLAND ROBERTS: If we did that right now it would change the whole picture because a great deal of the work of the Institute has been educational. Hundreds of different people coming to the Institute who feel free to do it because the Institute is free from political attacks at the present time.

OLYTA YATES: It also appears that the Institute either takes on some things that it hasn't taken on in one form or another or else some other organization will have to do it. It seems to me that the Institute should restrict itself all over the country because no other organization can thrive on simply political crises that develop and therefore it has to have something that it can thrive on day to day. In that case the Institute would have to curtail its activities. Doing those things that it can do. Because the strange fact of the matter now that the very existence of the Institute even if it was a collect thing - of a hardly non-political, non-controversial issue character and in this particular community at this time prevents its participation of the Council.

ADMINISTRATIVE

LOUISE BRANSTEN: It is true that we are an information center, the orientation people all over the country - all the time - Army information, then we have this textbook for the elementary schools, we have activity to help out in all kinds of places including the Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Trade, and we get literature from the Soviet Union and conduct Seminars like the Soviet Far East when we had business people who know everyone including Army and Navy personnel. You've got to have money in order to keep these things going and the Council and the Institute can't both raise the money.

RESNER: But the confusion in the minds of the people who you feel as such that they sometimes felt that they might not support neither. And in the minds of Board members of both groups I'm sure is the question - What's to be reached by these two organizations?

SCHNEIDERMAN: They're also expanding their activities, aren't they?

LOUISE BRANSTEN: They conduct seminars and language courses, and they send out publications and literature.

SCHNEIDERMAN: I think there is something else involved and that is even within the limits that you've outlined that the Institute is going into - it seems to me that ROSE's interpretation as of what the Institute can and cannot do - narrows it down pretty much. And if the Institute were expanded and these other people come in I think that unless there was some assurance in advance that ROSE wouldn't be the person to determine policy - then it wouldn't mean a darn thing in having these other people come in. Because our experience with her is that she sort of screw jackets everything and doesn't seem to be responsible to anyone.

OLETA YATES: Another factor - that is that while the Institute is maintaining a non-political character - the Institute played priorities on November 7th can't be so pertinent as anything but political whether you call it a cultural festival or what you call it. And you had to ask for ANNA LOUISE ~~STRONG~~ where ANNA LOUISE STRONG makes a political speech for two hours. And yet maintaining the non-political - and you can't do these things - ordinarily the Council can do those things, but it can't - it falls to the Institute.

LOUISE BRANSTEN: Well, what kind of things would you like to see the Institute of organization doing?

SCHNEIDERMAN: The National Council has established a certain prestige and recognition by the Government itself which gives it a very broad field of activity which the Institute hasn't got and can't have. For instance, last November 16th, in connection with the American-Soviet recognition. It had practically the sanction of the State Department as a means of which the whole question of American-Soviet relations has been popularized in the country. And I think that would be a very valuable thing we would lose if we broke off relations with the Council - Best to establish some kind of relationship with the National Council. Why didn't she attend the meeting where the merger was discussed? Why didn't she want to go?

ADMINISTRATIVE

SCHNEIDERMAN (cont'd): Her attitude for instance toward the Council in the past was that anything we said was law. -- The Russian Consulate said that the Institute must have a meeting and what did they turn out to be - in most cases it was just a meeting of the Russian colony, they wanted an American meeting of American-Soviet relations, they were people of the Russian colony. And some of the left-wing and Communist sympathizers of the Soviet Union to celebrate the Russian Revolution. They weren't the broad kind of a thing they put on in the East. And I don't think that we'll ever get away from that unless we break it down - from the culture she has for this - think there should be change of leadership.

LOUISE BRANSTEN: Agreed with Bill's analysis of Rose and her job that she is doing.

RESNER: Did you see the advertisement that the National Council put out in the New York Times, about a year ago, in answer to all the -- of the Soviet Union. Did you see that article? Holland. ROBERTS: NO. It was pretty good - it was a purely a very vigorous presentment of the Soviet position among and attack on the enemies of the Soviet Union.

SCHNEIDERMAN: I propose that a program of the merger of the two organizations be drawn up based on certain conditions:

1. Institute should expand its activities - change its name, taking over most of the activities of the Council here. And establishing a certain relationship with the National Council on a cooperative basis and where they can get certain of their speakers for us and the Institute should utilize them.
2. A representative Board should be established which would be responsible for the policy and direction of the Institute.
3. That the Board should consider someone who would be placed in charge to fulfill this expanded role. ROSE should be placed in a position in charge of her special field, say, research, etc.

RESNER: It would actually mean that the Council would close its offices and turning everything over to the Institute.

SCHNEIDERMAN: Actually that's accomplishing what we were trying to avoid but the Institute can have a standard program and its policies determined by the Board and not by one person and somebody placed in charge which is determined by the Board. There is no point in making an issue of ROSE before these other people. That is something that has to be worked out in advance with ROSE. She's done a job over a period of years in a field that nobody else was doing. An agreement with ROSE in advance shouldn't come up before the Board.

RESNER: Should have labor and industry relations - I have in mind such speakers at a meeting where KAISER, DEAN BRADY, and BRIDGES -- something where the Comrades would be interested in.

ADMINISTRATIVE

SCHNEIDERMAN: I imagine that KAISER could be gotten by the Council - He spoke for the Council in New York - Does everyone agree that this should be done?

HOLLAND ROBERTS: I think this can be carried out very rapidly.

LOUISE BRANSTEN: We're going to have a Board meeting on the 27th.

RESNER: Proposed they have a meeting the latter part of this week or the first part of next week as soon as is convenient between representatives of both groups to make a decision along the line that had been proposed there today.

SCHNEIDERMAN: Suggested talking to ROSE first. ROSE to be in charge of a department or division in which she would have charge.

RESNER: After that LOUISE, can't we have a meeting. CARTER said that he'd stay over any night we wanted. Let's set it tentatively for next Tuesday night. I'll call up CARTER and BERNSTEIN and these other people. The five or six that were designated. Maybe the three of us and HEDLEY can meet before then. -- There should be someone placed in a responsible position to take the load off you, LOUISE.

JUNE BART (phonetic) might be able to do that - she's very competent.

WILLIAM SCHNEIDERMAN: "ROSE ISAAC has it in for us, especially me. I don't know what we ever did to her."

ADMINISTRATIVE

LEO BAROWAY: "She's the damndest fool."

WILLIAM SCHNEIDERMAN: "This merger proposition looks like it will go through. Maybe this is the reason she is mad at us - the day we all agreed on what to do but the problem was as to who was going to take it up with ROSE. LOUISE looked at me and didn't say a word. HOLLAND ROBERTS said he feels he knows ROSE well and he would do it."

This witness can testify that while attending a meeting of the 16th Assembly District Branch of the Communist Party, Alameda County, California, he learned from ~~HILDA WOOD~~, a Communist attending this meeting, that the lecture series sponsored by Peninsula "chapter" of subject organization concerning the "Soviet Union Today", given weekly on Thursday evenings at Children's Theatre in Palo Alto, California, lasting until May 15, 1947, was not actually Communist sponsored but was organized and run by Communists.

On October 12, 1944, LUCILLE BURMAN, OLETA YATES, and RUDIE LAMBERT met in conference at Communist Party Headquarters, 942 Market Street, San Francisco, at which time it was reported that BURMAN did not like the way LAMBERT had been running things. She implied that she did not think that LAMBERT knew how to run the Council and should stay out of it. She also said that LAMBERT had been rude to her, and that it appeared that she was just working for LAMBERT, who was running it like he saw fit. LAMBERT told her that "in this thing" nobody is working for anybody. He said that someone had to be responsible for things and she was responsible for the Council and must keep after the others. LAMBERT said that in a way he was responsible for the whole thing and had to see that it was going O.K. He said that she was responsible for the Council just like ROSE ISAAC was responsible for the Russian-American Institute and somebody else was responsible for the Anti-Fascist Refugee Committee, etc.

BURMAN wanted to have Judge CARTER, who was chairman of the Committee, write a letter to different people asking them for money. LAMBERT didn't think that this was a good idea and told her that he had been in the business longer than she had. He said that Judge CARTER was new, as was JOE JOHNSON, and they should not be pushed into doing things too soon. LAMBERT mentions that BARTLEY was also on the Committee.

They then talked about a mistake that HERB made but never stated what it was. BURMAN was going to resign and LAMBERT told her that they would look around and find someone else to take her place. He said that this could probably be arranged within a week or ten days.

INTERNAL SECURITY ACT OF 1950

Reference is made to Chicago teletype of October 11, 1950, and to Los Angeles teletype of October 13, 1950, concerning interview with Rabbi JACOB OTT.

Attached for the New York Office are the following signed statements of Rabbi OTT and his mother, Mrs. LILLIAN OTT:

"October 12, 1950
Los Angeles, Calif.

"I, Lillian Ott, the mother of Rabbi Jacob M. Ott, make the following statement to Mr. R. L. Millard, known to me as a Special Agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"On November 10, 1949, in the late afternoon, a man, identifying himself as Mr. Henry Noyes, called and asked for my son. My son, the above-named Jacob M. Ott, was not at home, so I invited this person to relay his message to me for delivery. The gist of his call, I discovered, was a desire of Mr. Noyes to obtain my son, (above named) as a speaker for dinner meeting of the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship Society. I asked immediately whether or not this organization was on the Attorney General's subversive list? Mr. Noyes assured me that this particular organization, being independent, was not. I asked to be further informed of what was expected of my son, and Mr. Noyes explained that this dinner meeting was called to commemorate the 16th anniversary of the resumption of American-Soviet Diplomatic Relationship, and that the guest of honor was to be Mr. Alexander Panyushkin, the Ambassador from the Soviet Union.

"From there on, I assured Mr. Noyes that I would deliver his message to Rabbi Ott. That was all on this subject.

"12 October 1950
Los Angeles, California

"I, Rabbi Jacob M. Ott, make the following voluntary statement to R. L. Millard, known to me as a Special Agent of the FBI.

"On November 11, 1949 I visited the office of Mr. Henry Noyes in order to confirm the invitation extended to me to address the meeting of the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship. I asked Mr. Noyes whether or not his group was connected organizationally with the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, which said organization had been declared subversive by the U. S. Attorney General. He replied that it was not connected with the National Council and was not subversive. During the conversation I explained that under no circumstances would I speak unless it were understood from the first that my message could be freely delivered and without restraint. To this he said that the only qualification to which he wanted me to accede was to promise not to insult the guest of the evening, Alexander S. Panyushkin. I agreed to this qualification.

"At no time was I informed by Mr. Noyes or anyone else that the meeting was being sponsored to honor the 32nd anniversary of the Russian Revolution. The meeting was dedicated, it was related to me, in honor of the anniversary of the resumption of relations between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"Riley L. Millard, Special Agent FBI, Los Angeles, Cal., 10-12-50"

Both Rabbi OTT and his mother stated that they would be very glad to testify if needed. They both appeared intelligent and sincere, and it is believed that they would make good witnesses, particularly Rabbi OTT.

LA 100-7690

Rabbi OTT and his mother stated that at no time were they told by HENRY NOYES that the Chicago Council had been incorporated in Illinois in 1942 and was independent of the National Council, "although we have similar objectives and exchange views," as quoted in the Chicago Daily Tribune.

THING OR TWO

The Man Who Guessed Right on Russia

WASHINGTON—Everybody here is wondering what's going to happen next to the man who guessed right on Russia. He is Brig. Gen. Philip R. Faymonville, since September, 1941, in charge of the special war supplies mission to Soviet Union, now on his way home for a shakeup among our representatives in Moscow. He has occupied lonely prominence as the one important Army officer who thought the Russians could resist the Nazis.

The shakeup in Moscow is mysterious. The State Dept. has been referring all inquiries to the War Dept. and the War Dept. says it cannot divulge the movements of generals. This last is a feeble dodge, since what reporters want to know is not Gen. Faymonville's itinerary but whether he is ready to be put on the shelf. That's where the War Dept. had him when some chance conversation in August, 1941, important White House officials to the effect that there was one senior Army officer who did not share the then general belief that the Nazis would quickly defeat the USSR.

Like some of his colleagues, Gen. Fay-monville's opinion was not based on what he read in the Chicago Tribune or the Washington Times-Herald. Nor on the gossip to be picked up from the German military attache in Moscow. He had a chance to see the Soviet Union in several stages of development. He was chief ordnance officer with our forces in Siberia from 1918 to 1920. He was our military observer at Chita, Transbaikal, Far Eastern Republic, from 1922 to 1923. He became military attache at Moscow in July, 1934.

In February, 1939, Faymonville was recalled. He was shifted to a routine assignment at the headquarters staff of the 4th Army in his native San Francisco. He was there when Harry Hopkins overcame War Dept. opposition and had Faymonville sent back to Moscow in September, 1941, as head of a special war supplies mission.

The Russians knew Faymonville, liked him and trusted him. They didn't blame Faymonville for the failure of Lend-Lease supplies to flow to them in any considerable quantity until the Spring of 1942, a good many months after the Nazi attack. (War and State Dept. experts still insisted that there was no use in shipping much to the Soviet Union because it would only fall into the hands of the Germans, who were expected to take Russia over.) Faymonville differed so strongly with our military attache, Brig. Gen. Joseph Michela, and a naval attache, Rear Adm. Jack H. Duncan at the Moscow Embassy that after a while the mission and the Embassy were hardly on speaking terms. Now with the appointment of a new Ambassador, a typical solution has been adopted—Faymonville, Michela and Duncan have all been recalled, the man who guessed right along with the men who guessed wrong. They are to be replaced by a new U. S. military mission under Maj. Gen. John R. Deane.

From what little I can learn here, the new setup is not a bad one. Gen. Deane was secretary to the Joint Chiefs of Staff and should be in a position to advance our military cooperation with the Soviets. His assistant in charge of Lend-Lease, Brig. Gen. Sidney Spaulding, has been working with the Joint Munitions Assignments Board, and has shown a sympathetic and helpful attitude toward our allies.

The question is what will happen to Gen. Faymonville.—I. F. STONE

New Pamphlet Out on Soviet Trade Unions

The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, sponsoring for the month of November a series of celebrations of the tenth anniversary of American-Soviet diplomatic relations, has just announced the publication of a new pamphlet of special interest to American trade unionists, entitled "Organized Labor in the Soviet Union."

The pamphlet, written by Edwin S. Smith, formerly Commissioner of Labor in Massachusetts and member of the National Labor Relations Board, and at present executive director of the National Council, answers a variety of questions being asked by American workers about the labor movement in the Soviet Union.

Prepared in question and answer form, and indexed, it comprises the most complete and easy-to-read exposition of the nature of Soviet trade unions ever published in the United States.

In his foreword to the pamphlet which deals with "The Need for Allied Trade Union Unity," Mr. Smith states:

"We think Allied Labor unity will speed victory over Hitler and have an equally important effect in shaping the peace and the kind of world that is to follow the war. As an immediate consequence of Anglo-American-Soviet trade union unity, one can imagine what increases of production in the three countries would accompany a constant interchange of information among their labor movements."

One can equally well imagine the enthusiasm for the war effort that would follow the actual exchange of visits by labor leaders!"

The Congress of American-Soviet Friendship to be held in New York City, Nov. 6, 7 and 8, to which all trade unions have been invited to send delegates, will include a trade union panel (to take place Sunday, Nov. 7) at which the author of the pamphlet and leaders of American labor will speak.

Included among the sponsors of the Congress are William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, and A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

Seek to Restore Soviet Libraries

Formation of a committee of publishers and prominent writers to launch a nation-wide collection of books which will be sent to the Soviet Union to help restore libraries devastated by the Nazis was announced Monday night at the Hotel Pennsylvania at a meeting of writers held under the auspices of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Members of the committee, which is headed by M. Lincoln Schuster, publisher, includes other leading publishers and Thomas Mann, Maxwell Anderson, Van Wyck Brooks and Langston Hughes.

The meeting, attended by several hundred writers, was in honor of Professor Solomon Michoels, director of the Moscow State Jewish Theatre and Lt. Colonel Itzik Feffer, Soviet poet, who discussed the role and contribution of Soviet writers and journalists in the war effort. Donald Ogden Stewart was chairman of the meeting.

American Theatre Artists Describe Their Work to Soviet Colleagues

Before playing Iago to Paul Robeson's Othello, José Ferrer had never acted in a Shakespearean play and had never seen a performance of Othello. "So I approached the part," writes Ferrer, "as though the play had been written the day before and no one had ever acted it up to this time."

The actor discusses his experience in the role in an article contributed to the first issue of Notes on the American Theatre, a periodical issued for Soviet Theatre artists by the Theatre Committee, National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

He writes:

"The thing that struck me most from the first reading was that this character, whom I had heard about for years as being the wickedest person in all dramatic literature, was considered by everyone in the play to be a nice person. More than nice, he was supposed to be trustworthy and dependable. As we went on in rehearsals and as I investigated this point, I became more and more struck by the fact that this opinion was held by three people whose judgment had proven itself dependable: Othello, Desdemona, and Emilia."

"I determined therefore always to play the simplest, most trustworthy character I could suggest when in the presence of any of these people."

It was in the soliloquies, he felt, that Iago's maliciousness could come out into the open. "I also found that by playing the scenes with other characters in the fashion I have described, only the lightest touch was necessary to make the soliloquy scenes the embodiment of evil. All I had to do was to inject a certain sense of enjoyment and of glee to have the audience shudder at Iago's weakness."

To his Soviet readers Ferrer explains that he found certain complicated problems in handling this situation for a modern American audience composed of people not familiar with the tragic form and to whom Shakespeare has been a tiresome classroom exercise.

"How to convince such an audience that poetic imagery is believable and not bombastic? That the soliloquy is not merely an actor talking to an audience, but is an audience tuned in on the character's brain and heart? It seems to me that I did what any other actor would probably try to do. I imagined myself an average member of the audience, and asked myself how far I could go; and at what point would I cease to participate in the emotional drive of the play and would I become a skeptical on-looker?"

"Another problem I had," Ferrer adds, "was that of playing Iago to the Othello of Paul Robeson. To have to play an entire evening against a voice of that magnitude is apt to be a terrifying experience at first. At the end of the first rehearsal I seriously considered telling the director that I didn't want to be in the play, as I saw no possibility of competing with him."

"My fears were groundless. But Paul Robeson, as you in the Soviet Union well know, is not only a great singer, he is also a great man and a great artist. We deliberately orchestrated our voices for dramatic purposes..."

In the same issue of Notes on the American Theatre, Fredric March discusses his role as Major Joppolo in A Bell for Adano.

"Stanislavsky once said something to the effect that when you were playing a good man you must immediately look deep enough into the character to discover where his badness is, or potentiality of evil. I feel there are a few such moments in our play."

"As Major Joppolo himself admits indirectly, he loses his temper very easily and attempts to be on guard against doing so too often. In the second act, the girl, Tina, comes to his office under false pretenses and he turns on her and berates her. This offers an excellent chance for him to show himself to be anything but an obnoxiously perfect person. This taking her to task is just a few moments, but I try to make them as vehement as possible in the few lines he has there.

"His utter hatred of the General, who is using what Joppolo would call Fascist methods, gives a chance to show the Major as a two-listed fighting man—one who fights to the last for what he believes to be right."

The problem of scenic design for the musical stage, a virtually untouched subject of theatre criticism, is treated in a challenging article by Howard Bay, distinguished scenic designer and president of United Scenic Artists of America.

Emphasizing the need for deeper script writing, Mr. Bay says: "The scenic artist's rich exploitation of paint, crystallized in Ayres' Bloomer Girl and my own Up in Central Park remains a decorative embroidery awaiting a deepening of script material. A promise of that deeper writing lurks around the smoke house scene in Oklahoma; the Civil War ballet in Bloomer Girl; the scene in Carmen Jones. Meanwhile, we designers go to pitiful lengths to erect beauty behind incongruous goings-on."

"It should be pointed out," Bay continues, "that the legitimate drama itself has made no demands on designers to extend the hyper-realism left suspended a few seasons ago (Geddes' Dead End, Horner's The World We Make, Aronson's Gentle People, Bay's Brooklyn, USA)—but rather has returned to its old style, tasteful vignettes for so-called imaginative productions. There are those of us who prefer laboring on flossy, expansive musical nonsense to pattering over aslitrays and drapes in the current 'wasteland' between the brilliant creative abilities of Lillian Hellman on the one hand and Oscar Hammerstein on the other."

Speculation Over Recall of Litvinoff
Held Damaging to Cause

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEW YORK TIMES:

Much mystery is being made of the fact that Litvinoff has been replaced as Ambassador to the United States. The most frequent reaction is that the Soviet Union, angered at delay on the second front, is showing its contempt for its American and British allies and headed on a course of its own which may have dire results. That section of the press which specializes in attacking the Soviet Union, of course, concludes that a separate peace between the Soviet Union and Germany is in the offing.

Undoubtedly the Soviet Union is gravely disappointed that, despite frequent assurances, there is still no substantial military operation in Europe capable of drawing off large numbers of German divisions from the Eastern Front, thereby reducing Russia's terrific burden in losses of men and materials, and hastening the end of the war.

There is, however, no warrant for concluding that the Litvinoff replacement is a reflection of this disappointment. Litvinoff is still Vice Commissar of Foreign Affairs. As such his favorable reputation in the United States and Great Britain and his traditional stand for an effective system of preventing the outbreak of international aggression still have important scope in the plans for war and peace.

Big Events Impending

Whatever role Litvinoff is to play in the future, there is no doubt that big events are in the offing on the field of battle and in the field of statecraft. The logic of these events is bound to be that the Soviet Union and ourselves will be drawn still more closely together in our primary joint task of defeating Hitler and laying the basis for an enduring peace.

Russia's greatest desire is to eliminate Hitler and fascism from the world stage. The death of her millions, the crimes of the Nazis against her captured people, the devastation of her economy, her great areas still under Nazi control, all point unswervingly to this determination.

The only reason that Litvinoff's retention in Moscow need be given an ominous aspect lies in our own conscience. There has been too long delay in the all-out war against Hitler, too little realistic assurance to our ally that the big blow was about to be struck.

Anti-Soviet Prejudice

Finally, there has gone unchecked, and unrebutted in certain sections of our press a campaign directed against the Soviet Union. From this wave of anti-Soviet prejudice, not from any objective considerations of the Soviet Union's record in the war and her declarations respecting the future, arises the mass of speculation regarding Litvinoff. The fact that the speculation itself usually takes a strong anti-Soviet turn betrays its character as springing not from well-weighed consideration but from well-nurtured prejudice.

The desire of the Soviet Union to defeat Hitler dwarfs all other considerations in respect to any analysis of her motives in any particular action. In the light of this fact we must judge the Litvinoff replacement. For some reason, unknown to us at the moment, the Soviet Union has concluded that such a step will help the United Nations to win the war. It is ridiculous, and, furthermore, it is playing Hitler's game, to conclude otherwise.

Urge Allies Hasten All-Out Blow at Axis

Calling for an immediate broadening of our military operations to include a full-scale invasion of the European continent, a statement issued by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship asked the "American" people to send messages to President Roosevelt hailing the invasion of Sicily and expressing their readiness for "any immediate sacrifice a full-scale invasion requires."

Calling for unity at home and unity with our allies, the statement said: "We must back this great action in Sicily with all our hearts and with all our strength to insure its success and to hasten the main blow at the Axis from Continental Europe itself."

"The sacrifices our boys are making today will hasten the end of the war and lessen immeasurably the sacrifices still to be made. That is why our Soviet allies, locked in the grimmest battle of the whole war, rejoice with us in the invasion of Sicily. With us they recognize it as a great step toward the Second Front in Europe—the full Second Front that will come into being only when the invasion of the Continent of Europe forces Hitler into a disastrous two-front war," the statement continues.

Upham, Pope, Mensky Tributes to Soviet Ally

The following is the address by Arthur Upham Pope, National Officer Nakovil Council of American Soviet Friendship, delivered at the Polo Grounds Reception, July 10.

In behalf of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, and all those who understand the Russian achievement, who are grateful for the stupendous courage with which they are today heroically fighting the grimmest of battles for our common welfare—for them I bespeak a thousand welcomes to these great representatives of Russia—for the Jewish race—indeed, of the human race. Whenever there is a call for any human cause, the alleviation of suffering, scientific research, cultural enrichment through art or music, it is always the Jewish people that render quick and lavish help, entirely disproportionate to their number or resources. And it should be no surprise to those that know their history that in the grim and terrible hour of Russia's peril, the Jewish people, with their warm hearts, their idealism, their capacity of utter devotion have contributed their utmost; and have done it with courage, imagination, enterprise, with creative fervor, as these two heroes exemplify. For all this they have been gratefully hailed by the Russian armies and the Russian people, and by us here tonight, for we also are deep in their debt.

In one way their contributions are a service of gratitude and acknowledgment by the Jewish people for the immense achievement of Soviet Russia in exterminating the pestilence of racial prejudice. Among the infamies of the Czarist regime was the planned anti-Semitism; the shameful pogroms, such as the hideous massacre of Kishinev, the stoking of the fires of hatred and dissension—a foul crime that now at last in Russia is only a memory and a warning. Russia has now shown that people of all races and creeds can live together in common effort for common cause and sharing one another's strength and happiness. Here are nearly one hundred nationalities, a veritable babel of tongues, a conflict of traditions, habits of living, personal appearance and manners. Only the illiterate and the degraded, the cruel and arrogant, find in these differences the material for hatred and contempt. The normal human mind, unless artificially impregnated with prejudice is ready to welcome all human beings as brothers. The earliest settlements revealed by archaeology six thousand years old, show man living at peace with himself. But since then man has stupidly thought that he could advance his own self-interest by trampling down others. That way lies frustration, misery, waste and ultimate chaos. It doesn't work; it can't work. Race prejudice could spell the doom of humanity.

The Jewish people, with their sense of humanity, the Russian people, with their sense of common brotherhood, have proven that what man was at his earliest beginnings, that he can ultimately be: members of one family, mutually sharing, mutually cooperating for common ends. It is not a utopian goal. It is our universal right. And with courage and generosity, with intelligence and indomitable will, that new world can be created.

And these two heroes that stand before us today will have done more than their share. They have shown this nation that the days of heroic achievement are not over, and that in the face of appalling difficulties the human spirit can rise supreme. They have contributed to the world's stock of human courage; they have proven again the efficiency—yes, the miracle-working power—of high ideals, and reminded us that they are both practical and necessary, and without such vision the nation and the people perish; but under their guidance humanity can still achieve that good life which is its right and its destiny.

The following statement was made by Henry Monsky, president of B'nai Brith, at the Thursday night Polo Grounds mass rally for the Soviet delegation. It was read by Maurice Bisgner, secretary of the organization.

I feel it a privilege to extend greetings to the distinguished delegation whom the Soviet Union has sent as cultural envoys to America.

There are several fundamentals in our relationships with Russia that we should face. As Americans and as Jews, what is the basis of our friendship with her people? Is it merely because they and we have a common enemy in Germany? Is it because in the Soviet Union we have a powerful ally which has stopped the so-called invincible army in its tracks and pinned it down on the Eastern Front—nervous and fearful of the inevitable attack that will surely come from almost any direction? Is it because in the Soviet Union we have a nation which has given freely of her sons—five million of them—whose gallant fight has cost the enemy almost double that number?

My friends, while these facts bring about an admiration for Russia, our friendship for her people is motivated by something far more profound.

We are deeply moved by the evidence made apparent day by day that hers is a people's war, hers is a people's army, her defenders are men, women and children, her war like ours is a war fought for a people's objective; as Vice-President Wallace has said, for the common man of the world of tomorrow.

Our friendship comes about because we Jews understand suffering. As we know the Nazis, so the Russians know them for what they are—not soldiers fighting for their country, but vandals, sadistic beasts of prey and murders of the innocent. The Russians have suffered much at their hands. Our fellow Jews across the seas, pillaged and alone, have suffered grievously. They and we feel the suffering of a civilian population who, contrary to the laws of international warfare and every moral code, is subjected to a remorseless cruelty that would put even a Genghis Khan to shame. Our sons like the Russians, who have gone forth on the field of battle, know what they are fighting against: the ways of physical enslavement and moral decadence.

<sup>h</sup> We should emulate the Russians

Our Sons Will Meet in Berlin--A Letter to Russia

Trade unions throughout the country are enlisting their memberships in the "Correspondence for Friendship" campaign initiated by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, in which the American people have the opportunity of sending personal messages to citizens of the Soviet Union.

Thousands of messages from workers in more than a score of different industries in the United States have already begun their journey to the workers of the Soviet Union, the National Council reports.

A steel worker from Pennsylvania, addressing himself to "A Steel Worker--Somewhere in the Soviet Union" writes: "Hope the erred to a Soviet seaman from Sevastopol, as soon as we get that city back from Hitler's rats." His message said: "I met a Russian seaman last year who told me he came from Sevastopol. Maybe he was there when your town put up that wonderful battle--and maybe he'll read this message yet. Anyway, we'll keep 'em sailing until we win, and your home town is free."

Davies, General Miller, Hillman Call for U. S.-Soviet Unity

Following are excerpts from the speeches at the Randall's Island "Tribute to Russia" rally by former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies; Brig. Gen. Troup Miller, U. S. Army; and Sidney Hillman, President, Amalgamated Clothing Workers.

Former Ambassador
Joseph E. Davies:

We will not forget those days when the advance guard of the Nazis came to within eighteen miles of the Kremlin. Women and children were evacuated from Moscow. Non-combatants and diplomats left the city. But Marshal Stalin stayed. The workers stayed. The people stayed. Moscow stood.

Then, that new giant killer, the Red Army, which for six long months had retreated, struck. It took the initiative. It drove the invaders back. It gave them no rest by day or by night in the Russian snows. And the myth of German invincibility cracked with the ice of the Russian Spring. The mightiest land army of all these gatherings, during the past week, held not only in our country but in the Dominion of Canada, in the Central and South American nations, and in the United Nations all over the earth, all demonstrate the faith and confidence which the free peoples of the world give to our Soviet ally, not only in matters affecting the war, but in matters affecting the post-war reconstruction.

Mutual trust, respect, and confidence between the Soviet Union and the people of the United Nations is no less vital to winning the war. Hitler recognizes that. He and his satellites have been trying desperately for years to prevent it, or to destroy it. At this hour it is tremendous losses in men, supplies, transportation, and territory, the Red Army denied victory to a most powerful enemy. It checked him at Leningrad, at Moscow, at Voronezh, in the Caucasus and, finally at the immortal battle of Stalingrad. . . . Such achievements can only be accomplished by an army that has skillful leadership, sound organization, adequate training, and above all, the determination to defeat the enemy, no matter what the cost in self-sacrifice."

Continuing, President Roosevelt said:

"I also wish to pay tribute to the Russian people from whom the Red Army springs and upon whom it is dependent for its men, women and supplies. They, too, are giving their full efforts to the war and are making the supreme sacrifice. The Red Army and the Russian people have surely started the Hitler forces on the road to ultimate defeat and have earned the lasting admiration of the people of the United States."

So, today in honoring the noble Russian Army and the Russian people, soldiers and civilians alike, we bow our heads in grateful acknowledgment of their amazing accomplishments. They have set an example in faith, courage and endurance which has not only supported them through two years of dreadful war but has inspired the armies of their Allies to greater efforts.

The Russians have shown the world that the story of the Nazi Superman was a myth. Likewise a splendid group of British Tommies and American Doughboys in Northwest Africa have helped to explode that theory.

When these three forces are afforded an opportunity on land to strike a simultaneous, concerted blow against this so-called Superman his defeat will be inevitable.

As a soldier in one Army of the United Nations, it is with the greatest pride and pleasure that I salute our heroic allies, to whom you have gathered to pay tribute here today.

Sidney Hillman, President, Amalgamated Clothing Workers:

Labor joins today with Americans in every walk of life in expressing our gratitude to and admiration of our Soviet ally and our deep affection for its people.

We believe that the firmest coalition between Russia, England and the United States in the prosecution of this war is the surest and, indeed, the only guarantee of final victory.

We believe that the projection of that coalition into the post-war period offers the one great hope that the next generation can live a full, secure and more abundant life, free of the dread of aggression, war and destruction which has overhung us for the last quarter century.

We therefore believe that one of the important tasks before us is to promote closer understanding between the Soviet people and ourselves, to clear away all misconceptions and suspicion which have divided us in the past, and by every means to deepen and extend the collaboration between our governments and our people. . . .

It has been said in tribute to the Soviet Union that her resistance to Hitler's onslaught has given us the priceless gift of time. To say this and no more is vastly to under-rate the contribution which she has made to our common cause.

The tremendous counter - blows which the Red Army has struck, the millions of enemy troops and the vast quantities of material which it has put out of action on the Eastern Front created the pre-condition for the successes which our own arms have won so far.

Without them, we would not have arrived at this decisive moment - the full realization of the coalition warfare, planned by Roosevelt, Churchill and Stalin through an Anglo-American invasion of the European continent and the coordination of our blow with the Soviet blow in the great offensive which will crush Hitler and his satellites.

Hail US-Soviet Unity At War Exhibit Here

The opening of the American-Soviet War Exhibit at the Museum of Science and Industry last Tuesday was a milestone on the road of strengthening American-Soviet friendship.

Even more significant than the remarkable exhibits on view were the declarations made by representatives of the American State Department, the Lend-Lease Administration, the United States High Command, and the United States Office of War Information.

Mme. Iva Litvinoff, wife of Soviet Ambassador Maxim Litvinoff, spoke as representative of the Soviet Union.

The central theme of the affair was given in a message from Vice-President Henry A. Wallace praising the Exhibit's contribution to American-Soviet friendship: "May these two Allies, with the rest of the United Nations, be equally ern Defense Command, paid tribute to "the mighty forces of the Soviet Union."

After recapitulating the brilliant fighting of the Red Army in some 15 months of war against the invader, and noting that "the Red Army has borne the brunt of the land fighting while the United Nations prepared," he continued:

"The present is full of promise. Africa is cleared of the enemy. The control of the Mediterranean is assured. The supply routes to the Middle East and India are short-the "great majority of the items were of a military nature available for immediate combat use." In addition, Lend-Lease has sent to the Soviets quantities of raw material for making military equipment, and "thousands of machine tools, presses, forging hammers and electric furnaces to aid the Soviet Government in maintaining its factories."

Still further, Lend-Lease has sent "more than one million tons of food . . . up to April 30, 1943," and large quantities of medical supplies.

Gardner Cowles of the OWI in a brief address stressed what the Soviet leaders and people are trying to do to make the world better.

"I just wish that I had as much assurance that the people of the United States understood the kind of a world we are moving into, as I think the leaders of the Soviet Union do," he said. "I think this type of an exhibit helps to give a little better understanding actually

New Anti-Soviet Campaign Threatens Allied Victory

The armies of the United Nations make ready for the great offensive, following the complete rout of the Fascist forces in North Africa. Victory is sure because the Allies from east and south and west will unite their efforts in a final shattering blow against the enemies of mankind.

Victory will come more quickly from the home front unite, too, against all who would divide us from each other and our allies. To promote such unity we have initiated this Open Letter. National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., Corliss Lamont, chairman.

EVERY patriotic American has reason to be alarmed over the new wave of anti-Soviet propaganda that has arisen in the United States during the first part of 1943.

This campaign against Soviet Russia, reviving old fears and prejudices, threatens to undermine American-Soviet friendship and to divide us from our great Russian ally in war and in peace.

The severance of Soviet Russia's relations with the Polish government-in-exile plainly showed the danger to the United Nations and the advantage to Hitler of anti-Soviet calumnies wherever and whenever they appear. The national interests of our country demand a halt to all actions that may bring disunity among the United Nations, especially now as the conflict against the Axis nears its climax.

The historic decisions reached at Casablanca by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill called for "fighting hard on all fronts and ending the war as quickly as we can on the uncompromising terms of unconditional surrender." According to the Roosevelt-Churchill statement, the prime object of the Anglo-American strategy for 1943 is "to draw as much weight as possible off the Russian armies by engaging the enemy as heavily as possible at the best selected points."

Following our magnificent victories in Africa, the next move in Allied strategy is the invasion of Europe. The whole world is awaiting this action, the opening of the long-expected second front on the European continent.

All of conquered Europe seethes with anti-Nazi patriots watching for the invasion signal to spring into a mighty army in Hitler's rear.

They Prefer Hitler

In the east our Soviet ally, still engaging the overwhelming bulk of the Nazi forces, consolidates the positions won back following the epic defense of Stalingrad and during the great winter offensive that liberated over 185,000 square miles of territory and put over a million enemy soldiers out of action.

Failure to take immediate advantage of the opportunities created by these events will return the initiative to Hitler and give him time to launch another offensive. To prevent such failure, unity and understanding among the United Nations is the paramount necessity.

But in direct proportion to the mounting Soviet successes and the possibilities of a general Allied offensive, leading to early victory, the anti-Soviet forces have increased their divisive activities.

These forces have never abandoned the disastrous and discredited policy that culminated at Munich. They include all those elements whose hatred of Soviet Russia is greater than their hatred of fascism. These circles are willing to prolong the war indefinitely, even to risk our own ultimate defeat, in the hope that Hitler will bleed to death the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

At the same time and for the same reason they seek to lay the groundwork for a negotiated peace with Hitler or his successors at the expense of the Soviet Union.

These forces have utilized every pretext to disrupt American-Soviet friendship and to stir up suspicion of our Soviet ally. They magnify disputes over post-war boundaries with the purposes of arousing distrust of the Soviet Union and embroiling it with its allies. They invoke the Atlantic Charter against the USSR, while seeking to subvert it themselves by creating states hostile to Russia along its borders.

They prejudice and play up every new accusation levelled at the Soviet government by the die-hard Russophobes among the Polish emigres, deliberately provoking disunity over such issues as the Ehrlich-Altter case and the Nazi-inspired charge that the Russians murdered 10,000 Polish officers.

They have consistently opposed any strong measures against Hitler's satellite, Finland, whose troops are fighting the Russians and whose soil provides a base for Nazi bombers which destroy American ships and men carrying supplies to Murmansk.

They try to make capital out of the Soviet strategy of avoiding conflict with Japan and urge that American concentrate on the war in the Pacific. Yet a two-front Soviet war or such a concentration of American forces would be in direct contravention of the announced United Nations policy of defeating Hitler first as the prerequisite for final victory over all the Axis powers.

and encouragement in many large newspapers throughout the United States.

Against all the divisive elements mentioned are ranged the great healthy mass of the American people and the leaders of our country, who truly express the popular will.

The American people have confidence in our Commander-in-Chief, President Roosevelt, and in the other men in high government position who are dedicated to the policy of strengthening the United Nations coalition and carrying through uncompromisingly the great 1943 offensive.

Beside them stand the patriotic forces in both major parties and that part of the press which urges close cooperation with the Soviet Union and a speedy opening of the second front.

The people of America have shown their readiness for any sacrifice to smash the Axis by their bravery on our fighting fronts, by their production efforts in the factories and farms and the entire economic life of our nation.

Victory Prerequisite

So it is that we urge the American people to be on guard against those forces in our midst who would divide us from one another and from our Allies. We appeal to the American people to be vigilant in identifying these elements, in exposing them, combating them.

Canvassers Here to Open U. S.-Soviet Amity Drive

The people of New York City will have an opportunity to express their friendship for the people of the Soviet Union when thousands of canvassers flood the streets of the five boroughs with correspondence cards issued by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship on Friday and Saturday, June 4 and 5.

On those two days, set aside by the New York Council of Correspondence for Friendship Tag Days, approximately 5,000 volunteers, some in Russian costume, some wearing armbands and other wearing the colorful "mailbox" which was especially designed for the campaign—will invite New York City to send cards of friendship throughout the country, through whom more than half a million have already been distributed, is evidence of the strong feeling of admiration which the American people have for the Soviet citizens. It is expected that on the two days set aside as Tag Days several million messages for the Soviet Union will be obtained from the people of New York.

The correspondence cards will be tremendously important in giving heart and cheer to the hard-pressed people of Russia and will be of great aid in cementing ties of friendship between our two Allied nations.

Volunteers who will act as canvassers on those two days are now

Exhibit on U.S., USSR in War Opens June 1

A dramatic, animated American-Soviet exhibit showing the U.S.A.-U.S.S.R. in war will be launched at the Museum of Science and Industry on Tuesday evening, June 1, it was announced by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Present as guests of honor at the opening of the exhibit will be Mme. Maxim Litvinoff, wife of the Soviet Ambassador; Andrei A. Gromyko, charge d'affaires; Captain Ivan A. Yegorichev, naval attache; Colonel M. S. Serey, acting military attache; Vladimir I. Bazykin, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy; Dr. Vladimir Soviet relations should be put on a firmer and more permanent basis in line with the twenty-year Anglo-Soviet alliance signed a year ago today.

"Our own country is in effect already a partner in this alliance through the United States-Soviet war pact signed on June 11th last following the historic visit of Foreign Minister Molotov to this country, which provided for continuing cooperation between our two countries both in the war and post-war period, and which, like the Anglo-Soviet Pact, is based on the principles of the Atlantic Charter.

"It is fitting that at this moment former Ambassador Davies should be in the Soviet capital on a mission which will certainly bear fruit in firmer relations between our two countries.

USSR, and it is gratifying to note the enthusiasm with which it is greeted by leading American papers.

"The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship is in full accord with the suggestion put forward editorially by the New York Herald Tribune that the concrete twenty-year military alliance with which the Anglo-Soviet pact starts prompts a thought as to why the United States should not seek to put their own policy on a similarly solid ground with her great allies."

"The past year has seen important developments in the strengthening of our relations with our allies in military action," Lamont continued.

"Britain, the United States and the Soviet Union are bound together in a policy of unconditional surrender of our enemies. Any step further cementing the unity of the United Nations brings the day of unconditional surrender closer."

Walter Huston for the contribution they have made to American-Soviet Friendship through the film version of 'Mission to Moscow.'

Albert S. Howson, a Warners representative accepted the award from Lamont on behalf of the ex-Ambassador, the screen actor and the motion picture company. "Mission to Moscow," he told the packed hall "was produced on the screen to show the American people something of our great fighting ally, Russia, as seen through a pair of very American eyes." Howson looked around at the enthusiastic audience and remarked, "I think 'Mission to Moscow' can be proud of such friends as are here tonight."

Earlier in the evening, chairman Corliss Lamont's announcement that Westbrook Pegler had joined the attack on "Mission to Moscow" was greeted with boos. During the presentation of the Award, Mr. Lamont read a telegram from Walter Huston which was received with loud applause. "Deeply appreciate honor conferred on me at your wrote. "Mission to Moscow" is more than just a picture. It is a political event. It comes at the most propitious moment when it is so vital that closer friendship be established between us and the Soviet Union." Miss Tabouis declared that the attacks now being heaped against the picture "reminded me of the attacks made against the Soviet Union in my own country in 1935 and again in 1936, 1937, 1938 and 1939."

Arthur Upham Pope Attacks Anti-Sovieters

Dr. Arthur Upham Pope, chairman of the Committee on National Morale and director of the Iranian Institute received a cordial reception from the audience when he was introduced by Mr. Lamont as the "greatest of all letter-writers to the New York Times."

Dr. Pope analyzed some of the vitriolic outbursts against "Mission to Moscow" and observed that the venom and invective of these people disqualifies them from speaking

This is "dangerous talk," said Dr. Pope, and "a voluntary petition in intellectual bankruptcy." Attempts like this to create hatred against the Soviet Union are "an abomination and should be rejected by all honest Americans," he emphasized. "We are not interested in the dregs of the Trotsky dispute. . . . If Trotsky had succeeded, Russia would have been defeated and if Russia had been defeated, who can say what would have happened to our own country and to the cause of world democracy."

Kenneth Spencer, fine young Negro baritone brought down the house with the Red Army song "Meadowland" and Langston Hughes' "I'm Marchin' Down Freedom Road."

face of all proof to the contrary about Soviet persecution of religion. Even the sixth point, the Trotskyite-inspired press attacks on the popular new film, Mission to Moscow, is in essence a revival of the old "Soviet trials" slander. (See David Platt's article on feature page, next Monday, on the film question.)

The remaining four points listed by Dr. Lamont deal with the war. Most dangerous, doubtless, is the persistent campaign for a negotiated peace with Hitler, backed by such so-called "pacifists" as Frederick J. Libby and by the entire pro-Axis fifth column. Another is the cowardly "Make-Russia-Attack-Japan-too" propaganda, one of the latest exponents of which is the Rev. John Haynes Holmes—who must be a very bloodthirsty person, Dr. Lamont said, since Russia has already spilt the blood of 10,000,000 of her people in defending us from Hitler.

CHANDLER'S SCHEME

There is also the campaign, brought up again by Senator "Happy" Chandler the other day in Congress, to have the United States concentrate all its efforts on fighting Japan instead of Germany, leaving the Soviets to handle Hitler alone.

The speakers introduced by Dr. Lamont each dealt with one or more of these types of anti-Soviet propaganda—all, as was said, being at the same time pro-Hitler propaganda.

██████████ newspaperman just back from the fighting fronts, praised the efficiency and honesty of Soviet administration and the heroism and devotion of the Soviet people. He ridiculed the notion that the Soviet Union will want to conquer territory after this war, and that an American-Soviet war would result. He pointed out that "Russia is bleeding and steadily bleeding," and that after victory over Hitler—peace is what the Russian people need and want.

True, Mr. Stowe seemed a victim of the too-common delusion about "poor little Finland," and referred to the Soviet-Finnish war as "aggression" but "justified aggression." However, he kept his eye that had not been friendly.

Mr. Smith described as "nauseating," the "cheek by jowl" alliance with the Polish reactionaries of "certain misguided spokesmen of organized labor in America." He meant, of course, such people as David Dubinsky and Walter Reuther, though he did not refer to them by name.

Mr. Smith emphatically described the present war as "labor's war," and for this reason, he insisted, labor must not allow any anti-Soviet propaganda to sway them in the slightest.

"The handclasp of American-Soviet friendship is a symbol of democracy's future, of the future happiness of mankind," he said.

ernment-in-exile, "easily might be misinterpreted."

In an interview at the offices of the Union for Democratic Action, 9 East Forty-sixth Street, the professor attributed efforts to misrepresent the purposes of the meeting to the Communist party and singled out advertisements appearing in The Daily Worker, Communist organ, for particular censure.

Dr. Lange presented his views in a prepared statement. This said it was "quite understandable that the Soviet Government refuses to deal with a Polish Government which cannot carry out its obligations as an ally and which engages in anti-Soviet intrigues."

In urging formation of a new government, Dr. Lange, formerly professor at the University of Cracow in Poland and now a visiting professor at Columbia, declared that "General Sikorski tried honestly to fulfill his obligations as an ally, but his policy was sabotaged by the reactionary émigrés upon whom he had to rely."

Dr. Lange declared that he had "perfect confidence" in the good faith of organizers of the rally, as well as "full sympathy" for its objectives. He urged full public support for the meeting, at which Leland Stowe, foreign correspondent; Senator Claude D. Pepper of Florida, Representative Joseph Clark Baldwin of New York and Dr. Arthur Upham Pope are scheduled speakers. Corliss Lamont will be chairman.

The professor said his withdrawal would not prevent him from continuing to work in the Chicago chapter of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, which he helped to organize.

Mr. Stowe is expected to bring to the Carnegie Hall audience one of the most recent eye-witness accounts of what is taking place in the Soviet Union today. Mr. Stowe will be joined on the platform of Carnegie Hall by Senator Claude D. Pepper.

Edwin S. Smith, former member of the National Labor Relations Board, will also address the mass meeting, it was announced by Corliss Lamont, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Mr. Smith in commenting on the meeting, said: "The Carnegie Hall meeting gives timely expression to the righteous anger felt by all patriotic Americans with those who would slander our great Russian ally in order to weaken America's will to victory. The anti-Soviet mud-slingers are giving definite aid to the Axis. They should be thoroughly exposed and condemned."

Other speakers at the meeting include Senator Claude D. Pepper, Congressman Joseph Clark Baldwin, Professor Arthur Upham Pope, and Leland Stowe, famous foreign correspondent. Tickets, which are reserved, are still available at Room 101, 232 Madison Avenue, New York City at prices ranging from $1.10 to 55c.

ping up artificial anti-Soviet feeling gives proof of the accuracy of such a statement. They are the very people who have helped the Axis at every turn.

What the 700 distinguished Americans have said will go a long way toward offsetting the seditious activities of those Quisling-minded groups. The respect in which such men and women as Albert Einstein, Thomas Mann, Henry Pratt Fairchild, Sholem Asch, Katharine Hepburn and the other signers are held in American eyes will give added weight to their words, which express what the American people instinctively want said.

The open letter to the American people on Soviet-American relations will give extra interest, we hope, to tomorrow's (Thursday's) mass meeting at Carnegie Hall under the auspices of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship. It is rightly termed an "Allied Unity Rally." A large attendance there will give a resounding wallop to those who seek to break United Nations' solidarity.

700 Noted Citizens Hit Anti-Soviet Plot

An open letter to the American people, vigorously protesting the current wave of anti-Soviet slanders and calling for complete national unity to win the war, was issued yesterday by the National Council of American Soviet Friendship. More than 700 leading Americans from all sections of the country signed the letter.

The letter stresses the vital need for unity among both the American people and the United Nations, especially at this moment, when the whole world, following the magnificent victories in North Africa, awaits the opening of a second land front in western Europe.

Here are excerpts from the letter: "Following our magnificent victories in Africa, the next move in Allied strategy is the invasion of Europe. The whole world is awaiting this action, the opening of the long-expected Second Front on the European continent. . . .

"Failure to take immediate advantage of the opportunities created by these events will return the initiative to Hitler and give him time to launch another offensive. To prevent such failure, unity and understanding among the United Nations is the paramount necessity. But in direct proportion to the mounting Soviet successes and the possibilities of a general Allied offensive, the anti-Soviet forces have increased their divisive activities. . . .

"Since the declared policy of our government is that 'the defense of the Soviet Union is vital to the defense of the United States,' this anti-Soviet movement is also an anti-American movement, threatening our national safety and our successful conduct of the war. . . .

"With our country's own freedom and security at stake in these vital issues, we believe that every patriotic American will join us in calling for enduring American-Soviet friendship; the defeat of every attempt to disrupt Allied unity; the earliest possible invasion of Europe; the speedy victory of the United Nations over the Axis."

A FULL SCALE INVASION OF EUROPE—NOW

THE ALLIED ATTACK HAS BEGUN—THE ROAD TO VICTORY IS BEFORE US

General Eisenhower says of the invasion of Sicily:

"It is the first stage in the liberation of the European Continent. There will be others."

We on the home front must do our part to hasten the next stage—

THIS IS THE TIME TO STRIKE — Once again the full force of the Nazi army is in action on the Russian Front — the Nazi commitment is made!

During the first three days of the attack, press reports declare that over 1,500 Nazi tanks and more than 600 Nazi planes were destroyed and more than 30,000 Germans killed by the Red Army. Facing this mighty resistance Hitler will not be able to transfer troops from East to West. Our task will be easier.

There has been much talk of a Second Front. There have been many proofs of the growing military superiority of the United Nations. The victory in Africa increased our military power. Now our heroic Soviet allies, engaging the bulk of Hitler's armies, are giving us a new opportunity to use that power.

It must be clear to everyone that Hitler can now be crushed between the full fighting power of the Red Army and the full grown military might of the British and American armies. We are ready to use not planes only—not bombs only—not a war of nerves only. These have not stopped Hitler. We are attacking Sicily by land, sea, and air.

We are now ready for the full scale invasion of Western Europe by the combined use of all our forces—our men, our planes, our tanks.

We can now strike — hard — together with the millions in occupied Europe who stand ready to fight with us. We can now crush Hitler quickly—and forever!

But there is danger that this new opportunity may not be grasped. Forces that divide our country—forces that malign our Allies—forces that gamble with American lives by encouraging delay, will continue their blocking tactics.

Your support to the leaders of the United Nations who want the full Second Front at once is essential. You have a stake in this—the one road to quicker victory. Your blood, your sweat, your tears, have been given in good measure. Let our Commander-in-Chief and your Congressmen and Senators know that you are ready for immediate action.

DELAY MAY MEAN DEFEAT

We, therefore, call upon all Americans to rally to the support of our Commander-in-Chief in his supreme task of guiding the nation to victory by the immediate full-scale invasion from the West to the heart of the Axis. For this we need above all else—UNITY AT HOME, UNITY WITH OUR ALLIES

The Second Front in Europe

UNITED NATIONS LEADERS AGREE ON IT

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT:

★ "The consequences of Allied victory in Tunisia are simple. They are actual invasions of the Continent of Europe."

PRIME MINISTER CHURCHILL:

★ "... Amphibious operations of a peculiar complexity and on a large scale are approaching."

MARSHAL STALIN:

★ "Victory will come all the sooner, the more quickly we strike our joint united blows against the enemy from the east and from the west."

UNITED NATIONS MILITARY AUTHORITIES SUPPORT IT

GENERAL GEORGE C. MARSHALL, Chief of Staff, U. S. Army: "Failure today to surge forward with every ounce of power and effort we possess would be to write a tragic page for history."

LT. GEN. JACOB L. DEVERS, Commander-in-Chief of U. S. Forces in the European theatre: "All plans have been put into execution and installations are ample for whatever role this theatre may be called upon to play in the invasion of the Continent."

SOVIET SECOND ANNIVERSARY COMMUNIQUE, June 22: "Without a Second Front in Europe, victory is impossible. Postponement of its opening would cause serious setbacks for our common cause."

MILITARY ANALYSTS ASK FOR IT

MAJOR GEORGE FIELDING ELIOT, New York Herald Tribune: "We have the initiative, we have the sea power, we have the air power, we have troops... This is the time to strike with all our force... to shorten the war by a single day may mean the saving of hundreds or even thousands of American lives."

HANSON W. BALDWIN, New York Times: "To bring victory more quickly a Second Front in Europe is still as essential as it was a year ago."

MAX WERNER: "Air power alone brings no military decision... The crucial blow must be carried from the British Isles to Western Europe... The attack can win in 1945... because there will be a combined Anglo-American-Soviet offensive in the West, South and East."

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

The armies of the United Nations make ready for the great offensive, following the complete rout of the Fascist forces in North Africa. Victory is sure because Allies from east and south and west will unite their efforts in a full shattering blow against the enemies of mankind. Victory will come more quickly if we on the home front unite, too, against all who would divide us from each other and our allies. To promote such unity we have initiated this Open Letter.

National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc.
Coriuss Lamont, Chairman

Every patriotic American has reason to be alarmed over the new wave of anti-Soviet propaganda that has arisen in the United States during the first part of 1943. This campaign against Soviet Russia, reviving old fears and prejudices, threatens to undermine American-Soviet friendship, and to divide us from our great Russian ally in war and in peace.

The severance of Soviet Russia's relations with the Polish Government-in-Exile plainly shoved the danger to the United Nations and the advantage to Hitler of anti-Soviet calumnies wherever and whenever they appear. The national interests of our country demand a halt to all actions that may bring disunity among the United Nations, especially now as the conflict against the Axis nears its climax.

CONQUERED EUROPE AWAITS INVASION SIGNAL

The historic decisions reached at Casablanca by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill called for "fighting hard on all fronts and ending the war as quickly as we can on the uncompromising terms of unconditional surrender." According to the Roosevelt-Churchill statement, the prime object of the Anglo-American strategy for 1943 is "to draw as much weight as possible off the Russian armies by engaging the enemy as heavily as possible at the best selected points."

Following our magnificent victories in Africa, the next move in Allied strategy is the invasion of Europe. The whole world is awaiting this action, the opening of the long-expected Second Front on the European continent.

All of conquered Europe seethes with anti-Nazi patriots watching for the invasion signal to spring into a mighty army in Hitler's rear.

In the East our Soviet ally, still engaging the overwhelming bulk of 10,000 Polish

and the Nazi-inspired charge that the Russians are officers.

They have consistently opposed any strong measures against Hitler's satellite, Finland, whose troops are fighting the Russians and whose soil provides a base for Nazi bombers which destroy American ships and men carrying supplies to Murmansk.

They try to make capital out of the Soviet strategy of avoiding conflict with Japan and urge that America concentrate the war in the Pacific. Yet a two-front Soviet war or a Soviet concentration in the Pacific would be in direct contravention of the announced policy of defeating Hitler first as the prerequisite for final victory over all Axis powers.

The anti-Soviet campaign is also used in an attempt to divide the United States from England, which has cemented its Soviet alliance with a twenty-year treaty of mutual assistance.

Most scandalous of all, while millions of Russians are fighting and dying in our common cause, a whispering campaign, now finally noted in public prints, is carried on in the United States to the effect that America must go to war with the Soviet Union after Hitler is beaten.

Since the declared policy of our government is that "the defense of the Soviet Union is vital to the defense of the United States," this anti-Soviet movement is also an anti-American movement, threatening our national safety and our successful conduct of the war.

This anti-Soviet movement has its representatives in both houses of Congress and even in some departments of our government. It is strong in the anti-administration forces within the Democratic Party and in the isolationist sections of the Republican Party. It includes, of course, the Christian Front and fascist circles. It finds constant support and encouragement in many large newspapers throughout the United States.

FULL ALLIED UNITY FOR VICTORY

Against all the divisive elements mentioned are ranged the great healthy mass of the American people and the leaders of our country, who fully express the popular will. The American people have confidence in our Commander-in-Chief, President Roosevelt, and in the other men in high government position who are dedicated to the policy of strengthening the United Nations coalition and carrying through uncompromisingly the great 1943 offensive. Beside them stand the patriotic forces of both major defense of Stalingrad and during the great winter offensive that liberated over 185,000 square miles of territory and put over a million enemy soldiers out of action.

Failure to take immediate advantage of the opportunities created by these events will return the initiative to Hitler and give him time to launch another offensive. To prevent such failure, unity and understanding among the United Nations is the paramount necessity. But in direct proportion to the mounting Soviet successes and the possibilities of a general Allied offensive, leading to early victory, the anti-Soviet forces have increased their divisive activities.

These forces have never abandoned the disastrous and discredited policy that culminated at Munich. They include all those elements whose hatred of Soviet Russia is greater than their hatred of fascism. These circles are willing to prolong the war indefinitely, even to risk our own ultimate defeat, in the hope that Hitler will bleed to death the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. At the same time and for the same reason they seek to lay the groundwork for a negotiated peace with Hitler or his successor at the expense of the Soviet Union.

DANGER TO AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP

These forces have utilized every pretext to disrupt American-Soviet friendship and to stir up suspicion of our Soviet ally. They magnify disputes over post-war boundaries with the purpose of arousing distrust of the Soviet Union and embroiling it with its allies. They invoke the Atlantic Charter against the USSR, while seeking to subvert it themselves by creating states hostile to Russia along its borders.

They prejudice and play up every new accusation levelled at the Soviet Government by the diehard Russophobes among the Polish emigrés, deliberately provoking disunity over such issues as the Ehrlich-Alter case parties and that part of the press which urges cooperation with the Soviet Union and a speedy opening of the Second Front.

The people of America have shown their readiness for any sacrifice to smash the Axis by their bravery on our fighting fronts, by their production efforts in the factories and farms and the entire economic life of our nation.

So it is that we urge the American people to be on guard against those forces in our midst who would divide us from one another and from our Allies. We appeal to the American people to be vigilant in identifying these elements, in exposing them, combating them, depriving them of influence and power by building an indestructible unity for the winning of the war and the peace.

Millions of Americans, millions of people everywhere, will live and breathe again the air of a free world because the Soviet Union has poured its life and treasure so unstintingly in our common cause. Its military casualties already reach 6,000,000. Its civilian deaths in the occupied regions reach perhaps 10,000,000. It is to the great Soviet people that we so largely owe our chance of victory. Only in union with them is victory sure.

Let us do everything in our power to cement our alliance with the Soviet Union, and in cooperation with Great Britain and China to further the great coalition of the United Nations. Let us strengthen every joint action needed to win the war and in this process lay the lasting foundations of post-war peace.

With our country's own freedom and security at stake in these vital issues, we believe that every patriotic American will join us in calling for enduring American-Soviet friendship; the defeat of every attempt to disrupt Allied unity; the earliest possible invasion of Europe; the speedy victory of the United Nations over the Axis.

Troyanovsky Pamphlet Cites Policy On Poles

With regard to Poland, the Soviet Union has "adhered firmly to its proclamation of the right of nations to self-determination," former Ambassador to the United States Alexander A. Troyanovsky said in a pamphlet just issued by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

In the pamphlet, called "for World Peace and Freedom," which described the last twenty-five years of the Soviet Union's international policy, Mr. Troyanovsky said: "There has not been a single occasion in the whole history of the foreign policy of the USSR when the Soviet government evinced a single doubt regarding the right of Poland to independent existence."

Calling attention to the peace treaty which the Soviet Government made with Poland on October 12, 1920, Mr. Troyanovsky said that during the "unfortunate Polish-Soviet war begun in 1919 on the initiative of Poland, the Soviet Government repeatedly affirmed its recognition of Polish independence."

"As early as December 21, 1919, the Soviet government proposed to Poland the opening of peace negotiations on the basis of recognition of Polish independence," Mr. Troyanovsky said. "The same recognition was later expressed in the address of the Council of People's Commissars to the Polish government and the Polish people."

"It should be noted that when the Red Army was gaining victories over Poland, the Soviet government on August 10, 1920, published its terms of peace; first among them stood the full recognition of the independence of Poland. It goes without saying that the preliminary peace treaty of the Soviet government with Poland on October 12, 1920, and the final treaty signed at Riga on March 18, 1921, fully recognized the independence of Poland."

Congressmen At Rally to Hit Anti-Soviet Plot

United States Senator Claude E. Pepper, Congressman Joseph Clark Baldwin, Prof. Oscar Lange of Columbia University and other speakers will denounce attempts to split the unity of the United Nations at a meeting in Carnegie Hall Thursday evening, May 20.

Dr. Corliss Lamont, chairman of the National Council of Soviet-American Friendship, which is sponsoring the meeting, will preside.

The need of the sharpest struggle against the splitters is greater than ever today as the invasion of the occupied lands of Europe draws nearer.

Professor Lange, formerly of the University of Cragow, will deal with the activities of Polish reactionaries. He will analyze the composition of the Polish Government-in-Exile, which includes members sympathetic to the fascist "national camp."

Polish reactionaries precipitated a crisis over the terms of the Polish-Soviet agreement and sabotaged its terms as soon as it was signed.

Friendship to the Soviet Union is a crime in their eyes.

Polish reactionary circles are not alone. It is significant that their friends in this country, organized as "The American Friends of Poland" include notorious isolationists, such as Col. McCormack, Keneral Wood, Lucy Martin, Cudahy and others.

Another point of attack is the film, "Mission to Moscow." Because of its remarkable services in building understanding of our Soviet ally, in breaking down prejudice and ignorance, the anti-Soviet forces are fostering a sinister smear campaign. The Scripps-Howard press has turned the anti-Soviet specialist, Eugene Lyons upon it.

This sector of the anti-Soviet drive will be dealt with by Prof. Arthur Upham Pope, Chairman of the Committee for National Morale.

Letter - Writing Campaign to Russia Begins

Americans can personally express their friendliness for and gratitude to valiant Red Army men, Miss Alice Barrows, executive secretary of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., declared this week.

Miss Barrows announced that the Council has inaugurated a new "Correspondence for Friendship" campaign.

"All you have to do," she said, "is write your own message on a greeting card supplied by the Council and indicate whether you want it delivered to a woman factory worker, collective farmer, Red Army nurse or fighter."

The greetings, with a coin or folded bill, are returned to the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 232 Madison Ave., New York City, and there forwarded to the Soviet Union.

Lamont Warns of Anti-Soviet Drive

The open break between the Soviet and Polish governments over the Nazi-inspired charge that the Russians murdered 10,000 Polish officers shows clearly the danger to the United Nations of the splitting tactics engineered by Hitler and fostered by the general campaign of anti-Soviet propaganda which has been carried on during recent months in Britain and America. Corliss Lamont, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, said yesterday in a statement issued from the Council's office, 232 Madison Ave.

"According to reliable news dispatches, the widespread support which the Poles received from anti-Soviet circles in the United States was a leading factor in bringing on the Polish-Soviet crisis," Mr. Lamont said. "Therefore, we must face squarely the fact that we here in America share the responsibility for this grave situation, and above all, we must avoid any action that will further divide us from our great Russian ally."

"This is a moment of supreme test for the sincerity of our own claims of friendship for the Soviet Union. Already voices have been raised placing equal responsibility for the crisis on Soviet Russia, when it is perfectly clear that the blame rests on Nazi Germany and the reactionary anti-Soviet elements in the Polish Government-in-Exile. It is important that we understand where the guilt lies and make clear our confidence in the integrity of our Soviet ally and her devotion to our common cause, which has been sealed with the blood of so many millions of her people. The acts of the Polish Government have not been such as to warrant our confidence.

"The Soviet-Polish crisis brings out the fact that the new wave of anti-Soviet propaganda which has arisen in the United States recently should cause gravest concern to every patriotic American. This campaign against the USSR, covering many different issues and stirring up old fears and prejudices, threatens to undermine American-Soviet friendship, which is so necessary for victory over the Axis and for the establishment of enduring peace."

The newly formed National Council of American - Soviet Friendship, Inc., 232 Madison Ave., will stage an American-Soviet War Exhibit in New York City in May.

Among the outstanding features of the exhibition will be trophies captured from the Nazis by the Red Army, including special iron crosses prepared by the Germans to commemorate the fall of Moscow, and other graphic material from the war fronts never before shown in this country.

"The purpose of the National Council," Chairman Corliss Lamont said, "is to promote better understanding and strengthen friendly relations between the United States and the Soviet Union as essential for winning the war and establishing world-wide democracy and an enduring peace. To this end the Council will take action against anti-Soviet propaganda aimed at dividing the United Nations."

Soviet Press Quotes U. S. Poles on Ties

(By Wireless to Inter-Continent News)

MOSCOW, April 8 (ICN).—The Soviet press today carries a Tass dispatch from New York on the statements made recently by progressive Polish organizations in the United States with regard to the anti-Soviet activities of a group of reactionary Polish-Americans led by Matuszewski.

Pravda quotes a statement signed by leaders of various locals of the Auto Workers Union, in which they stress the necessity for maintaining good relations with the Soviet Union, and for the immediate invasion of Europe to bring about the rout of Hitler in 1943.

The papers also quote from the statements of Professors Lange of Chicago University and Karpinski of Michigan University, in which they condemn the position taken by the reactionary Polish emigres with regard to the Soviet Union, and call for the establishment of a firm and mutual understanding between the Soviet Union and Poland.

The Soviet people are reading with great interest an announcement quoted in the papers today that a National Council of Soviet-American Friendship is being formed in the United States under the leadership of Corliss Lamont. They are particularly pleased that the formation of this council is supported by prominent statesmen, trade union leaders, writers, artists and others, and feel that it will be another step forward in cementing the friendship between the American and Soviet people.

These services will be available to organizational and groups throughout the United States. Not a dues-paying organization, any individual or organization interested in promoting American-Soviet friendship may participate in its activities."

The National Council will set up various local councils throughout the country to conduct its program in the communities. These councils will establish committees working with trade unions, women's organizations, professional groups, and nationalities' organizations.

Mrs. Bethune Hails USSR

I am most happy to be privileged to share with this great throng of people here tonight and the millions of Americans everywhere the joy in the celebration of this, the twenty-seventh anniversary of the Soviet Union and the anniversary of American-Soviet Friendship. In this great

Soviet Land, which covers one-sixth of the world, there have been many achievements, the greatest of which is the complete elimination of the minority problem. May we recognize tonight, that while here in America we have been talking about solving this problem, Russia has done it—and her influence for justice and equal opportunity to all peoples, regardless of race, creed or color has been felt throughout the world. Russia truly has given to us the basic pattern for making democracy work. And ladies and gentlemen, at this time when we are celebrating the anniversary of the great Soviet Union, may I appeal to your intelligence and spiritual awakening when I say—if it is working in Soviet Russia, it can work here in America. May we realize that we can never have lasting peace and freedom of brotherhood until every individual, regardless of his race, creed or color has equal rights and protection under his own constitution. So you have today in all parts of the Soviet Union, a people who can live freely, speak their language, as equal members of society. Do we wonder that when the time of the mortal peril came after the Germans invaded this great country, that all groups arose as one to protect their country and to give their lives to defend that which is the most cherished thing in human life—freedom and love of one's native soil. They are now men born equal—and I, representing fourteen millions of black people of America, am happy to be here to join the celebrating of human rights is an inspiring achievement, and so in the name of my people, I send from the bottom of my heart, best greetings to all groups of the Soviet Union who are happy to work and to sacrifice in their marvelous country for decency and equality—not only for their own country and their allies, but the entire world.

Soviet-American Relations

ANY New Yorker who attended that great Madison Square Garden meeting on Thursday night must have felt as we did: that Soviet-American friendship has reached a new level. True enough, both nations have yet to realize completely the fruits of the understanding between them; powerful enemies are trying to thwart that understanding and must be fought incessantly. But the meeting itself, in the caliber of the speakers and the quality of their remarks, was a heartening proof that our two peoples have reached a new high of mutual appreciation and the foes of U.S.-USSR relations will be routed.

This year, by comparison with last November, the war has reached a stage where everyone can see the fruits of our fighting solidarity on the battlefield. And this year we can see in the rise of a new Europe and the proposals of Dumbarton Oaks that the United States and the Soviet Union are capable of resolving all political issues which are part of the war itself.

The presence of the acting secretary of state, the unprecedented message from the President, the contributions of Ambassador Gromyko and Lord Halifax, the unity of our nation, in the participation of industry, labor, the Negro people and the best of the arts and sciences—not to forget the armed forces—all went to make this memorable event of lasting importance.

Virtually every speaker made a real contribution. Henry Kaiser expressed the faith of the most farsighted American businessmen in the "gigantic new productive force" which the Soviet Union offers to build a world order of stability and progress. Mary McLeod Bethune greeted the Soviet solution of old Russia's minority problems as a "basic pattern for making democracy work." And Andrei Gromyko offered declarations of policy transcending the occasion itself, when he emphasized that the treatment of Germany must fit the degree of her crimes and must above all make impossible the revival of German imperialist militarism. Or again, when Gromyko stressed that the security of all small nations will correspond to the degree of cooperation among the great powers.

But perhaps Joseph E. Davies hit the most vital note in taking the offensive against those who talk about Soviet-American warfare in 15 years, obviously directed against men like William C. Bullitt. He called that kind of thing a reflection of Nazi propaganda itself, a "sabotage" of those postwar security plans, like Dumbarton Oaks, which are the hope of our own people and humanity as a whole. Thus, the meeting was not only a commemoration of 11 years of Soviet recognition; it was an answer to all those who even now attempt to sever the friendship which is vital to victory and which lies at the heart of the United Nations unity.

As the President declared, such meetings all over the land are a direct support of our nation's policy. The National Council of Soviet-American Friendship is to be congratulated on its farsighted endeavors. They deserve the support of all Americans.

Roosevelt Pledges Follow-Up of Oaks Plan—Stettinius, Gromyko Stress Security

Declaring that no better tribute could be paid to our allies than to continue working "in ever-growing accord to establish a peace that will endure," President Roosevelt promised last night, in a message to the American-Soviet Friendship rally at Madison Square Garden, that other steps would be taken to follow up the work of the Dumbarton Oaks conference.

President Roosevelt told the 20,000 persons at the rally, which was one of a series arranged by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship in large cities throughout the country to mark the eleventh anniversary of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, that these meetings were "of tremendous assistance and value."

Before the President's message was read, the vast crowd that filled the big auditorium stood in tribute to him.

President's Message

The President's message follows:

I am grateful to you and all those who are celebrating American-Soviet Friendship Day for the words of support and confidence I have received. There is no better tribute we can hold out to our Allies than to continue working in ever growing accord to establish a peace that will endure. The Dumbarton Oaks Conference was a step in this direction. Other steps will be taken. In line with this objective such meetings as you are holding in Madison Square Garden and in other great centers throughout the United States are of tremendous assistance and value.

Edward R. Stettinius Jr., acting Secretary of State; Andrei A. Gromyko, Ambassador of the Soviet Union to the United States, and the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador to this country, headed a long list of distinguished speakers who addressed the gathering. The three statesmen, all of whom took leading roles in the Dumbarton Oaks Conference, agreed in expressing hope for lasting peace.

Sees "Precious Opportunity"

Confidence that there is in store for the United States and the Soviet Union, and for all of the United Nations, "a future of settled peace and a precious opportunity—such as the world has never known before—to advance the freedom and the well-being of all mankind" was voiced by Mr. Stettinius.

Expressing the cordial and warm regard of the American people and their Government for the people and Government of the Soviet Union, Mr. Stettinius predicted that the two countries would continue to work together in cooperation with other peace-loving nations to build and to safeguard a peaceful world order.

The Dumbarton Oaks proposals, Mr. Stettinius said, "are the considered, though yet tentative, views of the countries which are bearing the brunt of the war, and which inevitably will continue in the future to have special responsibilities for the prevention of wars and the removal of the fears that lead to wars."

Ambassador Gromyko warned that the effectiveness and efficiency of any international organization for the preservation of peace "will be directly dependent on the extent of the coordination of actions among the most powerful peace-loving nations, who have at their disposal the necessary means for the prevention and suppression of aggression." He said that the small countries could not feel secure when there was a lack unity and mutual understanding among the great nations.

"There are reasons to believe that the cooperation between our country, which has grown stronger during this war, will represent a solid basis for more durable bonds between them in the future, in the interests of the preservation of general peace and the prosperity of the peoples," Mr. Gromyko asserted.

Decrying discussions of a "severe" peace and a "soft" peace for Germany, the Soviet Ambassador suggested that it would be better to speak of the kind of peace that would deprive the German militarists of the possibility of unleashing a new World War; of the kind of peace "which Nazi Germany deserves and which would correspond to the degree of her crimes."

Lord Halifax, warning that Germany was still endeavoring to foster misunderstandings between the Allies that would enable her to steal from the victors some of the rewards of victory, expressed his confidence that the United States, Soviet Russia and the British Commonwealth would "secure our children and children's children against repetition of the present tragedy."

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, Supreme Commander of the Allied Expeditionary Force, sent a message to the meeting in which he paid a personal tribute to "the great Red Army" and declared that his command "looks forward to the day when it shall meet its comrades of the Red Army in the heart of the hostile stronghold."

Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to the Soviet Union, presided over the mass meeting, which was attended by a wildly enthusiastic crowd that filled the big auditorium. Henry J. Kaiser, the industrialist; Capt. William Gower of the Army Air Forces, who recently took part in a shuttle bombing raid on a Russia base; Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, president of the National Council of Negro Women, and Albert J. Fitzgerald, general president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, an affiliate of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, were other speakers. The Rev. Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, Bishop of the Methodist Church, New York Area, offered a prayer at the rally.

Harris Conducts New Work

Dr. Roy Harris, the composer, conducted the orchestra in the world premiere performance of his "Ode to Friendship," dedicated to sympathetic understanding, trust and friendship between the peoples of the United States and the Soviet Union. Leopold Stokowski also conducted part of the musical program and Jarmila Novotna, Metropolitan Opera star, sang Russian and Czechoslovak songs.

Messages from almost a score of dignitaries were read at the rally. Among those who sent greetings were Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War; Gen. Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Allied Supreme Commander in the Mediterranean Theatre; Lieut. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of the Sixth Army Group in France, and Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, Prime Minister of the Union of South Africa.

Manuel Avila Camacho, President of Mexico; Mrs. Winston Churchill, Henry A. Wallace, Vice President of the United States; Henry Morgenthau Jr., Secretary of the Treasury; Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture; Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, Philip Murray, president of the CIO; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, were others.

Mr. Davies declared that three years of diplomatic contact and of fighting together had created "a justified confidence and reliance" among the three great Governments that were strong enough to defeat Hitler. Without this mutual confidence the foundations of peace could not be laid, he said, and he condemned "reckless attacks" upon any one of the three Governments or their leaders.

"To heedlessly foster or create suspicions and hostilities between the peoples of these nations; to irresponsibly proclaim that war between the present Allies is inevitable within fifteen years because one of them, our ally, the Soviet Union, has not been quarantined as a public enemy by a hostile Europe, is to sabotage the possibility of the peace project before it starts," he said.

Kaiser Hails Russian Industry

Mr. Kaiser declared that the immense accomplishments of the Soviet Union have been possible only because all of her people believe that Russia belongs to them. He said that the industrial nations of the world could welcome "this gigantic new productive force" without fear of its competition.

"When Russian industrialism matches our own in volume, when comforts and conveniences are a commonplace for her people, the great mass of mankind throughout the world will be seeking more and more goods to satisfy their awakened desires," he said. "In the new world there will be no place for the theories of overproduction."

Captain Gower told of landing at a Russian base after having bombed Gdynia. He praised the expertness with which Russian mechanics serviced the engines of his Flying Fortress, and told of the hospitality the American fliers received. He said that he found the Russians "very hospitable and human with a fine sense of humor and a joy of living" and that he hoped to visit them again in peace time.

Dr. Bethune asserted that the greatest achievement of the Soviet Union was "the complete elimination of the minority problem." She said that Russia "truly has given to us the basic pattern for making democracy work" and she declared that "if it is working in Soviet Russia, it can work here in America."

Mr. Fitzgerald read the message from Mr. Murray, in which the latter declared that "American labor appreciates how much our country and all the other United Nations owe to the magnificent war effort of the Soviet Union, and how much the future peace and prosperity of the world depend upon the continuation and strengthening of this alliance of all the freedom-loving peoples."

Wilson Sees Contiguous Front

General Wilson predicted in his message that, with active operations now taking place in Yugoslavia and Greece, it would be "only a matter of a very short time before we have a contiguous front with our Russian allies." He said that he was confident that it would bring forth "the same spirit of cordiality and cooperation as has been experienced elsewhere in the Mediterranean theatre."

Vice President Wallace said in his message that more Americans should study Russian, should attend Russian universities and live in the smaller Russian towns. We in turn should take steps to enable more Russians to come to our universities to study, he added, because "the more first-hand contacts there are between the United States and Soviet Russia the less likely we are to have World War III."

Secretary Stimson said that throughout the war the heroic struggle of the Russian people against aggression has won the admiration of every freedom-loving nation. He voiced his confidence that the collaboration of the two nations "will continue through the years of peace in friendship, understanding and mutual prosperity."

Soviet Friendship Rally Told Of Need for Neutral Trust

Representatives of the U. S. A., Great Britain and Russia told a capacity gathering last night at Madison Square Garden, commemorating the 11th anniversary of the resumption of relations between this country and the Soviet Union that postwar peace and security will depend on unity and mutual trust among the United Nations.

The necessity for an organization of peace-loving nations and warnings against any future German efforts to sabotage the peace marked speeches by Under Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Soviet Ambassador Gromyko, British Ambassador Halifax and others. They praised the recent Dumbarton Oaks proposals as a step toward international organization and predicted future conferences to outlaw war.

America and Russia are obligated to this task, Stettinius declared. Dumbarton Oaks proposals will gain a wider international hearing, he said, and out of the next conference will emerge resolutions which will be submitted to the respective nations for approval.

Germany is on the edge of catastrophe, Gromyko declared. He said German resistance was due to the striving of German leaders to "postpone the hour of retribution for the crimes they have committed." Discussions about a "soft" or "hard" peace to be imposed upon Germany, are "abstractions," he added.

"Wouldn't it be better," he said, "... to speak of the kind of peace that would deprive the German militarists of the possibility of unleashing a new war... the kind of peace which Nazi Germany deserves and which would correspond to the degree of her crimes?"

Halifax warned that Germany still hopes to win the peace. It is an old Nazi habit, "to foster misunderstandings, to induce us to question one another's motives."

FOR AMERICAN-RUSSIAN FRIENDSHIP

ACTING SECRETARY OF STATE STETTINIUS and Ambassador Gromyko last night celebrated the 11th anniversary of American-Soviet diplomatic relations with cordial speeches. Their mutual felicitations had grace, charm and evident sincerity. The friendship of these two peoples, which is contributing so much to Nazi defeat, should grow in the post-war years. But Stettinius and Gromyko avoided any mention, much less discussion, of specific disputes which divide Washington and Moscow.

To talk in public about such matters is not considered good form. All differences of policy are supposed to be patched up by secret diplomacy, which Marshal Stalin and President Roosevelt favor at the expense of open covenants openly arrived at. That method may work in Russia, but it rarely produces good results in this democracy, where foreign policy must be ratified by congressional action and public opinion in the end.

Official secrecy cannot keep from the public the fact that there are disputes, revealed by daily headlines. It can only increase the misunderstandings which might be cleared away by facing them openly. Would it not be better and safer for Stalin to know how strongly Americans feel about these issues now rather than too late? And would it not be fairer for Americans to hear the Russian side officially, so they can weigh that against the other side?

Among the issues that burden American-Russian friendship three stand out.

First is the American feeling that Russia should be helping us lick Japan, instead of taking a free ride. We think that distrust is unjust. Before it poisons friendship more, officials publicly should spell out Russia's legitimate reason for concentrating on Hitler's defeat first.

Second is the American fear that Russia in eastern Europe is trying to set up a puppet sphere in violation of the rights of small nations and of Stalin's pledge in the United Nations Declaration and the Hull-Moscow Pact. That fear is justified, in our judgment, by Russia's acts in Poland and elsewhere. If the American public is misinformed as to that Russian policy, the sooner Russia sets at rest these fears of America and the small nations the better it will be for friendship.

Third is America's uneasiness over Communist activities in the liberated European states and in this country. Diplomatic recognition 11 years ago was based on the pledge of each to refrain from interference in the internal affairs of the other. There are too many signs that Moscow, despite official disavowals and disbanding the Communist Internationale, is backing favored persons and parties in other countries. We doubt that this will produce peace in Europe. We know that it will not produce American friendship for Russia.

Because we share the belief of Stettinius and Gromyko that close American-Russian co-operation is essential to victory and to lasting peace, we hope these barriers can be faced and removed before they cause more damage.

Trade With USSR Vital to Assure Jobs Here, Says Kilgore

DETROIT, Nov. 15 (FP). — The 60,000,000 jobs promised by President Roosevelt can be had if our peacetime economy is on the same large scale as our wartime economy, Sen. Harley M. Kilgore (D-W. Va.), told 4,000 at the American-Soviet Friendship Council rally here.

Foreign trade, especially with the Soviet Union, will be a big factor, he said as he envisioned a 15 percent export-import trade instead of the 5 percent prewar average in American economy.

Frank X. Martel, president of the Detroit & Wayne County Federation of Labor, and R. I. Thomas, president of the United Auto Workers, gave the rally an emphatic labor aspect.

"The revolution in Russia is bringing economic changes all over the world," Martel said. "These changes can come peacefully if there is good will. The danger in force is not so much that it will be used to bring about change as that it will be used in trying to prevent it. We saw that in Spain."

Thomas deplored the refusal of the AFL to send delegates to the coming world labor conference called by the British Trades Union Congress for Jan. 8.

"I will be honored to sit with the labor union delegates of our great ally," Thomas asserted.

"Where is the logic of supporting our war partnership and then refusing to sit down with the representatives of the workers of one of our allies?"

The Soviets are scrupulous business people, Kilgore declared, saying that American businessmen "found the communists even more exact in meeting the terms of a contract than they were themselves."

Nov. 16—A Happy Anniversary

ELEVEN years ago today President Roosevelt thrilled the democratic world by official recognition of the Soviet Union. Three successive Republican administrations, steeped in anti-Soviet hatred, had refused to accord such recognition. At last, on Nov. 16, 1933, the two mighty nations—USA and USSR—clasped each other's hands in friendship.

Now, in retrospect, the American people understand more fully how fine and healthful was this move for our America. In the fires of global anti-Axis war, we have learned to appreciate the wisdom of President Roosevelt, both as an American and world statesman, in establishing this friendship. In his Foreign Policy Association speech last month, the President expressed his pride at having been the chief executive first to bring about such relations with the Soviet Republics. In that pride all the people share.

The delay in recognizing the USSR, which is not the least of the crimes of Hooverism against our country, cost us dearly later in the lives sacrificed to the Hitlerite foe. It was of grave injury to all humanity. And yet there are people who still hold the Hoover view.

As late as 1940 Gov. Thomas E. Dewey placed himself alongside Hoover in criticizing the Roosevelt administration for recognizing the Soviet Union. In that address before the Republican Women's Club in New York, he berated the President for seeking "a fantastic partnership with Russia," and added: "We need no such partnership."

That was seven years after the act of recognition, and when Dewey was emerging as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. In the conduct of his recent campaign, both he and those in control of his party have demonstrated that they have no friendship for our Soviet ally. They are motivated by hostility.

Happily, the American people repudiated such a harmful position. By voting for Mr. Roosevelt, they said "thumbs down" to these anti-Soviet ideas. The majority of the people—including the majority of the Republicans and people of all classes—want genuine good-will relations with the USSR.

On this Nov. 16 we can understand that Soviet-American amity is the required cornerstone for our foreign policy. It is the foundation for a durable peace and for that prosperous world without which America cannot be prosperous. We have an obligation, then, to conduct an unending campaign against those Munich-minded enemies of our country who are still busy concocting plots to sever these invaluable bonds of friendship.

On this happy anniversary, we can rejoice that the U.S.A. and USSR are allies, and resolve that this shall be the case for generations.

Russian Recognition By William Philip Simms

TOMORROW is the 11th anniversary of American recognition of Soviet Russia. By proclamation, the State of New York has set it aside as "American-Soviet Friendship Day," and a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden has been organized by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

The meeting, says the Council, will climax the nation-wide celebrations commemorating the 27th anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Union. Acting Secretary of State Stettinius will speak. So will Soviet Ambassador Gromyko, British Ambassador the Earl of Halifax and Shipbuilder Henry J. Kaiser. Joseph E. (Mission to Moscow) Davies will preside.

That America should understand Russia is, of course, vitally important. Victory in the war and the fate of the world for decades depend on an Anglo-Soviet-American entente. If the Big Three can not work together, then Dumbarton Oaks and all it signifies in the way of post-war peace and security aren't worth a kopek.

BUT it takes at least two to make an understanding. It is just as important for Russia to understand America as it is the other way round. And one will look in vain to find in Russia the counterpart of the nation-wide pro-Soviet manifestations now taking place in this country. In fact, any Russian who organized a mass meeting in Red Square to popularize the capitalist democracy of the United States would probably show up missing the day after.

However, that is no argument against the Madison Square Garden celebration tomorrow. On the contrary it is a step in the right direction. But Russia should meet us half way.

What most people seem to have forgotten—Americans as well as Russians—are the conditions of recognition. To obtain recognition, Moscow agreed to refrain from the dissemination of Communist propaganda in the United States and to restrain any agency under its direct or indirect control from interfering in our internal affairs. Yet within less than two years of this promise, the Seventh Congress of the Third International, meeting in Moscow, first applauded then formally approved plans for gaining a foothold in American labor, political and other organizations so that the Communists might "bore from within."

WASHINGTON protested emphatically, accusing Moscow of violating its signature of Nov. 16, 1933. But Moscow replied, cynically denying it had anything to do with the Congress—a complete evasion, as all the world knew.

This newspaper campaigned thruout a decade for Russian recognition, trade and economic collaboration on the grounds that if the Russians wanted Communism that was their affair . . . so long, that is, as they did not seek to force it on others. I wrote thousands of words on the subject. It is my conviction that if the spirit of the agreement of 1933 were remembered, understood and implemented by the Kremlin, it would go far to cement Soviet-American friendship, and to make that friendship permanent and constructive.

Reply to Anti-Soviet Baiting

HARM to good will among the Allies is still being promoted by Roy Howard's World-Telegram. Its editorial page Saturday was headed by a tirade against the Soviet Union, a mischievous outburst at the moment when Big Three cooperation is of such value to speedy victory.

And what are the grounds for the World-Telegram's Soviet-baiting? They are the presentation of a collection of headlines from current newspapers about events in Iran, Romania; Finland and other European and Asiatic countries. These headlines are so written as to give the impression the Soviet Union is dominating these countries, even though what has happened is the rout of the fascist and pro-fascist forces in each instance.

Who is responsible, anyway, for such headlines? They are the product of such papers as the World-Telegram, which still hanker for collaboration with the Romanian fascists and the Finnish friends of Hitler. They misrepresent the retreat and defeat of the Hitler-aping gangs within the European countries as the fruit of "Bolshevik plotting" and Soviet control. The editorial which makes use of these concoctions demonstrates that there are Munichers aplenty still doing business at the old stand, despite the resounding rebuke they received in the Nov. 7 election.

The World-Telegram displayed its colors in 1941, when it rejoiced editorially at Hitler's assault upon the Soviet Union. It had previously given away its pro-Axis sympathies with Roy Howard's much-ballyhooed plea for appeasement of Japan. If we read Hitler's Sunday proclamation, whether it was written by the Nazi overlord or not, we note that the same anti-Soviet bugaboo which Howard now uses in his Saturday editorial is the chief reliance of the Axis in the war.

This World-Telegram attitude does not represent the viewpoint of the American people. They proved that overwhelmingly in the presidential election, when they took their stand for Soviet-American friendship and for United Nations unity. It is proved again by the numerous and distinguished Americans who are now sponsoring the Soviet-American friendship meetings in city after city throughout the country. Among them we note outstanding men in the public service like Harold Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, and Sen. James Murray of Montana, leaders in the cultural world like Van Wyck Brooks and Paul Robeson; representatives of the labor movement like President William Green of the AFL and President Philip Murray of the CIO.

It would be a mistake to let the mad dogs of the Munich-minded press bark without something being done to stop them. They will have to be answered, strongly and firmly. A great outpouring at the Soviet-American friendship meetings everywhere, particularly in Madison Square Garden on Thursday night, will be one effective answer. The people can then have their say—for lasting cooperation with our mighty Soviet ally.

Halifax to Speak at Garden US-Soviet Rally

The enthusiasm of the American people for the forthcoming meeting of the Big Three—Roosevelt, Stalin and Churchill—will find expression in Madison Square Garden Thursday night as representatives of the United States, the Soviet Union and Great Britain pay tribute to the 27th anniversary of the USSR.

Lord Halifax:

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Acting Secretary of State; Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador, and the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador, will speak from the Garden's flag-draped rostrum as the great amity rally, sponsored by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, gets under way. These three statesmen participated in the Dumbarton Oaks Conference which laid the framework for peace, postwar security and trade among their nations.

KAISER TO SPEAK

Henry Kaiser, West Coast shipbuilder who won a world-wide reputation for production of U. S. Liberty ships, was announced as a speaker yesterday. Interest also centers in the world premiere of Ode to Friendship, written by Roy Harris, American composer whose Fifth Symphony, dedicated to the Soviet Union, was received wholeheartedly by that country.

The huge Garden meeting, which will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m., will also mark the 11th year of diplomatic relations between the United States and the USSR. The rally will be dedicated to "USA-USSR, Nations United for Victory and Peace."

Other prominent speakers will be Joseph E. Davies, former American Ambassador, to the Soviet Union and author of Mission to Moscow; Corliss Lamont, chairman of the American-Soviet Friendship Council; Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, Methodist, of the New York, and Robert J. Fitzgerald, president of the CIO United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers and vice-president of the CIO.

Sponsors of the rally include CIO President Philip Murray, AFL President William Green, Mayor F. LaGuardia, Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard and War Production Board Chief Lt. Commander J. A. Krug.

Prominent Citizens Issue Call For U.S.-U.S.S.R. Women's Rally

Mrs. Joseph E. Davies, wife of the former ambassador to the Soviet Union, and Mrs. Muriel Draper, author, yesterday called upon American women and women's groups to take part in the USA-USSR women's conference which will be held Saturday, Nov. 18, under the auspices of the Women's Committee of the National Council of Soviet-American Friendship.

The conference will hear discussions by Soviet and American women on mutual problems and experiences. Heading the list of speakers are Mme. Gromyko, wife of the Soviet Ambassador; Dr. Anna E. Chernysheva of the Soviet government Purchasing Commission; Dr. Arnold Gesell, director of Yale University's child development clinic; Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, president of Palmer Memorial Institute; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former minister to Norway, and Lillian Smith, author of Strange Fruit.

In their call to the conference,

Mrs. Davies and Mrs. Draper, who are respectively national honorary chairman and New York chairman of the Women's Committee, pointed out that Soviet women want to know about the achievements and problems of American women as mothers, workers, creative artists and participants in community and government activities. Equally so in preparing to play the most effective role in the postwar world, American women look to the Soviet experiences.

"Our government's far-seeing plans for world collaboration open up the avenues for such friendly interchange," they said. "The friendship the peoples of the world establish with each other will in turn create the firmest guarantees for the fulfillment of the concords of Moscow and Teheran."

The conference will discuss women's role in the postwar world, women in the war, in industry, the professions and the home, child care and family relationships.

FDR Saw Soviet Amity Leading to Peace

President Roosevelt, in a letter to Maxim Litvinoff, People's Commissar for Foreign Affairs, Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Nov. 16, 1933:

"I am very happy to inform you that as a result of our conversations the government of the United States has decided to establish normal diplomatic relations with the government of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and to exchange ambassadors.

"I trust that the relations now established between our peoples may forever remain normal and friendly, and that our nations henceforth may cooperate for their mutual benefit and for the preservation of the peace of the world."

Dewey Berated U.S.-Soviet Friendship

Thomas E. Dewey, in a speech at the 19th annual luncheon of the Women's National Republican Club, as reported in the New York Times, Jan. 21, 1940:

"Insofar as the present administration has adhered to the policies of its predecessors, it has met with the general approval of the American people. But it has occasionally strayed from the path. A conspicuous and most unfortunate departure was the recognition by the New Deal of Soviet Russia."

Americans will mark their friendship with our ally on the anniversary of the establishing of American-Soviet friendship. New Yorkers will assemble at Madison Square Garden on Nov. 16. Other meetings are scheduled throughout the country.

TRIBUTES to American-Soviet friendship this year will mark the anniversary, on Nov. 16 of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the two countries and fall on or near the anniversary of Tochari (Dec. 2), the founding of the USSR (Nov. 7), and the promulgation of the Stalin Constitution (Dec. 5).

In New York City, leading United Nations spokesmen will take part in the celebration at Madison Square Garden on Thursday evening, Nov. 16.

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Acting Secretary of State; Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador, and the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador, will speak from the Garden's flag-draped rostrum.

Leopold Stokowski will conduct the orchestra, which will play Ray Harris' new Ode to American-Soviet Friendship, written specially for the anniversary.

The theme of the meeting, says the American-Soviet Friendship Council, which is directing the demonstration, is "USA-USSR—Nations United for Victory and Peace."

Joseph E. Davies, former American Ambassador to the Soviet Union, who wrote "Mission to Moscow," will also speak.

On this page we print the names of the 300 sponsors of the celebrations throughout the country.

Soviet Hero Hails Rally Here

Gratitude for aid and support American have given to the Soviet Union in the common fight against the Nazis was expressed in a cable from the Russian front by 31-year-old Col. Alexander Pokryshkin, three-star hero of the USSR. The cable was sent to the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship on the occasion of its American-Soviet friendship rally at Madison Square Garden on Thursday, Nov. 16, which will be addressed by Acting Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr.; Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko; the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador; the Honorable Joseph E. Davies, and Henry J. Kaiser.

Col. Pokryshkin, who received his third decoration from the Soviet government in July, 1944, as top Allied ace with a bag of 59 enemy planes, expressed faith that the day is near when the soldiers of America, Britain and Russia will "shake hands in the streets of conquered Berlin."

His message said in part:

"I send you warmest and hearty greetings from Russia's front line. Today the Soviet Union is celebrating its 27th anniversary.

GRATEFUL

"Russians will gratefully remember the aid and support Americans gave them in this titanic struggle. Our courage in combat, our decisive victory over the common foe will be the best token of our gratitude to you, our American friends.

"Today we can declare to the whole world that the Soviet people defended and held the conquests of the great revolution of 1917.

"You and we have one aim—to utterly smash aggressive Nazism, restore mankind to long years of peaceful labor, creative work and flourishing progress. This noble aim firmly unites the Allied peoples and their friends. All of the Hitler clique's stakes on discord in our ranks are falling through. The soldiers of the three great global armies see the dawn of the day when they'll shake hands in the streets of conquered Berlin. Forward, battle friends!"

Stettinius Tops Roster For Soviet Amity Rally

Leading United Nations spokesmen will take part in the 27th annual celebration of the Soviet Republic at Madison Square Garden on Thursday evening, Nov. 16.

Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., Acting Secretary of State; Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Ambassador, and the Earl of Halifax, British Ambassador, will speak from the Garden's flag-draped rostrum.

The anniversary actually comes today. But the coincidence of the election made a later day necessary.

Leopold Stokowski will conduct the orchestra, which will play Ray Harris' new Ode to American-Soviet Friendship, written specially for the anniversary.

The theme of the meeting, says the American-Soviet Friendship Council, which is directing the demonstration, is "USA-USSR—Nations United for Victory and Peace."

Joseph E. Davies, former American Ambassador to the Soviet Union, who wrote "Mission to Moscow," will also speak.

Corliss Lamont, chairman of the American-Soviet Friendship Council; Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, Methodist, of the New York area; Albert J. Fitzgerald, president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, CIO; William S. Gailmor, radio commentator, will be other speakers.

The Metropolitan Opera star, Jarmila Novotna, will sing.

The nations, now united in smashing the Nazi menace, will work together to guarantee peace and happiness after the war, says a statement issued by the friendship council.

America's role in the united after-war effort will be extremely important, the council points out.

Postwar trade on a large scale between ourselves and Soviet Russia will be one of the important means of America's recovery from the war. American professional skill and American material should play a large part in the reconstruction of the Soviet Union. American democratic ideals and American intelligence will help to shape, with the Soviet Union and Great Britain, the plan to insure a world of peace and progress."

Workers call for unity with Soviet

SEVERAL hundred delegates from all parts of the United Kingdom, and hundreds more who were not delegates, attended the National Congress for Friendship and Co-operation with the Soviet Union, which was held in London at the week-end.

There was no direct representation from the three chief political parties in this country, and no indication that any members of the British Government were aware of the event.

It was, nevertheless, an impressive disclosure of the reality of British good will in the middle and working classes towards the U.S.S.R., and of a widespread resolve to preserve Anglo-Soviet unity after the war has ended.

All kinds of organisations, some of them "capitalist," were represented; and it may be said that the Congress delegates stood for many millions of British citizens.

Among the visitors were Mr. Gousev, the Soviet Ambassador, Red Army and naval officers, and several of the leading Soviet scientists.

Mr. Priestley's plea

Most of the speeches, especially those of the rank and file, were excellent—sympathetic, lively and to the point, and containing detailed reports of the practical work being done in the cause of unity by Anglo-Soviet Committees in towns large and small.

Mr. J. B. Priestley set the key to the discussions when he said he was getting tired of vague resolutions and messages. It was high time, he added, to set going the actual machinery of cultural exchange.

If we were to lay the foundations of a lasting friendship, there must be real plans to enable the British people to understand the Russians and the Russians to understand the British.

Among the numerous greetings received was one from Sir Alexander Korda, the film producer, emphasising the important part to be played by the systematic exchange of Russian and British films.

Friendship House

A message was also read from Lord Castlereagh, M.P., chairman of the Arsenal Football Club, in which he suggested that as soon as possible after the war a representative Soviet football team should be sent to this country.

Mrs. Cecil Chesterton gave great pleasure by her announcement of the proposal to take over a large house in Devonshire Street, to be named Friendship House, and to be used as a centre of Anglo-Soviet activities.

Her suggestion that this should be the forerunner of others in the provinces aroused still greater enthusiasm.

The Bishop of Chelmsford, one of the early champions of Anglo-Soviet friendship, who presided at the first of the three sessions, placed his trust in Russia to deal with the problem of a defeated Germany.

"The strong right arm and the big boot of Russia," he said bluntly, "will have a great educational and reforming power on Germany. Russia will stand no nonsense. . . . In a few years butter won't melt in the mouths of the Germans."

Presiding at the Sunday morning session, Mr. R. Coppock, general secretary of the National Federation of Building Trade Operatives, said peace was not maintained by diplomats but by the common people. "The workers must renew confidence in their own class. We are the only people who matter and we are the best ambassadors."

The Soviet Ambassador said that the peoples of the Soviet Union considered friendship and co-operation with Great Britain to be matters of profound meaning and great practical importance.

The Red Army and the armed forces of Britain and the United States had carried the war to the fair of the fascist beast.

Learning the truth

The nearer the moment of complete victory the greater became the determination of the peoples of the anti-Hitlerite coalition and their Governments to make the German beast of prey utterly harmless and to prevent him from ever again repeating his acts of aggression.

There was every reason to believe that Anglo-Soviet friendship, born in the flames of war and cemented by the blood shed by their best sons, would prove to be a lasting contribution to the good of their two peoples and all other peace-loving nations.

The war had destroyed many prejudices about the Soviet Union, but a great deal remained to be done so that the British people might know the truth about the Soviet Union.

Mr. Robert Boothby, Conservative M.P. for Aberdeen E., said that Russia rightly demanded absolute security in future for the measureless sacrifices she had made. The fight for continued friendship with Russia was the fight for the continued existence of the human race.

Our Postwar Trade With the Soviets

By EDWIN S. SMITH

Trade between the United States and the Soviet Union can be one of the basic factors in enabling our country to make the difficult transition from a war economy to a peace economy. The fruits of extensive trade with the Soviet Union in the years ahead will be not alone dollars and cents, jobs and profits, but a contribution to the culture and better living of both countries and to the maintenance of peace.

I am not suggesting that post-war trade with the Soviet Union is a venture only for the hardy souls of our business community. On the contrary, there are in this room and among with its enormous areas devastated and gutted by the Nazi vandals, faces a huge problem of reconstruction. The extent to which American business will be called upon to help repair these deep industrial wounds no one at the moment knows, including, I feel sure, the Russians themselves.

We do know that the Soviet Union desired and sought American goods before the war. We know that, as a large country,

EDWIN S. SMITH

Gathering business men who many years ago took the plunge of trading with the Soviet Union, who are still swimming along, none the worse for the experience.

Rather, I see the traditional foresight of conservatism of Massachusetts reflected in the fact that the distinguished business men here realize that trade with the Soviet Union is something which responsible Americans must foster not merely as a source of profit and employment, but because America's future as a democracy, an economic power and a force for peace, depends upon a full execution of its responsibilities in cultivating international good will.

Friendship with USSR Essential

Our economic planning for the future must be based on the fact that nations of national rivalry for shrinking supplies and markets, but rather on the possibilities of international cooperation, both economic and political for a peaceful and economically expanding world. Any such perspective is certain to include, as of basic importance, the close and friendly relationship of such two great powers as the USA and the USSR.

I am not an expert on foreign trade but I do know that unless foreign trade becomes a bigger factor in our economy after the war than it has been in the past, we face the most grave difficulties.

The curtailment of production which will make itself felt immediately after the defeat of Germany is most unlikely to be compensated by an equivalent rise in the manufacture of civilian goods for domestic consumption. Perhaps production will drop 25 percent, perhaps more. Even this conservative figure would mean millions of unemployed. If we did nothing about it. This meeting symbolizes, among other things, our intention to do something about it in the field of foreign trade.

USSR Will Grow And Expand

Trade during the war with the Soviet Union, under the lend-lease arrangements, has been extensive and greatly diversified. In pre-war years sales to the Soviet Union have constituted a very substantial proportion of our exports in such highly important lines as industrial and farm equipment.

After the war the Soviet Union, with a great population, it intends not merely to replace post losses due to the war, but to grow and expand in the future industrially and agriculturally. We know that the Soviet Union is exceedingly ambitious to raise as rapidly as it can the standard of living.

Mr. Eric Johnston after a visit to the USSR concluded that in the postwar period there will be billions of dollars of business for Americans to go after in Soviet trade.

I use the expression "go after" deliberately. The techniques of approach to Russian trade may vary from the usual practices in foreign commerce because of the Soviet Union's system of centralized buying. Nevertheless the way is opened and indeed it is incumbent on American business to put its best foot forward to attract Soviet purchases.

Let me give you a concrete illustration of the possibilities. The Architects Committee of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, which is laying definite plans to work very closely with American engineers and with building materials manufacturers, wishes to do what it can to promote America's share in Soviet reconstruction.

Among other things, it hopes in the not distant future to sponsor an exhibit of American building materials. This exhibit will be shown first to the American public and then be shipped to the Soviet Union. I have a letter from Lt. General Rudenko, the head of the Soviet Purchasing Commission, saying that he believes such an exhibit will be most desirable.

Sufficient Resources Guarantee Payments

This exhibit will be a practical way of interesting Russians in American goods, in whetting their appetites, as it were, for American products in a field in which they have expressed the highest regard for American proficiency.

I leave to the experts such technical questions as how Russian purchases in America are to be paid for, whether in gold or goods, by means of government-sponsored long-term credits. Actually all these means will probably figure in varying proportions. If the will to purchase exists and the financial and productive resources of the purchaser are sound, the question of means will assuredly be satisfactorily answered.

For instance, Russia has resources of highly important minerals far beyond her capacity to consume. The USA has purchased such products in the past from the Soviet Union for its own industrial needs. The possibility of expanded purchases of such materials to help meet payment are in part saved and not immediately consumed.

It seems to me not different in principle to contemplate husbanding certain essential raw material against future needs. In any such arrangement a n intermediate stage of governmental purchase and storing might be a factor. At least, if we can trade as we have with countries whose favorable industrial and economic prospects lie rather far in the future; we should have no difficulty in trading with a country whose economy is a "going concern" of the magnitude of the USSR.

International trade in recent generations has tended, frequently to assume the public eye a character. We have witnessed so called imperialist rivalry for trade leading to war.

Good Customer Good Friend

We have seen great international cartels responsible not to public opinion but to private interests dividing up economic spheres and leading unwitting peoples into betrayal of their national interests.

International trade of the future must operate on a higher level. It must broadly open the gates of opportunity for nations and peoples, not plan backdoor stratagems for national undoing. Such a change in certain reprehensible past practices, in international trade will depend very much on the attitude adopted by governments and peoples toward each other in the post-war world. The principle of international collaboration and the restraint of aggression must prevail or we shall lose the victory we will have won at such great cost.

International trade must itself become a supporting instrument of cooperation, peace and good will among nations. We may not foresee, at the moment, the exact shape of international cooperation in the economic fields. We have demonstrated as a nation that we can have business competition within our own borders without having civil war. We have also demonstrated that American business as a whole can expand and the standard of living of our people rise despite intensive commercial rivalry for materials and markets. Toward that kind of peaceful competition and adjustment we must strive in international economic dealings.

In past eras of world history trade between countries has been recognized not merely as a means of mutual economic benefit, but as a harbinger of advancing civilization. This was true of the Phoenicians and the Greeks. It was true of the opening up of the Western World by the voyages of the 16th century. It will be true again.

Americans and the USSR have much to learn from one another in the fields of art and science, of industrial and agricultural techniques, and in many other ways. An ever-broadening trade will help clear the channels for such mutually civilizing intercourse. There is every reason why the good customer should become the good friend, the sharer of the good things of the mind as well as the body.

For Better Living In Better World

This meeting in Massachusetts, sponsored by the Massachusetts Council of American-Soviet Friendship and by patriotic and high-minded business men, is conceived in the spirit of furthering international trade as means of promoting better living in the broadest sense of the word. It will set an example for other communities and other business men to follow in the slow, patient but rewarding process of building for a better world.

(The above text is from an address by Edwin S. Smith, executive director of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, at a businessmen's dinner on Russia and Postwar Markets, at Hotel Statler, Boston. The organization which Mr. Smith heads is sponsoring nationwide celebrations dedicated to American-Soviet relations of which the main New York event will be a Madison Square Garden meeting on Thursday, Nov. 16).

New England Businessmen Told of Wide Soviet Market

BOSTON, Oct. 2.—Close to 200 leading New England manufacturers gathered at a dinner here by the Massachusetts Council for American-Soviet Friendship to discuss "Russia and Postwar Markets." They were addressed by M. E. C. Ropes, Russian specialist of the U. S. Department of Commerce; A. M. Gousev, president of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, and Edwin S. Smith, of the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship.

This is the first meeting of its kind in the country. The speeches stressed the importance of establishing firm postwar ties between the United States and the Soviet Union in business, arts, sciences and all other mutual interests.

Gousev told the audience that a huge exhibit of American industrial products, especially building materials, is being planned for Moscow in the near future. He urged all manufacturers to participate in this exhibit with their products, which would popularize American manufactured materials, and would stipulate orders for large quantities of American made goods.

Ropes assured the manufacturers that the policy of the U. S. Department of Commerce is for the extension of longterm credits to the Soviet Union, and to organize a tremendous volume of export and import trade with the Soviet Union. He emphasized that our government had always found the Soviet government most responsible in meeting its credit notes, and urged large-scale postwar trade for strengthening our friendship and for mutual economic benefit.

Smith stated: "The fruits of extensive trade with the Soviet Union in the years ahead will be not alone dollars and cents, jobs and profits, but a contribution to the culture and better living of both countries and to the maintenance of peace."

Cleveland Mayor Heads Citizens In Broadcast Greeting Red Army

On Feb. 23, Station WGAR, Cleveland, Ohio, presented a program of greetings to the Red Army in honor of its anniversary. Leading citizens, headed by Mayor Frank Lausche, took part in the broadcast. The program follows in full:

Announcer: The following program is a transcription of greetings sent to the Red Army of the Soviet Union by citizens of our community through the courtesy of WGAR, Cleveland's friendly station. This program has been arranged by the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship in honor of the Twenty-Sixth Anniversary of the founding of the Red Army.

MUSIC

Announcer: This is Cleveland, Ohio, U. S. A., broadcasting to the U. S. S. R. Today—on February 23rd, 1944—we send birthday greetings to the heroic Red Army of our Soviet Ally. We greet you first with the song of the American Air Force, sung by Americans as they wing their way over Berlin in combat with a common enemy—your enemy and our enemy. Listen to the strains of the American Air Force song.

SONG OF THE AMERICAN AIR FORCE

Announcer: And now we present the Chief Executive of the City of Cleveland, Mayor Frank J. Lausche.

Mayor Lausche: In the name of the people of Cleveland I extend greetings to the Red Army of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

On this anniversary of the founding of the Red Army we greet you, commander-in-chief, your commanders and officers, and the brave men and women fighting in your ranks.

You have made untold sacrifices in this war against the Nazi hordes. We shall never forget those sacrifices and your heroism. In the darkest day of the war the future of civilization rested on your shoulders. Well do we remember how the whole world held its breath while the Battle of Stalingrad was fiercely waged. And now—Stalingrad has become a name which mankind will forever pronounce with reverence.

Today you relentlessly drive back the enemy. The day approaches when our joint military might will have smashed that enemy.

Today, as we greet you, we reaffirm the determination expressed by President Roosevelt, Premier Stalin, and Prime Minister Churchill at Tehran "that our nations shall work together in the war and in the peace that will follow."

Announcer: The women of Cleveland, many of whose sons and husbands and brothers are serving in our country's armed forces, are glad to greet you on this anniversary. Now speaking is Mrs. Malcolm L. McBride, President of the Cleveland League of Women Voters.

Mrs. McBride: It is an honor and a privilege to salute the valiant army of the U. S. S. R. on its anniversary day. Hearts of citizens all over the world have been uplifted and strengthened by the magnificent and irresistible courage of this great army which has successfully defended its vast home-land and is driving the brutal Nazi invader beyond its borders.

I particularly want to pay tribute to the brave Russian women in the army for their gallant part in their country's victories—for their incredible sacrifices and their dauntless courage. Swift and complete victory to the Red Army.

Announcer: We will now hear from a renowned member of our legal profession, Mr. Homer H. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson: Great army! Great people! We salute you! We thank you for all you have done for mankind.

Your military might, your courage and your sacrifices, have given all of us a great and unprecedented opportunity — the opportunity to live, as a family of democratic nations, in the kind of world envisioned at Tehran—a world from which the scourge and terror of war shall have been banished—a world in which stable and friendly relations shall make for the prosperity and well-being of each nation—a world in which all peoples may live free lives untouched by tyranny and according to their varying desires and their own consciences.

Our congratulations, our best wishes, and our eternal friendship to our great ally.

We join with you in hope for a world-wide peaceful future.

We propose our joint high resolve that the future shall be undisturbed by war and preparation for war.

Announcer: Greetings will now be extended by Mr. W. O. Walker, a Cleveland City Councilman and Editor of the Cleveland Call and Post.

Mr. Walker: I feel most humble for the privilege of congratulating such a valorous group of fighting men as the Red Army of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

In a brief 26 years you have shown the world what men can do to build their country and protect it when their souls have been inspired by the vision, courage, and tolerance of their government.

The world will long remember the heroic sacrifices you have made. Because of your deeds the light of freedom now brightens the hopes of oppressed peoples in countries throughout the world. They, too, look forward to the day when tolerance will banish minority problems and full citizenship will be an honored privilege of every man in every land.

Announcer: One of our youth now speaks to you—Mr. Jack A. Bowen, President of the Student Council of John Marshall High School.

Mr. Bowen: I believe that it is fair to say that modern warfare is showing that the lead role must be played, and is being played, by the young people of the world. The youth of Cleveland, and of all of America have the greatest admiration for the courage and gallantry that is shown by the youth of Russia. This courage and gallantry is rapidly insuring the defeat of Nazi Germany. We hope that when the war is over the energies of youth the world over will be used not to destroy, but to build—to create a new and better world for all of us.

Announcer: We now present greetings from the National President of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Mr. A. F. Whitney, whose message will be read for him in his unavoidable absence by Mr. Byrl A. Whitney, Assistant General Counsel of the Brotherhood.

Mr. Whitney: Fascism is the enemy of workers everywhere. American labor glories in the ruthless expulsion from Russia of the hated Nazi foe. To that end American workers are giving the fullest possible measure of their mental and physical capacities that a complete victory for the common peoples of the world may be shortly realized.

The steadfastness of the Russian people, the bravery of your gallant Red Army, the brilliance of your officers, the genius of your Commander-in-Chief, Joseph Stalin, are an inspiration to all mankind. Leningrad, Stalingrad, in short, the Soviet Union, will live eternally as a monument to the righteous power of a people's army, fighting a people's war for a people's peace in the generations to come.

Announcer: We conclude these greetings with a message from Dr. Robert B. Whyte, Minister of our Old Stone Church and a Director of the Cleveland Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Dr. Whyte: To our gallant ally, the people of the U. S. S. R., as you celebrate another anniversary of the founding of the Red Army, we extend our felicitations, admiration and gratitude. Born more than a quarter of a century ago for the high and holy and heroic purpose of overthrowing oppression, the Red Army is magnificently sustaining and gloriously advancing its noblest traditions by again opposing tyranny and aggression. The memory of the unsurpassed exploits of the commanders, officers and men of the Red Army in the present conflict will never die so long as there is a single human heart that cherishes the ideals of faith, freedom and fraternity.

Our most fervent prayer, our fondest hope is that the ties which bind our two nations together in united opposition to the diabolical forces of Hitlerism may continue after victory is won, in order to secure enduring and enlarging liberty, law and love, peace, prosperity and progress for all mankind. With this desire and determination in our hearts we salute the Red Army.

Announcer: Men and women of the Red Army, we salute you with friendship and goodwill as we look forward to the day of victory and to the years of enduring peace which lie ahead. In honor of the Red Army of our Soviet ally, we conclude with one of the songs of your army, the Song of the Plains, as rendered by the Choir of the Red Army of the U. S. S. R., directed by A. V. Alexandroff.

SONG OF THE PLAINS

Announcer: This program was a transcription of a recording which is being sent to the Red Army of the Soviet Union in honor of the 26th Anniversary of the founding of that army.

Launch Campaign for Exchange Of Art Information, Materials

America's most outstanding artists, actors, musicians, dancers, publishers and architects presented gifts to fellow artists in the Soviet Union at a reception at the Soviet Consulate in New York City the other day. The ceremony marked launching of a nationwide campaign of America's entertainment and cultural industries for the exchange of information and material in the fields of arts and letters.

Corliss Lamont was master-of-ceremonies. The audience vigorously applauded Mr. Lamont's fortunate slip of the tongue that caused him to refer to the Musicians Committee as the Munitions Committee. It gave the proper tone and spirit to the meeting. Vladimir Bazykin, First Secretary of the Soviet Embassy in Washington in receiving the tokens of friendship, urged the American artists to bend all their efforts to continue supplying Soviet artists with the material they need so badly.

Corliss Lamont made the following presentations of tokens of friendship in behalf of the Cultural Committees of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship: Vera Zorina, Irina Baranova, Martha Graham and Mia Slavenska for the dancers presented a collection of autographed ballet slippers which is being sent to their fellow ballerinas in the USSR. An album of autographed photos of American dancers was presented by Paul Draper to be sent to the Bolshoi Theatre in Moscow. M. Lincoln Schuster, chairman of the Book Publishers Committee, presented a hand-lettered scroll of friendship to the citizens of the Soviet Union and books contributed by America's leading publishers. Andre Kostalanetz and Larry Adler presented an album of records of American music by leading American artists.

A portfolio of American art that will be sent to the Museum of Western Art in Moscow was presented in the name of Paul Manship, chairman of the Artists Committee.

Mr Eugene Kisselev, Consul General here in New York urged the guests to continue helping the actors, artists and musicians of the Soviet Union by supplying them with the equipment they need so badly.

Additional gifts were made by Lillian Hellman who presented an autographed copy of "Watch on the Rhine"; Howard Bay presented an original design of a set for "Carmen Jones"; the Playwrights Company presented a copy of the script of "The Patriots"; Anton Refrigier, a member of the Woodstock Association presented a portfolio of original lithograph, water colors and drawings given by 27 members of the Woodstock Artists Association to their fellow artists in the Soviet Union.

Soviet artists who have contributed to the war effort through the medium of their art, by entertaining at the fighting fronts, immortalizing the cause of the United Nations through paintings, musical compositions and letters, now find themselves needing the materials for their crafts. Americans in allied fields of art are responding to this call for assistance with liberal spirit.

U.S.-Poles Call for Close Ties to Soviets

While the Polish Kosciuszko Divisions in the Red Army help to destroy Hitlerism in Europe, the Polish Kosciuszko Leagues which Rev. Fr. Stanislaw Orlemanski is organizing will help to destroy pro-Hitlerism in this country, the outspoken Polish priest declared last night at the Polish-Soviet rally at Town Hall.

Father Orlemanski of the Polish Roman Catholic Church of the Holy Virgin, Springfield, Mass., spoke at a rally called on behalf of friendly Soviet-Polish relations under the auspices of the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship, with Corliss Lamont as chairman.

Other prominent speakers who spoke as scheduled at the same meeting were Senator James M. Tunnell, Democrat, Delaware; Professor Oscar Lange, a Polish scholar of the University of Chicago; Leo Krzycki, Polish leader and chairman of the American Slav Congress, and Julian Tuwain, Polish poet.

In a special message of greeting to the rally, Mayor F. H. La Guardia expressed sympathy for the suffering Polish people and declared that "Anything at this time which would bring about a friendly understanding between the Polish Republic and the USSR would be helpful."

JOIN WITH USSR

After characterizing the anti-Soviet Polish Nowy Swiat as "a pro-Nazi newspaper, governed and inspired by the European cliques," Father Orlemanski continued:

"I have organized in Detroit the Kosciuszko League and I will organize a branch of this Kosciuszko League in every town, village and city of America and Canada. The Kosciuszko Divisions in Russia will help destroy Hitlerism in Europe and the Kosciuszko League will help to completely destroy the pro-Nazi Polish publications, the pro-Nazi Polish leaders in our organizations and also the pro-Nazi Polish leaders among our clergy here in America."

In his concluding sentence, Father Orlemanski declared, "We will join hands with Russia to completely destroy Hitlerism and to bring peace and prosperity to the Polish nation for centuries to come."

The forthright priest took an indirect pot-shot at Republican Representative Jessie Sumner who spoke at a reactionary imperialist Polish meeting a few weeks ago when he referred to "Our pro-Nazi Senators and Congressmen, the Wheelers, Brewsters, Reynolds, Sumners and others . . . attending pro-Nazi un-American rallies. . ."

He also rebuked the Catholic bishops who had issued a statement finding fault with the Moscow Declaration, stating, "I say to the five million Poles in America to ignore this statement and openly and defiantly state that we Americans of Polish descent not only have no suspicions about the Moscow Pact, but that we are 100 per cent for it." We follow the bishops when they teach religion, but when they talk politics, they're just politicians, he said, and "you

FRIENDLY RELATIONS

Leo Krzycki, who is not only a Slavic and Polish leader but also vice-president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, recalled the efforts of General Wladyslaw Sikorski to build friendly relations between the "two Slav Nations," and the contrasting disruption and "damage to the Polish cause" done by Sikorski's successors in the Polish government-in-exile.

"Extravagant statements have been made that the Russification of Europe was planned indirectly in Moscow, that this will meet with the resistance of Europe and create conditions forcing the European states into alliance independently of England and America. Such statements are very puzzling to Americans. They see Czechoslovakia firmly grasping the hand of her powerful neighbor and natural ally—Russia; Yugoslav Partisans winning the confidence of the peace-loving people of that country and having a very friendly attitude toward the Soviet Union. They know there is reason to believe that another Slav neighbor will enter through the door widely left open by Benes and Stalin. Indications are that others will soon follow. With whom, then, can Poland make such anti-Soviet alliances as have been discussed?"

Mr. Krzycki added that there "can be no question as to where Polish-American labor stands," referring to the recent action of the American-Polish Trade Union Councils in hailing the Moscow Declaration.

UNION OF FREE WITH FREE

Senator Tunnell, strong Administration supporter, pointed out that this war is a struggle for national survival for both small and large nations, including Poland and the United States. In order to prevent a third world war, he said, we must have a "post-war organization sponsored and fortified by the determination and the governments of all freedom-loving people, whether their nation is large or small." Advising Poland to join whole-heartedly with the Soviet Union and other countries in such post-war friendship, he quoted an ancient Polish slogan: "The union of the free with the free on a basis of mutual equality."

Professor Lange, who taught at the University of Cracow before coming to the University of Chicago, denounced the "small but very vocal minority" of Polish-Americans who oppose Roosevelt's policies and his plan for Soviet-American friendship.

"American-Soviet and British-Soviet friendship is necessary to safeguard Poland's national independence," he said.

Friendship of these three great powers, he went on to explain, is necessary for the permanence of a post-war "international system of collective security" which alone can guarantee peace and security to Poland and to all nations, great and small. The Moscow Declaration, he affirmed, guaranteed the independence of Poland, and should lay to rest any remaining doubts that Poles may have.

Pole-Soviet Rally To Hear Krzycki

Senator James M. Tunnell of Delaware will be among the principal speakers at a meeting on "America's Stake in Polish-Soviet Collaboration," to be held on Sunday, Dec. 19, at Town Hall, 123 W. 43rd St., Manhattan, at 7:30 P. M. under the auspices of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Leo Krzycki, vice-president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers will speak.

Prominent Polish-Americans will participate in the meeting in which the desire of patriotic Poles for friendly relations with the Soviet Union will be emphasized.

Father Stanislaw Orlemanski, famous Polish priest and founder of the Ksciszko League; Julian Tuwim, prominent Polish poet; Corliss Lamont, chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, who will preside.

Lange Asks Pole Tie With Soviets, Czechs

“Poland needs a close understanding with both the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia for the sake of her own security against German imperialism,” Dr. Oscar Lange, of the University of Chicago declared yesterday as he arrived in New York to attend the meeting on Polish-Soviet relations at Town Hall Sunday night.

Dr. Lange, who was an instructor in the University of Cracow before taking the Chicago post, is a leading exponent of Polish-Soviet friendship.

Together with other prominent Americans, including Senator James M. Tunnell of Delaware, he is speaking at the Town Hall meeting, 123 W. 43rd St., this Sunday evening under the auspices of the National Council of American Soviet friendship.

“Poland will need for her protection the military support of the Soviet Union in a similar way as, say, Canada, or Mexico needs the military support of the United States,” Lange declared.

“On the other hands, the existence of a strong Poland will be a potent factor in Soviet security, because any attack on the Soviet Union from the west will have to meet first with the resistance of Poland and of Czechoslovakia.

“Just as Britain's frontiers are on the Rhine (which, of course, does not preclude France's political independence), the Soviet Union's strategic frontiers will be coincident with the western borders of Poland and Czechoslovakia.

“It is in the interest of Poland as well as of the other nations of eastern-central Europe that a close understanding exist among the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union. Such an understanding alone can establish the ‘nuclear alliance’ (as Walter Lippmann has put it) necessary for the successful operation of a system of collective security assuring the freedom of the smaller nations.

“All attempts of Poles to promote misunderstandings between the Anglo-Saxon allies and the Soviet Union are plain suicide. They must result in the very consequences which the promoters of such a policy are so anxious to avoid. Poland has only to gain from American-Soviet and Anglo-Soviet friendship.”

U.S.-Soviet Rally Held In St. Louis

(Special to the Daily Worker)

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—The recent Moscow conference may well prove to be one of the turning points in our national history, and in the progress of mankind, Dr. Ralph Barton Perry told a large, enthusiastic, capacity audience here last week on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of the establishment of American Soviet relations.

Dr. Perry, professor of philosophy at Harvard University, added, "It may be a turning point in our national history because it may mean that in the future, having forever rejected the myth and the friction of isolationism, we shall hereafter participate actively with other nations in world affairs."

"It is likely to be a turning point in the progress of mankind because from it may spring a new ordering of human affairs that will make wars rare and exceptional and bring the nations of the earth into a partnership devoted to the well-being of mankind at large."

The meeting was sponsored by the St. Louis chapter of the Council for Soviet-American Friendship.

Ilya Ehrenburg Sent Greeting to Congress of American-Soviet Friendship

The wanton destruction of Soviet territory by the fleeing Nazis was described in a cablegram message sent by Ilya Ehrenburg, famous Soviet author, to the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship in connection with the recent celebrations of the tenth anniversary of American-Soviet relations which were held here recently and which have been taking place throughout the country during the month of November.

"I recently traveled hundreds of miles through territory liberated from the Germans," Mr. Ehrenburg said. "It was a terrible picture. Cities were blown up; villages were reduced to ashes. The fields were strewn with the corpses of peaceful citizens slain by German tommy gunners. The fruit orchards were cut down. Hundreds of thousands of innocent women, children and aged folk had been slaughtered. The Hitlerites, forced to retreat, and perishing, want to destroy everything living. They are covering the earth with ashes and wrecking ancient cities.

"Let us make haste. Let us expedite the end of the war. Let us save human life. Let us forestall the German incendiaries and butchers. Let us outstrip death. Let us take Germany by storm, for liberty and for life."

Messages were also received from leading Soviet scientists, musicians, architects and artists; among them a cable from Vladimir Komarov, president of the Academy of Sciences of the USSR who sent greetings to the celebrations and said: "Favorable conditions have been established for a rapid defeat of Hitlerite imperialism by the United force; of the Allies. The Soviet scientists with the rest of the people are devoting everything to the struggle against German fascist oppressors. Our countries are co-operating with the aim of final defeat of Hitlerite Germany and the establishment of peace and security for the nations of the world. It is therefore most important that our people know each other better.

Your congress devoted to this end will further strengthen the friendship between our great nations."

Lt. General Nikolai Burdenko, chief surgeon of the Red Army said in cabled greetings that as a member of the Extraordinary Government Commission for the Investigation of German Atrocities, he saw "thousands of bodies of inoffensive non-combatants murdered by the Nazis and the wanton destruction of cities, churches and monuments."

A message from a group of Soviet musicians and composers including the world-famous Dmitri Shostakovich, Sergei Prokofiev, Aram Khachaturyan and Nikolai Myaskovsky hailed closer cultural ties between the musicians of the two countries and named among the popular American composers in the Soviet Union the works of Gershwin, Aaron Copland, Roy Harris, and Samuel Barber. The works of Edgar Allan Poe, the message said, were the source of inspiration for Rachmaninoff's cantata "Bells" and Myaskovsky's symphonic poem "Silence."

Other messages were received from Alexander Palladin, of the Ukrainian Academy of Science; R. Vipper, Soviet scientist and academician; Nikolai Tsitsin, agricultural scientist; the board of directors of the Moscow Art Theater; Alexander Adeev, on behalf of Soviet writers; Boris Iofan; and Alexei Dzhigard, famous Soviet architect.

Pepper Lashes Anti-Soviet Forces at Rally

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—Climaxing the events of the Mayor's official "American-Soviet Friendship Week," nearly two thousand Baltimoreans assembled at the Lyric Theatre here last night in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the establishment of Soviet-American diplomatic relations, paying tribute to what Senator Claude Pepper called "one of the greatest of our allies, one of the greatest of all peoples—the people of the Soviet Union."

Senator Pepper launched into a scathing denunciation of the five globe-trotting senators and all other anti-Soviet, anti-United Nations forces which now seek to disrupt allied unity and imperil victory. He attacked the Senate two-thirds treaty-ratification rule which permitted a "little clique of Senators" to keep our country out of the League of Nations and which now raises serious question as to whether the United States will be able to live up to its international obligations after this war.

Murphy expressed his wholehearted support of the meeting and urged the people of Newark to "express in some measure the admiration and friendship which all of us feel for the heroic men of the Red Army and the Russian people behind the fighting lines whose sacrifice and suffering have been a source of inspiration to the freedom-loving peoples of the world."

Call to the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship

Commemorating the Tenth Anniversary Of American-Soviet Relations

The second Congress of American-Soviet Friendship will be held in New York Nov. 6th to 8th. The Call to the Congress, issued by the National Council Of American-Soviet Friendship is reprinted in full.

TEN years ago this November under the wise guidance of our President, Franklin D. Roosevelt, the United States of America established diplomatic relations with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics. Today our two countries are engaged with the other United Nations in a great peoples' war, on whose outcome the whole future of humanity depends.

The cooperation entered into ten years ago between the two nations was demanded by our deep-rooted common interests, and has brought mutual advantages. Today, ripened into a fighting alliance, that cooperation has become the keystone of victory itself. President Roosevelt expressed the feelings of all true Americans when he said:

"The world has never seen greater devotion, determination and self-sacrifice than have been displayed by the Russian people and their armies, under the leadership of Marshal Joseph Stalin. With a nation which, in saving itself, is thereby helping to save all the world from the Nazi menace, this country should always be glad to be a good neighbor and a sincere friend in the world of the future."

The aggressor nations have always known that the greatest threat to their plans for world domination lay in complete unity among the democracies. In the measure that their military power grows weaker, they are increasing their efforts to divide the United Nations, staking everything on prolonging the war and winning a negotiated peace. The recent outpouring of anti-Soviet propaganda is the work of our enemies and represents the greatest single danger to our early victory.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull in a recent speech reaffirming the need for increasing collaboration with the USSR both during and following the war, stressed the importance of public discussion in the formulation of foreign policies. That is why it is urgent that the good-will of the American people toward our great Soviet ally, implemented with knowledge and understanding, express itself overwhelmingly to sustain every move that would unite our two countries more closely and to crush every effort to divide us.

Such an expression of popular will was the historic Congress of American-Soviet Friendship held in November, 1942. Out of it grew the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, to carry its message deep into the minds and hearts of the American people.

That message grows more urgent daily. We have therefore set aside the period from November 6th to 16th, to mark both the anniversary of the founding of the Soviet Republic and the tenth anniversary of American-Soviet diplomatic relations. A second Congress of American-Soviet Friendship will be held in New York City, November 6th to 8th and other regional congresses and meetings will be held in all parts of the country to increase America's understanding of our Soviet ally and to express the determination of all sections of our people to weld our nations into an indissoluble unity.

The democratic nations have learned at terrible cost that only in the closest possible unity with the Soviet Union is victory assured, and that without such unity there can be no peaceful and stable world. Today that unity must be fulfilled and consolidated in the development of full coalition warfare, the only road to early victory for the United Nations.

Full collaboration for victory must be followed by full collaboration for peace. Only thus can mankind's long struggle for freedom be transferred from the realm of war and bloodshed to that of peaceful construction and the great goal of a life of security and abundance for the common man be realized. In cementing American-Soviet friendship we help to create the foundation for the abiding friendship of all free peoples on which such a life must rest.

We call upon the American people to join with us in this work of building American-Soviet friendship for victory and enduring peace.

Excerpts of Gromyko's Speech

The address of Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko at Madison Square Garden Monday night, under the auspices of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, was warmly applauded by the audience of 20,000, and has been widely quoted in the American press.

Excerpts from it follow:

I wish to thank the organizers of this meeting for their efforts and their desire to mark a notable date—the date of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States of America, which also coincides with the 26th Anniversary of the existence of the Soviet Union.

The tenth anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the Soviet Union and the United States of America is a historic date. The importance of this date becomes even clearer when one looks back and appraises the past. Ten years ago two of the biggest countries of the world entered into normal relations, the establishment of which was persistently called forth by the fundamental interests of both countries. Looking back now, everyone can convince himself that this historic act has justified itself.

The past decade—since 1933—being the witness of tragic historical events which have left their mark on the life of many countries and peoples, has shown that the maintenance of normal and friendly relations between our countries is necessary and corresponds with the interests of not only the peoples of the Soviet Union and the United States, but also with those of the other freedom-loving countries of the world. The present stage in the relations between both countries, characterized by the strengthening of the bonds of friendship between them, is not an accidental phenomenon but springs from the identity of the basic interests of the peoples of both countries in their present struggle against aggression.

The strengthening of the bonds of friendship between the Soviet Union and the United States in the course of the present struggle, has already yielded great benefits to peoples of both countries. But still greater possibilities exist, as they existed in the past, for the further strengthening of the bonds of friendship and cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

If these possibilities had been used more extensively in the past, humanity might not have experienced such tragedy as it is experiencing now.

One of the causes, and possibly the principal one, of the present war, forced upon the world by the Hitlerite gang, was the lack of unity on the side of the strongest world powers in the task of preventing aggression. They say that history is a good teacher. If this is so, then the lesson of the past should be taken into full account. From this instructive historical experience one can only draw the conclusion that peace and security cannot be attained without the unity of the largest and the most powerful countries of the world. The lack of this unity has already cost humanity rivers of blood and tears, and countless sacrifices.

Only through the unity of the great peace-loving countries can a secure and lasting peace be provided and aggression prevented. In the struggle against aggression all freedom-loving countries and peoples must proceed from a full awareness of the significance of their efforts.

The Hitlerite armies are exerting all efforts toward the holding of the seized countries and regions. Nazi Germany and her satellites in Europe are trying and will try at any price to withstand the growing forces of the Allies.

Nevertheless, in spite of the desperate efforts of the enemy, despite his stubbornness, the fact is evident that the course of the war has turned in our favor. The strength of the enemy has been undermined. The Hitlerite armies of the present day are not the armies of 1942, and even more so, they are not the armies of 1941.

The defeats inflicted upon the enemy by the armed forces of the powerful Anglo-Soviet-American coalition have not only weakened in the military sense the strength of Nazi Germany, but have brought about the beginning of the disintegration of the criminal gang headed by her. The decayed fascist regime of Italy, which plunged the country into war in the interests of the Hitlerite gangsters, collapsed under the blows of the valiant Anglo-American troops.

The severe defeats already suffered by the Hitlerites on the Eastern Front and the successful operations of the Anglo-American forces in the Mediterranean theatre of war led to a change in the correlation of forces between Nazi Germany and her satellites on the one hand, and that of the United Nations on the other, in favor of the latter. The so-called Hitlerite European fortress, about which Nazi propaganda makes so much noise, is becoming more like a fortress under siege.

Its vulnerability lies not only in the fact that it has no roof, but also that its walls are capable of cracking and collapsing when serious blows are dealt upon them by the forces of the Allies. Its vulnerability also consists in the fact that untold explosive material has been accumulated inside that fortress, in the form of the hatred and indignation of the peoples of Europe enslaved by Hitlerite Germany, who are impatiently awaiting their liberation from the Hitlerite yoke.

The question now cannot be as to who will win this war. The question now is how to speed the final defeat of Nazi Germany. The defeats already inflicted upon her have created a military-political situation favorable for the Allies and they have also created an opportunity to inflict swift and decisive blows upon the enemy.

The utilization of this favorable military-political situation by the Allies makes it possible to speed up the collapse of Hitlerite Germany through powerful coordinated blows from the East and the West and thus reduce the common sacrifice of the Allies in achieving final victory.

The Soviet people are proud that in this struggle it has as its ally the great American people, from whom it receives a highly appreciated support in the form of military supplies, foodstuffs, etc., and whose sons are taking an increasingly greater part in the common struggle with arms in hand and who have already inflicted heavy blows upon the enemy.

There can be no doubt that the Nazi hangmen will pay in full for all the crimes they have committed, and are still committing against the innocent civilian population. The Soviet people will never forget and will not forgive the crimes of the Hitlerites committed against the peoples of the occupied territories of the Soviet Union.

The Nazi ringleaders, realizing the approach of their end will try, as they have done before, to bring dissension into the ranks of the United Nations, to sow distrust among them. That is why the task of the peoples of the United Nations is the unmasking of Nazi propaganda and constant struggle against it.

The Moscow conference demonstrated to the whole world the strength of the Anglo-Soviet-American fighting comradeship. It demonstrated the firm determination of the Allied powers to use their strength and resources for the speediest defeat of Nazi Germany and her accomplices in Europe.

I wish to express my confidence that the present stage of Soviet-American relations will form a firm basis on which will be erected a building of still more active and efficient cooperation between our countries in the near future, in the period of the final stage of the war, as well as in the post-war period.

The People Approve

A WHOLE nation poured out its heart at the Madison Square Garden meeting which closed the three-day Congress of American-Soviet Friendship, and at some fifty other mass meetings throughout the country. There are great things to celebrate at the end of the first decade of U. S.-Soviet relations, which coincides with the 26th Anniversary of the founding of the Soviet State. The meetings served as an outlet for the tremendous popular enthusiasm over the historic agreements reached at the Moscow Conference.

The monster meeting at the Garden was a demonstration of national unity, such as has rarely been seen. Spokesmen for the Administration, the Senate, the War Department, business, the labor movement, the Negro people, workers in the cultural field joined in the first mass welcome to the new Soviet Ambassador and in paying tribute to the great Soviet achievements, to the Anglo-Soviet-American Coalition and above all to the fundamental national interest which joins us with the Soviet Union.

But it is a mark of the significance of the celebration that it did not limit itself to applause and acclaim for what had already been accomplished. In the words of the speakers and in the response of the vast audience there was present a realistic awareness that the victory had to be consolidated, that the great anti-Hitler Coalition had to be strengthened further by rushing the war against Hitler to its successful conclusion, that the enemies here at home of American-Soviet friendship have to be defeated and eliminated from our national life.

It was Harold L. Ickes, a prominent member of the Cabinet, who gave voice to the new spirit of the offensive in the land when he struck out boldly and sharply at the Hearst - McCormick - Patterson newspaper Axis, the "hate Roosevelt and Stalin" press, which he accused of preferring the victory of Hitler to the victory of the two great world leaders. The Secretary of the Interior thus fired a big opening gun in what must become a great national offensive against the internal enemies of the people, the poisoners of the national mind and the nation's morale.

Green possibly excuse or defend the action of the last AFL Convention against world labor unity? All labor, and not only in this country, wants to know.

Madison Square Garden gave the feeling of the beginning of a new epoch, which it is now our people's task to help unfold.

Others joined with Ambassador Gromyko in stressing the new and great opportunities arising from Red Army and Allied victories for speeding up the final victory over Hitler Germany.

The frank and direct speech of Donald Nelson on his impressions of Soviet life and the Soviet leaders was a highlight of the celebration. His appreciation of the executive ability and good faith of the Soviet leaders, of the devotion of Soviet labor, of the common interests and traits which unite our two peoples revealed the realistic position of a vast sector of the business community.

It also showed the firm basis upon which unity can be further strengthened between patriotic business and the American labor movement for the objective of speeding victory and establishing a just and durable peace. Speaking for the CIO, President Thomas of the UAW showed the great role which Allied labor unity must play in assuring the fruition of the Moscow accords.

A big question left by the meeting is the effect the popular acclaim of cooperation with the Soviet Union will have upon William Green and his fellow members of the AFL Executive Council. In Green's speech there was as yet no sign of a changed approach to the Soviet trade unions. After participating in the great meeting, how can

American Scientists Report

Soviet Science Contributions Are Praised at Congress Panel

By Peter Stone

Nobel Prize winners, distinguished scientists and leading doctors, organized under the chairmanship of Professor Walter B. Cannon, E. O. Lawrence, and G. N. Lewis—honorary members of the Soviet Academy of Sciences—reported their objective findings to two panels on Soviet science and medicine at the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship held at the Hotel New Yorker on Sunday, Nov. 7. The scientists and doctors came from all over America and Canada to rub shoulders and mingle with the general public which turned the two panels into small mass meetings. The effect was overwhelming, both for the speakers and the audience. Led by Noble Prize winner, Professor Harold C. Urey, the scientists avoided technical and abstruse reports, and presented simple and clear facts about scientific progress in the USSR.

It was a revelation to hear these scientific wizards rattle off some of those long jaw-breaking Russian names with ease and familiarity. It was added testimony that the socialization of science had not regimented the individual scientist in the Soviet Union. In the words of Dr. L. C. Dunn, leading American geneticist and Columbia Professor of Zoology, "The Soviet Union has taught us that... control and organization of science by, and for the whole community does not kill the spirit or initiative nor submerge the individual scientist in a dead level of anonymity. Pavlov refuted both in word and in deed the dire prophecies of those who said that great scientists had a vital and vigorous science and not survive in a socialist state."

Soviet Government Praised

Many were the grins, wry smiles and head noddings from the speakers table, when Dr. Conklin, Professor Emeritus of Princeton added that the Soviet Union had printed more than three times the number of volumes of his work, than was printed in this country. Dr. Dunn remarked that one standard American science text had received a print order of 2,000 copies in this country and 15,000 in the USSR. Leading scientists were unflinching in their praise of the Soviet government and its leadership for the lavish budgets allowed science, and for their intense interest in the development of science and technology. Dr. C. O. Dunbar, geologist and curator of the Peabody Museum at Yale University indicated the tremendous quantities of coal, steel and oil that were necessary for the successes of the Red Army. He said that the Soviet people and scientists did not fail their country because, "the Soviet leaders planned in advance... a leadership that has been able to hold their loyalty and inspire them to the most heroic sacrifices and at the same time provided them with the physical means with which to win."

Every speaker showed how the development of science was tied up with the economy of the USSR. Science in the Soviet Union is not an adventure, nor of academic interest, and any knowledge gained by scientists is put to practical use for the benefit of the whole people, said Sir Hubert Wilkins, famed Arctic explorer. He showed how the polar drift expeditions of Soviet scientists at the North Pole had been helpful in the prediction of ice movement, air temperatures and seasonal conditions—all so necessary for military strategy. He pointed out that the use of tractor trains in the far North provided the means for transportation, occupation and exploitation of the frozen lands. These experiments have aided in the development of agriculture in Northern Canada, and give the American people great possibilities for the agricultural expansion of the Alaskan territory. Many of these scientists were convinced that in the not too distant future the development of science and technology in the USSR would overtake and surpass the United States. They raised no cry of alarm, but were glad to be of assistance and friendly to such a dynamic people.

Dr. Carver's Successor A Speaker

Dr. Kellogg of the Department of Agriculture paid tribute to the Russian scientists for concepts which had laid the foundation for a permanent soil science. Dr. A. W. Curtis, Jr., successor to Dr. George Washington Carver, at the Tuskegee Laboratory at Tuskegee, pointed out that one of the reasons for success of science in the Soviet Union was because that country practiced no racial discrimination and was a country "where science was an instrument for the service of the masses." A brief history of microbiology in the USSR was given by Rutgers Professor, S. Waksman and Dr. V. K. Zworykin of the RCA presented a paper on the developments of radio and electronics in the USSR. He confirmed the recent Soviet claims that original discoveries on wireless telegraphy were made by the Russian A. G. Popoff in 1896, and that the Soviets had developed radio-photography independently. He looked forward to further telephone and radio exchange between the two countries. The panel passed a resolution of greetings and continued cooperation with Soviet scientists. A permanent committee, headed by Drs. Cannon, Heidelberger, Dunn, Grundfest and Kellogg was established, which will carry on the work of the Council in the fields of science.

U. S. Leaders Hail Soviets at Garden

By Art Shields

A capacity Madison Square Garden crowd of 22,000 cheered the smashing victories of the Red Army and the Four Power anti-fascist agreement at the celebration of the tenth anniversary of American-Soviet relations last night.

Thousands more tried vainly to get into the great demonstration, which was timed with the 26th anniversary of the establishment of the Soviet power.

Soviet-American friendship was symbolized by two great Soviet and American flags hanging behind a stage, draped in red.

Unity in war and in peace of the great American and Soviet republics was the theme of the speeches by Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior; Donald M. Nelson, War Production Board chief; Soviet Ambassador, Andrei A. Gromyko; Joseph E. Davies, former U. S. Ambassador to Moscow; Senator Pepper; William Green, AFL president; R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers, CIO; Major General James A. Ulio, U. S. Adjutant General and others.

Unity also ran through the messages of Vice President Wallace, Under Secretary of State Stettinius, CIO President Philip Murray, President Batista of Cuba, the Chinese ambassador, Jan Masaryk, Czechoslovakian leader, Mexico's ambassador, Francisco Castillo Najera; Speaker Sam Rayburn of the House of Representatives; Thomas Mann, Daniel Tobin, Teamsters President, and others that were read at the meeting.

Thunderous applause greeted Paul Robeson at the opening of the meeting as he said:

"With their blood the Soviet people are building a new world, and I am confident that the other nations will join them soon in at-

...that world which means equality to all men."

Robeson then sang the Soviet Fliers Song in Russian, and the famous "Border to Border" song in English.

NELSON HAILS SOVIETS

Donald M. Nelson, fresh from a tour of Soviet war plants, told the great Garden throng that—"I have come back from my journey with a high faith in the future of Russia, and in the benefit which that future will bring to the entire world, including ourselves."

"So far as I can see, once our victory is won and we have put this war behind us, we shall have nothing to fear except suspicion of each other."

"Once we are working in collaboration with the other United Nations to produce for peace, and to raise the living standards of peoples everywhere, we shall be on our way toward new levels of prosperity and greater human satisfactions than we have ever known."

"I join with you in acclaiming the Moscow Pact, which represents a great forward stride in world history."

After lauding the "stupendous" war effort of the Soviet people, Nelson said that—

"No quality of the Russian character more deeply impressed me than the businesslike directness with which they approach their practical problems."

"In my talks with Marshal Stalin, Mr. Molotov, and Mr. Mikoyan, the People's Commissar for Foreign Trade, I found a forthrightness and realism that are the earmarks of the successful practicing executive everywhere."

Again emphasizing the "remarkable war production achievements of Russia," and American production, Nelson expressed his amazement at the stupidity of the German leaders who continue to fight against hopeless odds.

Ambassador Gromyko stressed the possibility of a "full and speedy defeat of the enemy" by the Anglo-Soviet-American coalition, and said:

"The Moscow Conference demonstrated to the whole world the strength of the Anglo-Soviet-American fighting comradeship. It demonstrated the firm determination of the Allied powers to use their strength and resources for the speediest defeat of Nazi Germany and her accomplices in Europe."

"I wish to express my confidence that the present stage of Soviet-American relations will form a firm basis on which will be erected a building of still more active and efficient cooperation between our countries in the near future, in the period of the final stage of the war, as well as in the post-war period."

The great audience responded warmly as Senator Pepper said that the United States and the Soviet Union were more than friends and good neighbors.

"Today those hands that reach across the sea are closed in more than a gesture," said the win-there-were Southerner. "Together they are tightening in a death-grip on the throat of a common foe. . . ."

"The solid reality that emerges from the Moscow conference—four great powers molded into a mighty, modern Atlas, bearing upon its shoulders a new world—is steady, stable, strong."

The Florida Senator scored the "Christian Fronters and their un-Christian backers," and their "counsels of fear and suspicion" against our Ally.

HAILS STALIN'S STATEMENT

And he hailed Stalin's statement of Anglo-Soviet-American war aims, beginning with the "abolition of racial exclusiveness" as another charter "to which we can proudly subscribe, as we did to the Atlantic charter to which the Soviet Union has pledged herself."

"These results at Moscow were inevitable," said Davies. "They stem not only from a common danger but also from a common humanitarian purpose to create and maintain, possibly by different methods . . . a decent world for decent people to live in under conditions which self-respecting free men demand."

"Truth ultimately always prevails . . . This great meeting at test to our hope and belief that the relations established in 1933 by our two Great Countries will continue to fructify for the common peace of the world and the betterment of mankind."

R. J. Thomas, 'auto workers' leader, said the labor movements of the United Nations must unite. Such unity, he said, would guarantee the enforcement of the Moscow pact decisions.

"Thanks to the efforts of the CIO, there will soon be convened in London an International congress of labor in which British, Chinese, American and Russian workers will sit side by side."

FOR INT'L LABOR UNITY

"This London conference of labor of the world, I hope and sincerely expect, will forge a unity which will never be broken."

William Green called the Four Power Pact "the greatest diplomatic victory achieved by the United Nations." The Nazis, he said, would not recover from their defeat on the Russian steppes this last week and the results of the unity pact.

Green did not refer to international labor unity. He said, however, that American workers were not deceived by "vicious propaganda," which sought to divide the British, Soviet and American allies.

Major General Ulio said "the course of the war has been changed by the hammer blows inflicted by the heroic legions of the Soviet Army" on the Germans. And he concluded on this note:

"We are united, America and the Soviet Union with the rest of the fighting allies of the United Nations, in having dedicated ourselves to the overthrow of international lawlessness."

" . . . there can be but one goal—complete, total and unconditional surrender of our Axis foes."

Detroit, Boston Soviet Rallies Sun.

Rep. Sabath Hails Soviets at Chicago Rally

(Special to the Daily Worker)

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—More active and effective American - Russian friendship was forecast yesterday by Col. Fedor I. Belov, director of the radio-electrical department of the Soviet Purchasing Commission in Washington.

The prediction was made before a cheering capacity crowd at a rally commemorating the 10th anniversary of the resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Russia. At the rally, sponsored by the Chicago Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Col. Belov said:

"The success of the recent conference in Moscow confirms this prediction."

Rep. Adolph J. Sabath of Chicago, cited the long and persistent efforts of the Soviet Union to stop the spread of Nazism and fascism through collective security.

"Since the two despotic maniacs, Hitler and Mussolini, appeared upon the stage of world prominence, it has been Soviet Russia that has repeatedly and persistently demanded collective security and the formation of a protective alliance of the peoples and the governments of European democratic nations to challenge fascism and Nazism, and to stop the expansion and approaching danger of aggressive conspiracy."

Sabath, dean of the U. S. House and long advocate of friendly American-Soviet relations, scoffed at Nazi propaganda of a separate peace and lauded Marshal Stalin for his statesmanship. He declared:

"For years the Nazi-fascist propagandists were sedulously spreading falsehoods and misrepresentations of facts in an effort to influence our people into believing the present government of Soviet Russia is not founded on democratic principles of justice, that freedom is brutally suppressed and that only a small minority of the Russian people are loyal to the Soviet system. The facts are the exact opposite."

Anton Johannsen, vice president of the Chicago Federation of Labor and AFL representative, asserted:

"We rejoice with you and congratulate the President of the United States for his vision to understand and his courage to execute the foreign policy for the recognition of Soviet Russia ten years ago."

Representing the CIO was Albert E. Glenn, vice president of the Illinois State Industrial Union Council who said:

"We of the CIO, in Illinois, can do little on this tenth anniversary of the recognition of the Soviet Union pledge to our trade union brothers there that we will fight for production, real unity and lasting peace so that our brothers who have died in this common struggle for a people's world will not have died in vain."

Soviet Women's Great War Role Stems From Complete Equality, Panel Hears

By Ann Rivington

The heroism of Soviet womanhood fighting the Nazis is no miracle. It is the fruit of their complete political and economic equality, won in the October Revolution, said Taissa Isotova, Soviet student at Columbia University, addressing the panel on Women and Child Care at the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship Saturday morning in Hotel New Yorker.

Speaker after speaker at the crowded panel echoed this quiet statement of the winsome girl student from the USSR. Outstanding American women leaders urged the same equality for women in this country.

Said Mrs. Normande R. Whitehouse, chairman of the Women's Action Committee for Victory and Lasting Peace: "We know that thousands of women in Russia sit in parliaments and in governmental committees and commissions, local, state and national. Their voices are heard with respect. But in our legislature and on our committees and commissions, the number of women is pitifully small—not because we are not qualified, but because we are not given the opportunity."

Dr. Mary McLeod Bethune, great Negro woman leader, urged vehemently: "In the Soviet Union, the problem of fully utilizing women in society has been liquidated. Racial discrimination no longer exists there. Because it has given equality to all nationalities and to women, the Soviet Union has given its people security and freedom from fear."

SENDS MESSAGE

A speech by Mary Anderson, head of the U. S. Women's Bureau, read at the panel by Jessica Smith because Miss Anderson could not leave Washington, called for the closest cooperation between American and Soviet women, and urged that "without delay women leaders should be called into world planning."

Rose Mauzer, author, described how women's equal participation in the war is guaranteed by an ever-growing network of child-care services.

Ruth Young, of the United Electrical Workers, CIO, pointed out that unless American women are brought into leadership in the trade unions, and unless the government takes effective steps to solve the special problems of working mothers, they can't do their share to win the war.

"To the extent," she said, "that working women participating in the international labor movement, to that extent will we get the kind of peace we want."

Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Brown, director of Palmer Institute, in an appeal of burning eloquence for equality, cried: "Soviet Russia has subscribed to the Christianity which America teaches—the brotherhood of man."

The Panel sent a greeting to the Soviet Women's Anti-Fascist Committee, and set up its own permanent women's committee as part of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Greetings came to the gathering from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt; Rose Schneiderman, president of the Women's Trade Union League; Mrs. Oveta Culp Hobby of the WACS and many other prominent women.

Union Panel Urges Tie With Soviet Labor

By George Morris

More than 1,000 participants in the Trade Union Panel of the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship yesterday gave unmistakable and highly enthusiastic evidence that American labor wants Allied labor unity and wants it quick.

National, regional and local officials of many AFL and CIO unions attended. There was no visible distinction among any of them as they vigorously applauded speakers of both trade union wings.

Declaring that "labor rejoices" because the Moscow agreements mark the "birth of a new unity among the great powers fighting for democracy," international pres-unity.

Messages of greetings, all stressing the urgency of American-Soviet friendship and approval of the Moscow decisions, were read from president William Green of the AFL; president Philip Murray of the CIO; president Daniel Tobin of the AFL's International Brotherhood of Teamsters; Harvey Brown, president of the International Association of Machinists, AFL; John Green, president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, CIO; V. O. Gardner, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Telegraphers; Edward E. Flore,

The Soviet anniversary of Nov. 7 is likened to America's July 4 in a congratulatory cable sent by CIO Department Store Employees Union members yesterday to M. Gubelman, chairman of the Central Committee of Russia's Trade Union of Store Employees.

"Your Nov. 7, like our July 4, will be recorded in history as a date when mankind made a tremendous stride forward in the struggle for a better life," says the cable, sent by Nicholas Carnes, staff chairman, on behalf of thousands of organized New York department store workers.

ident William McFetridge of the Building Service Employees, AFL, presided, said as he opened the panel:

"Our job at this trade union panel is to consider how labor in the United States can implement these agreements. Our obligation, to our government and the government and peoples of all the nations united with us in this war, is to help establish as quickly as possible relations among the free labor movements of the United Nations that will parallel this new unity of their governments."

Referring to the world congress of labor that the British unions are calling next June, Mr. McFetridge said that "this action represents the sentiment of many thousands of members of the AFL." He added that there can be no patriotic workers in America today who would not support such allied trade union

President of the International Alliance of Hotel and Restaurant Workers, A.L., and many others.

Edwin S. Smith, executive director of the National Council of the American-Soviet Friendship Council, for seven years a member of the National Labor Relations Board, presented to the delegates a picture of the 28,000,000 strong Soviet trade union movement. It was a clear cut refutation of the Matthew Woll-David Dubinsky propaganda that Soviet trade unions are "not free" or "government controlled."

After describing how Soviet trade unions look out for the welfare of their members and administer legislation related to social insurance, Smith asked:

"One of the most reasonable complaints of American labor at the present time is that it is not given adequate representation on vital government agencies. Can it refuse to deal with Soviet trade unions because they do enjoy such representation?"

The American-Soviet Friendship Council distributed the names of the heads of 30 of the major Soviet trade unions, with an appeal for direct correspondence with those leaders so American workers would learn directly of the work of the Soviet labor organizations.

Another highlight was the speech of Michael Ouraevky a Soviet engineer who recently arrived. He, too, described the work of Soviet trade unions and cited some impressive figures to show the achievements they won for the workers.

SUBWAY TO MOSCOW

The tone set by Mr. McPetridge followed throughout a dozen subsequent speeches. Councilman-elect President Michael J. Quill, probably struck the high point in applause and cheers. The conclusion of the Bronx councilmanic count late Saturday that put him in with the top vote, added much to the enthusiasm behind the applause.

Quill said that his victory and the defeat of reactionaries was evidence that the people want to win the war and unity of the united nations which was the heart of his campaign. Quill said that only some labor leaders whose unions "haven't had a convention for 18 years" or "don't know what it is to be elected by the membership" still oppose international labor unity.

"How much further back must the Red Army push the Nazis to show us that they are sincere? How many more Nazis must they kill and how many more American lives must they save?" he asked.

For his own Transport

Union Quill said, "we will not weaken until there is a subway built to Moscow," as the audience exploded with laughter and cheers.

Among other speakers was William Feinberg, secretary of Musicians, Local 802; Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union; Philip V. Van Gelder, secretary-treasurer of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers; Morris Muster, president, United Furniture Workers; Lewis Merrill, president United Office and Professional Workers, and Rose Schneiderman of the Women's Trade Union League and Reid Robinson of the Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

Mr. Van Gelder drew interest as he described some unsolved problems of welfare at plants, such as feeding, child and maternity care, housing, which we are tackling only now "but which the Russian workers have grappled with for many years." He said we can learn much from the Soviet trade unions.

The meeting concluded with adoption of two resolutions, greeting the Moscow decisions and pledging to further close relations with the Soviet trade unions.

Soviet Multi-National State Example to World, Says Adamic

American writers, scholars and trade union leaders hailed the Soviet Union yesterday at the Nationalities Panel of the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship at the Hotel New Yorker as the greatest unifying force for humanity in the world today.

Louis Adamic presided.

At the same time noted American and Soviet scientists, meeting in another New Yorker ballroom under the chairmanship of Dr. Harold C. Grey, Nobel prize winner, were pointing out that the scientists of the two great republics, who are cooperating in wartime today, must continue to cooperate in the peace that is coming.

Famous medical scientists of the two great Allies were also discussing joint problems under the leadership of Dr. Walter B. Cannon of Harvard and Dr. Abraham Stone, national secretary, the American-Soviet Medical Society.

Adamic, the foremost American author from the Balkans, and the president of the United Yugoslavian organizations of this country, lauded the Partisans of his native land as a great, democratic, revolutionary force.

And he branded Mikhailovitch, the "War Minister" of the Yugoslav Government-in-Exile as a counter-revolutionist, an enemy of the people.

Mikhailovitch has never fought against the Axis, said Adamic, while the Partisans are occupying more than 20 Axis divisions.

Discussing the multi-national problems of Europe, Adamic said:

"Russia's handling of minorities is a flash into the future."

SETS EXAMPLE

The Soviet example of a democratic, multi-national state sets the example that the multi-national peoples of Yugoslavia to follow, he said.

"There is no solution," he said, "for the Serbo-Croatian problem except in a people's state, organized along progressive lives and within a multi-national scheme."

Adamic added that he thought that held for other parts of Europe, as well as the Balkans.

Joseph Salerno, Italian-American president of the Massachusetts CIO Council, called for a democratic Republic of Italy, in the name of "the Italy of Garibaldi and Mazzini, not of Mussolini and assassination."

The Soviet Union's call for democratic systems in Italy and all Europe is in line with the demands of the people of Italy themselves, said Salerno.

Applause followed as the speaker concluded with the slogans: "Long Live the Free Republic of Italy and the Great Republic of the Soviet Union!"

Leo Kyzzyck, Polish-born president of the American Slav Congress, and vice president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, was applauded also as he said:

"That heroic pillar of mankind, the glorious Red Army, is truly saving civilization from destruction."

"We Slavs," he said, "have personal reasons for saying that the Soviet Union is a good neighbor. I am proud to call the Soviet Union a friend and neighbor."

A moving eulogy by a disabled Negro seaman for the Soviet Union as a champion of the oppressed peoples of the world followed a speech by Dr. E. Franklin Frazier of Howard University, a Negro professor, who said:

"There has been one element in the Soviet system that has appealed to all classes of American Negroes, namely, the equality of all races and nationality groups."

And to counteract this admiration for the Soviet Union, he said, American Southern newspapers were careful to censor Stalin's announcement that the Allies' war aim was to abolish "racial exclusiveness."

LEBEDENKO SPEAKS

Mrs. Catherine Stancelow, Lithuanian American leader from Hartford, Conn., said Americans from Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia must press our government to break relations with the fascists, who pretend to represent the Baltic peoples who joined the Soviet Union.

Dr. Felix Boenheim, secretary, the German-American Emergency Conference, called on the German people to give all-out aid to the fight against Hitler.

Dr. Anatoly Yakovlev, Soviet engineer, James N. Rosenberg, Jewish leader, and Prof. Joseph Hanc, Czech American and professor at the Fletcher School for Diplomacy, took part in the discussion.

Prof. Vladimir Lebedenko, representative of the Red Cross of the Soviet Union, in discussing Soviet medicine, said that in his country "care for man has been transformed from an ideal into a law."

Of Soviet science, he said:

Soviet science fights—fights beside the Red Army. It fights to destroy an ignorant and savage enemy. It fights for the betterment of life and the future of all mankind. And when the victory is won, and the wounds and ravages of war are lessened, Soviet medicine looks forward to an era of close and fruitful cooperation with your physicians, who are now her allies, a cooperation which will bring to all peoples the benefits of science and of learning and glorify the life of man on earth.

Mayor Hails U. S. - Soviet Tie As Friendship Congress Opens

By Art Shields

With a call for "hard and bitter fighting" Mayor LaGuardia opened the great Congress of American-Soviet Friendship at a crowded ballroom luncheon at the Hotel New Yorker yesterday noon.

The ballroom wasn't big enough to hold all who wanted to come.

And Madison Square Garden has already been almost sold out for the Tenth Anniversary Celebration of American-Soviet Relations, which closes the Congress Monday evening.

At this Garden celebration Joseph Davies, former ambassador to the Soviet Union, will speak with Secretary of the Interior, Harold L. Ickes; Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the War Production Board; Soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko; Adjutant General James A. Ulio of the U. S. Army; Senator Claude E. Pepper, Paul Robeson, William Green, AFL president; Orson Welles, and others.

MAYOR OPENS MEETING

Mayor LaGuardia, who made his welcoming speech just before the dining began, referred briefly to his fight for Soviet recognition in Congress in 1924 and to his pleasure that "our Tennessee mountaineer got along with the Volga boatmen."

Then more seriously he spoke of America's debt to the Red Army.

"The courage and determination of the army of Soviet Russia," said the Mayor, "and the support that it got from the people all over their own country, the hardships and suffering endured by these people is one of the outstanding epics of civilization."

A long burst of applause followed the Mayor's announcement that Kiev had been taken "by the glorious Red Army," then the Mayor solemnly added that:

"We have a long way to go and much hard and bitter fighting yet to do. But we are on our way; we are on our way for a complete victory and complete crushing of the Nazi forces and what may be left of the fascists."

"We are on our way to a complete victory over the evil forces of Japan."

"But what is more important; we are on our way to a better understanding, for a better world."

"And the first chapter was written but a few days ago in Moscow, when the four nations signed a pact and gave a solemn assurance to the world that we will not repeat the mistakes of the past; that we will talk frankly not in the old language of diplomacy, but in the language of truth and friendliness and brotherliness and that we recognize that this world has enough in it, and produces enough so that every man, woman and child, no matter where they may be, can and should live decently, happily and peacefully."

INTERNATIONALE SUNG

Guests stood on their feet as the voice of Dorothy Maynor, brilliant Negro soprano, filled the ballroom with Star Spangled Banner and the Internationale, the battle hymns of the two great anti-fascist allies.

And as the meal finished the speaker's stand was taken by E. C. Ropes of the U. S. Department of Commerce; Sir Hubert Wilkins, famous Arctic explorer; Edgar Snow, Eastern Front war correspondent; Dorothy Thompson, Eugene D. Kisselov, Soviet Consul General in New York; Prof. Ernest Simmons, Cornell University; Corliss Lamont, Jessica Smith; the Rev. John Howard Mellish, Rector, Church of the Holy Trinity, Brooklyn, and others.

4-POWER PACT HAILED

The Soviet Consul said that Hitler was suffering a great political defeat by the Allied unity manifested by the four-power agreement at the same time that his armies were being hurled back.

"The Allied nations," he said, "have entered the stage of decisive battles to annihilate Hitler's armies and to liberate the freedom-loving people of the world forever from slavery."

"And we believe," added the Soviet representative, "that this collaboration will be even stronger when victory is achieved."

"There is no doubt that the friends-in-arms today will tomorrow be friends for the security of all the Allied nations."

Rev. Mellish hailed the democracy of America's Soviet ally and called the Stalin Constitution the most advanced in the world.

The U. S. Commerce Dept. representative emphasized America's war shipments to the Soviet Union, which totaled $2,444,000,000 by June of this year, and held out the perspective of the closest commercial ties with the USSR after the war.

Edgar Snow spoke of "the unity of the Russian people, the wisdom and genius of their leadership and the stability and practicability of the Soviet socialist system of Government in Russia."

But Mr. Snow added that: "Cooperation with Russia has nothing to do with whether America wants to accept Communism as a way of life. . . . Cooperation with Russia . . . means the two nations can accept peace as a way of life, rather than spend the next 10 or 20 years preparing for World War No. 3."

Dorothy Thompson said:

"There is no peaceful world imaginable that does not recognize the strength and power of the Russian nation. . . ."

"So, if we sit here together to further Russian-American friendship, we are making the greatest contribution possible to our children and our children's children."

In the panel of women and child care in the United States and the USSR, which packed the North Ballroom yesterday morning, many distinguished women paid tribute to their Soviet sisters.

The panel sent greetings to the Soviet Women Anti-Fascist Committee and voted to set up a permanent women's group in the Committee for American-Soviet Friendship. Mary Anderson, Women's head of the U. S. Department of Labor, sent a message urging such a group.

It's time for women of the two countries to get together, she said.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt and Katherine Lenroot, of the U. S. Children's Bureau, were among other prominent women who sent greetings.

Doctor Mary McLeod Bethune and Dr. Charlotte Hawkins Browne pointed out that much of Soviet strength to fight the fascists comes from the equality of nationalities and of women in the USSR. Rose Maurer, author, described the child care facilities which the Soviet Union has supplied its millions of war workers.

Applause rang out when Gertrude Lane, of the Hotel and Club Employees, Local 6 AFL, called on the panel to urge the AFL president William Green to take steps in support of international labor unity.

Stettinius Pays High Tribute to Red Army

Tribute to the "sustained offensive of the Soviet Army" and "its relentless advance which the armed forces of the United States and of all the United Nations to the utmost efforts on all battle fronts for the attainment of our immediate goal, the utter destruction of the forces of aggression" was paid by Under Secretary of State Edward Stettinius in a message issued to the forthcoming Madison Square Garden meeting on Monday, Nov. 8, which celebrates the tenth anniversary of American-Soviet diplomatic relations.

The message released by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship sponsors of the meeting, said:

"It gives me particular pleasure to avail myself of this historic occasion, the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, to express again my profound admiration for the gallant Russian people and the courageous Red Army in their relentless fight against the brutal Nazi hordes.

"The glorious examples of courage and fortitude shown by the defenders of Stalingrad, Leningrad, Sevastopol and the sustained offensive of the Soviet army which continues its relentless advance inspire the armed forces of the United States and all the United Nations to the utmost efforts on all battle fronts for the attainment of our immediate goal, the utter destruction of the forces of aggression.

"The joint sacrifices and military efforts made during the war assure victory and further emphasize our determination to do all in our power to enlarge and continue this cooperation in bringing to the world an era of peace based on justice and mutual respect for all freedom-loving people."

The Madison Square Garden meeting, which climaxes a three-day congress celebrating the anniversary on Nov. 6, 7, and 8, will constitute one of the most dramatic and largest expressions of friendship ever made by the people of this country for the people of an Allied nation.

Secretary of USSR Embassy Greets Museum's Exhibition

The following speech was made by Vladimir I. Bazykin, first secretary of the Soviet Embassy, Washington, on the occasion of the preview of the Soviet Art Exhibit at the Metropolitan Museum, Wednesday, Nov. 4. The Museum is presenting the exhibition in cooperation with the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

Ladies and Gentlemen!

I am very grateful to the President of the Museum for his kind cooperation in making possible the exhibition "The Soviet Artist in the War" in such an excellent cultural institution as the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The opening of this exhibition coincides with the Tenth Anniversary of the establishment of the diplomatic relations between our countries and with the successful conclusion of the Tri-partite conference of Foreign Secretaries of the United States, Great Britain and the Soviet Union, and I am also happy to say it coincides with such irresistible offensive of the Red Army that the so-called "Invincible German Army" is being driven from the Ukraine.

And these events lend special interest to the exhibition. Since art is a universal language, accessible to all peoples, its importance in the establishment of friendship and understanding between these countries is exceptionally great.

In all fields of art the people of the Soviet Union have always shown a great interest in American art and culture. But in these days of war, when the freedom-loving people of America have become an ally of the USSR, the interest in American art and culture has increased immeasurably. As a demonstration of this friendship I would like to cite three most vivid examples: the Moscow conference on motion pictures, conference on American dramaturgy held in the Soviet Union last year, and the concert of American music held in Moscow on July 4th this year.

An Aid to Better Relations

Such cultural expressions, creating greater understanding between the people of the Soviet Union and the people of the United States, aroused the most lively and friendly response, not only among those people in the artistic fields, but among the Red Armymen, Soviet intelligentsia, and the wide masses of the USSR. Like the Red Armymen, who arm themselves with rifles, machineguns, and cannons, the artists of the Soviet Union—composers, writers, painters, sculptors, architects, actors and actresses of theatre and cinema—have armed themselves too with art as their weapon, in this titanic battle against the hated enemy who have attacked and pillaged Soviet soil.

The Destroyers of Culture

German generals know the strength of Soviet Art. They know the love the people of the Soviet Union cherish for the works of Tchaikovsky and Moussorgsky, Tolstoy and Dostoyevsky, Pushkin and Lermontov, and others. They know that the Russian people are proud of the works of these geniuses, and aware of this, the Germans have plundered, burned and otherwise destroyed the cherished monuments of Russian art of world renown such as Tolstoy's home, now a museum in Yasnaya Polyana, the Tchaikovsky Museum in Klin, and the Rimsky-Korsakoff Museum in Tikhvin.

The German barbarians mercilessly destroyed monuments of architecture, theatres, libraries, conservatories, universities and other cultural institutions.

Although the Germans may have succeeded in destroying buildings in the occupied territory housing cultural institutions, they never succeeded even temporarily in stopping the activity of Soviet art.

Even those Soviet republics whose territories are temporarily occupied by German enslavers, succeeded in saving their main dramatic and to the rear of the country. Forty-seven dramatic and musical guilds of the Ukraine, including the famous Ukrainian DUMKA chorus and the State Symphony Orchestra are performing in various republics and at the front. Art workers of other Soviet Republics whose territories are occupied by the Germans continue with their creative work in the rear. In all the languages of my country writers and poets sing of the heroic deeds of the warriors.

Verses, poems, novels, plays are created in all languages, and this proves the firm solidarity and determination of the peoples who have vowed not to put aside their guns till fascist Germany is completely smashed.

Since the beginning of the war in the Soviet Union thousands of new songs have been written. They musical ensembles, evacuating them have been created both in the rear and on the front lines. Song, the true friend and companion of the Soviet man, at the front and in the rear became an inseparable part of the life of the fighting man. Song gives the fighting men a moment of respite, reminds them of everything dear and close to them left in the rear and it inspires and leads them to battle with the enemy. Many big works have been written by the Soviet composers during the war years: operas, ballets, symphonies, cantatas, and operettas. Among these works are Shostakovich's well-known 7th Symphony, written in besieged Leningrad, his Second Piano Sonata and 8th symphony, the opera "War and Peace" by Prokofiev, and many others.

Soviet drama in the days of war has also been enriched with many new works. The most outstanding are "The Front" by Korneichuk, "The Russian People" by Simonov and "Invasion" by Leonov. These and other plays are very popular.

From the midst of the people tens of thousands of men and women have distinguished themselves with their courage and heroic deeds.

Soviet sculptors and artists are working on statues and portraits of the people's heroes, reflecting their courage and their heroic epoch. Artists in the besieged cities portray on their canvasses the heroic everyday life of the people, their deprivations and their determination to defend their city strongholds.

Despite all the hardships and trials of the war the traditional annual Shakespeare conferences are held regularly in Moscow. His works have been translated into 24 languages of the peoples of the Soviet Union and are being performed throughout my great country.

In conclusion I wish once more to thank the President, the Director and the Board of Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art for their kind and splendid collaboration in presenting this exhibition. I wish to express also my most sincere gratitude to the Council of American-Soviet Friendship and to all the guests who have indicated their interest in this enterprise by coming here.

Green, CIO Auto Head to Talk at U. S.-Soviet Rally

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers of America, CIO, will speak at the Madison Square Garden meeting on Nov. 8, climaxing the three-day Congress of American-Soviet Friendship, celebrating the tenth anniversary of diplomatic relations between the USA and the USSR.

"I heartily endorse the work of the Congress," said Mr. Green in a statement addressed to the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, "because I regard it as an instrumentality through which co-operation may be developed to a point of maximum efficiency between the government of the United States and that of Soviet Russia in the prosecution of the war, and in the settlement of post-war problems."

CIO President Philip Murray, hailing the Congress as a means of promoting better and closer relations between the United Nations, declared: "I regard the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship as contributing great assistance in promoting this understanding and co-operation between the peoples of the United States and the Soviet Union which can only serve to improve relations between our government and that of the Soviet Union, so essential for the successful prosecution of the war and the solution of our post-war problems."

Stettinius Lauds Red Army in Greeting Soviet Friendship Rally

Tribute to the "sustained offensive of the Soviet Army" and "its relentless advance which inspires the armed forces of the United States and of all the United Nations to the utmost efforts on all battle fronts for the attainment of our immediate goal, the utter destruction of the forces of aggression" was paid by Under Secretary of State Edward Stettinius in a message issued to the forthcoming Madison Square Garden meeting on Monday, November 8, which celebrates the tenth anniversary of American-Soviet diplomatic relations.

The message, released by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship sponsors of the meeting, said:

"It gives me particular pleasure to avail myself of this historic occasion, the celebration of the tenth anniversary of the establishment of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Soviet Union, to express again my profound admiration for the gallant Russian people and the courageous Red Army in their relentless fight against the brutal Nazi hordes.

matic and largest expressions of friendship ever made by the people of this country for the people of an Allied nation.

Friendship Rally Has Labor Backing

Allied labor unity is a goal towards which most American unions are striving today with all their strength.

Powerful impetus toward the achievement of that goal will be provided next week when the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship will be held Nov. 6, 7 and 8 in New York.

R. J. Thomas, president of America's biggest union, the CIO United Auto Workers, will be a speaker at the Madison Square Garden rally Sunday night which will conclude the sessions. His union, like the entire CIO, seeks unity with Soviet and British trade unions along with the rest of the labor of United Nations as a vehicle for speeding victory and to assure a democratic and lasting peace.

A glimpse at the labor sponsors of the Congress indicates its breadth. These include, besides Mr. Thomas, CIO President Philip Murray, AFL President William Green, A. F. Whitney, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, Lawrence P. Lindelof, president of the AFL Painters Union, Edward Flore, president of the Hotel & Restaurant Employees Alliance, AFL; John P. Burke, national president of the AFL Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers; Ben Gold, president of the International Fur & Leather Workers, CIO; Philip R. Van Gelder, national secretary, Industrial Union of Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, CIO; Max Zaritsky, national president, United Hatters, Cap & Millinery Workers, and many other important figures.

GREEN'S GREETING

In accepting as a sponsor, AFL President Green wrote:

"I regard the work and service of the Congress of American Soviet Friendship as of tremendous importance and most valuable. The Congress has rendered distinct service in the promotion of understanding and cooperation between the people of the United States and Soviet Russia.

"I heartily endorse the work of the Congress because I regard it as an instrumentality through which cooperation may be developed to a point of maximum efficiency between the government of the United States and that of Soviet Russia in the prosecution of the war and in the settlement of post-war problems."

Van Gelder, Curran, Zaritsky and Michael Quill, president of the Transport Workers Union, CIO, will be speakers at the Trade Union Panel which will be one of several of the divisional discussion centers featuring the Congress.

While many unions have already sent in credentials for their delegates, registration for participants from the labor movement is still being accepted, according to the committee sponsoring the Congress, which has its offices at 232 Madison Ave.

Through the Congress and through its initiator, the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, American unions are learning more about the life and activities of their brother and sister laborites in the Soviet Union.

Edwin S. Smith, vice-chairman and executive director of the Council, has just written a pamphlet entitled "Organized Labor in the Soviet Union," which answers many of the questions that are in the minds of Americans about the labor movement in the land of our Soviet ally. Smith, for years a member of the National Labor Relations Board, more recently an official of the Oil Workers Union, CIO, knew from his own experience many of the questions that Americans were asking and in his pamphlet singled these out particularly.

A recent survey of labor's attitude on allied labor unity, made by Anthony Jenkinson, editor of Allied Labor News, disclosed that 46,000,000 workers, through their organizations, have registered a demand that such collaboration be established. The Congress in session in New York next week should go a long way to making that demand a reality—and that in short order.

SECOND-FRONT LEAFLET DISTRIBUTED BY COMMUNIST PARTY AT PUERTO RICAN RALLY

In a letter accompanying a copy of a second-front leaflet and the account of a "Homage to Russia Rally" held in Puerto Rico, writer thanks addressee for the "Charlie Chaplin speech and second front leaflets" which addressee sent to sender and to Ramos Antonini. Sender states that the "President of the Committee" Ernesto Ramos Antonini has become "enormously interested in Russia" within the last few weeks and that any reading material that addressee could send him would be of great value. Sender closes the letter with: "The question every one is asking now is whether the African invasion is the beginning of the second front or whether there is going to be more stalling around with 15 Axis divisions while Russia is left to face 240. So far we have heard no comment from Moscow on the African move. Has there been any?"

The following are excerpts from sender's account of the Rally:

"Fifteen thousand people attended the San Juan mass meeting on November 6th to pay homage to Russia. The meeting was a dramatic testimony to the admiration and gratitude that the Puerto Rican people feel for the Soviet Union, being the largest mass meeting held here since the beginning of the war. Already suffering extreme hunger the people know that they owe it to the heroic Russian resistance that Puerto Rico has not already blasted by Axis bombs.... The program was as follows:- Ernesto Ramos Antonini, Popular Party Negro floor leader of the House of Representatives and president of the Homage to Russia Committee, opened the meeting by addressing himself to the wounded shipwrecked Russian seaman who occupied the seat of honor on the platform. In the course of his brilliant speech Ramos Antonini refuted an argument by Senator Celestino Iriarte, pro-fascist president of the Republican Party who alone in the entire Legislature of Puerto Rico voted against declaring November 7th a holiday, maintaining that Russia is not a democracy. Ramos Antonini in his speech proved that Russia is a democracy....The finance committee raised nearly four thousand dollars, without the least difficulty, an amazing sum in view of the economic ruin which has hit every concern in the island. The balance of the money, not used in carrying out the meeting, will be sent to the Russian War Relief.... It is interesting that this meeting in San Juan which was transmitted by radio stations all over the island, was held on the 6th of November and that on the 7th of November several of the towns held meetings of their own. The small town of Humacao held a magnificent meeting with an attendance of three thousand persons. In the Humacao meeting, as in the San Juan meeting and elsewhere a real united front of various parties and bitterly contending groups was achieved. The only group in Puerto Rico that came in for attack by the speakers was the small but very powerful Spanish Falange and its sympathizers....Thruout the entire period of preparation and during the meeting the Communist Party of Puerto Rico was definitely present. Among other contributions to the success of the meeting the Communist Party distributed 10,000 copies of the translation of the American Council on Soviet Relations pamphlet containing questions and answers on the second front.... the Committee is planning to print a book, including the speeches, the various newspaper editorials... and many other interesting facts related to the celebration."

Enclosed is the above-mentioned translation of the Second-Front Pamphlet of the American Council on Soviet Relations, which was printed by Editorial Esther, Brau 17, San Juan, P.R. To the original pamphlet was added a comment "The Second Front and Puerto Rico" by Juan Santos Rivera (Bj 4600), for the Executive Committee of the Puerto Rican Communist Party, Calle Cruz, Num. 27, San Juan. This very vigorous appeal contains the following statements: (Quote Translation)

Dear Mr. Stanley:

When a number of us, sometime ago, planned the Congress of American-Soviet Friendship and its great Madison Square Garden meeting, I must confess that we did not sufficiently understand the extent of the interest of the American people in the Soviet Union. We knew that millions of American men and women had deep and sympathetic feelings toward the brave people who are fighting so heroically against the common enemy. But we had no conception of how widespread was the desire for information until the Congress was over.

From every part of the United States and from every level of American life came requests for information which would more fully explain the basis for the resistance of the Soviet people. Organizations wrote that they were ready to exhibit pictures, to show films, to hear lectures, in short, to do anything which would increase understanding of the culture and achievements of the Soviet Union, and thus further friendship between the peoples of these two great countries.

To meet this need the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship has recently been organized. It is an outgrowth and extension of the splendid Congress of American-Soviet Friendship and the American Council on Soviet Relations.

The National Council has set itself an ambitious and highly significant program. It will service organizations with literature, speakers, films and exhibits, and will initiate activities in which the broadest number of Americans can participate. Among the latter are an American-Soviet War Exhibit, an American-Soviet Film Festival, a Painting and Poster Contest, etc.

We have before us an important function—how important time has already shown—the function of welding the understanding between the people of America and the people of the Soviet Union, so that together we may speed victory and lay the foundation for a lasting peace. Without your help this opportunity will slide through our fingers. With your assistance we can do a work of great and enduring significance.

Our program this year requires $75,000. We believe that thereafter a large proportion of our activities can become self-supporting.

I know that I can count on you, as one of the pioneers in the development of American-Soviet friendship, to help as you have in the past. Won't you mail your check to me today? The larger it is, the more rapidly we can proceed.

Sincerely yours,

Corliss Lamont

DETAILS:

The title of this case is being changed to reflect the true and now existing name of subject organization: NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

At New York, New York

One copy of this report is being furnished to all field offices for information purposes inasmuch as subject organization is the outgrowth of several organizations that have been investigated by all field offices.

Reference report dated November 14, 1942 discloses that the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS sponsored and directed the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP held at New York City on November 7th and 8th, 1942 to pay tribute to the 25th anniversary of the USSR.

Reliable informants and unimpeachable sources of information of this office reported that identified Communist Party officials considered the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP a great success, but served its purpose, and should be discontinued as such; while the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS has been too narrow in its scope, and should also be discontinued as such; but that in order to take advantage of the gains made by both the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP and the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS it would be necessary to form a new organization, which accounts for the formation of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

For information purposes it is disclosed in reference report dated November 14, 1942 that subject organization has formerly been known as FRIENDS OF THE SOVIET UNION, New York File 100-3628, and the AMERICAN COMMITTEE FOR FRIENDSHIP WITH THE SOVIET UNION, New York file 100-3619. The aims and purposes of all the organizations mentioned heretofore in this report are practically identical. In addition CORLISS LAMONT, well known Communist Party Sympathizer, has been an official or chairman of each of the organizations.

The December, 1942 Manhattan Telephone Directory lists the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS, 112 East 19th Street, New York City, as subscriber to telephone Gramercy 7-6123. Upon dialing this number the telephone operator said such number has been changed to Murray Hill 3-2082. Through the usual confidential source it was learned that telephone number Murray Hill 3-2082 as well as Murray Hill 2-2087, is subscribed to by the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, 382 Madison Avenue, New York City.

On December 23, 1942 reporting agent ascertained from Confidential Informant T-1 that CORLISS LAMONT and his representatives entered <sup>into</sup> a lease for three different offices on separate floors for different periods at 475 Fifth Avenue, New York City. The lease was signed and effectuated by CORLISS LAMONT for the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP on September 3rd, 1942 for occupancy on September 15, 1942. The informant said that LAMONT paid the rent by personal check for the first month, and thereafter the checks were drawn upon the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP and signed by ALICE BARROWS, Director. The lease provided an option to renew for a period of two years on the part of the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, otherwise the rent which amounted to $527 per month was to be paid in advance monthly. The CONGRESS gave proper notice and vacated offices at 475 Fifth Avenue, New York City, on December 31st, 1942.

According to the above informant on December 21st, 1942 ALICE BARROWS, Director of the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, acting for CORLISS LAMONT of the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS, transacted and entered into a lease for Rooms 804 and 805 at 382 Madison Avenue, New York City, that occupancy of both rooms was to become effective by March 15, 1943, and remain as such until April 30, 1945. The informant said notification was given that the offices would be known as the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, which organization should pay rent amounting to $235. per month.

The informant said Room 805 at 382 Madison Avenue, New York City, was occupied about the middle part of January, 1943, while Room 804 will not be available until about March 15, 1943. In the meantime temporary branch offices have been established in Room 1104 at this address. The informant said upon one occasion Miss BARROWS explained that the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS and the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP were discontinuing operation under these names, and that the combination of the two would be known as the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

According to the elevator operator at 112 East 19th Street, New York City the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS on about January 15th, 1943 changed its headquarters to 232 Madison Avenue, New York City.

The San Francisco Field Division by reference letter dated December 29, 1942 forwarded a photostatic copy of a four page document bearing the title MEMORANDUM ON EVENTS IN CONNECTION WITH THE 25th ANNIVERSARY OF THE SOVIET UNION, which was obtained from a highly confidential source close to Communist Party headquarters at 121 Haight Street, San Francisco, California. The CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP held in New York City on November 7th and November 8th, 1942 followed the outline of this letter so closely that it is being quoted hereinafter. Particular reference should be made to the concluding paragraph, which leaves little doubt that such was prepared and disseminated by the Communist Party. The memorandum reads as follows:

Copy
~~CONFIDENTIAL~~ MEMORANDUM OF EVENTS IN CONNECTION WITH THE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE SOVIET UNION

"As you probably know the Party has decided in favor of the broadest kind of celebrations this year. Accordingly all districts have given up their meetings and are now endeavoring to stimulate meetings sponsored by most representative citizens in every community. The general approach to the events around the 7th of November is that they serve to bring about closer cooperation between the two countries, for which purpose the meetings must tap every possible support against appeasement and defeatist sentiment and in support of the administration policy of cooperation with the Soviet Union in the war and after.

"We who are working in the American Council on Soviet Relations have presented an entire plan in line with the above directives, which was thoroughly approved by the Center. The plan consists of the following:

"1. That a Congress of American-Soviet Friendship be held in New York on the 7th and 8th of November. Former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies has accepted the chairmanship of that Congress. The Congress is not to be a mass congress, but rather a quality congress, first, because we would have no time to organize a mass congress; secondly, on account of government policy which is against congresses, we considered it best to have a small congress.

To this Congress we ask that larger units of labor, prominent leaders in civic, professional, and the academic world be invited. They can either be elected by their bodies or come on a personal invitation. However, their position in their respective circles would lend the Congress considerable authority.

"We expect to have six panels on the most important of all, of course, will be American-Soviet relations, past, present and future.

"The Congress is to be climaxed by a mass meeting in Madison Square Garden on the afternoon of Sunday the 8th. In connection with this part of the Congress we request that you give us a list of about

" 60 or 70 people in San Francisco or Los Angeles of the qualifications noted above, whom the Congress will officially invite and we hope that in many cases you will be able to stimulate their acceptance.

The call for the Congress will go out next Monday. The reason we didn't send it out before is that tomorrow night there will be a reception at Davies' home in Washington at which the highest Washington circles have been invited from the members of the Cabinet down. This will make the press Friday and Saturday. The call will follow early next week. Tomorrow's press will lift the entire Congress movement onto considerable heights and broaden its perspective.

In connection with the second feature - the mass meeting - it was decided that in order to make this demonstration of support for the Soviet Union and friendship for it thoroughly national in expression, mass meetings around the 7th will be organized in large and small centers wherever possible.

Accordingly, San Francisco & L.A. should, of course, try to have the largest kind of meeting with the best possible sponsorship of a committee specially organized for that purpose, and the group of the American Council on Soviet Relations to play some part in it.

In addition to the meetings in San Francisco and Los Angeles, wherever possible, even if it is a small meeting of 150 or 200 people, such meetings should be held and the widest possible publicity given to them.

Many of these meetings throughout the country will no doubt take place simultaneously and we are arranging for a national broadcast by Mr. Davies which the meetings will be able to listen to.

The third important feature of the plan for this November 7th is an immense mass action. The American Council on Soviet Relations is campaigning now for one million signatures of Americans. The signatures are to be collected throughout the country and mounted into Golden Books of Friendship, which we will present to the Soviet authorities for shipment to Moscow.

We would like to give this action the widest possible publicity. Also we ask that forces be given to the American Council on Soviet Relations where it exists to do the biggest job possible. In such smaller places where there is no Council, some Committee or existing organization should take over the distribution of the books locally, the gathering of them and the sending back to the American Council in New York.

" In this connection, the first thing we must have is a contact in each of the communities that will be responsible for this job.

As you can see we are undertaking a tremendous job and in order to finance all the undertakings we are collecting 10¢ from each signer of the book. This is the only source of revenue and it was approved of so as not to drain other resources or claimed subsidies.

At the present time when there is no resistance to a greeting to the Soviet Union we should be able to collect a tremendous number from each state and we hope to make a book for each state.

Will you kindly estimate the needs of California, breaking them down according to cities and towns, and advise us as soon as possible.

The thing to remember is that we have only three or four weeks in which to do an intensive job so that we can, after receiving the sheets back by the 20th the latest, do the necessary job for the presentation of the books.

To recapitulate, the request is, first, to stimulate delegates to attend the Congress; second, a large mass meeting in Philadelphia and smaller meetings in other places; third, the compiling of signatures.

We are sure that the C will be thoroughly aware of the immensity and importance of the job and will give this the right of way for the next four or five weeks, as well as their enthusiastic support."

On January 29th, 1943 Confidential Informant T-2 advised that ALICE FARROWS of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, secured the consent of VLADIMIR BAZYKIN of the Russian Embassy in Washington, D. C. for an outside individual to examine a uniform of a Nazi loaned to her by the Russian Embassy. The informant also advised that ALICE FARROWS desired, and reportedly made and filled, an appointment with BAZYKIN at the Russian Embassy on February 5th, 1943.

On February 23, 1943 reporting agent without revealing true identity interviewed the receptionist at the office of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, Room 805, 232 Madison Avenue, New York City. The receptionist explained that this organization is an outgrowth of the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS and the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, and that the activities of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP would be broader than the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS even though the aims and purposes would be similar if not identical. Upon asking for literature that sets forth the aims and purposes as well as the officers of the newly formed organization, the receptionist replied that to date the national officers had not been decided upon, but within the near future literature would appear giving a list of the officers and sponsors as well as the aims and purposes of such organization.

RE: NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET
INTERNAL SECURITY -C-

Dear Sir:

In accordance with Bureau instructions as contained in Bureau Teletype to the Field dated October 18, 1941, Agents MARTIN L. CROAK and LEONARD M. WALTERS attended a lecture given by THOMAS L. HARRIS, Secretary of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, at the Springfield High School, Springfield, Illinois. Mr. HARRIS' lecture was sponsored by the Springfield Community School for Adults, which is a Civic organization, for the purpose of furthering adult education and sponsored a series of ten lectures on International Relations. March 23, 1943

Mr. HARRIS' lecture was prefaced by the statement that the great majority of the American people did not understand Russia or the Russian form of Government and that he would attempt to point out the differences between Russia and America and why Russia was misunderstood.

MR. HARRIS stated that economically there was a big difference; that in Russia there was no relation between cost and price and that in his opinion, this feature of economics was coming to the United States and that as a result, in the future, there probably would not be as big an economic difference between Russia and the United States as there is today.

Politically the difference between Russia and the United States was in the fact that there they had a one party system and here it was a two party system. Mr. HARRIS stated that not all the people in Russia are Communists, but that there is no opposition party and it is important to win elections by large majorities. He further stated that there was a difference within the political machine itself in that in Communism the members have extra duties, such as teaching. He also stated that there was a surtax placed on the members of the Communist Party and that they must believe wholeheartedly in Communism.

Mr. HARRIS pointed out that in talking about the Communist Party he was referring to the Communist Party in Russia only because, he stated, that was the only Communist Party that he knew about.

Mr. HARRIS further stated that there was an accidental difference between Russia and the United States, in that for the past twenty two years, the Soviet Union has been in danger of war which makes a great difference in the economic life of a nation. He stated that during the time of war or danger of war, the standard of living is lowered due to the tremendous cost and he stated that we now see this situation occurring in the United States. Mr. HARRIS compared the deportation of Japanese, the trial of the eight saboteurs without public record and the carrying of Selective Service cards by all males with Russian deportations to Siberia and secret trials to keep the matter from the German Intelligence, and the past Russian Militarism. Mr. HARRIS stated that the reason for the Russian ability to drive back the Germans was due to great national unity, foresight on the part of the leaders of the country and military preparedness.

Mr. HARRIS continued by saying that there are two great difficulties that stand in the way of friendship between the United States and Russia, first, we are concerned with what kind of Government Russia will want in other nations after the war and Russia has the same feeling about us, wondering what kind of government we will want in France. He stated that boundaries are going to be important to Russia, not from the standpoint of imperialism, but from the standpoint of Russia itself. Secondly, he stated there is an ideological difficulty. We don't like Communism and we won't have it, they have similar doubts about the United States. Twenty years ago in Archangel, United States troops were shooting Russians, and we were slow in recognizing the Russian government and refused to deal with Russia. He stated to aggravate these differences aids only one man, namely, Mr. HITLER. Russians are beginning to try to learn about the United States and we should do more to learn about Russia.

After the lecture, written questions were presented to the speaker by the audience, one of the questions being, "has Russia given up its plan for world revolution?", Mr. HARRIS answered this by saying, that in his opinion this plan had been given up and that this had died after the Trotsky Incident and had become more or less a closed issue. However, he stated there is one thing that would cause the Russians to continue with their plan for world revolution and that would be in the event they find a hostile United States after the war. Mr. HARRIS stated that it is up to us to determine whether or not the Russians will attempt world revolution and also attempt to push Communism in the United States, because Russia will deal with its friends and the answer to preventing Communism being pushed and world revolution is cooperation with Russia. Mr. HARRIS answered a question regarding Poland by stating that he looked for reconciliation between the Poles and Russia. He stated that the reason United States newspapermen were kept away from the Russian front lines was because Russia did not trust us to hold our tongues. Regarding a question on religion, Mr. HARRIS stated that there is freedom of worship in Russia, but that there is a restriction on religious propaganda, that is, you cannot teach religion to children in groups of more than three under nineteen years of age, unless they are your own. He added that we do not have to worry about religion in Russia as much as we should worry about trying to convince Russia we are sincere. He stated that he, in corroboration with another author was publishing a book on religion in Russia which he hoped would be out in time for Easter.

Letter to the Director

Mr. HARRIS stated that in his opinion, the purpose of EDEN'S visit to the United States is to attempt to get the United States to cooperate more fully with England in giving aid to Russia.

The lecture was attended by the regular members of the Community School for Adults and no Communist literature or pamphlets were handed out or sold at the lecture or in the school halls.

Sunday, February 8, 1943.

Attended rally at the Society for Ethical Culture, 64th St. at Central Park West. There were about 800 people present. This rally was held under the auspices of the upper West Side Committee of the New York Council of the American Soviet Friendship. The upper West Side Committee consists of a group of women that are all members of the Communist Party.

The chairman of this rally was Professor Henry Pratt Fairchild who is also chairman of the New York Council of the American Soviet Friendship. The first speaker was General Victor A. Yakhantoff who was active in the Russian Army under the Czar and later was assistant Secretary of War in the Krensky cabinet. He analyzed the importance of the gains which the Red Army has made to date. He also analyzed the new offensive and what it means to the United States and Great Britain. He claimed that if a Western Front had been opened by the United States and Great Britain in 1942 when the Red Army pushed back Hitler before Moscow, we would now be at the peace table.

The next speaker was Joseph Clark Baldwin, congressman of the 17th Congressional District in New York. This man is also very popular with members of the Communist Party. He said that in his opinion, the two most powerful countries in the world should have a better understanding and that he is sure that there is a strong feeling among his colleagues in Congress towards the Soviet Union. He promised the audience that he will do all in his power to bring about a better understanding between the United States and the U.S.S.R. & <sup>ENCLOSURE</sup> ~~copy~~

Then Dr. Thomas L. Harris who is National Secretary of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship made the collection speech. There was more than $1,000 realized from the collection.

RECORDS OF CONGRESS

The next speaker was the Reverend Adam Clayton Powell, New York City councilman. He told those present that it is the desire of the New York Council to start organizing throughout the five boroughs of New York City. He said that it is the intention of the New York Council that there should be a committee set up in all large communities to inform the people of the advantages that would result from a better friendship between the United States and the USSR. He asked everyone present to fill out cards that were passed through the audience by ushers so the committee will know which people that are present will become active on committees that are to be formed throughout New York City.

The last speaker was Dr. Harry M. Ward who is president of Union Theological Seminary. He said that at the present moment, there is a strong clique of Fascists throughout our government who are in favor of a negotiated peace with Nazi Germany. While Russia is fighting the war he said, these people are scheming to do business with the Fascist governments. Who, he said, saved Great Britain from invasion and gave the United States time to mobilize its forces, and answered by saying the people of the Soviet Union. The ones who will join this clique in Washington to negotiate a peace with Hitler are the heads of the churches here in America. At this very moment he said, Archbishop Spellman is at the Vatican trying to bring about a negotiated peace. The Catholic churches he said are the ones most guilty at this time but will be joined by other heads of churches here in America if the word should be given. But, he said in closing, the Red Army will fight on until victory is won.

The following information has been furnished to the Bureau by the Washington Field Division, as obtained from a highly confidential source, relative to contacts made by Miss Alice Barrows, Executive Secretary of the captioned organization, with the Soviet Embassy:

"Miss Alice Barrows, National Council of American-Soviet Relations, contacted Bazykin. He apologized for not seeing her on his recent visit to New York. He also asked her to send him a list of details re the coming 'Movie Conference' and to include the names of the Hollywood stars who will attend this affair. Then he promised to try and have a few representatives attend from the Soviet Union. She agreed to do this and added that Mr. Morris was leaving for Hollywood and that an air mail special delivery letter had been sent to Mr. Millestone who should, in turn, furnish the information Bazykin was interested in.

"Miss Alice Barrows told Bazykin she forgot to mention that National Committee was preparing a brochure which would give a sketch of their plans (for the Movie conference). She added that cards had been prepared which now make it possible for American citizens to send short greetings to people in the U.S.S.R. She asked if the Embassy's cooperation could be mentioned in the brochure. Bazykin advised against this but promised to cooperate."

Dear Sir:

The Washington Field Division has furnished the Bureau with information obtained from a highly confidential and reliable source concerning Miss Alice Barrows of the instant organization and a contact by her with Vladimir Bazykin of the Soviet Embassy.

On April 2, 1943, Alice Barrows advised Bazykin that she had not heard from a Mr. Ranger (phonetic) and that she had written to Chapman and was hoping that William Morris would bring pressure to bear on some unknown subject matter or individual. She is said to have added that a brochure on an unknown subject matter had been prepared. She is further said to have added that space had been obtained at Rockefeller Center for the exhibition scheduled for May 26, 1943.

Bazykin in turn reportedly advised that would be fine (apparently referring to the arrangements) and added that the Russian doctors, Lebedenko and Sarkisov, had arrived. Alice Barrows is said to have agreed to arrange an extensive tour for the two doctors and advised that she expected to be in the District of Columbia on April 7, 1943, at which time she would talk over the matter with Bazykin.

Dr. KARL G. ~~K~~KNOCHE, Chairman
BERNARD ~~K~~KLEIN (watchmaker at Wyman's Jewelry Store)
ELIZABETH ~~K~~KNOCHE
BUDDY ~~P~~PETERS
MINNIE ~~G~~GORDON
SARA ~~B~~BASSETT

For the information of the New York Field Division, all of the above are known Communist Party members and subjects of separate files in this office.

The meeting was conducted by Dr. KNOCHE who spoke on the power of the Soviet Union. Dr. KNOCHE held that the Soviet type of government so far excels any other type of government ever known in history; that there can be none but a favorable comparison and he pointed out how quickly the Soviets get things done, giving as the reason for this the fact that the Soviet Government has no parties to contend with as in the Democratic form of government.

BERNARD KLEIN gave a short speech regarding his experiences in the First World War, at which time he claimed to have been a member of the Second Regiment of the Russian Army. Mrs. ELIZABETH KNOCHE gave a ten minute lecture on what the women of Russia are doing in this war and what the women of the United States could do if they would. The meeting adjourned at 10 P.M.

Confidential Informant  , whose identity is known to the Bureau, advised that while perusing through Dr. KNOCHE's date book in his dental office he noticed that KNOCHE had the date of January 30th and 31st, 1943 circled with the notation "speech at Tampa" thereon but information was developed later at Tampa, Florida indicating that KNOCHE's speech had nothing to do with the American Council on Soviet Relations and that he at no time during this speech before the Writers Club of that city mentioned instant organization or Russia.

Bureau letter dated February 12, 1943 forwarded the following information in summary form regarding the background, character and reputation of Col. RAYMOND ~~R~~ROBINS of Brooksville, Florida:

"It has been stated Colonel and Mrs. RAYMOND ROBINS are of the intellectual type of Communists and further that they have entertained many intellectual Communists on their estate in Brooksville, Florida.

It has been confidentially reported that a RAYMOND ROBINS, one of the National Directors of Russian War Relief, Inc., and member of the Chicago Forum Committee, recently spoke at a Free Browder Meeting at Chicago, Illinois.

Colonel RAYMOND ROBINS, head of the Red Cross Mission to Russia in 1917, was listed as one of the original endorsers of the American Committee for Medical Aid to Russia.

It has been stated that RAYMOND ROBINS was in a small Red Cross clique in Russia, during 1918 and subsequent years, who made themselves extremely agreeable to the Bolsheviks. ROBINS has also been termed a pro-Bolshevik propagandist.

Colonel RAYMOND ROBINS, postwar head of the American Red Cross in Russia, was one of the 60 persons signing an open letter to American Liberals, declaring that while the Trotsky Defense Committee was ostensibly formed in defense of certain principles of civil liberties, its present activity could only be interpreted as "political intervention" in the internal affairs of the Soviet Union with hostile intent.

More particularly the letter stated as follows: "The demand for an investigation of trials carried on under the legally constituted judicial system of the Soviet Government, can only be interpreted as a political intervention in the internal affairs of the Soviet Union with hostile intent . . . . We believe that the Soviet Union needs the support of Liberals at this moment when the forces of Fascism, led by Hitler, threaten to engulf Europe. We believe that it is important for the progressive forces in this country that you make your position clear. The reactionary sections of the press and the public have been precisely the ones who seize most eagerly on the anti-Soviet attack of Trotsky and his followers to further their own aims. We feel sure that you do not wish to be counted an ally of these forces."

A RAYMOND ROBINS, 168 East 61st Street, New York City, was listed as a Director until the First Annual Meeting of the American-Russian Institute as appearing in the articles of incorporation of that organization filed under the laws of New York State on April 9, 1936.

Colonel RAYMOND ROBINS is listed as a member of the National Board of the American Council on Soviet Relations. With regard to the American Council on Soviet Relations, it has been stated that this Council's Program has changed constantly with the Communist Party Line, that prior to June 22, 1941, the Council condemned the War in no mild terms and that after the Nazi attack on Russia, the Council urged all-out aid to Britain, the Soviet Union and their allies. It has further been stated the Communist Party has cooperated in some way or another at all of the Council's meetings. It is further stated that the Communist Party occasionally assigned members to the distribution of the Council's circulars. Tickets for the Council meetings are reportedly sold at the Worker's Bookshop in the Communist Party Building at 35 East 12th Street, Manhattan, and at other Party bookstores.

Colonel RAYMOND ROBINS has written several articles for the magazine "Soviet Russia today" which is the official publication of the American Council on Soviet Relations, edited by THEODORE BAYER who has been reported as having been active in Communist circles for many years. "

Confidential Informant [ ] furnished the writer with a pamphlet entitled "For American Soviet Friendship" dated November 1942 and stated that KNOCHE was attempting to fill one of these pamphlets with the lists of sponsors of the American Council on Soviet Relations and had told him [ ] that the purpose of the names in this pamphlet was to encourage the people of the Soviet Union by forwarding the pamphlet to them endorsed by American citizens. However, [ ] stated KNOCHE was having trouble getting more than five or six names for his pamphlet; that he had seen the pamphlet and the names that appeared thereon were:

SALLY KOGGE
VICTOR KOGGE
SUE GREENLEAF
MARY KNOCHE

For the information of the New York Field Division, all of the above are known Communist Party members and are the subjects of separate investigations in the Miami Field Division.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that a concert of Russian music was held at Jacksonville, Florida on November 29, 1942 at 8 P.M. as a benefit for the Russian War Relief. The concert was given by SERGE BOROMSKI and was sponsored in Jacksonville by the Vladek Club. Admission was 50¢ per person, with service men free, and informant stated that prior to the concert Dr. KNOCHE gave a short speech on the American Council for Soviet Relations and requested those present who were members of civic organizations in the city of Jacksonville to send representatives to the American Council on Soviet Relations meetings in the Hotel Roosevelt at Jacksonville.

Both Confidential Informant [ ] and [ ] advised that apparently the American Council on Soviet Relations is dying out but that Dr. KNOCHE still has ambition that the group will be revived.

Confidential informants report that subject organization has not been very active in Connecticut due to the fact that Russian War Relief societies were relied upon mainly for this work. ROSE L. file in the New Haven Field Division, attempted to contact ROSE L. DWORSKI, at the Russian War Relief Office, located at 1123 Chapel Street, New Haven, Connecticut, and the girl at the desk at the Russian War Relief told NEWMAN that ROSE was upstairs, but he should first call the telephone number 5-6461 to see if the people upstairs are prepared to see him. [redacted] was contacted by Special Agent GLENN J. McDONOUGH, who advised that the telephone number 5-6461 is the number listed for the AMERICAN COUNCIL OF SOVIET RELATIONS, located on the second floor at 1123 Chapel Street, New Haven, Connecticut. b7D

In an article published by the "Bridgeport Sunday Herald", dated 11/1/42, it is stated that CAL TINNEY was to be the main speaker of the Bridgeport meeting of the congress of AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP at the Klein auditorium, Bridgeport, Connecticut, Saturday evening, November 14th. A second speaker, according to the said newspaper article, was to be THOMAS L. HARRIS, National Secretary of the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS. The general sponsoring committee for the Bridgeport congress of AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP was published, containing a list of approximately thirty names, many of which names are prominently mentioned in various files of the New Haven Field Division in connection with Communist Party activity in this Field Division.

In another edition of the "Bridgeport Sunday Herald" also dated 11/1/42, it is stated that the "Salute to Our Russian Ally" meeting will be held in New Haven, November 8th, and states that the drive to collect signatures in AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP is now taking place throughout the State. It is also stated that the drive for thirty-five thousand Connecticut signers for the book which is to be presented Premier JOSEPH STALIN in honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Soviet Union is being stimulated in factories throughout the State by both management and labor.

On March 15, 1943, Confidential Informant [redacted] advised that ROSE L. DWORSKI, subject of a separate file in the New Haven Field Division, contacted one HELEN, whose last name is unknown at this time, and asked HELEN if she would be interested in going to New York with her this weekend. The purpose of this trip according to ROSE DWORSKI is to attend the big meeting of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP. ROSE DWORSKI explained that this is the new group and it is the first meeting of the group, which succeeds the old AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS. The meeting is to be held in the offices of the NATIONAL COUNCIL ON AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP at 9:30 A.M. Saturday, March 20th, and from there the members will go to the Hotel WOODSTOCK in the afternoon until about 5 P.M.. Reports, aims, purposes, program, services and the campaign will be read and discussed. In the afternoon there is to be a roundtable discussion on local Council problems. On Sunday, March 21, between 10 and 12 A.M., another conference is scheduled and a luncheon will follow this conference to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. LAMONT. In discussing this meeting, ROSE DWORSKI stated that she would like to get someone other than herself to attend the meeting, as she does not know how long she will be able to carry on here in New Haven and further stated, "Up to now we were not doing much on this as we relied on Russian War Relief societies to utilize the resources of the National Council, such as, movies, speakers, etc. to carry on an educational program". b7D

On March 16, 1943, [ ] advised that ROSE DWORSKI contacted her mother, who stated that she had a telegram from the SOVIET FRIENDSHIP conference inviting ROSE to a meeting in New York.

b7D

On April 8, 1943, [ ] advised that "BOBBIE" FAUST, Secretary to DAVID HEDLEY, Executive Secretary of the Social and Labor Legislation, contacted ROSE DWORSKI'S mother, who advised "BOBBIE" FAUST that ROSE DWORSKI was still in New York but would be back at the end of the week. Subject's mother advised "BOBBIE" FAUST that ROSE had received a letter from the "SOVIET something or other" and asked "BOBBIE" regarding the disposition of this letter. "BOBBIE" FAUST suggested that she hold the letter until ROSE DWORSKI returned.

New York, N. Y.,

April 13, 1943.

Step up folks and swallow another Communist-inspired outfit. No matter how sweet it sounds if you pull back the curtain you will find Lamont and the rest of the boys pulling the strings.

This new outfit was formed April 6th and we find Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union and R. J. Thomas, president of the United Auto Workers (CIO) among the sponsors. Thomas is now on his way with George Addes to visit the Soviet Union. We are beginning to wonder if the comrades have won Thomas over to their side.

Special--No more is it plain Corliss Lamont, in some manner he has picked up the title Doctor.

The reason for this intellectual outfit of reds is to promote better understanding and strengthen friendly relations between the United States and the Soviet Union as essential for winning the war and establishing world-wide democracy and an enduring peace. To this end the Council will take action against anti-Soviet propaganda aimed at dividing the United Nations.

Among the other sponsors are Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, William L. Batt of the WPB, Senators Claude Pepper and Elbert D. Thomas, Leopold Stokowski, Albert Einstein, Raymond Gram Swing, Paul Robeson, Charles Chaplin and Joseph E. Davies.

Senator E. Thomas--A screwball that does not know where to light.

stating that there was an appointment at 11:00 o'clock A.M., the following day (January 16, 1943) at Milwaukee, Wisconsin and that she thought there ought to be a "chat" before that. She further inquired as to whether "our guest" should come down to the COMMUNIST PARTY office, to which LITTLE replied that he did not think it would be a good idea. LITTLE suggested that Mrs. AGINS maintain contact with this unknown individual so that LITTLE could later arrange an appointment through Mrs. AGINS. Mrs. AGINS then stated that she had invited LITTLE many times to attend "our lecture," adding that there was one scheduled at the Scarab Club at John R. and Farnsworth Streets the night of January 15, 1943.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that on July 30, 1942 HARRY STUTZ reported to JORDAN ZIER at the CIVIL RIGHTS FEDERATION office in Detroit that a man from the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS would be in Town that day and would meet with "them" that afternoon with two people for the purpose of organizing a local in Detroit. This unknown representative wanted JACK RASKIN, Secretary of the Michigan CIVIL RIGHTS FEDERATION to be present at the meeting. (RASKIN is very closely identified with the COMMUNIST PARTY leaders and functionaries in Detroit and maintains constant contact with the Detroit COMMUNIST PARTY headquarters).

STUTZ later stated that the representative of the COUNCIL was Dr. THEODORE SMITH and that SMITH would be brought to see RASKIN by ADELINE KOHL, who is the Secretary of the YOUNG COMMUNIST LEAGUE of Michigan. RASKIN made the statement, according to [ ] that SMITH is travelling around for the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS and was trying to start a COUNCIL in Detroit. RASKIN was desirous of getting together with some people in an effort to originate such a COUNCIL in Detroit and asked a lady, or a woman, identified as Miss WOODBURY, who was believed to be Miss ZALIA WOODFORD, for her ideas on the Subject. Miss WOODBURY stated that she believed a Mrs. POPE would be the best person to contact with regard to this matter and also suggested a Miss VINCENT. Miss POPE was believed to be Mrs. WILLARD POPE, Vice President of the Board of Directors of the Detroit Committee, Russian War Relief, Incorporated. Miss VINCENT was believed to be CLARA VINCENT, official of the Women's International Educational Council, a sponsor of the Michigan Free Browder Congress and delegate of the CIVIL RIGHTS FEDERATION to the Metropolitan Detroit Council on Fair Employment Practices.

(Detroit file 100-2891)

On September 30, 1942, Confidential Informant [ ] advised that MINNA AGINS advised JACK RASKIN that Dr. SMITH had asked that RASKIN arrange a meeting for him. RASKIN replied that there is another set-up in New York known as "The American Soviet State," which is Davis's outfit and that he wanted a group to hold a meeting in Detroit at the same time they were holding one in New York.

b7D

Confidential Informant [ ] advised on September 15, 1942, an unidentified woman informed JACK RASKIN that the Subject organization was to have a Board meeting on September 16, 1942 and that she wished to find someone who is "Soviet Union Conscious," who represents labor and who might be asked to the meeting. RASKIN mentioned the name of VINCENT KLINE of the UAW-War Action Committee, who was a member of Local No. 7 and active in the All Slav Congress. The woman stated that was going to have PERINOSKI contact KLINE. (PERINOSKI is Executive Secretary of the Michigan Committee of the American Slav Congress).

b7D

There was received at the Field Office on December 21, 1942, an anonymous note addressed to the FBI stating that it would be very wise to attend a Communist affair at which Dr. JACK AGINS was to speak and that many of its members were died-in-the-wool "Commies". This address was to be delivered at the Scarab Club, which is the location of meetings of subject organization in Detroit.

It was ascertained by Special Agent, L. Byron Lockhart, that Dr. AGINS was to speak on "Progressive Medicine in the U.S.R." The telephone directory lists Dr. JACK AGINS at 1710 Hazelwood and his residence at 17388 San Juan. The Detroit City Directory lists Dr. JACK AGIN'S wife as MINNA AGINS.

Stanley Dodge was for a period, CHAIRMAN of local Chapter of American Council of Soviet Relations. Relinquished his chairmanship to PROF. JOHN BRUM, School of Journalism, Univ. of Michigan. This took place in June 1942 and at the same time, the Secretary, Mrs. Clark Trow,

"Different instructors in the University never heard of the organization and for this reason, information was hard to get without exposing the investigation.

"Officers opinion is that Dodge is definitely a member of this organization and is now active as a member due to the fact that officer obtained some pamphlets which had been in Dodge's possession. with ~~GEORGE~~ ~~PIRINSKY~~, alias ~~WINKOFF~~, Executive Secretary of the Michigan Committee of the American Slav Congress were discussing a meeting of Subject organization to be held in New York. ~~PIRINSKY~~ stated that he had told Dr. W. T. ~~OSOWSKI~~ (President of the Michigan Committee of the American Slav Congress) that there are two invitations coming in for delegates (to the New York meeting of Subject organization). ~~OSOWSKI~~ had suggested that ~~PIRINSKY~~ attend. ~~PIRINSKY~~ stated that it would be a good idea to get ~~BILL~~ (~~CHUBERT~~), President of the Polish-American Section of the International Workers Order, ~~STANLEY~~ (~~NOWAK~~), Michigan State Senator, and ~~LEO~~ (~~GRZYBOWSKI~~), National President of the American Slav Congress to go up and see ~~WINKOFF~~ to find out whether ~~WINKOFF~~ was coming or not.

Dear Sir:

Reference is made to your letters of April 3, 1943 and May 14, 1943 relative to the captioned organization.

I desire to point out to you the poor way in which this matter has been handled by your office. First, in the dictation of your letter of April 3, 1943, no indication was given as to the date when the lecture was given by Thomas L. Harris at the Springfield High School, Springfield, Illinois.

Secondly, it is noted in your letter of May 14, 1943 that at the lecture Harris gave at the Springfield High School, as well as other lectures at the Lanphier High School and the Peitzhans High School, pamphlets on recommended readings "all pertaining to Russia and Communism" were distributed. Yet, absolutely no indication was given that a copy or copies of the pamphlet were obtained by the Agents covering this speech.

It is obvious that such action should have been taken if the lecture was covered by Agents of your office. It is needless to point out that literature, pamphlets and other publications are of the utmost importance in the investigation of Communist Party activities and related matters.

These observations have been made so that there will be no recurrence of such a mistake in the future. Furthermore, you are requested to obtain a copy of each type of pamphlet which may have been distributed at the various lectures given by Harris.

Dear Sir:

Reference is made to Bureau letter dated May 10, 1943, requesting to be advised of the date of the speech made by Thomas L. Harris at the Springfield High School, Springfield, Illinois.

On Tuesday, March 23, 1943, in connection with a regular series of lectures being given by the Springfield Lecture Club at the Springfield High School, Mr. Harris lectured to approximately 450 persons. His lecture consisted entirely of the explanations of the political set-up in Russia, and reasons why the United States should make friends with them to know more clearly their way of living.

On March 24, 1943, similar addresses were made by him to the students of Lanphier High School and Feitshans High School in the city of Springfield.

At these lectures, a pamphlet on recommended readings, all pertaining to Russia and Communism, was distributed.

While at the committee meeting of the Council of American Soviet Friendship, and among a group which consisted of Mariel Draper, Charlotte Henig, Mr. & Mrs. Sam Levin, Regina Wilson, and Mariel Samuelson, a discussion arose about the Polish situation. The opinion of the above group was that a Polish government will be set up by the people of Poland who are now under the protection of the Soviet Union. The government in exile in London Mariel Draper said, does not speak for millions of Polish people.

This government in exile represents the wealthy and consists of collaborators who have kept the Polish people subjugated until they were freed by the Soviet Union, she said.

HISTORY

The NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC., according to the PEOPLE'S WORLD of April 15, 1943, was an outgrowth of the CONGRESS OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, which sponsored meetings throughout the country November 7th and 8th, 1942, in honor of the 25th anniversary of the Soviet revolution.

Re: NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC.;
formerly known as the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS; INTERNAL SECURITY - R (CP);
QUARTERLY REPORT, MAY 1, 1943.

As early as December, 1942, the National Office of the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS had changed its phone listing to the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP. However, the official change is believed to have occurred in March or April, 1943, and the PEOPLE'S WORLD of April 15, 1943, contains the original local announcement of the formation of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC. It will be noted that the National Chairman, the Treasurer, and the National Secretary of NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC. are identical with the former National Officers of the AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS.

AIMS AND PURPOSES:

According to CORLISS LAMONT, as quoted in the PEOPLE'S WORLD, the purpose of the National Congress "is to promote better understanding and strengthen friendly relations between the United States and the Soviet Union as essential for winning the war and establishing world-wide Democracy and an enduring peace. To this end the Council will take action against anti-Soviet propaganda aimed at dividing the United Nations."

ACTIVITIES:

The National Council is planning an American Soviet war exhibit to be held in New York, which will feature trophies captured from the Nazis by the Red Army, including special iron crosses prepared by the Nazis to commemorate the fall of Moscow and other graphic materials from the war fronts, never shown before in this country. The National Council, according to reports by the PEOPLE'S WORLD, has also organized a series of educational including films, pamphlets, exhibits, books, and speakers, which will be organized by local organizations and groups throughout the country. It is also now setting up local groups throughout the country to carry out the program. These groups will establish committees to work with trade unions, women's professional groups, and nationalities organizations. According to the Council's office, a local branch of the organization is now in the process of being organized in New York City which will have a strong tie-in with the motion picture industry.

QUARTERLY REPORT, MAY 1, 1943.

The headquarters and main inspiration for the group will be in the Hollywood District. Informants have advised that this organization while pretending to bring about better relations between the United States and Soviet Russia in reality is the puppet of the Communist Party in the United States and will be used to spread propaganda for Communism throughout the country and to work for the interest of the Soviet Union solely. It has already drawn to itself an impressive list of sponsors, totaling over 100, some of whom are undoubtedly "innocents", unaware of the real purpose or real control of the organization.

MEMBERSHIP:

This group is in its formative stages in Los Angeles and its membership can not be estimated at this time since it has not functioned to date.

TITLE NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP Formerly known as American Council on Soviet Relations.			CHARACTER OF CASE  INTERNAL SECURITY C

SYNOPSIS OF FACTS: The Milwaukee division of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, formerly known as American Council of Soviet Relations, has been successfully organized by Dr. TREDWELL SMITH of New York, in collaboration with JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, executive secretary of the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation, a leading Communist Party front organization, and NED SPARKS, state secretary of the Communist Party. ALICE HENDRICKSON, a well known Communist Party member, and assistant to JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, directed the expansion of this organization using Dr. LEE E. LAWRENCE, chairman, and WILLIAM SELL, secretary, as a front. The motive behind this group is stated to be an attempt to carry on popularization activity designed to acquaint the people of the United States with Russia, with the effect of close cooperation between United States and Soviet Russia, and to acquaint the people of United States with the contributions which the Soviet people have made to civilization. The activities of Subject organization revealed that it is merely a front for the Communist Party, to be used as a political tool to further the Communist Party objectives of pressing a second front and as a further means of recruiting new members. The major activities of Subject organization have been to successfully sponsor a 25th Anniversary of Soviet Russia Rally, and the appearance of Lieut. LIEUDMILLA PAVLICHENKO in Milwaukee, both of which were entirely controlled by Communist Party members.

REFERENCE: Report of Special Agent Charles L. Zink, dated at Milwaukee 10-1-42.

This organization maintains an office at 208 E. Wisconsin Avenue, room 1248 in the Bankers Building, Broadway 4486, and ALICE HENDRICKSON has charge of this office.

According to information furnished to this office from Confidential Informant [ ] and [ ] both of whom are known to the Bureau, it is apparent that the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation is a leading Communist Party front organization, and that this organization is directed by NED SPARKS, State Secretary of the Communist Party in Wisconsin. It is further apparent that the Communist Party is launching a campaign to attempt to break down existing prejudices in the minds of American people against Soviet Russia and the Communist system of government. The Communist Party is also endeavoring at this time to sell and spread as much Communist literature as possible with the hope of increasing their membership. To further these objectives, according to Confidential Informant [ ] Dr. TREDWELL SMITH, who is evidently an organizer for the national headquarters for the National Council of American Soviet Friendship located in New York, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, Executive Secretary of the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation, and NED SPARKS, on September 17, 1942, discussed plans for the completion of the organization of a Milwaukee Branch of this American Council on Soviet Friendship. It was learned by this informant that Dr. LEE E. LAWRENCE, as chairman, wrote to the national office for membership blanks, and it was planned that membership funds be planned on the basis of $5.00 per individual. All of the details pertaining to the organization of this new group were outlined by these individuals, and it was decided that BEATRICE WEISBERG, an active Communist member, and WILLIAM SELL, a sympathizer, were to be active in the organization activities. b7D

b7D

[ ] advised that on 9-5 BEATRICE WEISBERG held a conversation with JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND in regard to the organization plans of Subject group, and JOSEPHINE stated to her that her, BEATRICE's, ideas pertaining to this organization were all wrong, and that they needed people on the executive committee of the American Council on Soviet Friendship who were convinced and did not have to be educated. b7D

On 9-9-42, [ ] informed that WILLIAM SELL, now acting chairman of Subject organization, stated to JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND that he was still working diligently to organize a local committee for the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and added that ten persons planned to attend a meeting the following day and that they were working on plans for a mass meeting to be held in October at which time Dr. TREDWELL SMITH would be in Milwaukee. He further stated that this group planned to have meetings each week among the active workers, and that it was further planned to contact the International Student Service in an attempt to bring the three Russian sharp shooters for a meeting to be held sometime in October. b7D

In the course of this discussion, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND remarked that the American Council on Soviet Friendship was to be a long term committee, and that it was not desired to have people on it who would have to be converted to the Russian way of thinking.

This informant further advised that on 9-17-42, a further discussion pertaining to Subject organization was had by WILLIAM SELL and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND at which time the name of CHARLES DAY was considered as a possible chairman in place of WILLIAM SELL, himself. SELL mentioned that on 9-26 the International Student Group planned to speak before the Chicagoans in a demonstration, and that the American Council on Soviet Friendship desired to have their appearance in Milwaukee 9-27-42. It was further evident that a meeting was to be held that evening and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND instructed Mr. SELL to take a collection at this meeting and remarked that Mr. PHIL S. DAY should contribute $25.00 and CHARLES FRIEND should contribute $100.00. According to this informant, these individuals are having financial difficulties in the organization of this branch. The informant further advised that WILLIAM SELL has been definitely placed in position of secretary, and that BEATRICE WEISBERG is to act as treasurer of this group. In the course of this conversation, JOSEPHINE cautioned Mr. SELL about having it known generally that BEATRICE WEISBERG was a Communist Party member.

According to [ ] on 9-18-42, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and BEATRICE WEISBERG had a telephone conversation in which JOSEPHINE was very angry at BEATRICE WEISBERG because she had consented to serve as chairman on the American Council of Soviet Friendship at the request of REV. JOHN LEWIS, especially after they had told BEATRICE just how the American Council was to be organized. JOSEPHINE also had difficulties with BEATRICE regarding a charge which should be made for a dinner that was planned to be given in honor of Dr. BAKER in the near future. WEISBERG had stated to JOSEPHINE that if she, JOSEPHINE, desired to run this organization, she should come out in the open and run it. It will be noted later that BEATRICE WEISBERG did not go through with her threat to accept chairmanship of this organization.

[ ] supplied the following information: On 9-19-42, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and WILLIAM SELL again discussed the finances of this organization, and JOSEPHINE stated that money had to be obtained from some source, and suggested that WILLIAM SELL and BEATRICE WEISBERG advance money themselves for expenses since the organization has no funds. SELL stated that he had already advanced money and had paid for long distance telephone calls from there to Washington. Further discussion was had between BEATRICE WEISBERG and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND pertaining to the internal management of this organization, in which BEATRICE stated to JOSEPHINE that LAWRENCE DAY and Mrs. BERGER have to be considered in the American Council on Soviet Friendship organization, and cannot just be over-ruled as JOSEPHINE seems to think. BEATRICE further stated that she knew what they were attempting to accomplish and that she had a right to know if she was to be a committee member of the organization or not, and that she could not accept responsibility if she did not know what was going on behind the scenes. JOSEPHINE berates BEATRICE for becoming identified with the American Council on Soviet Friendship as an officer, when she knew the party wanted SELL to be nominally in charge, and did not want themselves directly associated with the organization.

b7D

JOSEPHINE told BEATRICE that she should devote all efforts to Russian War Relief, and that she should have handled herself in such a manner that she would not be involved in any American Council on Soviet Friendship business.

On the same day JOSEPHINE complained to NED SPARKS of the difficulties she is having with BEATRICE and NED SPARKS said, "Get BEATRICE WEISBERG out of the American Council on Soviet Friendship".

On 9-25, WILLIAM SELL had a conversation with JOSEPHINE in which he stated that six persons were present at a meeting of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and that some literature and movie tickets were sold, but that he was unable to collect any money. SELL stated that he did not feel big enough to handle other men with whom he has to deal in his capacity of secretary of this organization. He further stated that Mr. LAWRENCE had expressed a desire to withdraw from the chairmanship of this organization, and he blamed it on to BEATRICE WEISBERG's actions.

On 10-1, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, ALICE HENDRICKSON and WILLIAM SELL discussed the progress of this American Council on Soviet Friendship group, and a statement was made that BEATRICE WEISBERG has not worked out well. JOSEPHINE and ALICE decided that it would be better to remove BEATRICE from the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and to place her back in Russian War Relief, and WILLIAM SELL agreed to this change. SELL states that a Mr. LORENZ has worked out satisfactory on committees of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and SELL further advised that the American Council on Soviet Friendship was to obtain an office, secretary and stationery, etc., soon. JOSEPHINE gave SELL $20.00 to use for the expenses of American Council on Soviet Friendship, but she wanted it back. She told him to obtain contributions of $25.00 each from Mr. CHARLES FRIEND, PHIL S. DAY, and Mr. LORENZ, who are members of the local organization. SELL replied that he had $18.00 tied up already. SELL made mention of the formation of plans for a dinner party to be given by the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and DR. TREDWELL SMITH, who would be the principle speaker.

Confidential Informant [ ] further advised that on 11-23-42, Mr. ELI JOFFE, a young-party worker, and a defendant in a recent Oklahoma Case against Communists, called at the office of JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, and in the course of the conversation, JOSEPHINE explained to him the functions of the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation, stating that at the present time they were working with the American Council on Soviet Friendship for a rally to be held in the honor of Lieut. Pavlichenko.

This office received teletype message of 10-2-42 stating that Dr. TREDWELL SMITH, New York, plans to be speaker at a meeting to be held at 312 Milwaukee Avenue, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. It further stated that Dr. SMITH was in Chicago 10-1-42, and ordered pamphlets on "Soviet Russia Today" to take over to the meeting hall in Milwaukee.

[ ] further advised that on October 2, 1942, Mr. WILLIAM SELL, and ALICE HENDRICKSON discussed plans in regard to a dinner party to be held that night at the Milwaukee Athletic Club. [ ] further expressed his opinion that there is no question about ALICE HENDRICKSON being the main driving force behind the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and that she leads Mr. SELL about getting him acquainted with the right persons. [ ] believes that she uses him as a "front" where she is known as a Communist.

JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND remarked to SELL that this organization was sponsoring a movement intended to educate the people and break down the lies that have been circulating in the past regarding the Soviet Union, and Josef Stalin. [ ] advised that a meeting of the Milwaukee Committee of the National Council on Soviet Friendship, at the City Club, Room H, located at

b7D

756 North Milwaukee Street on the night of 10-2-42, which was given in honor of Dr. TREDWELL SMITH. He advised that the admission price was $1.00 and approximately 28 persons were present. Among those noted were:

Dr. TREDWELL SMITH	Mr. and Mrs. EDW. JONES
Prof. LEE LAWRENCE	MAX GELINE
Mr. and Mrs. SELL	WALTER POLAKOWSKI
Mr. and Mrs. HENDRICKSON	Mr. RICHARDS
BEATRICE WEISSBERG	Rev. JOHN LEWIS
Mrs. TURNEY (colored)	Mrs. AMOS (colored)
Mrs. GOULD (school teacher)	Mrs. MITIGER (school teacher)
Mrs. GILDEN (colored)

Dr. SMITH spoke on the purpose of the meeting stating that they were attempting to break down the lies and misconception the American people have toward the Soviet Union. He stated that they intended to support President Roosevelt's program. He further stated that they intended to counteract any movement which might try to create disunity and distrust in the allied nations. He stated that the fundamental objective was to improve the friendly relations between Soviet Russia and the United States. He further told of the prejudices and other internal disturbances in the Soviet Union within a nine year period, and which were solved by the Soviets within that period, which, in his opinion could be compared with the problems that existed in America. Mr. SMITH told of seeing with his own eyes the vast transformations which took place in the Soviet Union, when he was there, and that these transformations are now showing themselves in the present war. He stated that if it was not for these transformations such as collective farming, industrialization of communities, the war might have been already lost. Mr. SMITH spoke of traveling between Milwaukee, Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland. According to a statement made by JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND to this informant, Mr. SMITH used to take visitors about in the Soviet Union.

This informant further advised at this meeting there was a short question period, and a further informal discussion of ways and means of holding a rally approximately November 8th at the Milwaukee Auditorium. JOSEPH DAVIS, former ambassador of Russia, was suggested as a speaker. It was noted that Rev. JOHN LEWIS, WILLIAM SELL and BEATRICE WEISSBERG controlled most of the conversation. Mr. SELL and Mr. RICHARDS passed out application blanks for the American Council on Soviet Friendship and attempted to sell Soviet literature such as "Soviet Russia Today" and other pamphlets.

The Milwaukee Sentinel issued 10-3-42, carried an article in discussion of this meeting in which it stated that the American Council on Soviet Relations (known now as American Council on Soviet Friendship) began its activities with a dinner meeting Friday night at the City Club. Dr. TREDWELL SMITH, world traveler, and representative of the National Council, conducted a forum on means of overcoming public prejudices against Russia. The American Council, which was organized in Washington by JOSEPH DAVIS, former ambassador to Russia, has its committee of Dr. L. E. LAWRENCE, REV. JOHN LEWIS, DR. FRANK E. BAKER, BERNARD ADAMKIEWICZ, Chairman of the Milwaukee All-Slav Group, WALDEMAR SONNEMANN, Mrs. C. F. TURNEY, ARTHUR RICHARDS, Mrs. META BERGER, PHIL S. DAY, CHARLES FRIEND, BEATRICE WEISSBERG and Dr. HENRY ALBERT. Dr. SMITH, in a speech, stated that the Russian army is the best educated in the world. He pointed out that the Russians are a serious people. He stated that the reason they fought so well against our common enemy was due to the fact that they practice equality among races and among human beings. He stated that the relationship among the United Nations is being tested now as never before. Ignorance, ill will and suspicion toward Russia, on the part of our people, hold us back in our war effort.

The Milwaukee Journal dated 10-3-42, carried an article regarding the meeting reporting practically the same information as previously reported with the additional information that a cocktail party was held after the main meeting, the benefits received having been contributed to the Russian War Relief.

[ ] advised that on 10-3-42, Dr. TREDWELL SMITH talked by long distance telephone to SOPHIE AMES, also known as Mrs. RICHARD BOYER, in New York, relative to arrangements for a first-rate speaker for the meeting planned to be held in Milwaukee on November 8th, to be sponsored by the local committee of the American Council on Soviet Friendship. (It is believed that Miss SOPHIE AMES is associated with the International Students Service of New York). He also asked her how the Milwaukee office of the American Council on Soviet Friendship could be financed, and whether he should use some of his own expense money order checks, or whether she would forward money to defray expenses. Mr. SMITH stated that the rent for the contemplated office would be approximately $25.00 per month, and that it would necessitate another $15.00 per week salary expenses for office help. In this connection, it was learned from Confidential Informant [ ] that a telegram was received from Miss SOPHIE AMES dated October 3, advising that the American Council on Soviet Friendship had sent a check for $70.00, $25.00 of which was to be used as rent, and $15.00 applied toward salary expenses, each week.

Confidential Informant [ ] further advised that on October 3, Dr. SMITH talked over the telephone to Prof. LEIGH E. LAWRENCE, professor at the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee, and advised him that he had made a request of the New York office for a prominent speaker, and had also taken up the expenses for a local office and also defray the expenses of a secretary. He also made an appointment to discuss the American Council on Soviet Friendship at a meeting that afternoon, and stated that he would contact Dr. ALBERT and BEATRICE WEISBERG. He told Dr. LAWRENCE to contact the other parties.

b7D

[ ] advised that on 10-3, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, ALICE HENDRICKSON, Dr. SMITH and FRED BASSETT BLAIR held a meeting at which they discussed the October 2nd meeting of the newly organized American Council on Soviet Friendship, and Dr. SMITH made a long distance phone call to JACK RASKIN, believed to be a relative of JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, in Detroit, and also to a woman in New York (believed to be Miss SOPHIE AMES) informing them of the promising outlook, and the successful expansion of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and made a request for a prominent speaker for a meeting which they planned to hold November 8th, which was referred to as a mass rally.

In the course of the discussion, the possibility of setting up a local office was mentioned, and JOSEPHINE pointed out to Dr. SMITH that

ALICE HENDRICKSON was the logical person to be put in charge of such an office. It was agreed among those present that Dr. SMITH was to convince Prof. LAWRENCE that ALICE was the most available and logical person for the position. Dr. SMITH then advised JOSEPHINE that he was supposed to handle the organization work for the American Council on Soviet Friendship in Cleveland, Chicago, New York, and Milwaukee and he planned to leave it up to her and ALICE to obtain an office and place someone in charge of the Milwaukee unit.

[ ] suggested that it was JOSEPHINE's plan to have HENDRICKSON take over the local organization of American Council on Soviet Friendship, and that she would attend to the political activities of said organization.

b7D

[ ] advised that on 10-6, it was learned that Dr. SMITH and Mr. SELL were active making contacts with parties in an attempt to obtain proper sponsoring for the committee of the local unit. Contacts were made with Dr. LAWRENCE, ARTHUR RICHARDS, TED FRIEDLANDER, and REV. KILPINSKI. [ ] further advised on this date that Dr. SMITH had made a request of NED SPARKS for permission to use ALICE HENDRICKSON as the person to place in charge of the local office of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and SPARKS expressed his opinion that there was some danger in using Miss HENDRICKSON in such capacity due to the fact that she would not be able to work publicly. Dr. SMITH then pointed out to NED, Milwaukee to be the only city in the middle west to have a mass meeting for the American Council on Soviet Friendship at the time of the Congress of the American Council on Soviet Friendship which was to be held in New York. He further expressed the opinion that if a meeting was held in Milwaukee, he thought it entirely possible that meetings could be arranged in Chicago and Detroit. He further stated that meetings have been stymied because the party had definite obligations for Browder meetings.

At this point, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND interrupted the conversation to state that if DOROTHY THOMPSON or an equivalent speaker for the Milwaukee meeting were obtained, that such meeting could be held in the Milwaukee Auditorium.

NED SPARKS stated that in his opinion, the contemplated signature campaign of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, intended to convey greetings to Stalin, was of little value, but that mass meetings for the benefit of the second front issue would have a certain amount of publicity effect. NED SPARKS emphatically pointed out that he did not intend to accept any half-way meetings, and instructed Dr. SMITH to either obtain a prominent speaker for their affair, or else HENDRICKSON could not be used as a promoter for the American Council on Soviet Friendship.

[ ] further advised that on October 9, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, while talking to Mr. HAROLD PRIERE, made the statement that the American Council on Soviet Friendship was intended to be a long time committee, and that it was desired that the organization be composed of persons who would not have to be converted into Communism.

[ ] further advised that VERA JACOBSEN held a conversation with JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND in which she stated that the American/Slav Council was planning to vote that evening on the question of whether or not a delegate of that group should be sent to the American Council on Soviet Friendship which was going to be held in the City of New York on November 7th and 8th, and [ ] further advised that it was learned that the Slav Council voted against this proposal.

The Milwaukee Sentinel dated 10-14-42, published an article which stated that plans had been drawn up for the opening of a downtown office of the Milwaukee Chapter of the American Council on Soviet Relations, had been announced by BEATRICE WEISBERG, a member of the Milwaukee Committee. This office will be opened this week, she had stated. The address of this office, according to literature, is 221 E. Wisconsin Avenue.

[ ] advised that on September 9, WILLIAM SELL held a conversation with JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND in which he stated that he had talked to the Russian Embassy and that they had advised that it would be impossible to arrange to have the Russian Sharp Shooters, referring to Lieut. Pavlichenka, appear in Milwaukee for the November meeting, and advised that he should write the International Student Service in New York City for further information. SELL remarked that Pavlichenka was undoubtedly tired of traveling in the United States. JOSEPHINE then advised that if Pavlichenka was a real Communist, she would be glad to make the sacrifice. SELL stated that he pleaded with the party at the Russian Embassy, and that this individual only laughed at him giving him the impression that there were much more important organizations than theirs seeking this noted Russian heroine. Mr. SELL and ALICE HENDRICKSON, on the same day, according to [ ], prepared a letter to be addressed to Max Litvanoff of the Soviet Embassy, to assure the Embassy that if Lieut. Pavlichenka did appear in Milwaukee, they could guarantee at least 6,000 people would attend a meeting in her honor. They further advised that such a meeting would help the war effort.

The Washington Field Division advised, in letter received by this office 10-12-42, that it had been learned from a highly confidential source, that WILLIAM SELL, 4310 North 17th Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin, had communicated with the Soviet Embassy in Washington, D. C. by extending an invitation for the Russian Heroine presently visiting this country, to travel to Milwaukee, and expressed confidence that a large audience would be gathered to hear her.

[ ] advised further that on September 18, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and LESTER WICKSTRUM of the Young Communist League, discussed plans for the presence of the three Russian Sharp Shooters, Lieut. Pavlichenka, and her aids and it was definitely agreed that the American Council on Soviet Friendship should sponsor their appearance in Milwaukee. JOSEPHINE stated that Lieut. Pavlichenka was to attend a reception in her honor at the Chicago Armory, sponsored by the Chicago Committee for the Russian War Relief.

According to [ ], JOSEPHINE then contacted EMIL COSTELLO of the CIO and asked him to make an attempt to bring Pavlichenka to Milwaukee. Mr. COSTELLO suggested that she and WALTER BURKE of the CIO send a letter or a wire requesting Lieut. Pavlichenka's appearance at the State Conference of the

b7D

CIO. According to [ ] in a later conversation on the same date, JOSEPHINE stated to ALICE HENDRICKSON that they would have to handle the organization in connection with the appearance of Pavlichenka; Russian War Relief, American Council on Soviet Friendship, and the Young Communist League did not have sufficient experience. JOSEPHINE, in continuing her conversation with Mr. WICKSTRUM, said to leave the plans for this affair up to ALICE and herself as they knew how to handle those things, and that this meeting would be easy to handle as it had public appeal and will be considered as a civic affair, although the American Council on Soviet Friendship would be the sponsor.

In a later conversation on the same date, according to this informant, NED SPARKS, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and BEATRICE WEISBERG discussed the various plans for the appearance of this individual, and it was suggested that Pavlichenka appear at a local theatre as part of the Russian War Relief movie program, and the possibility of joining this rally to the CIO convention was also mentioned. BEATRICE advised that the Community Fund might sponsor the shooter, in connection with the Russian War Relief, American Council on Soviet Friendship, and at this point, SPARKS became very angry, and stated, "If the Community Fund dares to put a finger on it, we will break their G--- D--- necks".

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that EMIL COSTELLO, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and MEL HEINRITZ were making plans to send a delegation to Mayor Bohn to have him invite Lieut. Pavlichenka to Milwaukee.

b7D

On 10-7, according to [ ], VIRGINIA SCHULL of the Russian War Relief, phoned the office of the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation to advise that the Russian girl sharp shooter, Lieut. Pavlichenka, would be in Milwaukee on 10-15, and JOSEPHINE answered that immediate action would be necessary. VIRGINIA stated that she had received her information in a telegram from the Russian Embassy, and JOSEPHINE stated that the Rally for Lieut. Pavlichenka ought to be sponsored by the Milwaukee County Council of Civilian Defense as a civic rally and then a real job could be done for the second front, as a civic rally.

b7D

On the same date, it was learned from this informant that ALICE HENDRICKSON, who was in Chicago, had contacted JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, and that JOSEPHINE had ordered her to return to Milwaukee at once to start work on the Pavlichenka rally. In the same connection, BEATRICE WEISBERG contacted Dr. BAKER and advised him that there would be a meeting of the American Council on Soviet Relations sponsors that night in order to make arrangements for the Pavlichenka Rally, which they were sponsoring.

Also, informant stated, on the same date SPARKS called at the office of JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation in order to discuss the Pavlichenka affair. JOSEPHINE suggested that a City Hall affair or reception should be arranged for the heroine, and that she should be taken on a tour of the city and a visit to the Allis Chalmers Company, super-charger plant, with a large dinner to be planned at the Milwaukee Athletic Club that evening. She further suggested that the Navy should be responsible for Pavlichenka up until the time of the meeting. JOSEPHINE expressed her desire that the city should finance the affair, and she mentioned that Air Raid Wardens might be used to distribute leaflets announcing the rally. NED SPARKS stated that the City Auditorium should be the location of the Rally, and that it ought to be donated by the city. JOSEPHINE then indicated a desire to charge admission but to fill the Auditorium free of charge, and then to take up a collection. SPARKS suggested that the collection should be taken up after the auditorium is filled. SPARKS suggested the collection should be built up as a joint Community Chest and Stalingrad Day Contribution in honor of Pavlichenka. JOSEPHINE desired that arrangements be made to have a mass signing of Second Front postal cards. It was further agreed between NED SPARKS and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND that the Mayor should declare a Stalingrad Day, that Lieut. Pavlichenka should be taken on a tour of the city and that a parade should be held in her honor lead by a band, and containing sailors, soldiers, WAACS, WAVES, etc., and that at the end of the meeting a collection should be taken up.

According to [ ] a discussion of this affair was continued on the following day, October 8th, with JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, WILLIAM SELL, LESTER WICKSTRUM, VIRGINIA SHULL, BEATRICE WEISBERG, and NED SPARKS present at this meeting, all offering suggestions pertaining to this Pavlichenka Rally. It was the opinion of this informant that WILLIAM SELL is acting as the "go between" for JOSEPHINE, CIO, and Mayor Bohn. According to this Informant, it was agreed by these individuals that the Milwaukee Auditorium should be used for the Rally, and that there would be a charge of 40¢ per person with the money obtained to be turned over to Russian War Relief. Air Raid Wardens were to distribute papers. A collection should also be taken up at the meeting for money to go to the Russian War Relief. Literature was to be distributed at this affair, such as circulars urging a Second Front, and the use of Second Front postcards. The meeting was to be sponsored by the city office of the Civilian Defense Committee, and the city officers should take care of the program, entertainment, etc.

At this gathering, JOSEPHINE drew up a statement to be presented to Acting-Mayor Bohn which would declare October 15 as Stalingrad Day in honor of Lieut. Pavlichenka. It was planned that SELL should work out the details of the meeting, and should attempt to get the use of the Auditorium, rent free. SELL was also to request Father Kilpinski to appear at the Mayor's office as a member of a committee composed of Rev. LEWIS, BERNARD ADAMKIEWICZ, and himself to arrange the proper civic welcome for Lieut. Pavlichenka.

BEATRICE WEISBERG advised Dr. LEE LAWRENCE by telephone that a Stalingrad Day proclamation had been drawn up to be presented to the Mayor, that an attempt is being made to obtain use of the auditorium, rent free. In a discussion with ALICE HENDRICKSON, BEATRICE discussed the possibility of selling 300 copies of the "Soviet Relations" at the Pavlichenka meeting. BEATRICE WEISBERG then telephoned Col. Otjen asking him to speak at the mass meeting of the Pavlichenka affair being sponsored by the American Council on Soviet Friendship. BEATRICE then telephoned Lt. Comm. Alexis and advised him that the city council and Mayor were assisting in the organization of the Pavlichenka Rally, and that representatives of the army and navy were desired. She suggested that there be an induction of sailors at the Rally, and wondered about the possibility of obtaining a navy band to take part in the program.

The Milwaukee Journal dated 10-9-42, carried an article in which it was stated that plans for the visit here next Thursday of a Russian woman war hero, Lieutenant Pavlichenko, who was credited with slaying 309 Germans, were made by Acting Mayor Bohn, and a committee consisting of LEE LAWRENCE, Chairman; WILLIAM SELL; FATHER KELPINSKI; and Rev. JOHN LEWIS, which committee called at the Mayor's office Friday afternoon to arrange the details.

According to [ ] on 10-10, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and ALICE HENDRICKSON advised WILLIAM SELL that he was doing a wonderful job on the Pavlichenko meeting.

b7D

Confidential Informant [ ], whose identity is known to the Bureau, advised that on 10-10-42, a lady, whose identity he did not know, visited the office of the State Communist Party, and asked FRED BLAIR, who is the chairman of the Wisconsin State Communist Party, District 18, if there was going to be a parade in connection with the visit of Lieut. Pavlichenko, the Russian sniper, and he informed her that there would be a parade in which many high school bands would participate.

b7D

On October 14, according to [ ], Mr. LESTER WICKSTRUM held a conversation with JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and stated that a scroll for the Soviet youth had been arranged, and would be signed at the young people's dinner for Pavlichenko to be held at the Y. M. C. A. He further stated that young people from all organizations, including Negroes, are to attend this dinner. JOSEPHINE had suggested that the scroll be read by the Mayor at the Pavlichenko Rally in a matter of fact manner as if it were in the ordinary course of affairs.

b7D

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that on 10-15, ALICE WARD, the wife of NED SPARKS, informed ELIZABETH BLAIR that she would be unable to procure a table inside the auditorium on the night of October 15 in order to sell "Soviet Russia Today".

b7D

This informant further advised that GRACE EISENCHER, ETHEL ISAACS, and LILLIAN BOBLIN plan to assist the Communist Party in the sale of literature at the Pavlichenko Rally. It is noted that these individuals are known for their activity in Communist Party affairs.

On the same date, according to this informant, Mr. GORDON HAY visited the Communist Party headquarters, and obtained leaflets to be distributed.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that ALICE HENDRICKSON had made the statement in regard to the sale of "Soviet Russia Today" at the Pavlichenko Rally, that in her opinion, the Civilian Defense Council does not dare to stop the sale of the literature in the auditorium while Pavlichenko was here. She further stated that ARTHUR RICHTER, CIO attorney, looked up the laws on this point, and advised that there was no legal barrier preventing the distribution of literature at this affair.

b7D

[ ] further advised that on this date JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND advised NED SPARKS that SELL had made an announcement of the Pavlichenko Rally before a meeting of the German society, and after this announcement there had been some discussion as to why a Communist meeting should be announced at their affair.

b7D

On 10-13, JOSEPHINE was heard to state that she had recently asked the Jewish radio hour to announce the arrival of Lieut. Pavlichenko, and that the man at the radio station had inquired if the Communists were behind the rally. JOSEPHINE also made the statement that she desired all social centers, Marquette University, High Schools, and Vocational School to be supplied with literature pertaining to this affair.

The Milwaukee Journal dated 10-12-42, contained an article in which it was stated that Acting-Mayor Bohn received a letter from V. HOZYKIN, Secretary of the Russian Embassy at Washington, D. C. advising him to contact the Mayor of Cleveland concerning the arrival of Lieut. Pavlichenko.

THOMAS WHITE, SR., President of the State CIO, has appointed a committee of five, including WALTER J. BURKE, State Secretary and Treasurer of the Wisconsin Industrial Union Council; MEYER ADELMAN, who is secretary and treasurer of the Milwaukee County Industrial Union Council; NATHAN GARFIELD, of the CIO and GEORGE BRADOW, Organizer for the International Fur and Leather Workers Union, and himself.

The Milwaukee Journal dated 10-12-42 printed an article entitled "Heroine Rally Speakers Told", and stated Mayor Bohn, Lieut. Ellick, Col. Otjen to help honor Russian woman. This article goes on to say that speakers at the civic rally in honor of 26 year old Russian War Heroine, will include Mayor John L. Bohn, Lieut. Gerald C. Ellick, Col. C. J. Otjen, Commander of the Wisconsin-Upper Michigan internal security district. The visit of Lieut. Pavlichenko is being sponsored by the Milwaukee Civilian Defense Council and the Milwaukee Committee of the American Council on Soviet Relations. WILLIAM SELL of the Milwaukee Committee stated Monday that other speakers would be announced later. The article points out that Lieut. Pavlichenko fought in the defense of Odessa and Sevastopol and was wounded four times. She is credited with shooting 309 Germans and has received awards including the order of Lenin, the highest decoration of the Soviet.

The Milwaukee Sentinel issue dated 10-14 carried an article pertaining to the Pavlichenko Rally in which it stated that "a full day was in store for the Russian girl in Milwaukee. She is to be a guest at a reception at the City Hall after which she will attend a Community War Chest meeting and sign a Press club plaque. She is scheduled to make a tour of war plants; a dinner is scheduled in her honor at the Y.M.C.A. Preceding an evening rally in the Auditorium there will be a parade. Thursday is set out by Acting-Mayor Bohn as Russian Heroine Day." It will be noted that these plans for the Pavlichenko Rally are nearly identical with the arrangements previously decided upon by NED SPARKS and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that on October 15, 1942, from approximately 7:45 P.M. to 10:40 P.M. a Rally was held in the Milwaukee Auditorium in honor of Lieut. Pavlichenko, which was sponsored by the Civilian

b7D

Mrs. GRACE EISENSCHER had a table in the hallway of the West Side of the auditorium where she sold "Soviet Russia Today", "The Soviet Power", and the usual run of Communist literature.

Mrs. ELYNOR JONES and other Communists had a table on the East Side where they sold the opportunity to sign your name at 10¢ each to a greeting to be sent to the Soviet Union. This was under the sponsorship of the American Council on Soviet Relations.

AGNES JESSEN, Mrs. RUTH COLEMAN, Mrs. NADA HUDSON, Mrs. ZOLATA BUXTON, Mrs. MARGARET BUXTON and others sold the magazine "Soviet Russia Today" in the main hall.

Among the ushers were Mrs. GOLDIE BRADOW, GLORIA YANKOFF, and other Communists and members of the Young Communist League.

According to this informant, among the speakers on the platform were Prof. LEE LAWRENCE, who was the chairman; SAM MC KILLIP representing Mayor Bohn, Lt. Ellick, Col. Otjen, MEYER ADELMAN, WALTER BURKE, NATHAN GARFIELD, HAROLD CHRISTOFFEL, all of the C.I.O.; JAMES DORSEY, ARTHUR RICHTER, REV. JOHN LEWIS, Mrs. MARY O. KRYSZAK, FRANK GREGORSKI, and others.

The speakers each had a word of welcome, and pledged all out support of the war effort. Rev. JOHN LEWIS attacked pacifism and isolationism, and then made a collection speech. According to this informant, it was estimated that about $1,500.00 was collected from the audience to be turned over to the Russian War Relief. Among the larger donations was one of $100.00 from the Russian I. W. O. Lodge 3099, a donation of $100.00 was received from another source, a donation of $165.00 was received from Mrs. BORNSTEIN, Mrs. GREEN and Mrs. WICHMAN. It seems that these three women ran a card party to raise this amount. After the donations were received ushers passed a plate around to get the small amounts, and all money was turned over to a woman on the stage believed to be VIRGINIA SCHOLL, of Russian War Relief.

JAMES DORSEY, a colored attorney, made a short speech urging the audience to purchase more War Bonds. HAROLD CHRISTOFFEL told of the support that labor is giving to the war effort.

Lieut. PAVLICHENKO spoke in her native Russian tongue and her remarks were interpreted by Nona Anderson. Lieut. Pavlichenko related the events of her life in the Soviet Union, and her activities in the war as a sniper, and told of the Nazi atrocities in the occupied cities or villages of Russia.

The following information pertaining to this meeting was furnished by Detectives F. W. Doyle and Harold Witte of the Milwaukee Police Department:

According to these informants, the Pavlichenko meeting got under way with the entrance of Lieut. Pavlichenko with a color guard consisting of the flags of the Allied Nations, and Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts, and Sea Scouts. The Sea Scouts were under the direction of Skipper Wandell, and were also stationed at the inner entrance of the Auditorium distributing literature for membership in the American Council on Soviet Relations.

The honor guests on the stage were introduced by Dr. LEE LAWRENCE, and those individuals not previously mentioned were Major H. Walters of the army, JAMES DORSEY, Dr. JOHN LEWIS, WILLIAM SELL. Dr. LEE LAWRENCE, chairman of the Council on Soviet Relations, introduced the honored guest. The ushers were Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, and Sea Scouts, and also some known Communists such as FANNY SILBER and HAZEL FEINBERG. The collection was taken by the ushers and announced over the microphone by Rev. LEWIS, Pastor of Calvary Presbyterian Church. He announced the large donors such as those previously mentioned, and others. Several Communists were noted to have assisted in the collection of the money. When the money was collected, it was turned over to Dr. ALPERT and wife, who with the auditor counted the money, the actual count being $2087.17. The money was then taken to the West Allis bank and deposited.

These informants noted that Miss VIRGINIA SCHULL, an English Teacher from a college in Michigan, was much in prominence. Miss SCHULL, and a friend by the name of Miss Friend, were the ones who signed for the Auditorium. Miss SCHULL also took the flowers to Lieut. Pavlichenko's room at the Schroeder Hotel. Miss SCHULL signed for William Sell, Secretary of the American Council on Soviet Relations, 208 E. Wisconsin Avenue, Room 1248 Bankers Building, when signing for the Auditorium. (This office, it was stated by the Bankers Building office, is rented to Dr. Lee Lawrence and William Sell, Secretary of the American Council on Soviet Relations.

These informants recognized BEATRICE WEISBERG, 2556 North 67th Street, a Jewish Social Worker, due to her activity in making arrangements, and recalled that she had also made arrangements for the Soviet Relations meeting which was held at the City Club in Milwaukee.

These informants also noticed the following additional individuals to be Communists taking active parts: Mrs. BLAIR, JOHN SEKOT, HAZEL FEINBERG, MARGARET MEISTER and numerous Jewish people with Communistic leanings.

The following information was received from acting Detective Arthur W. Zeltner of the Milwaukee Police Department:

This informant states that the Milwaukee Auditorium, in which the Pavlichenko meeting was held on October 15, was decorated with United States flags, and several red flags and signs along the balcony rails which read, "Long live United States-Soviet Friendship", "For a Total Victory over the Fascist Axis", "Milwaukee Greets Stalingrad - Symbol of Courage", "Welcome Lt. Luidmila Pavlichenko". The drop at the rear of the stage had a large United States flag at the right side, and a large Russian flag at the left side, and a band played martial airs for music.

Russian magazines were sold by young women who stated that they were programs in order to increase their sales. The magazine was 15¢. The ushers were supplied by the Milwaukee Committee of the American Council of Soviet Relations. This informant states that he had seen many of the ushers at previous Communistic rallies. This informant also stated that Sea, Boy, and Girl Scouts were used for the distribution of future Russian War Relief Committee affairs to be held at the Pabst Theatre. One was a hand bill announcing the motion picture entitled "Moscow Strikes Back"; and another was "Salute to our Soviet Ally!"; "25th Anniversary of Soviet 4th of July, November 7, 1917" to be held at the Pabst Theatre Sunday, November 8 at 1:30 P.M. The Scouts also handed out subscriptions which invited persons to become members.

Dr. LEE E. LAWRENCE of 815 E. Knapp Street, was chairman of the Rally. This informant also states that thirteen Air Corps cadets were inducted and sworn into the service on the stage by Major Henry O. Walters of the Army Induction Center. He further advised that Rev. JOHN LEWIS spoke on the matter "The church's duty in the war", and later conducted a collection, which, according to this informant, exceeded $2500.00.

The following additional information pertaining to the Pavlichenko Rally, was obtained from Detectives Richard Jeske and Herbert Holsen of the Milwaukee Police Department:

These informants noticed that on both sides of the entrance doors to the main arena were tables stacked with Communist literature and albums of phonograph records of Soviet music. According to these informants, one of the women, who would identify herself only as "Irene", who was probably IRENE HERSCH, sold the Constitution of USSR in book form, and made the following statement "This is the Soviet constitution. It is almost like ours, but has a few better points added". It was noticed that just inside the main entrance doors Sea Scouts handed out what they said were subscription blanks for membership to the American Council on Soviet Relations. A woman who had charge of these blanks gave her name as Mrs. ALICE HENDERSON; a co-worker said her name was HENDRICKSON.

According to these informants, this Rally turned out to be an agitation to a second front. Every speaker except the Army and Navy officers and Attorney JAMES DORSEY made strong appeals to the audience to get a second front started. DORSEY, who called Lieut. Pavlichenko a "modern Joan of Arc" confined his talk to an appeal for the all-out purchase of United States War Bonds.

An appeal for donations was made by REV. JOHN LEWIS, and it was answered by donations in size from $165.00 to $5.00. A collection was then taken up with a total amount of approximately $2500.00 received from the crowd.

Among the persons present frequently seen at Communist gatherings, and believed to be either Communists, or closely associated therewith, were noted MEYER ADELMAN of the CIO; LYLE OLSON, Workers' Alliance organizer; MAX GELINE, Attorney for CIO Council. These informants also advised that the members of the Milwaukee Committee of the American Council on Soviet Relations, according to the City Directory, were as follows:

The Milwaukee Journal, in issue dated 10-16-42, carried an extensive article in which it states that "Five Thousand Hear Talk by Russian Girl at the Auditorium". This article does not contain any additional information other than descriptive material, but substantiates the fact that approximately $2500.00 was donated at this meeting.

The Milwaukee Sentinel in issue dated 10-18-42, carried an article in regard to the Pavlichenko Rally and stated that some 6,000 persons went to the Auditorium Thursday Night to hear the message of Sr. Lieut. Pavlichenko of the Russian Army. Pavlichenko made a sincere plea for a second front pointing out the fact that Russia is fighting for her life, and states that she needs assistance at this time.

[ ] advised that in his opinion, NED SPARKS was very pleased with the publicity received as a result of the Pavlichenko Rally on October 16.

b7D

Confidential Informant [ ] whose identity is known to the Bureau, on November 27th furnished a copy of a letter believed to be dated November 18th, (part of the letter missing), written by NED SPARKS to Comrade Williamson in which is pointed out the reaction of the Pavlichenko Rally. He points out in this letter that the celebration consisted of two parts; first, on October 15 the Pavlichenko Rally, and the second on November 8, the date of the American Council on Soviet Friendship presentation of meeting of the 25th anniversary of the Russian revolution. He states that the Pavlichenko visit was treated as a first class major occasion, the Mayor announced it as a Russian Heroine Day (The Mayor of Cudahy), and West Allis proclaimed it Salingrad Day. It further states that the city cooperated with a full program including a reception in the Mayor's chambers.

b7D

[ ] on October 16 advised that he had noticed that JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND was greatly excited and happy over the publicity received as a result of the Pavlichenko Rally.

b7D

Confidential Informant [ ], whose identity is known to the Bureau, advised ETHEL ISAACS, active Communist member, that the American Council on Soviet Friendship is liable to be forced to pay for the use of the Milwaukee Auditorium in which Lieut. Pavlichenko spoke. The taking of a collection by her has been termed subterfuge by the city attorneys. It seemed that the city may be able to pay the rent of the rallies for patriotic purposes, but not if an admission is charged.

b7D

In the Milwaukee Sentinel dated 10-17-42, an article headed, "Auditorium Rent Demand is under Study by Wendt; Collection Taken for Russia may Violate City Charter", it states that William H. Wendt, City Comptroller, said that he would study all facts concerning the taking of a collection from the audience of Lieut. Pavlichenko, Russian Woman soldier, at the Auditorium Thursday night. Before approving the payment by the city of the $375.00 rental, this would be taken into consideration, because there was a possibility that the collection was a violation of the City Charter. More than $2500.00 was raised in the audience, which was admitted without charge to the building. Charles W. Babcock, Assistant City Attorney, said he had been queried early in the week by persons representing the Milwaukee Council on Soviet Relations, sponsor of the affair, and had informed them that the City Charter provides that when the City pays whole rental for a public purpose, the meeting is free, and they will consider the taking of a collection a subterfuge. LEE LAWRENCE, chairman of the Milwaukee Chapter, American Council on Soviet Friendship, declared that the organization had been advised that it was within its rights in accepting the contributions.

[ ] advised that on 10-17-42, ALICE HENDRICKSON, WILLIAM SELL and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND met to discuss the results of the Pavlichenko Rally. The question of the payment of rent for the Auditorium was discussed and it was decided that it was probably preferable to pay the rent that was demanded by the City in order to offset the bad publicity resulting from making the illegal collection. It was decided that Attorney Richter should handle the matter. The City of Milwaukee had offered to pay the rent of $375.00 for the hall, but that this offer had now been cancelled making it mandatory on the Soviet Council to pay the expense of this meeting.

An article in the Milwaukee Journal dated 10-17-42, states that Ass't. City Attorney, Charles W. Babcock brands the taking of a collection at the Pavlichenko Rally a subterfuge. The article states that the actual amount was $2048.03, which amount was turned over to Russian War Relief.

An article in the Milwaukee Sentinel dated 10-20-42 reflects that the rent demanded by the City of Milwaukee in the amount of $375.00 was paid by the American Council on Soviet Friendship. The decision to make this payment was related to the City Attorney, Walter J. Mattison by CHARLES FRIEND, member of the committee.

According to both confidential informants [ ] and [ ], the Pavlichenko meeting was promoted and controlled by the Communist Party through JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, executive of the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation using the American Council on Soviet Friendship as a front organization.

b7D

[ ] advised that on 10-17, CARL SEUTZ, Secretary of the Federation of German Societies, told JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND in her office that the Germans had been saying that Pavlichenko is none other than a Russian propagandist. On this same day this informant advised that BEATRICE WEISBERG told JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND that the Better Business Bureau had inquired into the nature of the American Council on Soviet Friendship and JOSEPHINE told her not to answer the letter of the Better Business Bureau but to turn it over to the Committee for the American Council on Soviet Friendship to handle.

According to [ ] it was learned that a congress of the American Council on Soviet Friendship planned to sponsor a similar mass rally in New York City November 7th and 8th, and that the local chapter of the American Council on Soviet Friendship planned to sponsor a similar mass rally at Milwaukee and the members were active in attempting to obtain a leading speaker for this affair. In this connection, [ ] further advised that on October 7, DR. SMITH again talked to Miss SOPHIE AMES at New York advising her that Miss HENDRICKSON would not be released for work with the Milwaukee unit of the American Council on Soviet Friendship unless a major speaker was obtained for the mass rally, referring to meeting of November 7, in which event it would be necessary to depend on voluntary workers. He also advised that there was money available for workers in Chicago, and a mass meeting, and that the Chicago forum on Russian affairs would handle a signature campaign. (A party by the name of RUBIN was stated as being the best man, and also the names of Dr. MILLER and Mr. STUTZ were mentioned.) In the course of this conversation, Dr. SMITH indicated that a Miss BARROWS might desire to handle the Chicago meeting. Mr. SMITH further indicated that he had sent a letter explaining the situation in Milwaukee. He stated that they would not have a rally in Chicago unless Mr. DAVIS asked the president of the First National Bank about it.

b7D

[ ] further advised in a later conversation between JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and Dr. SMITH, NORDSTRAND told Dr. SMITH that it was very important for him to contact the A. F. L. and not to worry about the CIO, saying "We can arrange with those guys in a few minutes. The important thing is the AFL".

b7D

[ ] further advised that on 10-13, ALICE HENDRICKSON received a telegram from SOPHIE AMES of New York in which she stated that it was impossible to get Mr. ROBINSON as a speaker, but could substitute JAN STRUTHERS, and asked whether that was O.K.

[ ] advised that on 10-21, MEL WEINRITZ held a meeting in JOSEPHINE's office at which time plans were drawn up for the November 8th rally.

The Milwaukee Journal, in issue dated 10-25-42, carried an article in which it stated that the American Council on Soviet Friendship was sponsoring a mass rally in commemoration of the Russian Revolution and formation of the Soviet Union, and to demonstrate the friendship and co-operation of the American people with the Russian people. This mass rally was to be held November 8, 1942 at the Pabst Theatre. Similar meetings were planned throughout the country. The principle meeting by this group is being held at Madison Square Garden in the form of a nation-wide Congress of the American Soviet friendship. A greeting to the Soviet Union containing approximately 40,000 signatures is being placed with the intention of sending it to the Russian ambassador, M. Litvinov at the New York meeting, according to secretary Sell of the local chapter. Sell states they hope to obtain 1,000,000 signatures in all and 40,000 of which he hopes to obtain in Milwaukee. The principle speaker at this local gathering is to be LOUIS BROMFIELD, and it is planned to show a picture entitled "Moscow Strikes Back". At the local congress, the speakers are planned to be vice-president HENRY WALLIS, JOSEPH DAVIS, former United States ambassador to Russia, MAX LITVINOV, Russian ambassador, Governor HERBERT LEHMAN and Mayor LA GUARDIA and Senator CLAUDE PEPPER of Florida.

The Milwaukee Sentinel in issue dated 10-27-42, carried an article concerning the 25th Anniversary rally being sponsored by the American Council on Soviet Friendship, in which it points out that the local chapter of the Council has been asked to furnish 40,000 signatures to a book which will be bound and sent to JOSEPH STALIN to show the American admiration for the bravery of the Russians in fighting off the Nazi enemy.

[ ] advised that on October 21, WILLIAM SELL, Secretary of the Soviet Friendship chapter stated that LOUIS BROMFIELD was tentatively to speak at the Milwaukee celebration referred to as the 25th Anniversary celebration. b7D

On 10-23-42, according to this informant, WILLIAM SELL advised NED SPARKS that Mr. BROMFIELD would not be available for the American Council on Soviet Friendship, for their meeting planned to be held November 8th. SELL expressed concern about the expenses incurred by American Council on Soviet Friendship and SPARKS instructed him that this organization must charge admission or make a collection in order to defray the expenses. SPARKS stated that the principle involved is simply that the people who attend the affairs sponsored by this organization must finance them.

[ ] further advised that on October 28th, Dr. TREDWELL SMITH was in Milwaukee working on plans for the showing of a Russian film, and obtaining of a principle speaker for the contemplated meeting of the American Council on Soviet Friendship November 8th. Dr. SMITH expressed concern about the attitude of several members of the local American Council on Soviet Friendship, especially Mr. FRIEND and Mr. RICHARDS. He also expressed concern about the expenses. He estimated that the attendance of this meeting should approximate 800 persons. DR. LAWRENCE discussed this meeting with NED SPARKS saying that Dr. LAWRENCE had signed a telegram accepting Mr. ELMER HOLLAND as speaker, and Dr. SMITH expressed some doubt as to the ability of Mr. HOLLAND. He classified Mr. HOLLAND as a 3rd rate speaker. He asked SPARKS about what chance they had to make out satisfactory in regard to finances, and SPARKS considered it a reasonable risk, and suggested b7D that a collection be taken up. NED refused to give Dr. SMITH full cooperation on the ground that the Soviet Council is not his organization. Dr. SMITH blames Mr. RICHARDS and Mr. FRIEND for trouble which has been brewing in the American Council on Soviet Friendship movement and blames BEATRICE WEISBERG for her part in bringing these individuals into the group. NED is bitterly opposed to BEATRICE.

[ ] further advised that on the same date JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND held a conversation with BEATRICE WEISBERG in reference to the meeting of November 8th, and stated that the speaker for this occasion would have to be built up, and added that the speaker would have to make the issue sharp and clear. She further stated that fears of those in the American Council on Soviet Friendship must be dispelled as to the success of this meeting. JOSEPHINE is opposed to the reservation of seats but favors the taking of a collection at this meeting. b7D

[ ] advised that on 10-30-42, he learned that there is considerable dissension developing among the members of the local chapter of the A.S.C.S.F. and Dr. LAWRENCE has expressed a desire to resign, and also that WILLIAM SELL has indicated to Dr. SMITH that he would like to resign his position as secretary of the American Council on Soviet Friendship after the November 8th meeting. On this same date, while Dr. SMITH was in the office, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, of the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation, JOSEPHINE stated that she expected a business agent of the A. F. L. to call on her, and stated that this agent must not recognize Dr. SMITH and advised that he leave before the agent arrived. On this same date, JOSEPHINE advised CARL SUETZ to sell tickets for the Pabst Theatre program for November 8th, to his German-American friends. b7D

According to a memorandum submitted by Special Agent J. E. Shinn, who attended an election rally held 10-30-42 at a Communist Party meeting, leaflets were distributed at this gathering advertising the November 8th meeting.

The Milwaukee Journal, issue dated 10-30-42, carried an article pertaining to the November 8th rally in which it stated that talks by Vice-president Henry Wallace and Joseph E. Davis, former ambassador to Russia, were going to be broadcast to a Milwaukee rally to be held at the Pabst Theatre November 8th in commemoration of the 25th Anniversary of Russia. The above speakers were speaking at a mass meeting of the American Council on Soviet Friendship being held in New York on November 7th and 8th. The local speaker was to be ELMER HOLLAND, Democratic representative from Pennsylvania. The members of the sponsoring committee of the congress included the following individuals: Mrs. CORDELL HULL, Wife of the Secretary of State; LORD HALIFAX, the British ambassador; JESSE JONES, Secretary of Commerce; WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, noted newspaper editor, and THOMAS W. LAMONT, New York banker.

In an article appearing in the CIO News November 2, 1942, it is stated that the labor speakers for the congress on Soviet American Friendship meeting scheduled for November 8th in New York, will include Mr. R. A. THOMAS, president of the U. A. W. and Vice-President of the C. I. O., and WILLIAM GREENE, head of the A. F. L. This article states that C. I. O. President, PHILLIPS MURRAY will be unable to attend.

In the Milwaukee Sentinel, issue dated 11-7-42, appeared an article in reference to the 25th Anniversary of the Russian Revolution which was being observed at the Pabst Theatre Sunday afternoon, November 8th. This article pointed out that Professor LEE LAWRENCE, chairman of the Milwaukee Committee of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, will preside at the theatre meeting. The Rev. JOHN LEWIS, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian Church, will give the invocation, and Att'y. CHARLES FRIEND will speak on the program of the council.

According to information supplied by [redacted], a last minute change in the plans of representative E. E. HOLLAND, prevented his attendance at the November 8th Rally, and it was thus necessary to substitute a speaker for this affair. According to newspaper articles, the speaker who was substituted for it was Dr. VLADIMIR KAZAKEVICH; and, in the Milwaukee Sentinel, issue dated 11-9-42, an article appears describing the November 8th rally, and discussing Dr. KAZAKEVICH's speech. According to this article, this speaker told the people that the Nazis can outproduce Russia, and stated further that they also have a big edge in manpower. He stated that Nazi Germany and its states has a two to one, and a ten to seven edge in military man power, making lendlease and a second front absolutely essential. The article reflects that several hundred persons attended this program, and the meeting was held by the Milwaukee Committee on the American Council on Soviet Friendship simultaneously with similar meetings throughout the nation. The talk was preceded by presentation of the film "Moscow Strikes Back" which was a portrayal of Russia's stand against Hitler before the gates of the national capital. He traced Soviet progress in literacy, national income and particularly industry since the revolution, but he pointed out that while Russia has advanced from one-sixteenth of U. S. production in 1913 to one-third in 1937, Hitler has added to normal German industrial capacity with the facilities of Poland, France, Scandinavia, the Balkans, and his European allies. b7D

He also pointed out that losses by casualty in occupation, and the necessity of maintaining an army in the east to protect against possible invasion has reduced Russia's vast population, while Germany has swelled her manpower to a reservoir of 320,000,000 people. He stated not only are lend lease and second front necessary, but United States must understand Russia in order to nullify Hitler's attempts to create disunity. He made a plea for the appreciation of the courage, work and fighting of the Russian people. He was joined in talks by CHARLES FRIEND and HENRY ALPERT, members of the sponsoring committee.

In the November 7th issue of the Milwaukee Journal, in article headed "Scholar to Speak at Russ Meeting", Mr. KAZAKEVICH was described as the white Russian who was distinguished as a scholar and writer, stated that he is a grand-son of Peter Kazakevich, famous as an explorer in far eastern Siberia, and founder of Vladivostok. The grandfather also was military governor of the far eastern Russian provinces, and the admiral in command of the Russian Baltic fleet. Kazakevich's father was general manager of the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria. He has taught economics in Columbia University, and worked in the American Institute of Banking, and the National Bureau of Economic Research. He has contributed to newspapers and magazines, and has written a number of books on Russian economics and history.

Information received from [ ] reflects that the following occurred on November 8, 1942:

b7D

From approximately 1:35 P.M. to 4:35 P.M., a program, celebration of the 25th Anniversary of the Russian Revolution, was held, sponsored by the local committee of the American Council on Soviet Relations, room 1248 Bankers Building. A movie, "Moscow Strikes Back" was shown. It was noticed that FRED BASSETT BLAIR attended the celebration, and it was further noted that LESLIE POTTER sold copies of the Sunday Worker in front of the main entrance. DAVID ALTMAN likewise sold copies of "The Review", the Young Communist League publication. It is noted that these individuals are active in Communist front organizations.

In the show house, during the program, and before the program got under way, the following persons distributed the plain envelopes containing the "Statement of Purposes" of the American Council on Soviet Relations:

Mrs. HARRY UNELL (also ROSE MEISTER)      Mrs. ELYNOR JONES
Mrs. NADA HUDSON                              Mrs. IDA VIRGIL
EVELYN of 546 North 15th Street

All of whom are active Communist Party members. This same group was seen to sell copies of the booklet "Soviet Russia Today". In the main lobby of the theatre, VIRGINIA SCHOLL and sometimes BEATRICE WEISBERG sold copies of "Soviet Russia Today", "The Red Army", "Soviet Constitution" and other literature which they had on the table. Mrs. GRACE EISENCHER also had a table in the lobby with the same collection of literature practically as those mentioned above.

On the stage, Mr. ELDON HENDRICKSON played a radio-phonograph record of the "Internationale", which was given applause by the audience.

Dr. LEE LAWRENCE, it was explained by Rev. JOHN LEWIS, was ill and could not appear, and Rev. LEWIS acted as chairman and introduced Father SZCZERBIAK, who delivered the invocation. Rev. LEWIS read the telegrams from President Roosevelt, General Dwight Eisenhower and Secretary Stimson.

According to this informant, the picture "Moscow Strikes Back" is a propaganda picture intended to create sympathy for the Russian people, and hate against the common enemy.

From approximately 3:00 P.M. to 4:00 P.M. there were speeches by Dr. KAZAKEWICH of the Columbia University and HENRY ALPERT. According to this informant, Dr. KAZAKEWICH spoke on the differences between Czarist Russia and Soviet Russia, which he visited again in 1936. He pointed out the vast improvement in Russia since the revolution, and stated that the majority of the Russian people benefited. He drew a comparison on that case history, and the development of Russia pointing out similarities. He stated a second front should have been opened last April.

Informant described this speaker as approximately 40 years of age, 5 Ft. 11 In. in Height, 170 pounds, built medium, hair brown and unruly, Complexion medium dark, broad face. He was described as a good speaker possessed a lot of wit, and sometimes had a foreign tinge in his pronunciation.

Mr. CHARLES FRIEND confined his remarks mainly to the organization, in which he pointed out that the purpose of the organization was to educate and enlighten the American people on the Soviet Union. He said it was hoped to create a more friendly feeling toward the Russians. He hoped the same kind of education was going on in Russia. He expressed amazement at why the American people, business men, industrialists, financiers, hold themselves aloof from the American Council on Soviet Relations, and Soviet Russia. He stated that the council in the future will sponsor lectures, and hoped that more people would attend. He referred to the audience as an advanced class of American people.

Dr. HENRY ALPERT made a short speech in commemoration of the 25th Anniversary of the Russian Revolution paying tribute to the Russians for their heroic stand against the Nazis.

At 4:00 ELDON HENDRICKSON tried to get the radio program on which Vice-President Wallace was to speak, but for some reason, he was unable to locate the radio program on which this speech was being broadcast. This part of the program was then omitted.

This informant states the attendance for this special program was small with one-half of the show house empty. Among those present were:

Confidential Informant [redacted] further advised that on 12-12-42 ALICE HENDRICKSON was introduced to the Communist Party State Convention which/being held in Milwaukee, and gave a talk on the American Council on Soviet Friendship. It is noted that ALICE HENDRICKSON maintains the office of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and has been designated by NED SPARKS as the individual who will supervise progress of the Milwaukee chapter. Miss HENDRICKSON pointed out in her speech that consideration should be given to the relationship of the American Council on Soviet Friendship along the line of party building. She stated that Subject organization has been in existence for approximately 30 days, and is trying to carry on a popularization activity to acquaint the people of the United States with the fact that collaboration between our country and the Soviet Union is essential, and to acquaint our people with the contributions which the Soviet Union has made toward civilization. She states that the scope in this work is really tremendous in every field because of the fact that in every field where the Soviet Council desires to advance, they (referring to Soviet Russia) have done remarkable things, and when you compare their work with what we want to do, it is clear to everyone, and makes it much easier to convince people of the advantages of the Soviet form of government, and of the people's rise to power. She points out that the work of the Council is mainly education, and is mainly to break down prejudices and to counteract Axis technique. She compares the work of the Council with the work of the war agencies with all production in the Soviet Union and here. She states that the Council goes beyond the work of the present human organizations such as the Russian War Relief, and explains the facts pertaining to the relationship between Russia and America in such a way that people can become so fully acquainted with the advantages of Russia that the next natural step would be to discuss political developments with the people. She states that these people should discuss their problems with those who are able to give the proper answer. She states that when these people come to us, we have a natural field in which to recruit them, for this work. She points out the importance of the Council's work and refers to what happened last month, when the national congress of Soviet Relations met in New York City. She made a point of the fact that the Americans wanted to promote good relations with the Soviet Union, which is evidenced by the fact that the United States sent two of its best speakers to that congress, as well as State Department officials, and other prominent persons, all of which was a tremendous thing for the people. In this connection, she mentioned 800 copies of the "Soviet Russia Today" were sold, and there was a general increase in the understanding of the Soviet Union. She made mention of a number of important occasions, one of which was the bringing of Pavlichenko to Milwaukee, and added this brought the people together on a mass scale to the auditorium to hear a tremendously impressive program.

She stated further that our people sold literature at this meeting, and the best seller was "The Soviet Constitution". The people who purchased it, buy it out of charity, then their interest is developed in the Soviet Union. She added further that they had found it to interest the people, and had given tangible information on the Soviet Union, which is a sure gain over the grapevine steps used heretofore. She referred to the November 8th meeting, which was advertised as the 25th Anniversary celebration of the Soviet Russia Union, and stated that a great deal of feeling was exhibited toward Soviet Russia. She states that this organization has been very active in most lines of endeavor, and especially in the trade unions, and at this point, stressed the fact that the Council emphasizes its work in this field. She believes that it is good to present the facts to the American unions regarding the accomplishments of the unions of the Soviet Russia. She stated in this connection that a pamphlet on the Soviet Trade Unions was given to every member, at a recent CIO conference, and was also given to the members of the A. F. L. convention.

She pointed out that in her opinion it is possible to get these unions to discuss production problems and made a point of the fact that the tremendously large crowded population of the Milwaukee area are all extremely interested in this whole problem. She stated that the Czechs are anxious to organize a branch of the American Council on Soviet Friendship, that therefore the future looked bright in this field. She stated that the Negroes feel that most of the people in the American Council are presenting the truth on the policy of the Communist Party. She pointed out that the important objective of the American Council is to distribute in large quantities, reading materials both through the council, and by extension of the book shop. She points out that this makes it easier for us to talk to people, and to get them to participate in our meetings. She suggests taking people to movies, referring to Russian movies, and then talking to them after the show, as a successful method of recruiting members.

She further stated that many of the late books on Russia can be supplemented with literature distributed by the American Council. She points out that there is a great field in the language groups which are working for the Russian War Relief and for the American Council, and urged everyone to get to know them personally, and to gradually talk them into becoming members. She states that we can begin to give them literature and publications gradually. She said to bring such people with you to the Russian movies in order that you can talk together, and thus make yourself a recruit of this group.

According to information obtained by [ ] on 2-11-43, it is believed that the American Council on Soviet Friendship is to be brought to the front, and Russian War Relief is to be allowed to be subordinated in importance.

b7D

[ ] supplied this office with a pamphlet distributed by the American Council on Soviet Friendship in which it advertised a lecture and banquet to be held December 15, 1942 at the City Club, and Dr. SAMUEL M. HARPER was the speaker for the evening. This pamphlet sets out the facts pertaining to Mr. HARPER's background, and his activities, bringing out the fact that he has been a professor at the Chicago University since 1915, and that he has a vast education both in studying and traveling in Russia. This pamphlet has been designated Exhibit No. 8, and is being furnished to the Bureau.

Confidential Informant [ ] supplied this office with a mimeographed sheet advertising a picture, "In the Rear of the Enemy", to be shown at the Pabst Theatre on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, January 22, 23, and 24th, which was produced in the Soviet Youth Film Studio, and which is described as being the first Soviet made story in which all actors speak English. This pamphlet was mimeographed in the CIO office on 1-19-43.

This informant also supplied a membership application which was mimeographed at the CIO office, Room 3174 of the Plankinton Building, on 1-12-43. This material is being designated Exhibit Number 11 A and 11 B, and is being forwarded to the Bureau.

[ ] supplied this office with a pamphlet setting out in calendar form the activities of the Milwaukee Council on Soviet Friendship for the month of January. This pamphlet is being designated Exhibit No. 31 and is being forwarded to the Bureau.

b7D

[ ] supplied this office with a copy of a letter written on the letter-head of the Milwaukee committee on American-Soviet Friendship, and signed by LAWRENCE JACOBSEN, International Field Organizer for the United Electrical, Radio, and Machine Workers of America (CIO) addressed to "Dear Brother and Sister Unionists", urging attendance to the picture, "In the Rear of the Enemy", which is sponsored by the American Council on Soviet Relations. [ ] on 12-16-42, furnished this office with a membership card for the American Council on Soviet Friendship. This card is being designated Exhibit 36, and is being furnished to the Bureau.

b7D

Confidential Informant [ ] informed that on the date of 1-15-43, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and Mr. SELL were in the office of the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation, and JOSEPHINE, referring to a legislative conference, which is being sponsored by the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation, suggested that WILLIAM SELL should attend as a delegate from the Soviet Council.

b7D

[ ] further advised that on 2-18-43, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and NED SPARKS were discussing the legislative conference being held in the near future, and Mr. THOMAS HARRIS of the Soviet Council, was suggested by JOSEPHINE as a logical speaker for this conference, and NED enthusiastically agreed, stating that the American Soviet Relations was one of the most important questions at this time. The same informant advised that on 2-19-43, JOSEPHINE and ALICE HENDRICKSON were discussing the approaching legislative conference, and ALICE stated that disunity between Russia and United States at this time would result in losing the war, and JOSEPHINE agreed that that was the reason they needed a speaker from the American Council at this conference. In this connection, it was learned from literature retained in this office, that Mr. HARRIS was designated a speaker at the conference, which was sponsored by the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation.

b7D

On 3-2-43, [ ] advised that Miss ALMA BINZELL was in the office of the Wisconsin State Conference on Social Legislation, and carried on conversation with ALICE HENDRICKSON, who advised her that she was associated with the American Council on Soviet Friendship, and from this statement, made by ALICE to the effect that she was associated with the American Council on Soviet Friendship, plus the fact that recent pamphlets distributed by this organization, carried the name, "The Council of Soviet-American Friendship", it is believed that the name of this group has been definitely changed to the latter name.

b7D

It has been ascertained from information supplied by Confidential

Informants [ ] and [ ] that the American Council on Soviet Friendship has purchased a contract existing with the Pabst Theatre, for the showing of the Russian pictures, and that complete control of these moving pictures now rests with the local chapter of the American Council on Soviet Friendship. It is believed that this contract was purchased for approximately $350.00 and that the money was supplied by four individuals whose identity is known.

MAY 15 1943

Friday, May 1, 1943.

I attended a committee meeting at the offices of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship at 232 Madison Avenue. This meeting was called in order to mobilize workers for the labor rally at the Yankee Stadium.

These workers were told by Regina Wilson who heads this committee that they were to circulate postal cards (one of which I submit) among the audience at the stadium and for twenty five cents to be attached to this card the person could send their greetings and name and address to some person living in the Soviet Union.

These cards are to be forwarded by the committee to persons living in the Soviet Union which in turn will correspond with the sender.

After the rally I asked Regina Wilson how the returns were and she told me that it had been very successful. The names and addresses that were received will also be used as a mailing list by the committee for affairs and meetings of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship.

New York, N. Y.,

May 21, 1943.

The much advertised Soviet rally held at Carnegie Hall on Thursday evening, May 20, could be considered a flop. The crowd was present and they were told that there was a conspiracy in the United States to alienate America and Russia.

Lyman Stowe, a war correspondent with radical tendencies, was the chief speaker. Corliss Lamont acted as chairman. At the last minute Prof. Oscar R. Large of the University of Chicago, U. S. Senator Claude Pepper of Florida and Representative John Clark Baldwin sent their regrets stating that they could not speak at the meeting because of previous engagements or their ideas on the differences of policies and purposes of the meeting.

Dear Sir:

There is inclosed herewith the original and one photostatic copy of report of Confidential National Defense Informant [redacted] concerning a conversation he had with REBECCA GRECHT, organizer for the Bronx County Committee of the Communist Party. This conversation reflects that the Communist Party expects, sometime during the month of May, to put on exhibition German war materials captured by the Red Army on the Soviet battlefield. It also appears that the exhibition will be under the auspices of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, of which CORLISS LAMONT is the President.

COMMUNIST PARTY U. S. A. ACTIVITIES

Rebeca Grecht, organizer Bronx County Committee Communist Party, told me that the N.Y. State Secretary of the Communist Party, Gil Green, notified all the county committees of the Communist Party in N.Y. and vicinities that sometimes (date not known yet) next month (May) in New York City will take place an exhibition of German war materials captured by the Red Army on the Soviet battlefields. Green asked the county committees of the Communist Party to organize, on a branch basis, committees of Party members to visit this exhibition. Grecht told me that the State Committee of the C. P. is of the opinion that by visiting this exhibition every Party member will greatly benefit. He will graphically see the might of a Socialist state in destroying step by step the greatest war machine of all the time. Especially Green recommends that every new member of the Communist Party should without fail see the exhibition. After visiting the exhibition, each Party branch should assign a comrade to lead a discussion on the exhibition with the membership participating in it. Grecht told me that the above mentioned exhibition will be under the auspices of a newly formed organization called the National Council of American Soviet Friendship. Curlis Lamont is President of this organization.

Grecht told me that the Bronx County Committee of the Communist Party decided not only to organize the Party branches to visit this exhibition, but will organize special nationality groups, negro groups, groups of workers on factory and shop basis to visit the exhibition. The National Council of American Soviet Friendship is located at 232 Madison Ave., New York. On my question of Lamont asked the State Committee of the C. P. to advise the Party organizations to organize this visiting groups, Grecht said that it is quite possible, but she doesn't know. She said that Green just stated the fact that the State Committee of the Party finds this very desirable and that the County Committees will act to make a success of this assignment.

NATIONAL COUNCIL FOR AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, INC.

New York, N. Y.,

May 20, 1943.

Efforts by "The Daily Worker" to "misrepresent the propose" of a rally to be sponsored by the National Council for American-Soviet Friendship at Carnegie Hall tonight has led Dr. Oscar R. Lange, professor of economics at the University of Chicago to withdraw his name from the list of speakers, he announced yesterday.

Dr. Lange, who came to this country in 1937 from the faculty of the University of Cracow, Poland, said that, while he sympathized with the rally's purpose, he felt unable to participate in it because an advertisement carried in the May 13 issue of "The Daily Worker" attempted to tie the meeting in with "an attack upon the memory" of Henrich Ehrlich and Victor Alter, two Polish labor leaders, reported to have been executed by the Russians, in December, 1941.

Explaining that he knew both men personally and had not "the slightest doubt" of their integrity as "anti-Fascist fighters," Dr. Lange said he felt that introduction of the issue into the meeting could make no useful contribution to relations between the governments of Poland and the Soviet Union and might further disturb an already unsettled condition.

Dr. Lange, who is a member of the Chicago branch of the Council for Soviet-American Friendship, said that he had "perfect confidence" in the sponsors of the rally but that in view of "The Worker's" stand he felt obliged to withdraw because "the matter of Polish-Soviet relations is so delicate."

RECORDED & INDEXED

Dr. Corliss Lamont, president of the council, will be chairman of tonight's meeting. Other speakers scheduled to appear are Senator Claude D. Pepper, Representative Joseph Clark Baldwin 3rd, of New York, and Dr. Arthur Upham Pope, of the Committee for National Morale.

INTERNAL SECURITY - C

Dear Sir:

Enclosed are the original and one copy of a report furnished by Confidential National Defense Informant ☐
☐ dated May 20, 1943. b7D

This report is concerning a rally held at Carnegie Hall on May 20, 1943 under the sponsorship of the New York Council of the above-captioned organization under the Chairmanship of CORLISS LAMONT. Speakers were CORLISS LAMONT; IRLAND
STONE, war correspondent for the New York Post; THOMAS L. HARRIS, National Secretary of the New York Council of instant organization; and ARTHUR UPHAM POPE. The two principle speakers were Senator CLAUDE PEPPER of Florida and Congressman JOSEPH CLARK BALDWIN of
New York, who failed to show up.

According to ☐ the rally was a failure due to dissatisfaction with the speakers and because the people realized that they had been brought to the rally mainly to make contributions. b7D

CORLISS LAMONT presented to a representative of Warner Brothers Motion Picture Corporation a plaque in appreciation for the making of the picture "Mission to Moscow."

Thursday, May 20, 1943.

I attended a rally at Carnegie Hall, 57th Street and Avenue which was held under the sponsorship of The New York Council of the American Soviet Friendship. The chairman of this rally was Corliss Lamont. There were about two thousand people present. The rally was opened with the singing of the National Anthem. The first speaker was Corliss Lamont. The highlights in his speech was when he declared that this country should stop appeasing Finland and immediately declare war on her. The Fascists of Finland are allowing the Nazis to use bases in Finland to bomb American ships on their way to the Soviet Union, he said. He said that the anti-Soviet forces has it's representatives in both houses of Congress and are also in the State Department. These Fascist minded representatives in our midst are responsible for prolonging the war with the hope that there will be a negotiated peace. These same people he said, are using everything at their command to disrupt American Soviet Friendship.

The next speaker was Leland Stowe, war correspondent for the New York Post. He told stories glorifying the people of the Soviet Union but at the same time he made statements that the Communists in the audience did not like. He repeatedly referred to Stalin as a great dictator much to the displeasure of those present. He also said that there is plenty of room for improvement in the Soviet Union which he hoped would be remedied soon after this war is over. He claimed that there is not as much politics in the Soviet Government as there is in the United States but it would not be true, he said, to say that the Soviet Union is free from this evil. This statement also did not register well with the audience.

The next speaker was Thomas L. Harris who is National secretary of the council. He made the appeal for funds. The funds that were collected are to be used to open new councils all over the United States. The ushers were supplied with blank checks for the convenience of those who did not have cash. There were three contributions of $500.00 each, and six for $200.00, and several of $100.00. The collection was a huge success. It required so much time that there was only time for one more speaker.

Thursday, May 20, 1943.

The next and last speaker was Arthur Upham Pope. He declared that failure to take advantage of our gains in Africa will only give the Axis forces time to build their defenses to strike back. He claimed that there are forces in this country at work at the present time to bring about a negotiated peace with Hitler. He also accused the people high in government circles who hate the Soviet Union with doing all in their power to bring about a stale mate which they hope will bring a negotiated peace.

The two principal speakers who were Senator Claude Pepper of Florida, and Congressman Joseph Clark Baldwin of New York sent telegrams to the meeting regretting their inability to attend, and gave the excuse of the importance of their presence in Washington.

The rally in my estimation was a failure, and there were many uncomplimentary comments from the audience as they were leaving. They seemed to be dissatisfied with the speakers, and felt that they were lead to believe that the principal speakers were <sup>to be</sup> there.

It seemed that the people were brought to this rally so that a collection could be taken, and the people were very quick to sense it. There were about twenty people sitting on the stage, but only the four above made speeches.

There was a presentation of a plaque made by Corliss Lamont to a representative of Warner Brothers Motion Picture Corp. in appreciation for the making of the motion picture, "Mission to Moscow".

The much advertised Soviet rally held at Carnegie Hall on Thursday evening, May 20, could be considered a flop. The crowd was present and they were told that there was a conspiracy in the United States to alienate America and Russia.

Lynne Stone, a war correspondent with radical tendencies, was the chief speaker. Carliss Lamont acted as chairman. At the last minute Prof. Oscar R. Lange of the University of Chicago, U. S. Senator Claude Pepper of Florida and Representative John Clark (Delaware) sent their regrets stating that they could not speak at the meeting because of previous engagements or their ideas on the differences of policies and purposes of the meeting.

Summary of Information:

① On Thursday, May 20, 1943, Subject meeting was held under the auspices of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Room 1101, 232 Madison Avenue, New York City, at Carnegie Hall, 57th Street and 7th Avenue, New York City, from 2000 to 2345. Corliss Lamont, chairman of the Council of American-Soviet Friendship, was chairman of the meeting. Claude D. Pepper, Senator from Florida; Joseph Clark Baldwin, Congressman from New York; and Prof. Oscar Lange, Professor at the University of Chicago, formerly at the University of Gdansk, Poland, who were to appear on the program, were absent. The following speakers appeared instead: Arthur Upham Pope, chairman, Committee on National Morale; Edwin S. Smith, former member, National Labor Relations Board; [redacted] Thomas L. Harris, National Secretary of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship; and Rev. William Nowlett Melish, Rector of the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Brooklyn, N. Y. There were approximately 3500 people in attendance, including several members of the Armed Forces, present at the meeting. Entertainment was furnished by a Negro singer, Kenneth Spencer.

Lamont spoke of a definite campaign throughout the United States designated to arouse hostility to the Soviet Union. He referred to Westbrook Pegler, the Alter-Ehrlich case, and to the attacks now being made upon the picture "Mission to Moscow." Lamont stated that such a campaign should be destroyed and that there should be a strengthening of American-Soviet Friendship, not a weakening. Lamont paid tribute to Stalingrad and to Russia in general. He stated that we can expect an Allied invasion soon. (Loud applause) Lamont went on to say that Allied unity is needed now more than ever before and yet there are those striving to bring about disunity. He referred to the break between Russia and Poland as a crisis. Lamont said that doubt of the Soviet Union on the part of the American people has provoked disunity. He said that the Baltic peoples should have the liberty to develop relationship with Russia and that the Russian people should have the right to strategic boundaries to insure its defense. Lamont stated that the United States should be frank with Finland, break with her, and declare war. With reference to the Japanese situation, Lamont said that Russia will eventually join the Allies against Japan. He opposed any idea of a future war between the United States and Russia.

██████████ stated that Russia is the first stable government in this war that is not weighed down by graft and corruption. The reason ██████████ gave for this is that there is no one in Russia making profit. (Loud applause) He stated that on the Burma Road there was graft. ██████████ said that the present Russian Army is the first Russian Army that knows how to read. The Russian soldier is better read than the American soldier, he said, because the American soldiers are weighed down with reading material dedicated to the prevention of thought. With regard to a dictatorship government, he stated that no one likes dictatorship. He further said that the Russian Secret Service Police are not so nice as one may think. He went on to say that we need never fear having to fight the Russians because the Russians are not conquering aggressive animals and, furthermore, they are not in a position to fight another war. He said that the test of Communism will be to see how soon the Soviet Government can restore normal living conditions to the Russian people after the war. He said that the Soviet people have won their share of influence of the people of the world. ██████████ referred to a Captain Patterson of the United States forces as being afraid of Russia, and stated that if Captain Patterson fears Russia he should advocate the immediate destruction of Hitler. He stated that Russia needs the United States now and during the post-war period. ██████████ made the statement that there can be peace only if the "Big Four" remain united after the war.

Rev. Melish stated that there are three reasons why Americans believe that Russia is anti-Christian: (1) Antagonism on the part of those who personally care very little about religion themselves, but find it a fine vehicle for anti-Soviet propaganda; (2) certain groups who do not believe in the tradition of American principle of the division of State and Church, as is also a tradition in Russia; and (3) sheer ignorance about the true condition regarding religion. Melish said that wherever the church has failed, it is a characteristic of a Socialist government to take the situation into its hands. He stated that the Americans should forget prejudices and pay tribute where it is due.

Smith stated that the Russians have never striven for exploitation of other people and that Russia wants peace. He said that any will towards foreign aggression is anti-democratic. He referred to trade unions as a basic expression of democratic life. He claimed that the victory over Hitler cannot be won by force of arms but by moral force, with continued alliance among democratic nations.

Harris stated that a conspiracy to divide the United Nations endangers America, threatens the prospect of victory and of peace. He said that every American boy who died did so because of anti-Soviet propaganda, that prevented Soviet-American relationship. Harris called for contributions to finance the establishing of Councils of American-Soviet Friendship in other cities. It was reported that the audience contributed $2500.

The Council of American-Soviet Friendship presented an award to Ambassador Davies, Walter Huston, and Warner Bros. for the production of the picture "Mission to Moscow." A representative of Warner Bros. accepted the award.

Pope dealt with the attack on the film "Mission to Moscow." He assailed Prof. John Dewey, Eugene Lyons, and Dorothy Thompson for their statements against the film. He stated that these statements are the first disturbing elements of hate - engendered hysteria largely fomented by the remaining Tretskyites, who are not seeking any excuse to create enmities and contempt for Russia. He went on to say that the "Mission to Moscow" presents essential truths as far as can be done in a short space of time. Hostility to Soviet Russia, he said, is Hitler's most fervent hope today. If he succeeds, we pay in the lives of our young men, in dislocated economy, in postponed peace, in delay in the necessary task of world reconstruction for which Russian cooperation is indispensable.

On February 6, 1943 [redacted] made available a post card addressed to the Andrew Jackson Victory Club, Dauphine and Dumaine Streets, postmarked at New Orleans on February 5, 1943. This card announced that Doctor MAX YERGAN, Executive Director, Council on African Affairs, would speak on Tuesday, February 9, 1943 at 8:00 P.M. at the National Maritime Union Hall, 210 Decatur Street, under the auspices of the New Orleans Committee, American Council on Soviet Relations, admission free.

b7D

On February 10, 1943 [redacted] advised that on the night of February 9, 1943 he attended the above mentioned meeting at the National Maritime Union Hall. He advised that the audience was slow in forming and that the opening of the meeting was delayed forty-five (45) minutes for this reason. [redacted] estimated that one hundred (100) people attended this meeting; the majority of the group being Communist Party members and sympathizers. Among those listed were WALTER ROGERS and wife (ELIZABETH COUSNINS), (organizing secretary with former Communist Party members, now going six (6) month suspension for disciplinary purposes), who placed on sale an assortment of Communistic literature, and a Mr. and Mrs. FEILD (Professor ROBERT D. FEILD, Tulane University, Chairman Local Committee, American Council on Soviet Relations and a member of the National Council). [redacted] advised that Professor FEILD presided over the meeting, introducing the speaker, MAX YERGAN, as president of the National Negro Congress, vice-president of Council on African Relations and a National Officer of the American Council on Soviet Relations. [redacted] advised that YERGAN spoke on the importance of Africa's part in the war, its importance to the Allied Nations as a springboard for the invasion of Europe and of its importance in bringing about better relations between America and the Soviet Union. YERGAN stated that operations in Africa were, in his opinion, a guarantee of the opening of a second front in Europe thereby giving aid to the Red Army and a guarantee that Allied Nations were in the war and could not quit until victory was won. [ ] then advised that YERGAN spoke of the period preceding this war and pointed out that the Soviet Union had worked continuously for collective security for peace and that if cooperation had been given the Soviet Union by other nations, the Sino-Japanese war, the invasion, the Ethiopia and the Spanish Revolution would have been avoided.

b7D

YERGAN was then said to have stated that it was the purpose of the American Council on Soviet Relations to bring about better relations between America and Russia in order that they could collaborate after this war. [ ] advised that YERGAN said that the immediate issue was winning the war. He made mention of the bad conditions of colonial peoples prevailing under imperialism, but pointed out that these conditions were paradise to conditions under fascism. YERGAN was then reported to have stated that a defeat of fascism would carry forward the struggle of all the people against imperialism.

b7D

On February 10, 1943 [ ] advised that YERGAN was a negro about fifty-four (54) years of age, about 5' 9" in height, weighed about 175 pounds, hair thin and bald on top and that he was light chocolate in complexion. [ ] further advised that YERGAN was very intelligent and well posted on all political, social and economic problems both national and international and that he used communistic expressions in his speech which lead [ ] to believe that he was probably a Communist Party member.

b7D

On February 13, 1943 [ ] advised that on February 11, 1943 HAROLD BOLTON (State Secretary Communist Party), mentioned that YERGAN, while in New Orleans, sat in on a C.I.O. Council meeting.

b7D

On April 3, 1943 Confidential Informant T-1 made available to Special Agent COVER MENDENHALL and the writer records of the "People's Defense League", among which was found an organizing secretary's report as of December 14, 1942. Photographs of this report were obtained and are filed in the 1-A serial of this file. The contents of this report are set forth below:

B. On the Functions of these Committees:

1. Function of the Executive Committee:

New Orleans File #100-3091

Here I believe a revision of the statement now in the minutes is in order. As it now reads (Nov. 20) the executive committee is to discuss only matters of a non-controversial nature. This I feel is unworkable and contrary to all accepted procedure.

The function of an executive committee, as outlined in "Union Rules of the Order," (Amalgamated Clothing Workers' pamphlet, in use in most CIO unions and workers education classes), p. 44, is as follows:

"It is customary to give the executive committee authority to act in between sessions of the organization, but it must make a full report of all its actions, and ~~the~~ must be approved by the organization... (usually the minutes of the executive are read to the organization)."

As I see it, our enlarged committee has two functions: It acts as a sort of cross-action of the membership, pending the definite organization of the general membership, with regular meetings. In addition it serves as a trying-ground. It enables new forces to get the drift of our program and plans, to know and be known by the older members, and to show what they can do for the organization. It gives the committee a valuable cross-section of opinion and policies and helps keep them realistic.

This function—of a two-way trying ground, within a group of about 20, which is all our office can comfortably seat—seems to me of such importance that I believe this enlarged executive is likely to be permanent, though its personnel will change constantly, as the members more and more become able and willing to undertake the work of heading major committees. As fast as they do this, they will take their place on the executive committee, releasing one or another of the present executive as has always been our plan, for service as executive members-at-large or as vice-chairmen of the New Orleans Committee.

Service to the organization as a vice-chairman of a major committee, or chairman of a sub-committee, should definitely be considered as leading to candidacy to election of chairmanship of a major committee.

A member of the enlarged committee could attend the executive by notifying the chairman in advance of any specific business he or she wanted to bring up, or by invitation from the chairman, or by vote of the executive committee. A vice-chairman of all committees, or course, take the place of chairmen in the latter's absence and should always be notified by a chairman if chairman is to be absent. We depend on our Dillard members to replace one another at need in any phase of the work, and this may apply to unions and other organizations.

New Orleans File #100-3091

It would seem appropriate to have the consent of the chairman of the New Orleans Committee in bringing new members or non-members to the executive. This might apply also to the enlarged executive except in cases of amounted open meetings, perhaps with an educational program especially interesting to new members.

A clear decision on all these points is important, in order that each active member and newcomer may know what meetings are obligatory for him, and just what the group expects of him.

C. Meeting Times For These Committees:

In order not to have too many meetings, it has been suggested that the executive and the enlarged executive meet on alternated weeks (skipping the last week when there are five Fridays in a month). The executive might thus meet the first and third Fridays, the enlarged executive the second and fourth Fridays.

Skipping the first Friday in January (Jan. 1) we could thus have Executive Jan. 8, Enlarged Jan 15, Executive Jan. 22, Enlarged Jan. 29, This would make it possible to send letters to the five or six leading unions, notifying them of the dates of enlarged meetings and asking them to elect a delegate and alternate apiece.

II. Plan of Contact for the Unions:

A<sub>3</sub> noted in the minutes (Dec. 4, p.2) Mr. NIEBYL asked Dr. HEINEN, as membership chairman, to take over the union contact work. Dr. HEINEN felt unable to do this, and the matter was left pending.

It is worth noting that the original plan (Minutes Oc. 9, p.1) was for Mr. NIEBYL and Mr. ADAIR to be our delegates to unions, with Mr. BEHRE and Mrs. ROGERS as alternates. It is proposed now that if Mr. BEHRE and Mr. ADAIR would carry on the work of following up letters to the unions and otherwise doing contact work, Mrs. ROGERS might prepare the letters, for Dr. HEINEN's and the others' approval, and Dr. HEINEN as membership chairman, would sign them. With part of the burden thus cared for, perhaps she would reconsider her declination.

It is suggested that letters go to the following unions:

CIO
NMU (Already invited)
Transport, Loc. 206
Amalgamated and other Communications of Shipbuilders

AFL
Op. Engineers 226C possibly one other

XXX

New Orleans File #100-3091

It is noted by the writer in regard to the Council's activities that on November 14, 1942 Confidential Informant [ ] whose identity is known to the Bureau, reported that BEHRE (treasurer) was trying to get participation of the trade unions in the American Council on Soviet Relations. This endeavor met with the disapproval of the local leadership of the Communist Party as shown in Informant [ ]'s report of November 19, 1942 on which date Informant advised that BOLTON and T. BEHRE lunched together. BOLTON told BEHRE that in his opinion the committee on the American Council on Soviet Relations was making two measures by trying to draw forces from the trade unions and the negro people. The committee's main task should be to draw its forces from the middle class. Its objection should not be to win the middle class as a progressive force, but to neutralize it. If this can be done to such an extent that the middle class forces will not take a position against the Soviet Union, the purpose of this Council, in my opinion, BOLTON said, will be achieved. This is not an easy task, BOLTON said, but if accomplished will be of great value to the progressive move. The Council should let the trade unions educate the working parts and the negro progressive organizations educate the negroes, BOLTON said. The Council must become a broad organization among the middle class, but will only become a narrow organization if it drains forces from the unions and negro organizations, because only the most progressive people from these organizations would be delegates, BOLTON said. This will drive away the white middle class peoples because they are not ready to accept the negro people and all that would be left to the Council would be a small group, BOLTON said. The popular front can only be achieved by unity of all classes and BOLTON said that this unity can only be achieved by pressure from the progressive middle class forces or the middle class from one side and from the working class on the other side. BEHRE agreed with the foregoing.

With reference to information on the officers of the local committee on the American Council on Soviet Relations set forth in referenced report of Special Agent BASIL G. L. FETTIT, additional information is set forth:

ROBERT D. FEILD (Chairman Local Committee); by letters dated March 6th and 31st, 1943, the Bureau advised that FEILD wrote a letter to his mother in England saying that he has remained unaffected by the war propaganda. Referred to CHURCHILL as a fascist-minded imperialist and declared that only Russia and India know why they are fighting.

Mrs. EMMA KAMAIRKO (Publicity Chairman), member of the Council on Social Agencies, New Orleans; a member of the Professional Unit, Communist Party in New Orleans; resides at Kingsley House, wife of JACK KAMAIRKO, Communist Party member, New Orleans file No. 100-4829.

Miss DENNIS MABEL BURKE (CIO representative), is employed as secretary to JOSEPH "RED" ROSE, Port Agent of the National Maritime Union, CIO, New Orleans, and a member of the Communist Party of Louisiana. She was responsible for securing a number of new recruits in the Party during a recent Party building campaign. Reported to be a representative of the State Committee of the Party and is organizer of the Marine Unit of the Communist Party of Louisiana.

Mrs. EUGENE J. BERNSTEIN (Vice-chairman membership). In addition to information previously set forth in referenced report, it is noted by the writer in New Orleans file No. 100-839 that Mr. and Mrs. EUGENE BERNSTEIN gave a dinner for SERGEI N. KOURNAKOFF, Russian Army Officer, at their home the night of his lecture in New Orleans (November 7, 1942) and that this dinner was attended by four or five negro couples.

Miss MYNA SCHLEMOFF (Chairman literature sales), is a close associate or relative of Mrs. EUGENE J. BERNSTEIN. Reported information received from Confidential Informant T-2 to have been interested in Russian War Relief in New York City.

On May 1, 1943 the writer was informed by an elevator operator in the LeGendre Building that the offices of the American Council on Soviet Relations in Room 207 of that building had been closed for about three weeks. The writer was advised that Mrs. ROGERS (organization secretary) had not been in the office in that time.

On May 4, 1943 Confidential Informant T-3 exhibited to the writer a copy of an eleven month lease drawn October 9, 1942 by the Medical Building Realty Company, 124 Baronne Street and that the American Council on Soviet Relations signed in behalf of the Council by T. S. BEHRE, treasurer, and SONIA HEINEN. T-3 advised that the rent of $20.00 per month was paid in cash usually by BEHRE. T-3 further advised that the office was occupied by furniture of the American Council on Soviet Relations, but was not being used and then exhibited a letter on the stationery of the PELICAN ICE COMPANY, 156 St. Louis Street, addressed to the Medical Building Realty Company dated April 30, 1943 reflecting that the American Council on Soviet Relations had decided not to use the office in the immediate future. Request was made that effort be made to find a new tenant. This letter was signed by T. S. BEHRE.

From a highly confidential source who had access to the offices of the American Council on Soviet Relations, 207 LeGendre Building, it was determined that all ledgers and the like had been removed from the offices, however, considerable amounts of literature remained and sample copies listed hereafter were secured and turned over to the writer. The same is being forwarded to the Bureau with this report:

"The Trade Unions of Our Soviet Ally"
"The Soviet People at War"

New Orleans File #100-3091

Library of Soviet Literature
"An Atlas of the U.S.S.R."
"The Molotov Paper on Nazi Atrocities"
"Tribute to Russia"
"Soviet Russia versus Nazi Germany"
"The U.S.S.R. At War"
"The American-Anglo-Soviet Alliance"
"Know the U.S.S.R."
"Hands Across Berlin"

The information set forth in referenced report of Special Agent WARREN R. HEARN reflects that the American Council on Soviet Relations (National) was being discontinued as such. The letter exhibited by Confidential Informant T-3 hereinabove written by the treasurer of the local committee indicates that the local committee is also discontinuing its activities as the American Council on Soviet Relations inasmuch as their offices are being given up.

The May, 1943 issue of the magazine, "Soviet Russia Today" reviewed by the writer reflects that an article entitled "National Council of American-Soviet Friendship" reflected that local branches of that organization were already under way on the process of formation in twenty-two cities including New Orleans. No local public announcement has been made.

BLACKIE At Carnegie Hall?

ED Eh?

BLACKIE At Carnegie Hall.

ED Yeah, that's right.
We have run into a very difficult situation with regard to speakers. Both PEPPER and BALDWIN who had been billed, are not coming. PEPPER is down now in Florida. He had to go down on some legislative business, and BALDWIN just sent word that he could not come. ALICE, who has been in Washington, sent word he might not be able to come because of the SMITH-CONNOLLY stuff, and I guess that's the answer. Anyway, he is not coming. Now, I am calling you to make a special plea to ask you if you would be willing to come and speak at this late hour.

BLACKIE Well, I don't know what you want me to speak for.

ED Well, why not? You are a good speaker.

BLACKIE Who has been agitating you?

ED Say, I have heard you speak many times; you know that.

BLACKIE All right, ED, if you want me to.

ED We do, very much, BLACKIE, yes. I think it will not only be valuable in itself, but will help us out very much because we are awfully short handed because of those guys bolting.

Dear Sir:

Reference is made to Bureau letter dated May 26, 1943 in which it was requested that copies of pamphlets which may have been distributed at lectures given by THOMAS L. HARRIS at Springfield, Illinois be forwarded to the Bureau.

This is to advise that no pamphlets pertaining to Communism were distributed at the lecture given by Mr. HARRIS at the Springfield High School on Tuesday, May 23, 1943. This lecture was sponsored by the Springfield Community School for Adults and the only pamphlets which were available to the public were suggestions for reading pertaining to other countries such as India, China, Turkey and Russia. These suggestions for reading were furnished by the Community School and were placed there for the purpose of creating interest in other nations and inasmuch as the pamphlets did not pertain to Communism copies were not obtained by the Agents of the Springfield Office who covered the lecture given by Mr. HARRIS on March 23, 1943.

The letter to the Bureau from the Springfield Field Division dated May 14, 1943 was based upon a report received by the Springfield Field Office from the Intelligence Division of the United States Army Sixth Service Command and not upon the report furnished by Bureau Agents.

BH: Yes, that and lack of preparations.

ES: Subject matter of that kind you've got to tell the guys what we're going to take up and give them a chance to think about it.

ES: You've got curbstone opinion, you know.

BH: Yes, but at the same time, though, the initial reaction also helps, stimulates thought, and also gives us an idea of what people have been thinking about so far, what's necessary to pose the questions more clearly.

Report of Special Agent Loren D. Swayne, dated April 24, 1943, at New Haven, Connecticut.

Bureau letter to New York, dated April 28, 1943.

Report of Special Agent Gerold R. Fitzgerald, dated May 19, 1943, at Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

DETAILS: In addition to those Offices having leads in instant case, one copy of this report is being furnished all other Field Divisions for informative and background purposes.

By a communication received February 18, 1943, Confidential Informant T-1 advised that Miss ALICE BARROWS, who identified herself with instant organization, contacted VLADIMIR BAZYKIN of the Russian Embassy, requesting permission from him for an outside individual to examine a uniform of a Nazi soldier loaned to her by the Russian Embassy. She was informed that such action would be all right ~~SC~~ (U)

The same Informant advised that on February 4, 1943 Miss BARROWS made an appointment to see BAZYKIN on February 5, 1943 and that on the 5th she was in BAZYKIN'S office at which time she contacted the National Office of American Soviet Friendship in New York City by telephone leaving a message for Miss AIMES that she, Miss AIMES, was not to send one hundred telegrams congratulating the defenders of Stalingrad but instead was to substitute the idea with another plan. ~~SC~~ (U)

By communication received on April 7, 1943, Confidential Informant T-1 advised in addition to the above he had received information that Miss ALICE BARROWS, Executive Secretary of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship at New York, had again contacted VLADIMIR BAZYKIN and that he had apologized to her for not seeing her at the time of his recent visit to New York. BAZYKIN reportedly requested Miss BARROWS to send him a list of details regarding the coming "movie conference" and to include the names of the Hollywood Stars who would attend the affair. ~~SC~~ (U)

The aforementioned Informant also advised that Miss BARROWS told BAZYKIN that she had forgotten to mention that the National Committee (of instant organization) was preparing a brochure which would give a sketch of their plans for the movie conference. At this same time Miss BARROWS reportedly advised BAZYKIN that cards had been prepared which now make it possible for American citizens to send short greetings to the people in the U.S.S.R. ~~SC~~ (U)

By report received May 18, 1943, Confidential Informant  whose identity is known to the Bureau, advised as follows:

b7D

" I attended a committee meeting at the offices of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship at 232 Madison Avenue. This meeting was called in order to mobilize workers for the labor rally at the Yankee Stadium.

These workers were told by Regina Wilson who heads this committee that they were to circulate postal cards (one of which I submit) among the audience at the stadium and for twenty-five cents to be attached to this card the person could send their greetings and name and address to some person living in the Soviet Union.

These cards are to be forwarded by the committee to persons living in the Soviet Union which in turn will correspond with the sender.

After the rally I asked Regina Wilson how the returns were and she told me that it had been very successful. The names and addresses that were received will also be used as a mailing list by the committee for affairs and meetings of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship. "

On May 14, 1943, Confidential Informant T-2 advised " a 'Correspondence of Friendship' campaign was started in this city by the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, 232 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y., for the purpose of having cards mailed by Americans to individuals in Russia for the 'stimulation of Russian morale.' CORLISS LAMONT is leader of this organization. On the launching of the campaign, Mayor LA GUARDIA wrote a card to V.P. PRONIN, Mayor of Moscow, sending personal regards and wishes for a speedy and complete victory. This letter-writing campaign is highly encouraged by the 'Daily Worker'."

By report dated May 1, 1943, Confidential National Defense Informant [redacted] further advised that "While at the committee meeting of the Council of American Soviet Friendship, and among a group which consisted of MURIEL DRAPER, CHARLOTTE HONIG, Mr. and Mrs. SAM LAVIN, REGINA WILSON, and MURIEL SAMUELSON, a discussion arose about the Polish situation. The opinion of the above group was that a Polish government will be set up by the people of Poland who are now under the protection of the Soviet Union. The Polish government in exile in London MURIEL DRAPER said, does not speak for the millions of Polish people."

This government in exile represents the wealthy and consists of the aristocrats who have kept the Polish people subjugated until they were rescued by the Soviet Union, she said."

By report received April 30, 1943, Confidential Informant T-1 advised that Miss ALICE BARROWS had again contacted VLADIMIR BAZYKIN of the Russian Embassy on April 14, 1943, at which time she reportedly advised him that she would like to see him regarding a letter she had received from

[Mr. WAINGER (phonetic) (possibly Walter Wanger of the Film Industry). The aforementioned source of information was able to obtain a part of instant letter which is set out below. ~~XXXX~~ (U)]

" Your letter was read and favorably discussed at the meeting of the Board of Governors April 7th. The feeling of our board was that a conference such as you suggest would be extremely helpful in furthering the kind of cooperation so vital to all of us in winning the war and the peace which is to follow. As the contribution to your idea it was suggested that the motion picture industry representatives from some of the other United Nations might be invited to participate in the conference, and that soon as we have had time to formulate some definite plans we will communicate with you again, probably sometime early in the Summer." (U)

[With regard to the above, Confidential Informant T-1 advised that it was his opinion that Miss BARROWS believed the above conference might not take place until fall while BAZYKIN reportedly advised this would be a little late and suggested that they meet to work out a means of hurrying the conference. ~~XXXX~~ (U)]

Mass Meeting

The mass meeting, the cost of which may run into $10,000.00 (in view of the fact that the rental of Madison Square Garden alone exclusive of all services if $5,000.00) will at least pay for itself in admission fees and collection.

Delegations to the Congress

Since we do not expect a mass delegation from distant parts of the country we don't anticipate a very big problem in connection with housing of the delegates and consequently are not including any such expenditures in our budget. On the other hand, we don't expect that the delegate registration fees will be of any substantial amount and therefore are not at present including it in our calculations of income.

FINANCIAL REPORT ON SIGNATURE CAMPAIGN

Income to date	$21,361.00
Expenses on Signature Campaign	3,500.00
Surplus	17,861.00

About $1100. more money was collected which was held out for expenditures in various cities and was used for signatures, meetings and delegate campaigns.

I estimate that between $2,000. and $3,000. more will come in.

125,000 signatures have been accounted for. We delivered four volumes. Two volumes are to be delivered by the end of this week and we have two more volumes on order, which will be ready by the 10th of December. In the December issue of the magazine we have an appeal for signatures with a reproduction of the Book of Friendship and spaces for signatures. Signatures are asked for without any contribution.

Greeting and Signature Campaign

The Golden Book of American-Soviet friendship on the occasion of the 25th Anniversary of the Soviet Union. (Name tentative, for it will have to be changed to include reference to the role of the Soviet Union in the war.)

This campaign is extremely important because it will directly involve many thousands of individuals who will affix their signatures as well as putting many organizations on record as friends of the Soviet Union. This campaign is the only revenue producing source for the financing of the Congress movement.

The project is to get signatures under an appropriate greeting of individuals on uniform sheets printed by us which will subsequently be pasted on larger sheets and bound into books.

Other sheets will be especially prepared, under an appropriate slogan but without text so that organizations buying either a whole page or any part of a page will be able to inscribe their own greetings. These pages will also be pasted on other sheets for binding into books. So the campaign has a twofold aspect. First the collection of signatures from individuals as individuals, and second, the collection of greetings from organizations.

We estimate the number of organization and individual signatures and based on that number we also estimate the income:

Greetings from organizations:

$100	per page
$60	" half page
$35	" quarter page
$20	" eighth of a page
$10	" sixteenth of a page

In view of the fact that we will solicit national organizations, International unions, individual locals of trade unions as well as individual branches of fraternal organizations, womens' clubs, youth and student organizations, religious bodies, Negro organizations, etc., we think that it would be possible to collect about 500 pages of greetings from organizations.

Estimating that the average space purchased by the organizations will be about  $\frac{1}{4}$  of a page, it will require the representation of about 2,000 organizations and groups to fill up the 500 pages. If we are successful in doing that, at the average price of a page of \$140.00, the revenue should amount to \$70,000.

It may be that in order to get 2,000 organizations the book would have to be over weighed with left wing representation and therefore, if that would be considered undesirable, we could cut the number of organizations solicited which would of course correspondingly cut the income.

Individual Signatures: The number of signatures will of course depend on the number of people that can be involved in soliciting the signatures. It should be borne in mind that individuals will want to sign their own names regardless of the fact that the organization to which they belong is already represented in the book. If we could involve from 3000 to 3500 people in giving it a minimum amount of time, we could collect about 300,000 signatures or more.

Each solicitor would receive a little folder, appropriately made that contains 3 sheets which have space for a total number of 110 signatures - (one for 30 and two for 40 each). We assume that 10¢ to 25¢ is not an excessive amount for an individual signature. 300,000 signatures on this basis would therefore bring in between $45,000 to $50,000.

Therefore, the signature and greeting campaign can in our opinion be made to yield a gross income of about $120,000.

With the proper amount of popularization and organizational support of this campaign the organizational costs of it can be maintained at a low percentage. We believe that that percentage should not exceed 25% of the income, leaving a net income of $90,000.

Even if our estimate of the possibilities to involve the necessary number of people and the popularity of the issue itself is somewhat exaggerated, we believe that beyond question this campaign will produce a net income over and above the estimated administrative and overhead expenditures of the Congress campaign and should enable us to produce a large amount of literature for free distribution as well as for distribution at a very low cost, as well as to pay for organizational expenditures which the Congress movement will have to have in order to consolidate the gains of that movement in terms of organizational structure.

Note: The 25% of the expenditures in connection with the signature campaign which may represent as large a sum as $30,000. is to be spent in printing, which of necessity must be somewhat elaborate, travel, cost of soliciting signatures, binding in books, etc. so that the local organizations will not be burdened in any way financially by the cost of this campaign.

Note: All the estimates regarding signatures and greetings are made on the assumption that there will be no other mass organization conducting a national campaign of the same kind.

On financing: Since we have to begin work on the call for the Congress immediately, and also need to hire an office and some help, there is the immediate need for financing. Any of the anticipated income will not begin coming in much before the middle of October. We must have a loan of about $10,000. This loan is necessary in addition to whatever money we can get as a contribution to the Congress movement work or from some individuals as a loan. Therefore this problem of the loan must be solved without much delay.

Personnel: This is one of the most pressing problems, particularly the field men and the two administrative assistants in the office. Action on this problem cannot be much delayed.

P.S. In the last stages of the campaign and after the first 300,000 signatures are received, a very large amount of signatures could be gotten free of charge in such a way that the total number of signatures may well reach a million.

- (2) Undated and unsigned memorandum entitled "THE AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS."

During the past year the American Council has had expenditures of something over $15,000. Of this Hollywood had contributed around $3,500. The remainder has been raised by contributions from individuals, collections at meetings, income from publications and speakers' bureau, etc.

It is planned that for 1942 it shall operate on a budget of $12,000. This is the minimum amount on which it can operate if it is to do effective work. During the past year it has succeeded in organizing branches in about nine cities, has operated a speakers' bureau which constantly provides speakers for all kinds of organizations, has had national speaking tours for Corliss Lamont and Thomas Harris as well as organizing a number of large affairs in and around New York. It was able to organize extensive responses in leading circles to the appeals of the Women's Anti-Nazi meeting in Moscow, the Youth anti-Nazi meeting, the Scientists anti-Nazi meeting, etc. It has published pamphlets on the Women's meeting, the Slavic Congress, and also a pamphlet by Corliss Lamont (25,000 I believe) on "Soviet Russia versus Nazi Germany", which was very well received. From time to time it organized special appeals to Congress on issues of importance to American-Soviet Relations. Recently it has sent out 60,000 copies of a brochure on the Eighth Anniversary of American-Soviet Relations, which is bringing responses from all over the country.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The Council plans to continue and expand activities of this kind, adapted to the new situation arising from America's entry into the war, and especially to bring constantly before the American public the facts about the great contribution of the Soviet armies and the Soviet people to the common cause of defeating the fascist powers. It is for this purpose that it needs a budget of $12,000. Actually, it will probably have to spend more than this amount. But other activities will be so organized that they will pay for themselves. Of the $12,000. budget, we can count definitely on receiving about $6,000 through contributions, collections, sales of literature, etc. But the remainder we cannot raise. It will be much harder to raise money during 1942 than it was in 1941 because of the calls of Russian War Relief, America's own defense needs, etc.

We therefore request from Hollywood the amount of $6,000 for the year, or $500 a month.

- (4) Undated and unsigned memorandum regarding "THE AMERICAN RUSSIAN INSTITUTE".

The present budget of the Institute amounts to about $21,000. a year. This includes support of their research library and information bureau, which constantly answers questions from newspapers, magazines, radio commentators, writers, speakers, etc., for which it charges a fee; a bi-monthly magazine "The American Review of the Soviet Union", and a weekly bulletin "Russia at War", as well as other activities such as sending around of exhibit material. Toward their budget of $21,000, they can count on receiving an income through contributions, subscriptions, information fees, membership, etc. of about $9,000., leaving $12,000 still to be covered. By eliminating their bi-monthly and concentrating on their Bulletin which for the present is their most important publication, they could save about $2,000 if necessary. In any case, a minimum of about $10,000 is necessary to support them for the coming year if they are to continue their present activities.

- (5) Undated and unsigned memorandum on "NEED FOR FIELD ORGANIZERS".

It is of course the experience of every organization that has attempted to develop nationally that local groups on any worthwhile scale can only be developed through the personal contact of field organizers to help to get them launched and to do sufficient follow-up work to insure that they are really functioning groups. The reason the Council has not yet developed on a national scale is precisely because we have done a very limited amount of field organizing. The only local organizations we have that are functioning at all are the result of speaking and organizing tours. Others have ceased to function because they have had no personal contact.

At the present time we are faced with a situation that is generally acknowledged to be historically ripe for an intensive national campaign out of which will develop an organization of real prestige and influence which can play an important role both in the further mobilization of the American people for the war effort - of which our relations with the USSR are the most vital aspect - and in laying a basis for the firm and solid Friendship between the two nations on which to such a great extent the security of the post-war world depends. We must grasp this opportunity fully, or we will not have justified our long years of preparation for this moment, or demonstrated that our organization can adequately meet the great opportunities that are offered to it.

Thus the organization of the American-Soviet Friendship Congress must be conceived of as not only an important activity per se, an action that will be such a powerful demonstration of friendship that it will mobilize large new sections of public opinion in support of our aims, but it will so, both in preparation and fulfillment, serve to stimulate the permanent, national growth of the organization.

Field organizers, therefore, are essential both to the organization of the Congress itself and to the development of the organization nationally.

The exact number of field organizers required need not be arbitrarily decided upon in advance, but the principle should be established of trying to cover every section of the country. An intensive organizing job done at this particular time is more important than anything we can plan to do in the future, and the more intensive we make the campaign now, the more permanent will be the resulting organizations, and the less outlay will be necessary in the future for field organizers. The main functions of the field organizers may be roughly outlined as follows:

1. The establishment of local branches of the American Council on Soviet Relations in every possible city that can be reached.
2. The simultaneous organization of informal American-Soviet Friendship Committees in unions, fraternal, civic, church, academic and all other types of organizations feasible. In some cases, pending the organization of a formal local committee of the Council, the Friendship Committees may be organized on a community basis.
3. Along with this basic organizational work every opportunity should be taken to arrange for speakers before local organizations, the sale of literature, arrangements for placing of the Council exhibits, promotion of the Second Front and War with Finland campaigns wherever possible and in general every kind of work related to the Council's basic progress.

4. This basic organizational work is to be accompanied by special efforts in relation to the Congress during the next two months. Since we cannot expect mass delegations from different parts of the country, we will have to concentrate on certain selected, leading people from different parts of the country. While their number will necessarily be limited, it will be important to have certain key people attend as delegates. The effect of the National Congress will through them be transmitted back to their locality. It is even possible that in certain places smaller affairs may be organized later on patterned after the National Congress.

5. In addition to the National Congress in New York, it is also important that the week-end of November 7th and 8th should be celebrated nationally, and that in leading cities throughout the country simultaneous mass meetings be held during that week end. This will give the celebration itself a truly national character, which can be emphasized in all publicity. Some kind of actual contact between the (illegible) might be arranged through some sort of hookup which would bring the main speaker at the national meeting to various local meetings. Possibly a short record of the main speech could be made in advance to be sent around. Possibly some arrangement could be made for messages to be broadcast from the USSR and recorded, and rebroadcast to the meetings here. The script of the dramatic presentation of the main Garden meeting might also be supplied to the local meetings. Greetings from the local meetings should pour in to the New York mass meeting, emphasizing the national character of the event. These are all details to be worked out more fully later. However, it is certainly clear that unless we have the country fairly well covered with organizers it will be quite impossible to hope for the organization of such meetings nationally under Council auspices.

6. The success of our signature campaign will also be to a very great extent dependent on the work of our field organizers. While they will not be able to carry on much of the detail of the campaign themselves, this will be one of the first activities they can suggest for the local Councils and committees. Thus one very important function of the field organizers will be the immediate launching of the campaign for signatures, which is both an important action in itself and an essential source of funds to finance our other activities.

(6) Undated and unsigned memorandum regarding Council budget.

The Council is operating on a budget of about $12,000. a year. Actually it will have to spend more than this amount, but other activities will be so organized that they will pay for themselves. Of the $12,000 we can count definitely on receiving about $6,000 through contributions, collections, sales of literature, etc. The remainder we cannot raise. It will therefore be necessary to find a subsidy of $6,000 per year or $500 per month if the Council is to continue its present activities.

- (7) Letter dated March 1, 1943 on the letterhead of GEORGE MARSHALL, 38 East 57th Street, New York, with the salutation "Dear Ted", enclosing a Memo on the Budget for 1943, together with Proposed Budget for the year 1943.

Dear Ted:

Here is the budget in which you are interested. As you can well understand, finances will in large part determine the effectiveness and thoroughness of our major campaigns - especially the one against Dies and the anti-Fascist Blacklist.

With thanks for everything you can do.

As Ever
George

The enclosed budget is provisional and confidential, but it gives a pretty good idea of the picture.

MEMO ON THE BUDGET FOR 1943

The total salaries, overhead expenditures, plus some promotional expenditures and a contingency fund amount to slightly over $30,000. This fund of $30,000 we propose to raise during 1943. Some of this money is to come from operations of the Speakers' Buro, dues of members of the National Council, from associate members and from our regular small contributors whom we circularize once or twice a year, and from profits on the sales of publications, rental of films and fees for exhibits. These three items, as per the memo in your possession, amount to $7,000.

Payments for services and the dues from the various Councils throughout the country for the period 1943 is estimated to bring in $2,000. The New York Council is to pay us for services, dues, as well as a share of some of the money raised in New York. This is estimated to bring in $3,000. In addition we expect that the National Council's share of funds raised at meetings throughout the country where Tom Harris would appeal for funds will be $2,000. And, finally we propose that the National Council hold at least one large function in New York City during the year, where an appeal for funds is to be made and we estimate that this affair would bring in $3,000. These four items mentioned are to bring in a total of $10,000.

Altogether under the two classifications of income mentioned above, we are to get in $17,000.

We propose that from large and sizable annual subscriptions and gifts we raise a sum of $15,000. This $15,000. will be raised from people who have in the past contributed substantial amounts and in addition, that a list of about fifty people or more be drawn up and allocated to the members of the Executive Committee for contacting these prospective donors. We believe that the raising of an amount of $15,000. in such a way through the whole year is not an impossible task.

If we succeed in raising the $15,000. and the $17,000 mentioned above, we would be providing for our entire budget of 1943 without using up any of our present capital of $11,000. This capital, therefore, would become our revolving fund with which to finance publications and other investments that we need to make from time to time, such as financing a meeting or the purchases of additions to our exhibits, etc.

I believe that if we accept our budget to mean that we are to raise $32,000. on the pay-as-you-go basis, and use our present funds as working capital, some of it as a reserve, we would be keeping out of financial danger.

PUBLICATIONS PROGRAM

A rough estimate of our publications program, including the publication of the mass pamphlet of Wallace's speech and the Report on the Congress, a number of pamphlets under consideration and outlines for study groups, is that it will require during the year an investment of about $6000.-$7000. Some of this investment will not be realized in 1943. A part of the pamphlets and other printed material published in 1943 will continue to sell during 1944, thus tying up some portion of our funds.

Some investment will be made for motion pictures and exhibits. Again it is probable that not all of the money so invested will be realized in 1943, thus tying up some of our money until 1944.

(8) Memorandum entitled "NATIONAL TOURS".

The attached mimeographed report, dated August 13th, will give a picture of the way in which the work of the American Council on Soviet Relations had to be expanded, to meet the new situation after the Nazi attack on the Soviet Union after June 22nd. The following will give an idea of the scope of the Council's work during 1941.

NATIONAL TOURS

APRIL, Anna Louise Strong and Thomas L. Harris were routed through the Middle West. They spoke at Rochester, New York; Cleveland and Cincinnati, Ohio; Minneapolis and Duluth, Minnesota; Urbana, Ill.; and Denver, Colorado. In the last three places there were luncheon meetings as well, and radio broadcasts at Urbana and Denver. Meetings ranged from small groups of several hundred professional people to mass meetings, which included both labor and middle class groups.

AUGUST, Corliss Lamont made a tour speaking at large meetings in Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago, Milwaukee and Cleveland, with luncheon meetings at several places, radio broadcasts at Baltimore and Cleveland, newspaper interviews and good publicity everywhere.

JULY, Thomas L. Harris made a speaking tour holding meetings at Chicago, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Baltimore and Cincinnati.

OCTOBER, Thomas L. Harris made a coast to coast tour, with meetings at Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle (large meeting with Mayor and local officials on platform) Denver, Kansas City, Chicago, and Cincinnati, with luncheon meetings in several places.

In January, 1942, two extensive tours are now under way. Corliss Lamont went all the way to the coast and Canada, speaking at successful meetings and on the radio in many places, and Thomas L. Harris is making a tour through the South, very important, as this is the most reactionary section of the country. Dr. Harry F. Ward is also speaking for the Council on a national tour for his own organization, and Anna Louise Strong is preparing to tour Canada under the Council's auspices. Results to be reported later.

As the result of these tours, we now have active local Councils in Rochester, New York, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Newark and Minneapolis. We also have good contacts, through whom meetings can be arranged and literature distributed, in Montreal, Quebec, Detroit, Chicago, Milwaukee, Duluth, San Francisco, Seattle, Kansas City, and Jacksonville. Our Committee members include local professional people of some prominence (usually people who have reputations as progressives in their community, we have left the field of the more conservative groups to the Russian War Relief), college people, labor representatives in a few cases, and some church people. However, it is not the membership of these local councils alone that is important, but the fact that through the efforts of such groups, speakers on the Soviet Union can now be placed before many conservative organizations.

SPEAKERS BUREAU

We are just in process of building up an effective speakers' bureau which, aside from our national tours, functions mainly around New York. We expect to branch out and cover other parts of the country. There is a great opportunity for the expansion of this activity now. Whereas formerly we were limited to progressive groups, we now find that many different types of groups are coming to us for speakers - the Foreign Policy Association, Rotary Clubs, Church Forums and so on. We regularly place three or four speakers a week, and will soon do much more than this. We also have gotten a certain amount of radio time, and radio programs wishing a speaker on the USSR are increasingly turning to us. Corliss Lamont, Thomas L. Harris, Anna Louise Strong and Jessica Smith have all spoken on the radio during the last few months through the efforts of the Council's Speakers' Bureau. We have been able to derive some small income from this, and hope eventually that it can be a real source of support to the Council.

SPECIAL CAMPAIGNS

We solicited greetings and statements in connection with the appeals sent out from the Women's, Youth and Scientists' Anti-Nazi meetings in Moscow.

Women's Anti-Nazi meeting: We sent out telegrams to several hundred women and received about 45 very fine messages which were cabled to the Women's Anti-Nazi meeting in Moscow in September (see pamphlet). We made a recording of the broadcast from Moscow, sold a number of the record to be used at meetings, and also sold the record to four radio stations in different parts of the country who used it for a broadcast. (We had an American narrator give a dramatic picture of the meeting, with excerpts from the meeting itself). Sent release to press.

Youth Anti-Nazi Meeting: We arranged a listening party of various youth leaders in the city for the Moscow broadcast, got greetings from about 25 youth organizations and individuals which were cabled to Moscow, and arranged with youth organization to have the proceedings published in pamphlet form. Sent releases to press.

Scientists Anti-Nazi meeting: In connection with the Boas Committee we got greetings from about 25 leading scientists which were cabled to Moscow, and sent releases to the press.

PUBLICATIONS

Pamphlets: "Soviet Russia Vs. Nazi Germany" by Corliss Lamont - 25,000

"The Slavic People Against Hitler", (report of Moscow Pan-Slavic Conference) - 5,000

Appeal to Women (from Moscow Women's Anti-Nazi meeting) - 15,000

"Soviet Women to the Women of the World" 5,000

Bulletin: "News Survey" - (four issues) - 3,000 per issue

On "Soviet Power" 10,000
On Thomas L. Harris 500
On Corliss Lamont 1,000
Eighth Anniversary of American-Soviet Relations brochure 60,000

In addition we have sold about 15,000 copies of the tabloid edition of the Dean of Canterbury's "The Soviet Power", and sell a great many copies of Soviet Russia Today and the Bulletin of the American Russian Institute at our meetings.

The "Eighth Anniversary" brochure was mailed out on December 6th, and so reached people just after America's entry into the war. Although this made the brochure seem somewhat out of date, the response was very good, considering that it did not take the new situation into account. About $3,500. has been received in contributions, more than covering the cost, and many hundreds of people have written in asking for more information about the Council. Some of them have already become active in arranging meetings and promoting the Council's work in their own communities.

The Council has completely sold out every piece of literature mentioned above, and has several new things in preparation for which there is a very wide demand and which will certainly have a very large distribution. One of them is a pamphlet on "The Soviet People and the War", the other is one especially for the trade union movement. They are also arranging to give wide distribution to Capt. Kournakoff's book on the Red Army, now in preparation.

In addition to the above there have been a number of other small affairs at people's homes. Several chamber music concerts were held, and Muriel Draper has held a series of successful Sunday afternoon affairs, specially for theatre and radio people, at her home.

CONCLUSION

The above will give an idea of the scope of the work opening up for the Council. We feel that we have only scratched the surface of what there is to be done. As a result of America's entry into the war, and the greater degree of cooperation between the countries that now exists, the emphasis of our work, formerly on the improvement of American-Soviet Relations, has had to be somewhat shifted. What we find now is a tremendous general interest in solid information about the USSR. Study groups and forums on the Soviet Union are springing up everywhere and want to be serviced with speakers and literature on the USSR. While we have deliberately been holding back from any large scale organizational work, because we felt that at this particular period it was more important for the Russian War Relief to have the field, we have found that in many places there is room for the Council too. The more advanced of the people who come into RWR want to hear something about the USSR with more political content than the RWR is in a position to give them. We feel that if the time comes when the RWR has to cease functioning, the American Council should be in a position to carry on a big organizational campaign among many of the people (certainly not 11) who formerly worked with them.

In the meantime, it would be advisable to work out some means of much closer cooperation with the American Russian Institute, perhaps looking toward an eventual merger of the two organizations. The Institute prepares a large amount of excellent material but does very little in the way of distribution. The Council, on the other hand, is building up a distributing apparatus through its many local groups and contacts, but has to depend on other organizations for the actual material. It would seem wise both from the point of view of economy and general effectiveness for them to work much more closely together. There are certain political reasons against a complete merger, right now, but these may eventually be overcome. Mr. Carter is an active member of the Institute board, and this has been one of the reasons for the attack on him and the RWR. For this reason he would probably oppose a merger which would mean that the Institute took a more active position than it has in the past, especially during the present period when the suit against Readers' Digest for their slanders of RWR is under way. But it may be possible to work out a merger a little later on. Meantime, each organization must exist independently, and try to find out ways of working more effectively.

We reach largely middle class groups. We believe we can greatly expand one appeal, and are planning on the one hand but before now, more conservative groups than has been possible in the past, and on the other to get speakers and literature before labor and mass organizations much more extensively.

THE AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS

During the past year the American Council has had expenditures of something over $15,000. Of this Hollywood has contributed around $3,500. The remainder has been raised by contributions from individuals, collections at meetings, income from publications and speakers' bureau, etc.

It is planned that for 1942 it shall operate on a budget of $12,000. This is the minimum amount on which it can operate if it is to do effective work. During the past year it has succeeded in organizing branches in about nine cities, has operated a speakers' bureau which constantly provides speakers for all kinds of organizations, has had national speaking tours for Corliss Lamont and Thomas Harris as well as organizing a number of large affairs in and around New York. It was able to organize extensive responses in leading circles to the appeals of the Women's Anti-Nazi meeting in Moscow, the Youth anti-Nazi meeting, the Scientists anti-Nazi meeting, etc. It has published pamphlets on the Women's meeting, the Slavic Congress, and also a pamphlet by Corliss Lamont (25,000 I believe) on "Soviet Russia versus Nazi Germany", which was very well received. From time to time it organized special appeals to Congress on issues of importance to American-Soviet Relations. Recently it has sent out 60,000 copies of a brochure on the Eighth Anniversary of American-Soviet Relations, which is bringing responses from all over the country.

The Council plans to continue and expand activities of this kind, adapted to the new situation arising from America's entry into the war, and especially to bring constantly before the American public the facts about the great contribution of the Soviet armies and the Soviet people to the common cause of defeating the fascist powers. It is for this purpose that it needs a budget of $12,000. Actually, it will probably have to spend more than this amount. But other activities will be so organized that they will pay for themselves. Of the $12,000. budget, we can count definitely on receiving about $6,000. through contributions, collections, sales of literature, etc. But the remainder we cannot raise. It will be much harder to raise money during 1942 than it was in 1941 because of the calls of Russian War Relief, America's own defense needs, etc.

We therefore request from Hollywood the amount of $6,000. for the year, or $500. a month.

THE AMERICAN RUSSIAN INSTITUTE

The present budget of the Institute amounts to about $21,000. a year. This includes support of their research library and information bureau, which constantly answers questions from newspapers, magazines, radio commentators, writers, speakers, etc., for which it charges a fee; a bi-monthly magazine "The American Review of the Soviet Union", and a weekly bulletin "Russia at War", as well as other activities such as sending around of exhibit material. Toward their budget of $21,000. they can count on receiving an income through contributions, subscriptions, information fees, membership, etc., of about $9,000., leaving $12,000. still to be covered. By eliminating their bi-monthly and concentrating on their Bulletin which for the present is their most important publication, they could save about $2,000. if necessary. In any case, a minimum of about $10,000. is necessary to support them for the coming year if they are to continue their present activities.

FINANCES OF SRT (as of December 27th)

This is the picture for the year 1941, in round figures:

Total operating expenses for year	$55,000.
Total income for year (to date)	48,500.

Of this:	Business income	$21,000.
	General contributions	8,000.
	Hollywood contributions	19,500
		$48,500.

Deficit still to be covered by Hollywood	6,500.
--	---------------

(of the $19,500. so far received from Hollywood, $13,000. has been received before August 1st, $6,500. later, aside from what has been received for other purposes)

To cover this deficit of $6,500. we have already had to borrow the sum of $5,000. to be repaid right after the first of the year. Thus in order to get through the year, $1,500. is needed before the end of December and $5,000. to repay the debt, as early in January as possible. That would mean a total of $26,000. received from Hollywood this year. The arrangement was that we should get $30,000. (for the magazine alone). We have managed on less by stringent economies, by cutting down on promotional work which would have further increased our circulation, and by postponing certain debts left over from previous years.

Needs for 1942

In order to continue publishing the magazine in its present format, and to maintain and if possible increase its present circulation of 30,000 a month (35,000 actually published, 30,000 regular circulation with the exception of certain special issues which go up to 60,000 and 70,000), it will be necessary to receive from Hollywood during 1942 the sum of $30,000. or $2,500. per month. We have figured very carefully what we can do, and we cannot manage on less. Costs have increased about 20 per cent, which is only partially reflected in the figures for the year. We pay minimum wages - ranging from $18. to $30. a week (the latter is our highest salary), and they should be increased somewhat to meet rising living costs. With the stronger emotional appeal of Russian War Relief and related work, we cannot expect to receive more than we already do in other contributions.

Therefore, in making plans for the coming year, it is essential for us to know whether we can count on $30,000 during the year from Hollywood sources.

We would like to relieve Hollywood of this burden, but we have no other way of financing the magazine, and if Hollywood is unable to continue, we must cease publication.

"MEMO ON PROPOSED MERGER OF AMERICAN RUSSIAN INSTITUTE AND AMERICAN COUNCIL ON SOVIET RELATIONS"

At the present time discussions are under way regarding a possible merger of these two organizations, precipitated mainly by the ARI people (Moore and Rubin) because of 1) lack of financial support to enable them to carry on their program adequately and 2) lack of any apparatus for distributing the material they produce. The Council is also interested in the idea because, while it is developing a national organization and wide contacts, it has no base of its own for information and material on the USSR, but has to count on Soviet Russia Today and the American Russian Institute for all the material it distributes. It too has serious financial problems.

In the course of these discussions certain rather complex questions have arisen, on which it is important to have your opinion before any decision can be made.

Proposed form of merger

There is a fundamental difference of approach between the two organizations. While their basic purpose, i.e., better understanding and relations between the two countries, and education on the USSR, are similar, their methods of work are different. The ARI has always carefully maintained an "objective" attitude, believing the facts speak for themselves. Thus while its material is presented accurately and competently, it is usually rather cold and dull. While its board and staff support the Soviet Union and wish to further American-Soviet cooperation, they have always shied clear of controversial issues, avoid drawing political conclusions and would not, for example, attempt to bring pressure on our government to adopt certain policies or to mobilize public opinion behind administration policies as the Council does.

While the Institute has individual members in various parts of the country, and independent institutes exist in one or two other places, they make no attempt to organize branches, and do not engage in free distribution of their material or promotion work of any kind, feeling that this might label them as a propaganda organization. They charge a fee for all information they give out. They have severed all official connection with VOKS, and pay for all material they receive from Soviet sources, so that they come before the public as an entirely American group. They have built up a solid reputation among libraries, research groups, academic circles, the press, etc.

The American Council, on the other hand, while also trying to avoid too propagandistic an approach, has always adopted a much more political attitude. It carries on organizational work throughout the country, distributes literature free when necessary, always takes a strong stand in support of Soviet policies (i.e. during the trials, Finland, etc.), its speakers freely discuss controversial issues, and it definitely attempts to mobilize public opinion to bring pressure on or to support the government when necessary. The Council at the present time feels that its work has a definite bearing on America's war effort, calls for full confidence in the USSR as an important element in American morale, answers slanderous statements, attacks the appeasers when necessary, and in general takes a much more political position. Thus while the ARI feels even during this period that accurate statistical material and straight educational work on the USSR is all important, the Council's position is that the most vital thing at the moment, for both the USSR and our own country, is to help win the war.

In order to reconcile these two approaches some compromises would have to be made on both sides. A preliminary proposal has been made by the ARI which would in effect mean that the Council would go out of existence, the ARI would take over as members of its national board the most acceptable members of the Council (eliminating those generally thought to be closest to the party point of view) and adapt certain elements of the Council program, i.e., they would take over its national organizational work and speakers, but would continue their own type of written material.

This proposal not being acceptable to the Council, a counter-proposal has been made which is more in the nature of an amalgamation of the two organizations than simply the taking over of the Council by the Institute. The Council's proposal would involve having two main departments; one a research department which would continue the present information and publishing work of the ARI; the other an organizational department of which Corliss Lamont would be chairman, and which would continue the present activities of the Council. (H. Moore would be chairman of the research department). There would be a board of directors containing members drawn from both organizations, from which the more "left" elements of the Council (such as myself) would be eliminated. In order to make the merger acceptable, the name of the joint organization would probably have to be American Russian Institute.

Advantages of the merger

There would be a distinct financial advantage, in that many of the people now called upon to support the two organizations might be induced to give a more substantial contribution to the combined organization on the ground that it could do more effective work. There would be a certain saving in overhead office expenses due to having a combined office, telephone, clerical staff, etc. This economy should not be over-estimated, however, as the assumption would be that the new group would greatly expand its activities.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

Presumably there would be added strength and effectiveness to be gained by pooling the resources, program and personnel of the two groups.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The ARI would immediately have a distributing apparatus through which it could dispose of much more of its factual material, and especially its weekly bulletin (now only around 1,000 to 1,500 are published), and greatly widen its contacts and influence. The American Council, on the other hand, would gain through the solid reputation the ARI already has, and would have a research staff and information base right at hand to supply its groups, answer questions, etc.

Disadvantages

Even though the American Council made some compromise in its approach, and dropped overboard some of its "objectionable" members, the Institute could no longer maintain its reputation as a wholly objective organization, if for no other reason, because of the addition of Corliss Lamont and some of the other Council people to its board, and the more active program it would immediately undertake.

On the other hand, the Council might find that its merging with the Institute might necessitate watering down its own program to such an extent that it would do definite damage to its effectiveness.

This last would be apt to be the case if Edward Carter continued in a controlling position as a member of the Executive Board of the Institute (as it is now proposed by them that he should). However much Mr. Carter himself might feel that he approved of the ARI launching a more active program than in the past, it would be inevitable that as chairman of Russian War Relief he would be constantly fearful that the Institute might engage in activities that might be embarrassing to him (the main attack on him in the past was based on his connection with the ARI, even on the basis of its own limited program), and therefore he might be inclined to try to keep it as inactive as possible.

Therefore two essential points to be considered are 1) whether Mr. Carter will insist on retaining a controlling voice in ARI affairs which, in my opinion, would rule out the possibility of a merger 2) whether he would be agreeable to the merger on the basis of his own withdrawal from the Institute 3) or whether in any case it would be desirable for him to retain a controlling voice so that he could return to a leading role in the ARI when the work of Russian War Relief is over.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

While we feel that Moore is necessary to the success of the combined organization, the same danger outlined with regard to Carter might to a certain extent be true of her, since she has always worked very closely with Carter and to a certain extent her activities reflect on him.

The Council has just entered upon a rather extensive program which we would not like to see limited by the merger. Mr. Lamont and Mr. Harris have both been on extensive tours, forming a number of new councils. Mr. Harris reports on great interest in the South, where he spoke to about 70 meetings, before every possible kind of group - trade unions, churches, Rotary clubs, colleges, etc. We have also launched a large pamphleteering program i.e.; Molotov's Paper on German Atrocities, with introduction - 50,000 or more; The Soviet People and the War, by Alvan Bessie - 25,000 or more; "Know the USSR" (suggested reading list), 5,000; and in preparation, Soviet Trade Unions, 50,000, Religion in the USSR and Agriculture.

Questions on which the decision hinges

1. Finances. It is important to know just what support the organizations can count on, either separately or together, in order to make our final decision. (ARI needs about $10,000 a year; the Council, about $6,000. The merged organization could manage with something less than the total of these two amounts.) Unless they receive some financial support at once, the ARI will have to take some drastic step. They have even proposed as a last ditch alternative, that the Council simply take them over, as they cannot continue without support in any case.

2. Information Bureau

Perhaps the most important question of all to be decided is in this connection. It is absolutely essential that some sort of information bureau be continued that is not directly connected with meetings, organizational work, etc. At the present time there is no place outside the ARI that the newspapers, radio commentators, etc. can call on for factual information, and because of the present set-up, the ARI has to charge for giving out information. Sometimes this fee is too high for a newspaperman to pay out of his own pocket, and thus information is not given out.

If there is a possibility of setting up an official or semi-official information bureau that would be regularly supported by the USSR, this would eliminate one knotty problem. If there is no possibility of setting up an official bureau, would it then be desirable to leave the present set-up as it is, or would it be possible to keep the information bureau as part of an organization engaging in much wider activities as well?

Several problems need to be discussed with relation to the setting up of an information bureau. The ARI has probably the most complete library and files that now exist in this country. It would therefore have to be ascertained whether this would have to form the basis for the information bureau, whether it could also be used by other organizations, or whether there is enough material available in other places to set up an entirely separate bureau.

- Section 3. Persons may be elected to membership at any meeting of the Executive Board (Board of Directors) after notice to all members of the Board that such persons are to be voted upon, or by mail ballot of the members of the Board. A majority of the votes cast in either case shall be sufficient to elect.
- Section 4. Membership of the Council shall be selected from time to time from persons who are able to assist in furthering the work of the organization and who are able to give leadership to that work in various localities. As far as possible, members shall be drawn from all sections of the country and all sections of the population. In making such selection the Executive Board shall seek suggestions from Council members, cooperating organizations, or affiliates in various localities and fields of endeavor, and due weight shall be given thereto.
- Section 5. Thereafter directors shall be elected as follows:
- (a) The chairman shall appoint a nominating committee consisting of five members, not more than two of them being members of the Executive Board.
  - (b) The nominating Committee will call for and consider suggestions for nominations from members, cooperating organizations and affiliates, and from the Executive Board.
  - (c) Thereafter the nominating committee will prepare a slate of candidates which may exceed the number to be elected, giving due consideration to the need for a board representative of all sections of the people and to the desirability of having a majority of the members within such distance from New York City that their attendance at board meetings will be reasonably assured.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

- (d) The board of directors by a majority vote may add additional nominations.
- (e) Ballots shall be sent to the membership under the supervision of the nominating committee at least one month before the date of the annual meeting. The ballot may indicate which nominees are nominating committee nominees and which are Board nominees, and may be accompanied by short statements concerning the qualifications of candidates. The ballot shall indicate the date by which it must be received at the office of the organization. It shall be sent in such manner as to be a secret ballot.
- (f) The nominating committee shall receive the ballots and after the balloting is closed shall prepare its report on the election for presentation and ratification at the annual meeting.
- (g) The candidates receiving the highest number of votes cast shall be elected.

Section 6. At the first membership meeting the directors shall be divided into two classes. Section 8. Twenty-five percent of the directors shall constitute a quorum of the Executive Board. Section 9. The members of the Executive Board and the officers shall carry on the work of the organization between membership meetings.

Section 10. The Executive Board may refer any matter of policy to the membership by mail ballot. Such referendum shall be held whenever one-third of all the directors shall request the same.

Summary of Information:

The much advertised Soviet rally held at Carnegie Hall on Thursday evening, May 20, could be considered a failure. The audience was told that there was a conspiracy in the United States to alienate America and Russia.

Lynne Stone, a war correspondent with radical tendencies, was the chief speaker.

Corliss Lamont acted as chairman. At the last minute Prof. Oscar Rydberg of the University of Chicago, U. S. Senator Clayton Pepper of Florida and Representative John Clark Baldwin sent their regrets stating that they could not speak at the meeting because of previous engagements.

Following are those who permitted their names to be used as sponsors of the affair. Some are just pink, others marked with an X are out and out Reds.

Reference is made to your letter of July 6, 1943, concerning the above-named organization. You are advised that in view of the fact that no branch of the instant organization exists within your Field Division the case concerning it may be placed in a closed status in your Office. However, you should, of course, remain alert for any indications of activity on the part of the organization in your Field Division and report the same promptly to the Bureau.

Re: NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN -
SOVIET FRIENDSHIP
INTERNAL SECURITY - R

Dear Sir:

Investigation by the Juneau Field Division concerning the captioned organization has not disclosed that there is a branch or a group of this organization existing in the Territory of Alaska at the present time. The investigation has disclosed a number of subscribers to the paper Soviet Russia Today and that the magazine has been sold on news stands in various cities in the Territory.

Inasmuch as the extent of the activity of this organization in Territory appears limited to the dissemination of the paper Soviet Russia Today, the purpose of the investigation continuing in this office concerns itself with the determination of the names of the individuals subscribing and the places where this paper is sold.

The Bureau is requested to advise the Juneau Field Division whether, in view of the lack of the existence of a branch of this organization, this case should be kept in a pending status merely for the purpose of determining new subscribers and other means of distribution of the paper.

Very truly yours,

C. W. Stein

AT CORDOVA, ALASKA:

In the report of Special Agent STANLEY D. BASKIN, Juneau, Alaska, dated February 28, 1943, in the case entitled JOSEPH LOUIS GWOREK, with aliases Internal Security - C, it is noted that Subject admitted being a subscriber to the paper Soviet Russia Today. On June 7, 1943, it was learned from Miss COLEMAN, Librarian, Juneau Public Library, that for four or five months the Library has been receiving a copy of the magazine Soviet Russia Today. Agent observed while in the Library that the May issue of this magazine was on the magazine rack. Miss COLEMAN stated that the Library did not order this magazine and she does not know how it happened that the Library gets a copy. She stated that the magazines to her recollection come directly from the publishers and attributed its receipt to either a donation by some individual or a matter of policy by the publisher of sending it to public libraries.

It is noted that a review of this file reflects that the magazine Soviet Russia Today has been on sale at various times at news stands in the towns of Juneau, Anchorage, Fairbanks, and Seward, Alaska.

explaining the present form of government in Russia and explaining how much better off the Russian people are under their present form of government than they were under the Czar. Mr. DRAUGHON stated that McDONALD is not a Communist and does not desire the Communist form of government to prevail in the U. S. He said that Dr. McDONALD told him on one occasion that what is best for Russia is not necessarily best for the United States. He added that McDONALD had been active in collecting old clothes for Russian War Relief and that on the occasion of the drive he had made a talk to the students at Murphy High School explaining to them the great need that the people of Russia have for any kind of clothing. He added that McDONALD made no attempt to discuss the Russian form of government before the high school students.

J. T. TIERNEY, 62 Government Street, advised that McDONALD had given a speech before the Knights of Columbus about the present form of government in Russia and its benefit to the Russian people and that after the speech was over, he had invited questions from the floor. Mr. TIERNEY added that many pertinent questions about Communism and its activities in this country were asked and it was apparent to everyone at the meeting that McDONALD knew nothing about the Russian form of government except what he had read in books. He stated that, in his opinion, McDONALD was very much interested in Russian History and he wanted to do everything he could to help Russia in this present conflict. He said that he replied to the question asked him "that this country should do everything in the world to keep Russia in the war because the more fighting that Russia does, the fewer Americans that will be killed".

advised he knew that McDONALD had made numerous speeches in and about Mobile about the Russian form of government, but that he knew of no affiliations of McDONALD with the Communist Party and does not believe that the subject is a Communist or consciously knows that he is playing into the hands of the Communist Party.

WILLIAM ROWE, 67 N. Monterey Street, advised that he has been a neighbor of the subject for the past ten years and that subject has always been very much interested in Russian history and that since Russia has played such an important and active part in the war, he has attempted to acquaint the average American citizen with knowledge of the present form of government in Russia. Mr. ROWE stated that McDONALD has never held any sort of meetings at his house and that he has never known of McDONALD associating with the laboring element.

Inasmuch as no evidence has been developed that any Communist control of subject organization exists in Mobile, this case is being referred upon completion to the office of origin.

There is attached material supplied to the writer by [REDACTED] concerning literature which the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 232 Madison Avenue, New York City, is distributing in wholesale quantities throughout the United States. It is stated that a secretary of the National Council, in order to avoid international postal complications, was submitting certain postal cards written by American citizens to addressees in the Soviet Union to the Soviet Embassy in Washington for transmission by Diplomatic Pouch to Russia.

[REDACTED] is of the opinion that if the Embassy is forwarding to the Soviet communications from private citizens to persons in the Soviet Union, it is participating in the evasion of the censorship regulations. [REDACTED] also commented on the fact that such means of communication would be extremely useful to the Soviet Government in building up references of names and addresses of American citizens who are emotionally sympathetic with the Soviet Union and that if the National Council is turning over communications which it receives to the Soviet Embassy, it is assisting the Soviet Union in building up an extremely useful mailing list.

The writer informed [REDACTED] that this matter would be called to the attention of the appropriate Bureau official.

Respectfully,

R. R. Roach

MEMORANDUM

May 19, 1943.

Attached are samples of some literature which the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 232 Madison Avenue, New York City, is distributing in wholesale quantities throughout the United States. The envelop and postcards were given to me in confidence by [redacted] of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association. I told [redacted] that I was rather surprised at seeing these postcards since it was my understanding that American Censorship opposed the artificial stimulation at this time of international communication. [redacted] said that he had been informed by a Secretary of the National Council that in order to avoid international postal complications all communications which it received destined for addressees in the Soviet Union were being turned over to the Soviet Embassy in Washington for transmission by it.

b7D

If the Soviet Embassy is forwarding to the Soviet Union communications from private American citizens to persons in the Soviet Union it would seem to me that it is participating in an evasion of American censorship regulations. Another point which is interesting in this connection is this--it would be extremely useful to the Soviet Government in connection with the work which is being carried on in this country to have the names and addresses of large numbers of American citizens who are emotionally sympathetic with the Soviet Union. If the National Council is turning over communications which it receives to the Soviet Embassy it is assisting the Soviet Government in building up an extremely useful mailing list.

It occurred to me that it might be advisable for the appropriate authorities of the American Government to look into this matter.

As per the attached circular note the Russians were recently warned again about transmitting material in their pouches for third persons. They were told that such action would be regarded with "grave concern".

It would seem that we could make pretty sharp protest to the Russians if an FBI report or other satisfactory evidence showed that they are in fact sending private material through their pouch facilities.

It is likewise true that various enterprises for the exchange of correspondence between the U.S. and Russia with the avowed purpose of fomenting good-will have been discouraged. I discussed this with Colonel Carlson at one time and he said that his office as well, I believe, as the Post Office had taken a hand in slowing down a few such attempts.

In this case I believe that a check-up by an investigative agency would be well worth while.

My dear Mr. President:

This is a matter to which many people are turning.

Enclosed you will find an article which was handed out to the English Students.

It says to tell them about your surroundings where you live; about your customs.

Do you think this is a wise thing to do in time of war? To us it seems dangerous.

Please let us know what we should do.

Dear Teacher, Pupil, and Patron:

At this time we are introducing the campaign to write letters to Russia. The purpose is to bring about a knowledge of America to Russia and to increase our knowledge of Russia.

Since school is about out and letter writing is a part of our study of English we suggest that each student write and rewrite a letter to a student in Russia. Then soon after school opens next term you possibly will have a return letter from a Russian student which will be of much interest, I am sure.

As many parents as possible should be encouraged to write to some farmer, or farm wife in Russia. Even the teacher should write a letter too.

When you bring your last report in bring these letters with you and we will get them to the proper place.

Harlem Committee of Soviet-American Friendship
Mass meeting held July 13th, 43.

Moran Weston presided:

Speakers:

Thyra Edwards, General Manger, People's Voice.
Rev. Ben Richardson, Associate Pastor, Abyssinian Church.
Captain Sergei Kournakoff, Russian representative.

Moran Weston:

He stated that the objective of the meeting was to create friendship between the Negro people and the Soviet peoples through mutual understanding of their problems. The meeting, he said, was a step in that direction. There were many lessons to be learned from the solution of the minority problem in Russia.

Thyra Edwards:

The minority problem in America, that is the Negro problem which she characterized as a minority problem is fundamentally the same as that of the many minorities in old Czarist Russia. The Soviet Government has solved its minority problems. All the terrible attacks against the minorities in Russia are things of the past. The peoples now live in peace and harmony.

She deplored the failure to give study and consideration to the remarkable successes of Soviet Russia ~~in the solution~~ of its own minority problems at a time when Negroes were being attacked in Detroit, Michigan and other American cities.

Her experiences in Russia were that the Russian people are very well informed regarding the Negro problem in America. In Russia all the minority groups have been completely integrated into the economic life. This she said was the solution. She concluded with an appeal for the creation of better relations among races.

Rev. Ben Richardson:

Praised Soviet Russia. Much can be learned from the study and example of Soviet Russia in the solution of its minority and other problems. He denounced the members of the clergy who are content to preach about what the Negro will get in the sky with utter disregard of the needs of the people here and now.

Moreover, he said, we can learn considerable from Russia. The Russian system he characterized as the practical application of the religion of Jesus Christ. What Christ advocated was a simple community life. This kind of life exists in Russia.

Captain Sergei Kournakoff:

Traced the history of Russia comparing conditions under the Czarist regime with conditions under the Soviets. Under the Czarist regime there were ceaseless racial conflicts. These conflicts raged the more than 170 different nationalities. Under the Soviet Government the race problem has been solved. These different nationalities live in harmony. Each has its own national culture.

The basic principle that Soviet Russia maintains is full and complete equality. Through the application of this principle a strong and unified nation has been built.

The unity of the people, their faith and confidence is responsible for the successful defense of Russia against the tremendous war machine and resources of Hitler.

LOCAL ORGANIZATION

The Cleveland Telephone Directory lists the American Council on Soviet Relations, Arcade Building, telephone, Main 1517.

✓Confidential Informant [ ] whose identity is known to the Bureau, advised that the above listing was billed to CYRIL BATH, 457 Arcade, Cleveland and was installed on October 7, 1942. [ ] further advised that this telephone was disconnected on March 8, 1943.

b7D

The building directory at the Arcade reflects that Room 457 is listed to the Russian War Relief, Incorporated and has no listing for subject organization. The Russian War Relief, Incorporated has a telephone listed in the Cleveland Telephone Directory as Main 6872. [ ] advised that this phone is billed to the Russian War Relief, Incorporated, 457 Arcade, Cleveland.

b7D

Mr. WILLIAM MAIM, Manager, Arcade Building, Cleveland, advised that HARRY STARK, MARY YEAGLE and LEONA D. HALE asked him for an office room for the Russian War Relief in the Arcade in the spring of 1942 and he let them have Room 457, rent free; that on May 1, 1943 MARY YEAGLE asked him for additional space and he let them have, in addition, Room 459 but charged them for this additional room.

MAIM stated that he always thought this space was occupied solely by the Russian War Relief, Incorporated; that he never heard of the American Council on Soviet Relations and had no idea that this Council had any connection with Room 457 in the Arcade.

MAIM further advised that he had seen CYRIL BATH, Fellow Traveler, President of the Cyril Bath Manufacturing Company, entering Room 457 in the Arcade.

✓Confidential Informant [ ] whose identity is known to the Bureau, reported on January 22, 1942 that CYRIL BATH was Chairman of the American Council on Soviet Relations.

b7D

The writer called Main 6872, the telephone listed in the name of the Russian War Relief, Incorporated, and without identifying himself, inquired about the American Council on Soviet Relations. The party answering the phone advised that there is no local chapter of the American Council on Soviet Relations and that there is no local chapter on the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, but that it was possible that the right people in Russian could be reached through the National Council of American Soviet Friendship by sending a postcard and enclosing 25¢ addressed to some Russian friend.

CV F.O. 100-3940

This party did not seem to be very well versed on the activities of these Councils but went to great length explaining how to write letters to Russian friends through the Russian War Relief and to explain that the National Council of American Soviet Friendship is entirely separate from the Russian War Relief.

Confidential Informant T-1 advised that the American Council on Soviet Relations never had a local organization but before Christmas, 1942, a telephone was installed in the same room in the Arcade which is occupied by the Russian War Relief and listed in the name of the American Council on Soviet Relations, merely to give this council a telephone listing and a place it could be referred to as their office.

This informant further advised that the telephone listed in the name of the American Council on Soviet Relations had been disconnected and that the Council has no office in Cleveland, no telephone presently listed in its name, no local chapter; that there is at present a national organization known as the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, a cultural organization which exists all over the country which has taken the place of the American Council on Soviet Relations and that the national program of this Council is being carried out locally by RUSSELL N. CHASE, attorney and fellow traveler and Miss ADA NICOLA LEFFINGWELL.

[ ] reported that there was never an active local chapter of the American Council on Soviet Relations; that there was never any local chapter of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, but that they were created in name only in Cleveland to further the national program of said Councils.

ACTIVITIES

JOSEPH BRANDT, Ohio State Communist Party Organizer, advised Confidential Informant [ ] whose identity is known to the Bureau, on August 6, 1941 that the American Council on Soviet Relations was created for the purpose of raising money.

b7D

JOSEPH BRANDT told [ ] on October 9, 1942 that a meeting had been held with 2 men from New York City relative to setting up a new Russian War Relief organization sponsored by the American Council on Soviet Relations and that they had discussed the possibility of holding a rally in November to raise money for the American Council on Soviet Relations. BRANDT further stated that this new organization would have the good wishes of the State Department, the administration and the whole government and that THOMAS L. HARRIS, National Secretary of the American Council on Soviet Relations,

b7D

could be sent to Ohio for a week to get things started in Akron, Youngstown, Warren, Columbus, Cincinnati, Toledo and Cleveland.

JOSEPH BRANDT told [ ] on October 10, 1942 that one of their leading comrades from New York City had arrived in town by plane last night and that they had a meeting on the American Council on Soviet Relations relative to holding a big rally on November 8, 1942 in connection with the 25th Anniversary of the USSR; that over 200 meetings were going to be held throughout the country simultaneously and that RUSSELL N. CHASE had called New York and "they" agreed to send THOMAS L. HARRIS to Cleveland on Monday, October 12, 1942 to work in Akron, Warren, Youngstown and Cincinnati.

b7D

Confidential Informant [ ] whose identity is known to the Bureau, advised on October 12, 1942 that THOMAS L. HARRIS was in town and was going to meet with RUSSELL N. CHASE, JOSEPH BRANDT and ARNOLD JOHNSON, Ohio State Secretary of the Communist Party.

b7D

[ ] reported on October 15, 1942 that JOSEPH BRANDT told SALLY (WINTERS) MORILLAS, Daily Worker Circulation Manager) to get 15 girls for the Party and Press Builders Conference at Cleveland Public Auditorium on October 24, 1942 to get 5000 names on petitions urging the opening of a Second Front and instructed her to take care of getting these petitions from the American Council on Soviet Relations.

b7D

ARNOLD JOHNSON told [ ] on October 21, 1942 that RUSSELL N. CHASE was worried about the November 8 meeting to be sponsored by the American Council on Soviet Relations and also in celebration of the 25th Anniversary of the USSR because CORLISS LAMONT, National Chairman of the American Council on Soviet Relations, had written that the only available speakers were SHERWOOD EDDY and HARRY WARD. JOHNSON stated that the meeting must go through as planned and that they could get a prominent local speaker.

b7D

JOSEPH BRANDT told [ ] on October 26, 1942 that an unknown number of petition signatures had been collected for the American Council on Soviet Relations at the Second Front Now Rally held on October 24, 1942 at the Cleveland Public Auditorium.

b7D

JOSEPH BRANDT told [ ] on October 27, 1942 that he was sending each section of the Communist Party in Cleveland blank signature petitions of Greetings to the Soviet people on the 25th Anniversary of the Soviet Union furnished by the American Council on Soviet Relations; that a minimum of 10¢ should be charged each person who signs; that the petitions could be taken to unions for signatures and that the petitions must be returned to the State Office of the Communist Party by November 7, 1942.

b7D

CV F.O. 100-3940

ARNOLD JOHNSON told [ ] on October 29, 1942, that RUSSELL N. CHASE told him the American Council on Soviet Relations called off the meeting on November 8, 1942 celebrating the 25th Anniversary of the USSR. JOHNSON suggested that the Council put on a meeting as a front while the Party would support it, provide the audience and everything. b7D

ARNOLD JOHNSON told [ ] on November 4, 1942 that the Cleveland Industrial Union Council had failed to authorize the circulation of the American Council on Soviet Relations petitions but had voted to send a delegate to the Congress of American Soviet Friendship held in New York City on November 7 and 8, 1942. b7D

X Confidential Informant [ ] advised this office on August 11, 1942 that he had been receiving literature published by the American Council on Soviet Relations; that he had never placed his name on any mailing list and wanted this office to be advised that he had no knowledge of why this literature was being sent to him. This informant advised that he had received a pamphlet entitled b7D

"The Trade Unions of Our Soviet Ally"
by CLIFFORD T. McAVOY;

a pamphlet entitled

"The Soviet People at War"
by ALVAH BESSIE;

a pamphlet entitled

"Informed Speakers Offer You Facts on the USSR";

a pamphlet entitled

"Know the USSR";

an open letter entitled

"Facts on the USSR"

signed by CORLISS LAMONT, National Chairman of the American Council on Soviet Relations, and a letter addressed to the Union of which he was a member, explaining the fact that the American Council on Soviet Relations was attempting to mobilize American sentiment behind the ROOSEVELT-CHURCHILL-MOLOTOV agreements so as to strengthen American Soviet Friendship, and also explaining that the Council was equipped to furnish speakers, exhibits and literature should this union be willing to incorporate the formation of an informal committee on American Soviet Friendship.

The Cincinnati Field Division furnished this office on January 6, 1943 with a circular published by the American Council on Soviet Relations containing the signatures of 42 people in Cleveland who had signed their names, given their addresses and contributed from five cents to a dollar in expression of their friendship for Russia.

An article appeared in the Cleveland Press on January 11, 1943 stating that the first of a series of 8 lectures on the Soviet Union, sponsored by the American Council on Soviet Relations, would be given by ALFRED BOSCH, instructor in the Cleveland Heights and Shaker Heights High Schools, on January 12, 1943 at the Main Library.

An article in the Cleveland Union Leader dated January 22, 1943 stated that ALFRED BOSCH, an outstanding authority on Soviet Russia, would deliver the third in a series of 8 lectures sponsored by the American Council on Soviet Relations on the Soviet Union at the Main Library on January 26, 1943. This article further stated that the topics of the various forums would include religion in Russia, collective farms, foreign policy, advance in Russia, treatment of minorities and the role of women.

Confidential Informant T-2 advised this office on May 28, 1943 that ANTON KRCHMAREK, Ohio State Chairman of the Communist Party, stated at an enlarged State Committee meeting of the Communist Party in the Allerton Hotel on May 16, 1943 that to further the current campaign of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship of strengthening the friendship of the United States and Russia, the Party should get a number of people to write letters to unknown individuals in Russia; that the letters would be taken in bulk to Russia, distributed among the people in Russia and that the people in Russia would in turn write to the people in the United States.

Confidential Informant [ ] whose identity is known to the Bureau, showed Special Agent GLEN R. DORNFIELD, Cleveland, Ohio, on May 25, 1943, a letter received by HENRY EUGENE EHRHART, Organizer for the Youngstown Section of the Communist Party, from National Headquarters of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, which explained the aims and purposes of this Council, included some literature from National Headquarters and suggested that the Party should get some prominent people to write letters to people in Russia.

HANNAH BLUMENTHAL, Leader of the South Side Section of the Communist Party in Youngstown, made up a list of businessmen, ministers, leaders of the Y.M.C.A. and other prominent people in Youngstown to be contacted relative to this program in an attempt to get these people to write letters to individuals in Russia.

Inasmuch as investigation of this case reflects that there is no local chapter of the American Council on Soviet Relations and no local chapter of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship in existence in this Field Division, this case is being referred upon completion to the office of origin.

Subject: ~~THE~~ TRUTH ABOUT THE SOVIET UNION

Summary of Information:

On Tuesday, 13 July 1943, from 2030 to 2300, a discussion of the TRUTH ABOUT THE SOVIET UNION, sponsored by the Harlem Committee of the Council of American Soviet Friendship, was held at the Abyssinian Baptist Church, 132 West 138th Street, New York City. The Abyssinian Baptist Church gratuitously contributed its facilities for the occasion.

The audience was composed of approximately 100 Negroes and 5 whites. Those who participated on the program were Captain Sergei N. Kournakoff, author of "Russia's Fighting Forces" and a former member of the Army of the Czar during World War I; Thyrre Edwards, managing editor of "The People's Voice"; Rev. Benjamin Richardson, Assistant Pastor of the Abyssinian Baptist Church; a Soviet student visiting in this country; and Moran Weston, who presided at the meeting. Miss Arlene Carmen sang several Russian songs.

The purpose of the meeting as stated by Weston was to bring to the Negro people facts - political, economic, and religious - concerning Russia. Weston pointed out that the newspapers have not printed the virtues of our Soviet Ally but have developed an erroneous conception of Russia. Weston expressed the belief that if Negroes knew the facts about Russia from an authentic source, they would be willing to cooperate with and regard Russia as the great nation that it is.

The speakers in a general way pointed out certain virtues of the Soviet Republic and credited Russia with having given the answer to racial antagonism by employing an economic system that eradicated social problems.

Benjamin Richardson attempted to prove that Russia practices total religious freedom. He is of the opinion that Russia gave religion its rightful place when it separated the Church from the State. The world needs to practice the type of religion that is in Russia, he told the audience. He implied that materialism is a far better religion than the belief in a supernatural world.

Kournakoff attempted to show that Russia was not weak in World War I, but was defeated from within by corrupted leadership. He said that the revolution in Russia was the result of Germany's victory over Russia, and not vice versa. He credited Russia with possessing the ability to unite 180 different nationalities speaking 80 distinct languages. He told the audience that regardless of the amount of assistance the United Nations have claimed to be giving Russia, Russia is still carrying ninety per cent of the war. Kournakoff referred to Wendell Willkie as the "Bolshevik Willkie."

Thyra Edwards, who claims to have traveled extensively in Russia, painted Russia as an "Utopia." She wanted the audience to believe that the people in Russia were a very happy people before the war. She praised the Russians for their hospitality and stated that they know nothing about racial discrimination.

The audience in general enthusiastically applauded all of the praises of Russia, but their enthusiasm was broken when a Negro woman, Mrs. McWilliams, asked the speakers about the Negroes' status in Russia today. Kournakoff and Thyra Edwards both reluctantly answered that there are no Negroes in Russia today. Kournakoff attempted to explain that a dark race of people inhabit a small southern section of Russia, and Miss Edwards tried to point out that Russians receive Negro visitors without prejudice.

It was proposed by the audience that an open discussion be held one month from the date of Subject meeting and opportunities be given the audience to express their views on Russia and Communism. It was stated that the date would be announced for such a meeting to be held.

A survey of the news stands at Fairbanks was conducted and it was determined that "Soviet Russia Today" was offered for sale at the Horseshoe News Stand and at the Cooperative Drug Store.

J. AUTHUR MARSH, Owner, Horseshoe News Stand, a reputable citizen of Fairbanks, upon interview, advised that he had received a number of request for "Soviet Russia Today" from various persons, principally the local Russians, and that he had therefore written to the North West Magazine Distributors in Seattle, Washington to include a couple of dozen copies of this magazine with his order and that, consequently he had been receiving this number of copies for nearly a year. He advised that he knew nothing about the magazine, but that it was obviously a "good seller", as he always sold all of the copies. MARSH was unable to furnish the names of any of the regular purchasers.

VIRGINIA NEWLAN, Manager, Cooperative Drug Store, advised that she had not placed any special order for "Soviet Russia Today", but that she had contracts with several magazine distributors in Seattle which furnished her with a selection of popular magazines at the distributors discretion and that one of the distributors, probably North West, had included a number of copies, probably twenty four copies, of this magazine in her allotment. She stated that she did not even know the exact number of copies that she received and in fact had never read the magazine, but she always sold all that were sent.

AT KETCHIKAN, ALASKA:

The following investigation was conducted by Special Agent BERNARD J. TRAEGER.

A check of the money orders for April and May, 1943 reflected the following:

On April 3, 1943, ANN CLOZZA, 1532 13th Avenue, E., Vancouver, B.C., forwarded $1.50 to "Soviet Russia Today" Suit #707, 114 East 32nd Street, New York, New York, via money order #444855. On April 17, 1943, I.L.W.U., signed A. E. SILL, Sec., sent $2.10 to BJORNE HALKING or HALLING, Room #208, 1319 F. Street, Washington, D. C., via money order #445071. On April 17, 1943, I.L.W.U., signed A. E. SILL, Sec., sent $21.00 to EUGENE PATEN, 150 Golden Gate Avenue, San Francisco, California, via money order #445,072. Monday May 4, 1943, WALTER P. PIHLMAN, Box #2675, sent $1.50 to "Soviet Russia Today", 114 32nd Street, New York City, New York, via money order #446,593.

AT ANCHORAGE, ALASKA:

The following investigation was conducted by Special Agent OLIVER T. MANSFIELD.

CHARLES J. ABEL, Manager, Lemsac's Drug Store, advised that this business house had been receiving the magazine "Soviet Russia Today" in amounts of from ten to five copies per month from the North West Magazine Company, 2412 3rd Avenue, Seattle, Washington, under the same circumstances as other news stands throughout the Territory of Alaska, as previously reported. He was unable to advise the identities of the purchasers since such transactions were cash sales and the purchaser not necessarily known to him by name.

Subject: ~~Italian Evening~~, ~~American-Soviet War Exhibit~~, 24 July 1943, Museum of Science and Industry, Rockefeller Center, New York City.

Summary of Information:

1. As a part of the program of the New York Council of American-Soviet Friendship a war exhibit is being currently presented in the Museum of Science and Industry which portrays the alleged similarity between the United States and Soviet Union and also displays a few Soviet war trophies. On the evening of 24 July 1943 a special program was held in honor of Italy. This was singularly unsuccessful and at no time were there more than 45 persons in the audience, including one soldier who was apparently merely resting.

2. EMANUELE ROMANO was chairman of the evening's proceedings and presented greetings from the New York Council of American-Soviet Friendship. He blamed the small attendance on the fact that it was a warm Saturday night. He indicated that if anyone at all came out for such a meeting it would be a tribute to the Soviet Union.

3. DR. AMBROSE DONINI stated that the Italian people were eternally grateful to the United Nations for fighting to liberate them from MUSSOLINI and that Italy would show her real gratitude to the Soviet Union for playing such a large part in the eventual defeat of Germany. He indicated that the protests of the Italian workers in industrial centers such as Milan and Naples prevented more Italian troops from going to the Soviet front to fight against Russia.

4. Mr. ROMANO read in Italian a report which was supposed to have been presented by Mrs. ELIZABETH MOOS, Director of the Nationalities Division of the New York Council of American-Soviet Friendship.

5. Dr. NICOLA BRIMORI spoke in English and Italian in regard to the culture of the United States, Italy and the Soviet Union.

6. Musical selections, including the Hymn to Garibaldi, were rendered by Miss BESSIE BRUNO and Madame AUGUSTA ROMANO.

was furnished a copy of a communication on the stationery of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship, 232 Madison Avenue, New York 16, New York. Photostatic copies of this communication were obtained and are being made a part of the file. Its contents are set forth as follows:

"June 23, 1943

Mrs. Kamaiko
New Orleans Committee
126 Baronne St.
New Orleans, La.

Dear Mrs. Kamaiko:

Not having heard from you since your visit to this office in April - and not having heard very much from Prof. Feild, I am writing to inquire about the progress that is being made in reorganizing the New Orleans Council.

Your former secretary, Mrs. Rogers, was in to see me on Monday and indicated that no work is being done. She also told me that you still maintain an office due to a lease but that there is no activity. She showed me a letter she had received from Mr. Behre which indicated that you had this lease on the office until October.

I would greatly appreciate hearing from you on what your present plans are. We should certainly like to see the reorganization completed, the office maintained and a part time secretary, at least, secured to carry on the work of the Council. We would hate to see any retrenchment take place at a time when the work is becoming increasingly important - and at a time also when the National Council is broadening the scope of its work and is in a much better position to be of assistance to you.

Please let me hear from you.

Sincerely yours,

/s/
Eve Budd

It is noted that the Mrs. ROGERS referred to in the foregoing letter is ELIZABETH COUSINS ROGERS, former salaried organizing secretary for the local committee of the American Council on Soviet Relations.

Inasmuch as the contents of the aforementioned letter reflect on the report of Mrs. ROGERS that there is no activity on the part of the local committee, American Council on Soviet Relations, and that a local committee of the National Council of American Soviet Friendship has not been organized, the investigation in this case is being discontinued by this office subject to being resumed on possible future local organizational activity of the Council of American Soviet Friendship.

SYNOPSIS OF FACTS:

Subject organization has been designated as the Communist front organization which is to receive full support of the Communist Party. To offset suspected Communist Party tinge, the names of prominent local citizens are publicized as sponsors. The present membership approximates 140, with a continued effort being exerted to expand. This organization is the principal Communist Party agency for the sale and distribution of Communist Party literature, which is designed to sell the reader on the merits of the Soviet Russian form of government, and to counteract any anti-Russian propaganda. This organization gave active support to the picture, "Mission to Moscow," sponsored a campaign to encourage correspondence between American citizens and Russian citizens, and recently sponsored a rally entitled Tribute to Russia, at which DR. GERHARD SCHACHER, professor and radio commentator, and Judge JOHN GUTKNECHT were the feature speakers. Another rally is planned for September 7 in honor of two Russian artists named FEFFER and MICHAELS. u

* Those individuals before whose name an asterisk has been placed are active members of the Communist Party. (In list of sponsors on previous page.)

The statements of purposes of Subject organization, as stated in their literature, is as follows:

1. The long-range aim of furthering mutual understanding and cooperation between the United States and Soviet Russia, and of informing the American people regarding all phases of life in the USSR.

2. Immediate aim of applying this program in terms of our country's all-out war on Hitler and his partners.

a. By presenting facts to the American public which will build confidence in the Soviet Union, thus defeating attempts of appeasers and Fifth Columnists to disrupt the anti-Axis front by spreading distrust in our Allies.

b. By stimulating all possible military, economic, and medical aid to the Russian Armies and people.

c. By showing the need for a Second Front in Europe as the best way to insure victory for the United Nations.

The above information was obtained from literature retained in the files of this office. The principal activities of this organization, as reflected in this report, are as follows:

1. The sponsoring of Russian movie films designed to spread favorable propaganda toward Soviet Russia. These pictures included "The Siege of Leningrad," "Stalingrad," and "Russia at War."

2. The sponsoring of speakers for public affairs for the purpose of presenting the Russian situation to large numbers of individuals, by well-known speakers.

3. The organization and membership drives designed to enlarge and strengthen the local council, and to increase their financial status.

4. The distribution and sale of Communist Party literature designed to further the objectives of the Communist Party.

5. The publication of open responses to anti-Russian propaganda.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

MI-100-2990

6. The obtaining of signatures to Second Front petitions.
7. Initiation of a campaign to encourage correspondence between American citizens and citizens of Soviet Russia.
8. The sponsoring of a rally entitled "Tribute to Russia," designed to create good will toward the Soviet Union.
9. This organization actively encouraged the support for the picture, "Mission to Moscow," and assisted in the sale of tickets to this picture.
10. Maintaining of a library at the organization headquarters for the use of members.
11. This organization is actively planning an extensive rally to be held in the honor of two Russian artists by the name of FEFER and MICHAELS, to be held in Milwaukee, September 7, 1943.

According to report of Acting Detective ARTHUR W. ZELTNER of the Milwaukee Police Department, the WSCSL held their Win the War Legislative Conference at the Schroeder Hotel in Milwaukee on March 13 and 14, 1943. According to MR. ZELTNER, MR. THOMAS E. CASEY, Secretary of the WSCSL, opened the meeting, and REV. THOMAS L. HARRIS, national secretary of the ACSF, was one of those seated at the speakers' table.

REV. HARRIS made a speech in which he put forth an appeal for Russian friendship, dwelling at length on Russia's tremendous sacrifice of manpower to aid our cause and present conflict, and pointed out that the great number of Nazis killed will mean a savings of American lives. He claimed that ten years ago Russia began manufacturing munitions and equipment for the war they knew was coming, for they could see the Nazi might growing. REV. HARRIS further stated that the Russian manpower is equal to or more than this country's entire uniformed force, and that the United States must be ashamed until it aids Russia by opening the Second Front in Europe.

Confidential Informant   advised that ALICE HENDRICKSON, NED SPARKS, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, and several other individuals were engaged in a conversation pertaining to the activities of the American Council, and that it was learned that ALICE HENDRICKSON had advised SPARKS that she would like to obtain the services of the former ambassador, JOSEPH E. DAVIES, as principal speaker at a meeting to be sponsored by the American Council in approximately three months.

(u)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

MI-100-2990

It is believed that ALICE was referring to the rally held in Milwaukee on July 10. (S)(u)

In the course of this conversation, SPARKS mentioned that WILLIAM SELL was still the secretary of the local branch of the ACSF, and that he was also secretary of the executive committee. Also in the course of this conversation NORDSTRAND and HENDRICKSON criticized the activities of BEATRICE WEISBERG in connection with her membership on the executive committee of the ACSF, and SPARKS instructed them to see that she is removed from the committee. (S)(u)

SPARKS further stated BEATRICE, referring to BEATRICE WEISBERG, is the picture of the people's conception of a New York Communist. "She is a disgrace to my home town." (S)(u)

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that on one occasion ALICE HENDRICKSON, NED SPARKS, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, and several others held a discussion regarding the showing of the movie, "Stalingrad," which was sponsored by the ACSF. In the opinion of this Informant, it was quite evident from the tone of this discussion that SPARKS dictated the policies of the ACSF to ALICE HENDRICKSON, and directed the manner in which the office should be operated. (S)(u)

b7D

The Milwaukee Journal, in issue dated 3/17/43, contained an article entitled "American Soviet Council Names Dinner Speaker." It stated, "The Rev. THOMAS L. HARRIS, of New York City, National Secretary of the Council of American-Soviet Friendship, will speak at a dinner meeting of the Milwaukee chapters of the Council at 6:30 P. M., Thursday at the City Club. An Episcopal minister, he served from 30 to 34 years on the faculty of Harvard College as an advisor on religion."

Confidential Informant [ ] further advised that approximately March 23, 1943, WILLIAM SELL, Secretary of the Council, NED SPARKS, State Secretary of the Communist Party, and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, Executive Secretary of the WSCSL, and several other individuals discussed the internal organization of the American Council, and it was evident that a problem had arisen within the ranks of the Council. SELL stated that he had learned from LEE LAWRENCE that THOMAS L. HARRIS had expressed opposition to the continuance of ALICE HENDRICKSON in the position of Executive Secretary of the Council. SELL suggested that HARRIS was angry with NED SPARKS, and has taken this means of retaliation. (S)(u)

b7D

According to this Informant, SPARKS' opinion on this matter was to the effect that LAWRENCE was making the entire story up. LAWRENCE formerly was a member of the Executive Committee of the Council. (S)(u)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

NORDSTRAND stated to SPARKS that HARRIS has been trying to spread the idea that the American Council does not have any connection with the general Communist Party movement. This Informant further advised that NORDSTRAND had Requested VIRGINIA SCHULL, who formerly was secretary of the RWR, and who had apparently heard HARRIS express his ideas with respect to HENDRICKSON, to express her opinion as to the attitude of MR. HARRIS toward HENDRICKSON. (S)(u)

This Informant advised that on a later date VIRGINIA SCHULL told NORDSTRAND and SPARKS that from conversation she had had with THOMAS L. HARRIS, and from remarks which she had heard him make to other people, she had formed the opinion that HARRIS thought that ALICE HENDRICKSON was probably the best person available to run the American Council Office. (S)(u)

This Informant further advised that the American Council has initiated a membership drive on a national basis for the purpose of soliciting a paid membership to the National Committee to the American Council of Soviet Friendship. This Informant further advised that in order to familiarize herself with the national program, ALICE HENDRICKSON attended a conference of the National Committee of the Council in New York City during the month of March, 1943. However, the only concrete program she has instituted since her return from the conference has been the scheduling of a series of motion pictures on Soviet Russia, which are to be presented at the Pabst Theater in Milwaukee. The first of these pictures was shown March 20 and 21, and between the evening showings of the picture on March 20, THOMAS L. HARRIS addressed the audience on the need for increased cooperation between the United States and Soviet Russia. The picture exhibited was entitled "Stalingrad," and dealt with the defense of the city by the Russian Army. At the Saturday, March 20, performance of the picture, the receipts were $338. The receipts at the Sunday, March 21, showing of the picture were $449. According to the instructions received by ALICE HENDRICKSON, the National Committee of the American Council received 50% of the receipts collected on these pictures, and the balance turned over to the local organization. It is the intention of the local council office to report additional pictures at approximately two-week intervals. (S)(u)

This Informant further stated that in the conversation between NED SPARKS, ALICE HENDRICKSON, and several other individuals, ALICE HENDRICKSON mentioned that she had approximately 140 members in the local council, and that the majority of these individuals were also I.W.O. members. This Informant stated that originally ALICE HENDRICKSON was not a member of the Executive Committee of the local council, and NED SPARKS had recently instructed her to take steps for her appointment to the Executive Committee, in order that she may be able to control the activities of the Council. (S)(u)

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

MI-100-2990

SPARKS did not anticipate any difficulty in bringing this about, in view of the fact that AL HIRSCH, who is an active Communist Party member, and a key figure of this Field Division, is a member of the Executive Committee. (S)(u)

This Informant stated that SPARKS on occasions has expressed resentment over the fact that THOMAS L. HARRIS, during his visit in Milwaukee, attempted to create the idea that the American Council was in no way connected with the Communist Party. (S)(u)

The Milwaukee Sentinel, in issue dated 4/13/43, carried an advertisement of the picture, "Siege of Leningrad." The pertinent information contained in this ad states, "If you want to understand today's headlines from the Russian front, 'Siege of Leningrad' is the master key." The ad quotes several large newspapers, "An exalting record of the ordeal of Leningrad. The most vivid picture yet to come out of this war. Tremendously dramatic. An inspiring record of the besieged people who would not give up."

The ad further states that it is all in English, and that the narration is by EDWARD R. MURROW. It is being held at the Pabst Theater in Milwaukee.

In Milwaukee Police Department report dated April 21, 1943, supplied to this Field Division, Acting Detectives HERBERT HOLSEN and GEORGE A. NIELSEN were assigned to check on the film being shown at the Pabst Theater on April 17, 1943, entitled "Siege of Leningrad." The detectives state that entrance could not be gained anonymously without the purchase of admission tickets, which were 45¢ apiece. It was noticed that the usher who collected tickets at the door, name unknown, engaged in a rather unusual practice, that of shaking the hands of three or four patrons who came in singly at intervals. The hand shake seemed to identify people who had something in common, the clasp being similar to that pictured in a pamphlet, "Century of the Common Man."

The picture, "Siege of Leningrad," according to these investigators, is a compilation of odds and ends of war scenes taken by a number of Soviet photographers, with a narration in English by Edward N. Murrow of C.B.S. Several news reels, a cartoon and a March of Time film were also shown. Captain Eddie Rickenbacker was shown in a 'short' making a plea for contributions to the Red Cross Emergency Fund. A collection was taken up in the audience by an usher and several other persons. The attendance at this showing was small, and not more than 75-100 persons were in the audience during the afternoon, from 1:55 P. M. to 5:45 P. M.

Several tables containing literature stood in the foyer, and several women were attempting to sell this literature. One of these ladies was recognized as ALICE HENDRICKSON. The tables contained about two dozen books, all of which were recognized as well-known Communist Party literature. There were numerous pamphlets on the tables, and all the pamphlets were either for distribution or for sale, and the women attending the tables commented on their interesting contents. The women urged that the investigators acquire Russian "Pen Pals," and offered an envelope of postal cards issued by the ACSF. They explained these cards were to be mailed out and either mailed or delivered in person to the local office of the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 221 E. Wisconsin Avenue, after which they would be forwarded through the New York Office to Russia, where some Russian "brother" would be assigned to send an answer.

The names of persons receiving a pack of these postal cards were entered in a ledger "for future reference and correspondence." (mailing list)

Fictitious names, [redacted] and [redacted] were given to be recorded in the ledger.

A number of petition sheets lay on a table to solicit signatures for the WSCSL, 3125 Plankinton Arcade Building, in support of their drive to open a Second Front in Europe. Eight signatures, most of them being persons actively engaged in sponsoring Communism in Milwaukee, appeared on the top sheet, which was obviously a decoy. When an opportunity presented itself, the sheet was taken from the table without the knowledge of the women in charge of the tables. This sheet was submitted along with the police report.

A man was observed engaged in friendly conversation with one of the women in charge of the literature. His name was not learned, but he was overheard to say that he worked in Sears' Purchasing Department, and that he has a 1A Selective Service classification. According to his description, he was about 30 years of age, 5' 11", 140 lbs., build was slender, hair light brown, and he was wearing glasses. His mannerisms were described as "sissy" by the investigators. It is thought that this man might be ELDON H. HENDRICKSON, husband of ALICE HENDRICKSON, who is active in the Soviet Council.

These investigators purchased the following literature from the literature stand at the Pabst Theater during the showing of this picture, and this literature is being retained in the files of the Milwaukee Field Division:

In Police Department report dated June 30, 1943, supplied to this Field Division, Acting Detective HERBERT HOLSON was requested to obtain information retaining to MR. CHARLES FRIEND, who is active with the American Council. This investigator states that MR. FLORIAN KEARN, age approximately 40, residing at 1628 W. Wisconsin Avenue, Apartment 303, was interviewed. MR. KEARN is a lawyer, with offices in the Plankinton Building, Room 6186. MR. KEARN advised that MR. CHARLES FRIEND visited his office several times during the three years that MR. KEARN has known him. He described MR. FRIEND as being very shrewd, and states that he seems to observe everything of importance with a glance when he comes into the office, and also seems to know just what business is being transmitted in the office at the time. This Informant states that he is extremely intelligent and enjoys a very fine business in connection with his B.A. Law List enterprise.

MR. FRIEND tends to be very liberal minded, favors lend-lease, and is in accord with the Russian and Allied war effort. This Informant states that FRIEND is apparently interested in Russian War Relief work, because previous to the showing of the picture, "Stalingrad," at the Pabst Theater on March 20 and 21, 1943, under the auspices of "The Council of American-Soviet Friendship," he told KEARN that he shouldn't miss seeing the picture under any circumstances. He explained that the picture had actual fighting scenes of the defense of Stalingrad and other Russian war fronts, and should prove very interesting to Americans in proving how the Russians are fighting this war.

Some time after this conversation KEARN met Subject (FRIEND) on the Plankinton Building elevator immediately before the picture was to be shown, and Subject asked him whether he intended to see the picture. KEARN told him that it was impossible for him to attend, and MR. FRIEND replied that he was missing a great event.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that on or about April 7, 1943, NED SPARKS, ALICE HENDRICKSON, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, and several other individuals were engaged in a conversation pertaining to the activities of the Council, and SPARKS instructed ALICE HENDRICKSON to have a large ad published for the next picture to be shown under the sponsorship of the American Council. He suggested that ALICE consult the editors of the Journal to attempt to induce them to send a reporter to see the showing of the picture, and that this reporter should be an individual who was favorable to Soviet Russia. (S)(u)

This Informant advised that arrangements had been made for MARY LEIGH PHILLIPS, prominent Communist Party worker, to assist ALICE HENDRICKSON at the Council Office on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. (S)(u)

This Informant further advised that on or about April 16, 1943, ESTHER EISENSCHER, a stenographer at the Communist Party Headquarters and a key figure of this office, instructed FANNY SILBER, key figure, and Secretary of the City Central Committee, I.W.O. of Milwaukee, to have someone, preferably ALICE HENDRICKSON, circulate a second front petition at the movie being shown at the Pabst Theater, which movie was sponsored by the American Council. (S)(u)

According to this Informant, the American Council has continued its program of exhibiting Russian propaganda films during the month of April, the last picture being "The Siege of Leningrad," which was shown at the Pabst Theater April 15, 16, 17, and 18. This Informant stated that the previous picture, "Stalingrad," had attracted approximately twice as many people to the theater as had the picture "Siege of Leningrad." (S)(u)

Exhibit 1B, furnished April 21, 1943, by the Milwaukee Police Department, is a one-page placard advertising "The Siege of Leningrad." The placard states that the picture, "Siege of Leningrad," is being exhibited for four days only at the Pabst Theater, Thursday through Sunday, April 15, 16, 17, and 18. It states that the Council for American -Soviet Friendship "proudly presents the victorious epic of the bravest city in all history. 515 days of immortal heroism on the screen!" The placard states that this is a feature length film, photographed under a storm of Nazi bombs and bullets.

Exhibit 2B, furnished April 21, 1943, by the Milwaukee Police Department, is an envelope entitled, "Correspondence for Friendship," which contains the name, National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 232 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y. On the exterior of this envelope a message is stated which says that the purpose of this organization is to promote American-Soviet friendship by these hundreds of thousands of messages, and to encourage correspondence between individuals of the United States and the U.S.S.R. It instructs, "Please address all correspondence cards to your favorite group such as:

To a Red Army Man	To a Soviet Student
To a Red Navy Man	To a Donbas Coal Miner
To a Red Army Nurse	To a Steel Worker
To a Heroic Guerrilla Fighter	To a Woman Factory Worker
To a Collective Farmer	To a Soviet School Teacher, etc."

This envelope contained 5 cards in the form of a penny postcard, self-addressed, To ....., Fighting for our Common Victory, Somewhere on the War Front in the Soviet Union. The card also contains the message, "Forwarded by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 232 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

The reverse side of the card contains a space for a message, with a P. S., "Please write me as soon as you can." A portion of this card is reserved for the insertion of a check or a coin. A partial list of National Council sponsors is set out. On one portion of the card is a picture of the Statue of Liberty, and on the other portion of the card is a picture of a workman bearing a red star.

On the portion of the card designed for the message, one edge of the card is designed in the form of a flag, containing a square colored in blue with a white star, and three stripes, two red, with a white stripe in the center. The left portion of the card contains a large red star.

This envelope also contained a card similar to a penny postcard, on one side of which was printed Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship, 221 E. Wisconsin Avenue, Chairman, Rev. JOHN LEWIS:

"I am interested in receiving notices of the activities of the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship .

On the other side of the card is listed the National Officers and National sponsors of this organization. This exhibit was obtained by the Milwaukee Police Department at the showing of the picture, "Siege of Leningrad," and illustrates how this organization utilizes the advertising possibilities of the various functions which it sponsors.

Exhibit 3B is a portion of a ticket used by Detective HOLSEN for admission to the picture, "Siege of Leningrad," 4/17/43.

Exhibit 49B was obtained at the Pabst Theater April 17, 1943, during investigation of the showing of the film, "Siege of Leningrad," by HERBERT HOLSEN, Acting Detective. This exhibit is a petition for the opening of a Second Front, which petition was being circulated by the WSCSL. The petition reads in part,

"To President Roosevelt

"Declaration of Support of the Casablanca Decision to INVADE EUROPE NOW!

"At Casablanca, in January, President Roosevelt and Premier Winston Churchill announced that plans had been made for the long awaited invasion of the continent of Europe. Throughout enslaved Europe a new wave of revolt arose as the peoples of Europe prepared to assist the Allies in the invasion. Since then 3 months have passed! Hitler is using the time to consolidate and regroup his forces.

"The Red Army with its winter offensive created the best possible conditions for the opening of the western front in Europe. Yet Hitler was able to transfer 30 divisions to the Russian front and retake Kharkov. The chief purpose of Rommel's defense in Tunisia is still to delay our invasion of Europe."

The petition continues in language designed to encourage a Second Front, and states that "The critical situation calls for immediate and widespread mobilization of the people to manifest their overwhelming support of President Roosevelt's 'Unconditional surrender' decision." The petition states, "To that end we citizens of Wisconsin make this declaration of support to our Commander-In-Chief, President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Statements made by certain individuals are contained on this petition, and bracketed off. One of these brackets contains a statement, "Resolution adopted by Milwaukee County Win-The-War Legislative Conference, March 13 and 14, attended by 362 delegates from 140 organizations representing over 100,000. BE IT RESOLVED: That we call for the speediest possible execution of the plans for the invasion of Europe, announced by the President following the Casablanca conference, opening up a Western Front to force Hitler to divide his forces, and thus moving towards a victory over Hitler in the shortest possible time, and saving in the long run, hundreds of thousands of American lives."

As a matter of information, this resolution is part of a number of resolutions composed and drawn up by JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND and NED SPARKS of the Communist Party, and successfully passed under Communist Party direction at this Recent Win-the-War Legislative Conference, which was sponsored by the WSCSL.

Another bracket contains a statement by MAJOR GEO. FIELDING ELIOT, of the New York Herald Tribune, supporting a Second Front.

One bracket is quotation taken from the Chicago Sun, April 2, 1943, supporting a Second Front. Another bracket contains a statement by GENERAL McNAUGHTON, Commander-in-Chief, of the Canadian Army, in which it is stated that the Dieppe raid was an intended landing, and stating that "If it had been planned as another sort of operation there is no doubt we could have made the thing stick."

At the bottom of this petition it is stated, "War Policy Statement of International Executive Board of United Auto Workers -- CIO.

"To bring Hitler and his Japanese allies to quick disaster, this International Union considers it absolutely imperative that the decisions of the recent Casablanca conference be immediately carried out. Now with Hitler staggering under the blows of our Soviet ally, INVASION OF EUROPE to bring about the unconditional surrender of the Axis is imperative. Defeat of the Axis in 1943 is the battle cry of America's people and those of the United Nations."

The card is signed "Council of American-Soviet Friendship."

The Milwaukee Sentinel, dated 5/13/43, carried an article regarding the closing of the Pabst Theater, in which it was stated that this theater was being closed due to defects showing up in the present structure.

In view of the fact that the American Council had been using this theater for the exhibiting of its films, the closing of this theater raised a temporary problem in this regard.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

MI-100-2990

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that it had been learned that FANNE SILBER had expressed her opinion on one occasion regarding the closing of the Pabst Theater, and suggested the possibility of suing the owners of the theater for breach of contract, in view of the fact that the theater had been closed and it was therefore impossible to show the Russian films which had been sponsored by the ACSF. (S) (u)

b7D

This Informant advised that it had been learned that ALICE HENDRICKSON had discussed with NED SPARKS the progress of her negotiation in regard to obtaining another theater in which to exhibit the Russian films which her organization was sponsoring. HENDRICKSON had evidently contacted the Warner Theater chain in an effort to obtain a motion picture house in which to present these films. According to this Informant, HENDRICKSON had been delegated by SPARKS to contact the motion picture theater operators in the city in an effort to induce them to inaugurate a publicity campaign for the picture, "Mission to Moscow," which was to be shown in Milwaukee soon. As a result of HENDRICKSON's efforts, three special previews of the picture were arranged prior to its first public showing. HENDRICKSON was placed in charge of issuing invitations to these previews. Invitations were issued by ALICE HENDRICKSON to labor leaders, civic officials, and educational directors within the Milwaukee Area. (S) (u)

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that on or about May 10, 1943, it was learned that an open letter on the ALTER-EHRLICH question was being circulated by the ACSF, was one of the items of the mail of the WSCSL Office. (S) (u)

b7D

The Milwaukee Journal, in issue dated 5/25/43 contained a statement designed to counteract anti-Russian propaganda. It read, in part:

a

"The difference between politician and a statesman is in both judgment and outlook. This is very evident in people's attitude to our relation to Russia today.

"Some fix their minds upon incidents nonessential to the supreme concern. They tell us what Russia was under the Trotsky regime, forgetting that Trotsky was ousted from power because of his insistency upon the necessity of interfering with other countries to undermine their forms of government. STALIN has emphatically stated that his policy is a definite renunciation of such a policy, and that it is his desire to see Poland established as an independent state.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

"These same politicians would condemn Russia because in its purge the culprits were not tried strictly according to the mode of procedure in our own criminal courts. The thing that matters is this: Did these criminals voluntarily, without extraneous pressure, confess their guilt?

"Two most trustworthy witnesses, JOSEPH DAVIES, our own ambassador, and WALTER DURANTY, a recognized authority on Russia, report in the affirmative. In the words of MR. DURANTY, 'According to Russian law the accused were guilty and confessed their guilt!'

"Again we are told by those creators of enmity between the Allies that the 'Mission to Moscow' film is misleading because it has condensed three trials into one. That surely is permissible and even desirable in many a case. What matters is, does it give the essential facts? Does it tell the truth?

"Indeed, one cannot help sympathizing with those powers of discord in their sad predicament today. STALIN has promised an independent Poland. CHURCHILL has assured America, Russia and China she will stand with her allies to the very last.

"To fill the cup of disappointment to such mischief makers it is a pleasure to report that our Milwaukee Russian War Relief and our Milwaukee Council for American-Soviet Friendship are succeeding beyond our most optimistic expectations."

The article is signed by The Rev. JOHN LEWIS, Chairman, Milwaukee Russian War Relief, 5416 W. Wisconsin Ave., Milwaukee. The article was printed in answer to editorials and comment regarding Russian treatment of the ALTER-KHRLICH problem.

Confidential Informant ☐ advised that it had been learned that DR. E. L. #### TRIBUTE TO RUSSIA RALLY

The Milwaukee Police Department report dated July 2, 1943, reveals that Acting Detective Arthur Zeltner investigated a rally which was scheduled to be held by the American Council of Soviet Friendship on June 30, 1943, at the Milwaukee Auditorium. This investigator states that this rally was not held as scheduled, because reservations had been changed from June 30, 1943, to July 10, 1943.

MR. WILLIAM C. MASS, age approximately 55, residing at 2514 East Shorewood Boulevard, Shorewood, Wisconsin, manager of the Milwaukee Auditorium, was interviewed by investigator. He stated that WILLIAM SELL, secretary of the American Council for Soviet Friendship, signed the lease for the use of the south half of the main hall as early as April 3, 1943, but the rally was postponed three or four times, including the meeting of June 30, 1943, because they could not secure the services of Joseph E. Davies, former ambassador to Russia, and author of "Mission to Moscow," as a speaker. MRS. CORA MARIE GOLDSMITH, nee CLOSMANN, who resides at 629 East Day Avenue, Whitefish Bay, Wisconsin, and ALICE C. HENDRICKSON, came to his office to make this last postponement, and stated that DR. JOHN LEWIS had advised them to make the change in dates, as he had now secured speakers for the Rally for July 10, 1943. The name on the new lease has been changed to read, "Milwaukee Council of American Soviet Friendship."

This investigator in his report called attention to a notice published in the Milwaukee Journal on June 30, 1943, headed, "Speakers Listed for Russia Rally," which reads as follows: u

"Dr. Gerhard Schacher, author and radio commentator, and Judge John Gutknecht of the municipal court of Chicago, will address the 'Tribute to Russia' meeting at the Milwaukee Auditorium, Saturday, July 10. They are considered foremost interpreters of European conditions and events leading up to and including the war. u

"State and civic officials are expected to attend the meeting, which is sponsored by the Milwaukee Council of American Soviet Friendship. Songs of the Red Army will be sung by WILLIAM JOHNSON, baritone from Chicago. u

"DR. SCHACHER is a citizen of Czecho-Slovakia. He has doctor's degrees in political science and economics. He has always been confident of Russia's ability to hold the Nazis. Judge GUTKNECHT has spent several summers in eastern Europe." u

The Milwaukee Sentinel, in article dated 7/3/43, headlined, "Fete Planned to Honor Russia," reads, "DR. GERHARD SCHACHER, news commentator and author of 'Central Europe and the Western World,' and 'He Wanted to Sleep in the Kremlin,' will be a guest speaker at the 'Tribute to Russia' meeting on July 10 at Milwaukee Auditorium. Also on the program will be Judge JOHN GUTKNECHT, Chicago municipal court, who traveled in Europe in the '30's and has since interpreted events there." u

The Milwaukee Sentinel in issue dated 7/9/43 carried an article entitled, "Tribute to Russia Planned Saturday at Auditorium." The article reads, "The Rev. JOHN LEWIS will preside as chairman of a 'Tribute to Russia' program Saturday at the Auditorium under sponsorship of the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship. u

"CHARLES FRIEND (who is Subject of an internal security case of this Field Division) will introduce the main speakers, DR. GERHARD SCHACHER, onetime resident of Czechoslovakia, and now American news analyst, commentator and author, who will speak on the Russian-German problem. FREDRICK BROTS will introduce Judge JOHN GUTKNECHT of Chicago, who has studied conditions in Europe at first hand. u

"There will be Red army songs by WILLIAM JOHNSON, Negro baritone, and peasant dances by the Polish Mazur dancers." u

The Milwaukee Journal, in issue dated 7/9/43, contained an article headed, "Polish Dancers Booked for Tribute to Russia." This article was very short, and merely stated that the Milwaukee Polish Mazur Dancers will perform at the "Tribute to Russia" program Saturday night at the Milwaukee Auditorium. The meeting was under the auspices of the American Council for Soviet Friendship. u

The Milwaukee Sentinel, in issue dated July 9, 1943, contained a 3/4 page ad, headed, "ON AMERICAN-SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, An Open Letter to the American People." A portion of this ad was blocked off and used to advertise the Tribute to Russia Rally, listing the details of the event, such as the admission price of 55¢. The balance of this ad is an open letter to the American people, and sets forth the many reasons why full cooperation with Russia at this time is necessary. The ad is described as an open letter to the American people, and quotes a statement from CORLISS LAMONT, Chairman of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, which reads, "The armies of the United Nations make ready for the great offensive, following the complete rout of the Fascist forces in North Africa. Victory is sure because the Allies from east and south and west will unite their efforts in a final shattering blow against the enemies of mankind. Victory will come more quickly if we on the home front unite, too, against all who would divide us from each other and our Allies. To promote such unity we have initiated this Open Letter." u

This Open Letter is divided into three parts, under three headings, "Conquered Europe Awaits Invasion Signal," "Danger to American-Soviet Friendship," and "Full Allied Unity for Victory." u

At the end of the letter is listed a partial list of 1500 signers. It is to be noted that this list is free of any well-known Communist Party members. u

A portion of the ad contains a space requesting a contribution to further the efforts of the American Council, and provides space for the individual's name and address. u

The Milwaukee Journal in issue dated July 10, 1943, contained an ad approximately 4" by 4" advertising the Tribute to Russia Rally to be held that night. u

The Milwaukee Journal in issue dated 7/11/43, carried an article entitled "Visions Many More Fronts," and displayed a picture taken of the speakers at the rally held on July 10. The article states, "Sicily is only the first, says speaker here in Tribute to Russia." u

"The Allied invasion of Sicily is the first of many 'second fronts' which will open in 'the very near future,' in the opinion of Dr. Gerhard Schacher, Chicago, who addressed 700 persons at the Auditorium Saturday night under the sponsorship of the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship. u

"DR. SCHACHER, a radio commentator and a member of the faculty of Northwestern University, said he did not believe the Sicilian campaign would be long drawn out, because he thinks Sicily is effectively cut off from the mainland of Italy by Allied air and sea power. He said he did not believe Mussolini would risk his fleet trying to get supplies to Sicily." u

The speaker further stated, "I don't believe Sicily will be the principal second front." He described the Nazi assault in Russia as a "desperate attempt to win a victory to bolster the morale of the German people, and expressed the view that Nazi divisions sent into Russia could not be withdrawn. u

"SCHACHER praised the fighting spirit of the Russian army, as did Judge JOHN GUTKNECHT of Chicago, the other speaker on the 'Tribute to Russia' program. JUDGE GUTKNECHT criticized Americans who do not seem willing to regard Russia as an ally of the United States. He said that American soldiers will be home sooner because of the sacrifices of the Russians." u

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

The speaker further said that "The Americans were able to prepare for this war at the expense of millions of Russian dead." u

A picture taken by the Journal cameraman displays JUDGE GUTKNIGHT in the course of the deliverance of his speech, and in the background are seated G. P. UTKE, representative of the Civic Alliance; LEO KRZYCKI, labor leader; and DR. GERHARD SCHACHER, author and radio commentator. u

The Milwaukee Sentinel in article dated July 11, 1943, topic headed "Sicily But One of Many Fronts, Author Declares," also discussed this July 10 rally. This article quotes certain statements made by the speaker, GERHARD SCHACHER, all of which were discussed in the previous article. This article contained a few excerpts from a speech made by JUDGE JOHN GUTKNECHT, which were as follows: u

"There is no country in history to whom we owe a greater debt than Russia. I am glad the attack on Pearl Harbor came in time to give America a chance to prepare but that time was at the expense of millions of Russian dead. That is a debt we can never repay. u

"I care nothing about the Communism of Russia nor the Toryism of England--that is their business--but I do care about the salvation of America. We can only win the peace by working with all of our allies. u

Exhibit 23B is a picture obtained by the Milwaukee Police Department from the Milwaukee Journal, which was made from the negative of the picture used in the article previously referred to. It shows the speakers at this rally. u

The Milwaukee Police Department, in report dated July 9, 1943, reported that an investigation of the rally "Tribute To Russia" was conducted by Acting Detective ARTHUR W. ZELTNER, and this report contains the following information: u

"Acting Detective ARTHUR W. ZELTNER, of this Department, submitted the following report concerning a meeting held at the Milwaukee Auditorium, Saturday, July 10, 1943, at 8:00 P.M., sponsored by the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship, office address: 221 E. "On Saturday, July 10, 1943, at 8:00 P.M., the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship conducted a 'Tribute to Russia' rally in Plankinton Hall of the Milwaukee Auditorium. The rally was originally scheduled to be held on June 30, 1943, as was indicated in our previous report of July 2, 1943. The admission was 55 cents including tax. Many of the people had purchased tickets elsewhere, but the sale of tickets was brisk at the ticket window in the lobby of the 5th St. entrance of the Auditorium on the night of the rally. u

"The Peoples Book Shop, which is located at 722 W. Wisconsin Avenue, conducted book and pamphlet sales on two long tables in the lobby, just south of the north stairway which was used by the audience to reach Plankinton Hall on the 2nd floor. The usual line of Russian books and pamphlets ranging in price from 5 cents to $3.50 per copy were sold. Their sales were good on the cheaper books and pamphlets ranging to 25 cents. The women who conducted the sales were ALICE WARD and GRACE EISENSCHER. (FBI #100-2864) The sale of pamphlets was not conducted among the audience as at previous meetings and rallies. When a person entered the hall, he was given a pamphlet entitled, 'Open Letter to the American People on American-Soviet Friendship,' introduction by CORLISS LAMONT. Inside of each copy, the following cards and pamphlets were found: copies of 'See - The Soviet Union in Exhibits and Films,' 'National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc.,' 'Know the U.S.S.R.,' Postcard 'Fighting for our common victory' and a membership form for the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship.' u

"The stage was decorated with the Allied flags in standards placed along the rear of the stage. The flags of Russia, Great Britain and China were standing at the left front of the stage and a United States flag was placed in a standard at each corner of the stage outside frame. The stage also contained a number of chairs for the committee and speakers, a rostrum and a table. A piano stood in the hall to the left of the stage. This was used to accompany the singer. u

"The rally was called to order by Rev. John Lewis at about 8:30 P.M. He requested the audience to rise and sing the Star Spangled Banner. Rev. Lewis then gave the Invocation. He prayed for the continued friendship of all of the Allies and for strength to defeat the Axis nations, for guidance of the audience in this great struggle and in our war effort. After the Invocation, he introduced the committee and the speakers who were seated on the stage. They were Rev. John Lewis; Judge John Gutknecht of the Municipal Court of Chicago; Dr. Gerhard Schacher, news analyst and radio commentator; Charles Friend, vice president; William Sell, secretary; Dr. Lee E. Lawrence, chairman; Leo Krzychi; Gustave P. u

Utke; Alice Hendrickson, executive secretary; F. Willius Goldsmith; Dr. Frank E. Baker (FBI #100-1460) Fred A. Brots; Detective John A. Seramur who represented Mayor John Bohn and William Johnson, negro singer from Chicago. After the introduction, Rev. LEWIS talked about the purpose of the rally and of the importance of the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship. He then introduced Detective JOHN SERAMUR, who read a greeting address in behalf of Acting Mayor JOHN BOHN. u

"FRED BROTS, secretary of the Wisconsin Federation of German-American Societies, then was introduced by REV. LEWIS. BROTS talked on the importance of friendship and coordination of all efforts of the Allies in order to defeat Hitler and Japan. He stated that there were many Germans like himself who never had any sympathy for the present German regime and those Germans are all out for the defeat of the Axis nations. He then praised Russia for her gallant fight and for her important part in this great war. He then spoke of Judge JOHN GUTKNECHT and spoke very highly of the judge's character and efforts. He considered it an honor to have been given the opportunity to introduce him to the audience. u

"JUDGE JOHN GUTKNECHT spoke on the subject of the past history of democratic nations who were defeated because of the lack of good fellowship and leadership toward other nations. He mentioned many European countries in which democracies were started and failed. He spoke of the large numbers of Germans who believed in freedom and in democratic ideals such as CARL SCHURZ, who came to the United States to be free from oppression and get away from the German military system and European intrigue. u

"He spoke of the Russians' gallant stand and of the many American lives that were saved due to Russian resistance and the continual drain of German fighting men due to the Russians' part in this war. He stated that there was no country in history to which we owed a greater debt than to Russia for her stand against Germany. He stated that he was glad that the attack on Pearl Harbor occurred as it helped to unify the American public and came at a time when the United States had a chance to prepare; but that that time was at the expense of millions of Russian dead. u

"He stated, 'I care nothing about the communism of Russia nor the Toryism of England. That is their business. But I do care about the salvation of democratic Americans.' He stated that we could only win the peace by working with all of our Allies. Judge GUTKNECHT criticized the Americans who do not seem willing to regard Russia as an Ally of the United States. He stated that the American soldiers will come home sooner because of the sacrifices of the Russians. u

"REV. LEWIS then introduced WILLIAM JOHNSON, negro baritone singer of Chicago, who sang 'Red Army Songs,' accompanied by piano. He was given a tremendous ovation by the audience and was obliged to sing several encores.

"REV. LEWIS then pointed out the importance of funds to carry on the work of the organization and asked for contributions which were collected from the audience by young women ushers. He asked for $100.00 contributions and one Czech Society contributed this amount. The German American Societies contributed $25.00 and many persons contributed $5.00 and $1.00 who stated it was from a friend or anonymous. The total collection was announced by Rev. LEWIS but could not be understood.

"REV. LEWIS then introduced the honorable vice president of the Society, CHARLES FRIEND, who talked on the importance of American-Soviet Friendship and of the importance of supporting the Milwaukee Council of American-soviet Friendship. He praised Russia as an Ally and for her sacrifices in the Allied war effort. He then spoke of being elated over the fact that he was chosen to introduce Dr. GERHARD SCHACHER, a noted professor of Northwestern University, author and radio commentator.

"DR. GERHARD SCHACHER used a large map of Europe which was hung over a standard and placed to the right of the speakers' platform. In his address he pointed out different areas on the map as he touched on them in his address. He talked at length about the progress of the war from the beginning up to the present Sicilian and Russian offensives. He pointed out that Hitler tried to beat Russia for the past two years and has lost millions of men in his drives but has been stopped in each drive and then driven back. 'The Russians have lost many millions of fighting men and about 10 million civilians during this period, but still act as a great sponge for the Nazi Army,' SCHACHER said. He stated that Germany must show victories in order to hold the German people and its satelli which is the holding power of a dictatorship.

"He stated that another offensive would be Hitler's death warrant. He said that Russia's support will be the decisive favor in victory because Hitler has two-thirds of his army against Russia and he cannot afford to withdraw any part of it. The Russian Army is so great, he stated, that they can continually supply fresh troops into the fighting fronts. He stated that the Sicilian offensive of the Allies is a 2nd front but that there would be additional 2nd fronts as time passed. He said that Sicily is now cut off from Axis help and would fall completely. He stated that we must help Russia as they have helped us through their sacrifice of many fighting men. SCHACHER'S entire address was founded on Russian activities and their pressures and fighting abilities. He praised the Russian nation highly for its war effort.

"Quite a number of the audience left the hall after SCHACHER finished his address and Rev. LEWIS appealed to them to stay for the balance of the program because of the good cause for which this rally was held, and that WILLIAM JOHNSON would sing several Red love songs. But the persons who had started out of the hall kept leaving, regardless of his appeal.

"WILLIAM JOHNSON, negro singer, then sang several Red songs which were again given a big ovation. After he completed his songs, the stage was cleared and the Polish Mazur Dance Circle presented three dances. The rally was terminated at 11:00 P. M.

"As the audience left, many stopped at the Peoples Book Shop sales tables in the lobby and purchased pamphlets and books. 'The Daily Worker' and 'Worker' were sold out on No. 5th Street as the crowd left the Auditorium.

"It was apparent that due to the large crowd of non-Communists that attended the rally because of the noted speakers, no communist literature was sold amongst the audience in the hall as has been done at all previous rallies. 'The Daily Worker' and 'Worker' were kept out on the street. No doubt the idea was to throw off the communist connection with the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship in order to gain the support of influential persons to this cause.

"The following persons known as Communists or sympathizers were seen in the audience: MAX GELINE, NED SPARKS, NATHAN GARFIELD, MIKE BOBLIN, MORTIMER ALTMAN, EMIL COSTELLO, MEYER ADELMAN, HARRY VIRGIL, HAROLD CHRISTOFFEL, FRED BASSETT BLAIR, THOMAS E. CASEY, MRS. C. F. TURNEY (Colored), and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, who was very active in assisting in the arrangements and arranged for the Polish Mazur Dance Circle.

"WILLIAM MASS, who resides at 2514 E. Shorewood Blvd., manager of the Milwaukee Auditorium, was contacted and he stated that the lease for the rental of Plankinton Hall was signed by WILLIAM SELL, secretary for the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc.

"RICHARD JORDON, about 45, who resides at 1455 E. Goodrich Lane, Fox Point, Wisconsin, manager of the Better Business Bureau of Milwaukee, was interviewed. He stated that he had received several telephone calls from different business men who inquired whether the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship was a legitimate organization. They stated that the organization was asking for contributions to finance the running of a page ad in the Milwaukee Journal on July 4, 1943, and enclosed a proof of the ad with their letter. A copy of the proof is attached to this report, which was to cost $540.00. They could not raise enough money to run the ad by July 4, 1943. A photostatic copy of the letter which the Milwaukee Council of American-Soviet Friendship mailed to the Heil Company is also enclosed.

"JORDAN stated he called Rev. JOHN LEWIS and he referred him to ALICE HENDRICKSON, who conducts the Milwaukee Council of American Soviet Friendship office at 221 E. Wisconsin Ave., and acts as executive secretary. MISS HENDRICKSON told him of the activities of the organization and produced letterheads pointing out the names of the influential persons who were interested in their Council. She gave him copies of the pamphlet and same literature given out at the rally in addition to a 'Tribute to Russia' rally circular and an American Soviet War Exhibit circular to indicate the scope of their movement in New York City.

"The following newspaper items were found regarding the rally:

"Milwaukee Journal -- July 9, 1943 -- 'Polish Dancers Booked for "Tribute to Russia"'

"Milwaukee Journal -- July 10, 1943 -- Advertisement 'Tribute to Russia' Rally - Tonight -- Saturday, July 10, 8:00 P.M.

"Milwaukee Journal -- July 11, 1943 -- 'Visions Many More Fronts' (Picture with article)

"Milwaukee Sentinel -- July 11, 1943 -- 'Sicily But One of Many Fronts, Author Declares.'"

The investigators obtained a number of pamphlets and books distributed by the American Council, and supplied this Field Division with the following material, the more pertinent of which has been included as exhibits.

For this reason we should like your help in presenting an open letter on American-Soviet Friendship to the Wisconsin people. This message was initiated by the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship as part of its program of taking specific action against propaganda designed to divide and weaken the United Nations in their struggle against the axis."

The letter reads, "We hope to place this letter as an ad in the Milwaukee Journal on Sunday, July 4. The cost of a full page is $540. Will you help us by making a substantial contribution to cover the cost?

MI-100-2990

This pamphlet was supplied to all of the individuals who attended the Tribute to Russia Rally, and merely sets forth many reasons why American-Soviet Friendship is important at this time. It contains much of the information that is used to make up the advertisement which ran in the Journal on July 9, 1943. The pamphlet points out the danger which can develop from a division of the American-Soviet relations and of the possible division of American and English friendship, and points out that American Soviet cooperation is essential. It stresses the vast sacrifices that have been made on the part of the Soviet Union, and states that the American people are also ready to sacrifice.

The pamphlet lists a large number of signers to this policy sponsored by the American Council, classifying them according to their respective fields of endeavor. The pamphlet also points out how it is possible to further American-Soviet friendship, and states that the Council carries out its purposes through the following main methods:

1. By meeting the demand of the American people for reliable information on all aspects of Soviet life.
2. By giving them an opportunity to express their admiration and friendship for our Russian ally, and
3. By taking specific action against anti-Soviet propaganda aimed at dividing the United Nations.

The pamphlet then states, "Our Open Letter (evidently referring to the advertisement of June 9) is an expression of Point 3 of our program. Here are our suggestions for further steps to make the Open Letter an effective instrument for greater unity in our war effort:

1. Arrange for a meeting in your locality to discuss the importance of American-Soviet Friendship and the dangers of anti-Soviet agitation. Arrange to have these issues discussed from the platform of organizations or groups to which you belong. (The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship will be glad to assist insofar as possible, in supplying an appropriate speaker.)

2. Get your organization to pass a resolution embodying the main points in our Open Letter. Send copies to President Roosevelt, your Congressmen and Senators, the State Department, the press.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

3. Write or wire President Roosevelt fully supporting the Administration policy of the closest possible American-Soviet relations and urging an immediate full-scale invasion of Europe to speed victory over the Axis.

4. Write or wire your Congressmen and Senators urging action against every anti-Soviet move in Congress (i.e., the "Beat Japan First" campaign) and support of every move for closer American-Soviet cooperation.

5. Answer any local manifestation of anti-Soviet activity through letters to the press.

6. Make sure that your local motion picture house is planning to show the great Warner Brothers' picture "Mission to Moscow" based on former Ambassador Joseph E. Davies' book, one of the most important contributions yet made toward building a real understanding of our Soviet ally among the American people and strengthening American-Soviet Friendship.

Exhibit 25B, secured at the Tribute to Russia Rally held at the Auditorium on Saturday, July 10, 1943, by Arthur W. Zeltner, Acting Detective, is a pamphlet entitled, "National Council of Soviet Friendship, Inc." This pamphlet sets out the purpose of the organization, which has been previously discussed, and also the program by which it is intended to carry out these purposes. The pamphlet points out the facilities offered by the American Council, and lists No. 1 as Educational Services.

Under this is stated: "To organizations or individuals the National Council can furnish the following:

"Exhibits. Numerous photographic exhibits on many phases of Soviet life.

"Films. A wide variety of features and shorts, 16 mm., silent and sound.

"Pamphlets and Books. A reading list selected according to importance, popular price and availability. In preparation: A series of pamphlets under the Council's imprint.

and other graphic material from the war fronts, both American and Soviet, dramatically presented, make this a different exhibit. Opening in New York June First, it will be toured throughout the country.

"Tokens of Friendship. The people of American communities are invited to send tokens of friendship to people of corresponding Soviet communities. For example, Detroit might select Stalingrad. Different groups in that city—youth, trade unions, professionals, etc.—could send useful or artistic tokens of friendship to similar groups in the city of adoption. It is imperative that the National Council, which will take charge of forwarding the tokens, be consulted about any proposed token before work on the project is begun.

THE PICTURE
"MISSION TO MOSCOW"

Exhibit 31B, furnished 5/2/43, by Confidential Informant [ ] is a letter written on National Council stationery, dated May 18, 1943, addressed to MR. JOHN BURSAK, 2020 S. Hilbert Street, Milwaukee, Wisconsin. The letter is signed "ALICE MOORE HENDRICKSON, Executive Secretary."

b7D

The first portion of the letter expresses appreciation for the receiver's cooperation in American-Soviet activities. A P.S. is added to this letter, which states:

"We would like to call your attention to MISSION TO MOSCOW, the magnificent film version of the book by the Honorable Joseph E. Davies, former Ambassador to Russia. It opens at the Warner Theatre Saturday, May 22. Whether or not you have already read the book itself, you will not want to miss this remarkable filming of it. It is the dramatized account of Mr. Davies' mission in the Soviet Union and gives the diplomatic background of the period of Munich, the Nazi invasion of Austria, Czechoslovakia, Poland and the other occupied countries, through the attacks on Great Britain and the Soviet Union up to the attack on Pearl Harbor and Ambassador Litvinov's arrival in Washington. The film is startling in its revelations of the events leading to war, shows why the Soviet Union has fought so well, and shows the great value and need of American-Soviet collaboration today and in the peace to come. 'Mission to Moscow' builds American-Soviet Friendship."

"In announcing the formation of the National Council of Soviet Friendship, Inc., DR. LAMONT."

The sponsors are mentioned in this article, and are the same as have been mentioned on previous literature.

The article continues:

"Among the outstanding features of the coming war exhibit are trophies captured from the Nazis by the Red Army, including special iron crosses prepared by the Nazis to commemorate the fall of Moscow, and other graphic material from the war fronts never before shown in this country.

"The National Council has also organized a series of educational services," said Dr. Lamont, "including films, pamphlets, exhibits, books and speakers. These services will be available to organizational and groups throughout the United States. Not a dues-paying organization, any individual or organization interested in promoting American-Soviet friendship may participate in its activities.

"The National Council will set up various local councils throughout the country to conduct its program in the communities. These councils will establish committees working with trade unions, women's organizations, professional groups, and nationalities' organizations.

Confidential Informant [ ] advised that during the month of July, ALICE HENDRICKSON frequently contacted JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, of the WSCSL, in connection with the Council work. On one occasion, ALICE HENDRICKSON consulted JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND regarding the construction of a certain letter or circular that she was sending out, which pertained to the American Council activities. NORDSTRAND made various suggestions as to the contents of this letter or circular, keeping in mind the advantage to the Communist Party as to its contents. This Informant also advised that ALICE HENDRICKSON continues to use the facilities of the WSCSL in connection with mimeographing work needed by the American Council. (S)(u)

b7D

[ ] advised that in a discussion pertaining to the Tribute to Russia Rally, which was being sponsored by the American Council, FANNE SILBER, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, and several other individuals were discussing this event, and FANNE suggested that a Second Front petition should be drawn up to be distributed by the American Council at this meeting. NORDSTRAND said that the Council is getting out an ad on the Second Front, which would serve the same effect. In the course of this conversation, it was learned that NORDSTRAND had made the statement that ALICE HENDRICKSON had obtained all the money needed for the advertising of this meeting, and for the letter which was published in the Journal, except $42. (S)(u)

b7D

This conversation apparently pertains to the 3/4 ad which ran in the Journal under date of July 9, 1943, which cost approximately $386. (S)(u)

[ ] further advised that in a conversation between NORDSTRAND, MR. SENITZ, and several other individuals, NORDSTRAND told MR. SENITZ that the Wisconsin Federation of German-American Societies is not doing anything at this time. She stated that they had joined the United Nations Committee, and that FRED BROTS was now a member of the American Council. NORDSTRAND further stated that MR. BROTS introduced Judge GUTTNECHT at the American Council Rally on July 10. (S)(u)

MI-100-2990

This Informant advised on or about July 14, 1943, it had been learned that MR. T. D. WANGEMANN, who has been cooperative with the Communist Party, advised that he had written to ALICE HENDRICKSON of the American Council, requesting that she remove his name from the American Council mailing list, because he did not want to jeopardize his boy's position in the Navy. It is believed that his son is now in a military camp located in Idaho.

Informant advised on or about this same date that NED SPARKS, ALICE HENDRICKSON, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, and three or four other individuals held a conversation during which HENDRICKSON made the statement that she had been successful in getting DR. BELKNAP of the United Nations Committee to help her obtain signatures for petitions requesting a re-showing of the picture, MISSION TO MOSCOW, in Milwaukee.

This Informant further advised that NED SPARKS, ALICE HENDRICKSON, JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, and several other well-known Communists, discussed the possibility of bringing the Russian-Jewish artists to Milwaukee, stating that these artists were presently being feted in New York. It was agreed that ALICE would be put in charge of the arrangements pertaining to a rally for them, and is to work through DR. BELKNAP and contact Jewish organizations. SPARKS advised that she should not let anybody on the committee who raises any objection to these Jewish artists cause of the fact that they are Russian Communists. The names of these artists are FEFFER and MICHAELS.

SPARKS further instructed NORDSTRAND and HENDRICKSON to talk to NAT GARFIELD, active Communist Party member, about the meeting, but not to let the I.K.O.R. (phonetic) handle the whole thing and make it exclusively Jewish. NORDSTRAND said that NAT GARFIELD had asked MEYER ADELMAN, who is active Communist and a CIO leader, to get in touch with NATHAN STEIN, an attorney, in connection with this meeting. NORDSTRAND also mentioned SEIGEL and some Washington Park Club.

SPARKS suggested that the meeting could be financed by collection plus the charging of admissions. SPARKS stated that if any money is left over as a result of this meeting, it would be given to the ACSF or to the Jewish section of FWR, which operates in Chicago.

This Informant further advised that ALICE HENDRICKSON and JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND held a conversation pertaining to the activities of the American Council in connection with the FEFFER-MICHAEL meeting, on or about July 21, and it was later learned that

HENDRICKSON was quite excited about an article which had appeared in the Jewish Chronicle, which was agreed by the two to be the best advertising that they have been able to obtain in the Jewish Field in years.

According to this Informant, the article in question is in the anniversary edition of the Chronicle, and a MRS. CHARLES COHEN is the person responsible for this publicity. On this date, according to this Informant, it was learned that FRED BASSETT BLAIR, State Chairman of the Communist Party, had stated that MARILYN GOODMAN, a Party member who has recently been assisting ALICE HENDRICKSON in the American Council Office, is going to become active in the Bnai Brith, adding that she is from Chicago.

This Informant further advised that ALICE HENDRICKSON, in the course of her work in connection with this Rally for the Russian artists, is obtaining complete cooperation from the various organizations and people with whom she comes in contact. In connection with HENDRICKSON'S activities in the arrangement of this affair, she called FRED GREGORSKI, Assistant District Attorney, Milwaukee County, and President of the All-Slav Council, and requested him to attend a meeting at Mayor BOEN'S office for the purpose of obtaining cooperation and assistance in connection with the FEFFER and MICHAELS reception, on the part of city officials. GREGORSKI agreed to cooperate.

It was learned by this Informant that a meeting would take place in the City Hall, consisting mostly of prominent Jews, and directed by ALICE HENDRICKSON. The purpose of the meeting was to arrange reception plans for these artists, HZAK FEFFER and PROF. MICHAELS. This Informant advised that NORDSTRAND, in a discussion with several of her friends, made the statement that there had been a meeting in the Mayor's Office at approximately 4:00 the previous day, which was attended by approximately 20 people, mostly Jews. The purpose of the meeting was to organize a rally for FEFFER and MICHAELS.

NORDSTRAND stated that in her opinion neither ALICE HENDRICKSON nor JOHN LEWIS had brains enough to go and get the Mayor and his secretary to participate in this meeting. The Mayor, according to NORDSTRAND, has agreed to act as honorary chairman of the meeting to be held in honor of FEFFER and MICHAELS.

NORDSTRAND made the statement that ALICE HENDRICKSON has an inferiority complex in regard to this meeting, and that she (NORDSTRAND) had to call a Jewish Artists and Writers' Club in New York.

MI-100-2990

The co-chairmen for this meeting are REV. LEWIS and Attorney SALTZSTEIN. ALICE HENDRICKSON and MRS. IDA BRADY are co-secretaries. The meeting at this time was tentatively planned to be held approximately August 15 or 20, depending on the itinerary of FEFFER and MICHAELS. However, this Informant stated that the meeting has been definitely set for September 7, 1943, as of 7/27/43.

.....

This Informant advised that on one occasion a MR. KLABAUCH complained to JOSEPHINE NORDSTRAND, of the WSCSL, about the anti-Russian articles recently appearing in the Milwaukee Sentinel. Most of these articles pertain to the Nazi-Russian peace offers. NORDSTRAND suggested that this individual get out a petition in regard to the matter, and then take up the question with ALICE HENDRICKSON, of the American Council.

This Informant further advised that on or about 7/26/43 NORDSTRAND, in a conversation with ALICE HENDRICKSON and several other individuals, asked ALICE if she contacted BROTS in regard to requesting that he issue a statement on the Russian peace offer to Germany. NORDSTRAND told ALICE that she now has some new angles on this affair, and that BROTS should see her to obtain this information.

NORDSTRAND told ALICE that she had received a letter from GENE DENNIS (The political advisor for the Communist Party) asking her if she had obtained statements from German leaders on the Russian peace offer to Germany. NORDSTRAND stated that statements in support of the Russian manifesto are desired. NORDSTRAND instructed ALICE that the tone of the Russian peace offer to Germany should be that it is only natural for the German element of Russia to want to help Germany to establish a democratic form of government, and to overthrow Hitler.

According to this Informant, NORDSTRAND plans on having the propaganda pertaining to this issue handled by the American Council Office, but under the supervision of NORDSTRAND and SPARKS. In the course of this conversation, HENDRICKSON agreed to put some KARPINSKY leaflets in the mail, which she is sending out for the American Council. In regard to this latter statement, the WSCSL was sponsoring a meeting at which Professor KARPINSKY was to handle and deliver an address, and it was for that reason that NORDSTRAND wished the cooperation of the American Council.

This Informant advised on or about 7/30/43 that an individual unknown to this Informant, had asked NORDSTRAND various questions about helping ALICE HENDRICKSON at the American Council Office, stating that she had agreed to help ALICE for half a day. NORDSTRAND made the statement that ALICE has MARILYN GOODMAN helping her at the present time, and in addition has a girl who works half days at the Council Office.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

MRS. DONALD A. GRANT, Secretary of the Ticonic Investment Company, 324 E. Wisconsin Avenue, Marquette 6672, advised that his firm managed the properties for the Wells Estate, and that these properties included the business property located at 221 E. Wisconsin Avenue. (The address of the American Council.) He stated that the property at this address was very old, and that they had not found a practical use for the upper two floors, which consisted of loft space.

This Informant stated that the present tenant for the second floor was an organization known as the American Council of Soviet Friendship, and that this organization has been renting a part of the second floor since January, 1943. He stated that this organization has partitioned off the front portion of the second floor, which faces on Wisconsin Avenue, making office space out of it. He further advised they have also partitioned off a portion of the second floor, in the rear, which they use for various purposes. He stated that they have been paying $25 per month for this space, and were given two months free rent at the beginning of the lease for work which they were to do, which amounted to a January and February concession.

This Informant stated that their rent payments have been very slow since they have been paying rent. He stated that the payments have been made by check, and he could not recall the name of the signer of the check, nor the bank on which the check was drawn. Informant stated that this organization was recommended favorably to the firm at the time they took possession, and that the firm has not received any complaints in regard to the activities of this group. The Informant stated, however, that little is known about their activities, and that he was unable to supply any information in regard to the membership.

Informant stated that in view of the type of possession, a lease was never made out, and the organization is renting on a month-to-month basis. Informant states that he occasionally shows the property to prospective tenants for the entire building. Informant stated that the only entrance to the property is a stairway leading from the Wisconsin Street entrance at 221 E. Wisconsin Avenue. He stated that there is no second floor rear exit to the street level, but that there is a second floor rear door which leads out to a second floor landing. There is also an exit leading out of the west side of the second floor, in the form of a fire escape. The third floor is left space, and entirely unoccupied.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

MI-100-2990

Informant stated that this second floor space was formerly occupied by the Citizens for Victory Committee and a group which called themselves the Committee to Defend America. Informant states that evidently Subject organization had learned from one of these prior groups that the space was going to be available, and thus requested possession. Informant stated that he would be glad to cooperate in any way desired.

MR. VAN HULTON of the Ticonic Club, advised that he personally handles the property located at 221 E. Wisconsin, and that he negotiated the transaction involving the granting of possession of the second floor space at 221 E. Wisconsin, to the ACSF. This Informant stated that the organization was highly recommended to him by MR. CHARLES FRIEND, an attorney whom he has known for a number of years, and that he did not question the organization beyond that point. He stated that their records did not reflect any further information regarding this group.

An attempt to locate the checking account of the ACSF was made at the following banks, with negative results:

MR. FRED KATNIS, Assistant Cashier, the Marine National Exchange Bank.

MR. A. J. TRUMBINGER, Assistant Cashier, Marshall & Halsey Bank.

MR. ROEHM, Assistant Cashier, First Wisconsin National Bank.

MR. ROY A. GRUBER, Cashier of the West Allis State Bank, advised the Subject organization had a checking account at that bank. This Informant produced the original authorization card made out by this organization at the time they opened their account, and this card reflected that the account was opened in the name of American Council of Soviet Relations, and HENRY R. ALPERT was treasurer of the organization, and that LEE E. LAWRENCE, 815 E. Knapp Street, was chairman. The account was opened October 13, 1942. An examination of the balance sheets disclosed account to have been small and inactive. As of July 22, 1943, there had not been any checks drawn on the account for July. One check of $40 was drawn in the month of June. The balance at this date was $11.28.

~~CONFIDENTIAL~~

An attempt to examine the records of Subject organization, from date of original deposit to present, was unsuccessful, due to an inability to locate Subject account in the photographic records.

This Informant advised that DR. ALPERT had a personal checking account at this bank, and a review of DR. ALPERT'S Account and cancelled checks for the past several months failed to reflect any checks written for expenses of the American Council. The account of DR. ALPERT did reflect one unusual deposit of June 15, 1943, of $368, but there is no indication that this deposit is associated with any activity of the American Council.

Dear Sir:-

There are transmitted herewith an original and three copies of a two-page log reflecting a conference between THEODORE BEYER of "Soviet Russia Today" and ALEXANDER TRACHTENBERG, of INTERNATIONAL PUBLISHERS, INCORPORATED. Confidential Informant [ ] advises this conference took place on July 13, 1943.

b7D

It is believed that the above mentioned individuals are discussing a second front advertisement which will be inserted in local newspapers and signed by a number of individuals connected with the Labor Movement as well as those considered to be non-Party persons of influence. It is also believed that the individuals referred to in the log as SMITH and CORLISS are identical with EDWIN S. SMITH and CORLISS LAMONT of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

Very truly yours,

E. E. CONROY,

T Hello.

B Hello.

T Yeah.

B Now in line with what we agreed yesterday, you know, I made the add, and so on. SMITH wrote what we all thought a very excellent letter setting forth .....(inaudible) and so on. I just had a telephone conversation with him and CORLISS is opposed, very strongly opposed to us doing it.

T I thought yesterday he had --

B That's right. But he is very strongly opposed. He said - that he had doubts before and disagreed before, however, he was willing to be in a sort of a passive minority on it, but he now is very strong feeling about it.

T He doesn't understand what's happening there at all.

B Exactly. To the point where he said that he is quite sure that there will be other military acts that will make this add superfluous.

T When will they be?

B Well, that's precisely where he doesn't agree with us. He feels that a second front - that we are making a strong preference for France, and are willing to discount everything else as second best or third best. And thirdly, if we insist on it, he prefers that we get ..... committee, that the council, as such, isn't involved in it. And it wasn't quite clear from the conversation, whether he took a vetoing position, but it's very close to it. Now, what the question is now, what we want to have your reaction to is this: we can call him up and ESTHER can ask him whether he means to veto it, and if so that we can't go through with it now, or if he still thinks that it's bad, but if we want it he wouldn't interfere. However, there is one thing even against that. He closed the conversation with - saying that he doesn't think that anybody need to call him and more on it. That he had said his piece.

ENCLOSURE

T Boy, boy, boy. You certainly have a job on your hands now.

B You see, he is surrounded there by --

T Of, course, of course. You have now something on your hands for the next period.

B That's right. There is no person there that would take the position that would understand it to begin with.

T You simply, Judge, you are going to have your hands full. I can just see what's going to happen. He should have just simply said - just for the period, that he was not going to participate in this work. And that's all. SO - wash his hands.

(Portion inaudible - both laughing together and talking.)

T That's it.

(The following is a summary of the end of the conversation which was so inaudible that it could not be taken verbatim)

TRACHTENBERG wanted BAYER to send someone tonight to see CORLISS and convince him that he is wrong. They are all for it. BAYER said that ED SMITH wrote a very excellent letter, and he is all for it too, regardless of whatever doubts he had before. They plan to discuss the subject further this afternoon.

Dear Sir:-

There are transmitted herewith an original and three copies of a three-page log containing information obtained as a result of a conference between EDWIN S. SMITH of 40 East 10th Street, New York City, formerly a member of the NATIONAL LABOR RELATIONS BOARD, who is now connected with the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP, and Consul General KISSELEV of the Soviet Council in New York City.

The above conference is reported by Confidential Informant  to have taken place on July 22, 1943.

S Is Mr. ROKOFF there?

Operator No, Mr. ROKOV (phonetic) is out. He is sick.

S This is Mr. EDWIN SMITH of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship and I wonder is Mr. KISSELEV there.

Operator Just a moment please.

S Hello, Mr. KISSELEV, EDWIN SMITH.

K How are you Mr. SMITH?

S Very well thank you. I have a request from our Philadelphia Council, our local council in Philadelphia about the Russian students. They would like to give a reception for the students in which the youth groups in Philadelphia would be involved.

K On what day?

S No particular day, I am just interested in the general idea, and I think that if it were possible for the students to do that sort of thing, I knew that a similar affair could be arranged for them in Boston and Springfield. Now, what about it? Is it a practical thing?

K Yes, Mr. SMITH, I consider this method quite possible because Philadelphia is not so far from here and the most important thing in connection with it is not to interrupt for a long time their studies, you see, their lessons and lectures, but if it could be arranged so that they would not interrupt their studies, it is quite possible.

S Well, now, would you find out about that? What would be the next steps to take in the thing.

K I think if they would send a special letter. Send the invitation to the students through the Consulate.

S Just address it to the Russian students at Columbia, care of yourself, perhaps?

K Yeah.

S That would be all right?

K Uh huh.

S Supposing I write such a letter to you and tell you what the Philadelphia Council has requested and give you all the information, and then you could let me know and I could let them know.

K All right. That would be very nice.

S Okay. How did you like the business the other evening? I mean our record making.

K Oh, it's very nice. It was very nice. As a matter of fact, you see, to tell you the truth, you see, I don't know. You see, just, I have a desire to speak with you some day personally about this matter.

S Yeah, well, why don't we arrange to do that? Would you like to have luncheon some day?

K Oh, thank you, with pleasure.

S Well, how about - I would be free tomorrow. Would you like to do it then?

K Tomorrow? Just a moment, let me see my schedule.

S Friday.

K Well, I suppose it would be possible. It is possible for me to arrange it tomorrow.

S You say, it would be, or it is impossible.

K No, No, it is possible.

S Would you like to decide now, or to ..

K Oh, yes, just now.

S Well, where can we meet that is convenient with you. Would you like me to come up there and go from there, or what?

JUG:MFB-3

K If you don't mind, come. Please come to my office and decide it just here to what place.

S All right. What time should I be there?

K At usual, twelve o'clock.

S One o'clock, good; all right, I'll be there at your office at one o'clock tomorrow.

K All right.

S All right, thank you.

K Thank you very much.

Re: COMMUNIST PARTY, USA,
DISTRICT NO. 2, NEW YORK FIELD DIVISION;
INTERNAL SECURITY - R

Dear Sir:-

There are transmitted herewith an original and three copies of a 12-page log containing information relative to plans on the part of the COMMUNIST PARTY in Greater New York for the distribution of propaganda toward the end of instituting a "Second Front" other than the attack now taking place in Sicily.

Confidential Informant [ ] advises that a number of conferences took place on July 12, 1943 between ALEXANDER TRACHTENBERG, JESSICA SMITH of "Soviet Russia Today" and EDWIN S. SMITH of the NATIONAL COUNCIL OF AMERICAN SOVIET FRIENDSHIP.

b7D

It is believed that some of the individuals referred to in the log may be identified as follows:

"Friend upstate" - CORLISS LAMONT

"ED" - EDWIN S. SMITH

"ROSE" - ROSE WORTIS

"NATIONAL COMMITTEE MEMBER OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY - TED" - THEODORE BAYER of "Soviet Russia Today".

In connection with the advertisement to be inserted in local newspapers relative to the opening up of a "Second Front", it will be noted that difficulty is apparently being experienced in obtaining the sponsorship of CORLISS LAMONT.

T Hello.

J Hello, look, I just thought I'd let you know that our friend up state is bitterly opposed to any action whatsoever along these lines and we're going to have a very, very tough time with him.

T He said it again, huh?

J He called up, no, he hasn't seen it again.

T Oh, he called up? On his own?

J He called up, he hadn't heard that it was withdrawn, there was some confusion in our conversation this morning, I thought ED would talk to him afterwards but apparently he hadn't, he said, well, I'm so relieved I feel as though I've been pulled back from the edge of a precipice.

T My God!

J So then I went on to explain that it was only the question of the wording that had bothered us, that we felt it didn't take sufficient cognizance of the new situation and that we were rewriting it in that line and well, he said, I don't care, I think the whole thing is just absolutely wrong and a ridiculous thing to do, it puts us in a bad position, it hurts the organization, and he said, I'm fully clarified on the thing now, I wasn't so sure before but now I'm just completely opposed at this particular period until some new efforts, you know, some new anti-Soviet campaign or something like that.

T Huh.

J So I told him the line we were taking and gave him our arguments and so on but it didn't move him at all, so finally I said, well, I think it's better for you to see the text as we have it which we are planning to send you and so on, but I'm pretty sure by the way he spoke and by the influence he's under up there, .....(indistinct) people, because that's what he said, he said, you see I've talked to a great many people, I've gotten their reactions.

T That's unfortunate.
